HERRIOT VAGUE ON PROGRAM HE WOULD FOLLOW

Suggested Policies Derided By Paris Opposition Press —Prospective Premier In New French Government Likely to Pursue Cautious Course Abroad and At Home.

CABINET UNFORMED.

PARIS, May 19 (Canadian Press). — Statements made by Edouard Herriot, the Radical Socialist leader, after his arrival in Lyons from the south of France, regarding the programme he intends to follow if he accepts the leadership of the new Government—the suppression of the measure providing for laws by decree; secondary education, the re-establishment of the State match monopoly, and the granting of wide amnesty—find derisive echoes in yesterday's more serious opposition papers.

M. Herriot's outline of his foreign policy, "efficacious collaboration among the Great Powers for the settlement of big problems," with the promise to keep within the bounds of good sense and reason, is criticised as rather ethereal, and it is noted that the Radical leader, who by reason of his extended visit to Russia, should be well informed on that subject, avoided answering the question of Soviet recognition, saying:

"We want to be very reasonable folks."

Demand Good Faith.

However, M. Herriot did add:

"We will be of good faith, but we will demand good faith from others."

The man who is likely to be the future Premier, therefore, it would appear, intends to go slow; nevertheless, opposition critics are sceptical because of the vagueness of his utterances on external and internal policy, notably his side-stepping the question of whether he would demand the repeal of the 20 per cent. taxation, which caused the downfall of M. Poincare. The only answer to this M. Herriot vouchsafed was: "The financial policy forms part of the foreign policy we wish to follow, and the latter ought to be fixed first," leading one ironic commentator to remark that France's tax burden thus will be reduced only after Germany has finally paid.

Radicals to Meet.

M. Herriot is still non-committal as to possible Cabinet selections, because he does not know whether the Socialists' present reluctance to accept portfolios will be maintained. He expects to preside at a mid-week meeting in Paris as the president of the Radicals, at which much groundwork will be laid.

The Temps, in a pessimistic comment, says: "Led away beyond reasonable lengths by the attitude it took and the alliances it contracted in opposition, Radicalism approaches the Government under conditions extremely perilous, first, for the country, then for itself. To negative ideas are opposed constructive acts."

FISHING LAWS ARE AMENDED

Legal Catch of Bass and Maskinonge Defined — Ontario Regulations Are Amended.

OTTAWA, May 19.—(Canadian Press.)—An order-in-Council amending the fisheries regulations for the Province of Ontario has been published in the Canada Gazette. The order makes it illegal for anglers to use more thanone fishing line. Exceptfor those angling or trolling, all fishermen must hold licenses from the Department of Game and Fisheries of the Province of Ontario. The order reads that "No one shall fish for, catchor kill in any of these waters of the province in one day by angling a greater number than eight large mouthed or small mouthed black bass, nor take away at any one time a greater number than two days' legal catch."

This regulation also stated that four maskinonge will constitute one day's legal catch. No one shall catch by angling a greater number of speckled or brown trout than in the aggregate shall weigh more than 10 pounds, according to the regulations. It is forbidden to take away more than 20 pounds of trout.

The order also contains new regulations regarding the length and weight of fish to be taken from certain waters, and new regulations regarding net fishing on the Great Lakes.

Immigrants From Hebrides Receive A Lively Sendoff

LONDON, May 19.—(Canadian Press).—The liner Canada called at Stornaway, Hebrides, Saturday and embarked with 270 passengers for Canada, including a party of 173 organized by the Ontario Government and destined for farm work and domestic service.

The others included 7 families, comprising 34 persons. No fewer than 175 of the emigrants bore surnames commencing with "Mac." Twenty-nine famous highland clans are represented among the emigrants.

Enthusiastic scenes marked the departure. Hundreds of people massed at the dock and cheered as the Canada pulled away. The send-off was also enlivened by some thirty steam drifters and other craft in the harbor who blew sirens.

IRISH FACTION GAINS RECRUIT

John Milroy Deserts Cosgrave For New Nationalist Group—Impossible to Remain With Government.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 19.—"I purpose to leave the Government Party and associate myself with the new Nationalist Party, formed in the Dail Eireann," declared John Milroy, member of the Dail, to his constituents at Cavan, yesterday. Milroy took an active part in the treaty negotiations particularly with reference to the boundary question between Ulster and the Free State.

"I stand," said Mr. Milroy in his address, "where Arthur Griffith stood, and for the principles and policies he advocated. Accordingly, I find it impossible to continue to identify myself with what appears the attitude of the government on national matters incompatible with that of Griffith.

"If bloodshed was averted during the recent trouble in the army, not an iota of thanks was due to the Executive Council."

On the boundary question, Mr. Milroy said: "We are not deluded by the language of Colonial Secretary Thomas when he speaks about Irishmen settling the matter themselves. If there is any difficulty to solve it is a deliberate creation of the British Government, and we hold it to the undertakings given under Article XII of the Anglo-Irish Treaty."

ATTORNEY W. HAYWARD CRITICIZES GOVERNOR

NEW YORK, May 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Governor Smith and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the Columbia University, last night were declared to be responsible for two of the hardest blows ever struck at the respect for the law by United States Attorney William Hayward.

Speaking from the pulpit of James Methodist Episcopal church in Brooklyn ,the Federal official, by inference, characterized the governor as a man who had benind him a 25 year record as champion of the saloon and asserted that "bootleggers had taken great heart at Dr. Butler's utterances against the eighteenth amendment and Volstead Act and his recent declaration before the Missouri society in New York that the prohibition law was not enforceable.

SHIPBUILDING FIRM SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS

KEARNEY, N.J., May 19.—(Canadian Press).—Largest building at Kearney plant of Federal Shipbuilding company last night was virtually destroyed by fire at loss, unofficially estimated at half a million dollars. Four bare walls and bulk of mangled machinery is all that remains of the structure.

KU KLUX KLAN SENTRIES MAN-HANDLED BY MOB

Claim University Students Tore Off Their Masks and Gowns.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 19.—Eight Ku Klux Klansmen doing duty on street corners here Saturday, were attacked by a mob of men who tore their robes and masks off, according to Klan officials.

The mob, according to Klansmen, was composed of students at Notre Dame University.

GEN. TOWNSHEND KUT'S DEFENDER DEAD IN PARIS

Commander of the British Forces in Mesopotamia During the World War Succumbed on Sunday to Illness of Six Months — Was Visiting His Mother.

PRISONER OF TURKS.

PARIS, May 19.—Major General Sir Charles B. F. Townshend, famous as the defender of Kut-El-Amara, when he was commander of the British forces in Mesopotamia during the World War, died here Sunday after six months' illness. He was on a visit to his mother-in-law, Countess Cahen D'Anvers, at the time of his death.

Major General Townshend was born in 1861. He entered the Royal Marines in 1881 and saw extensive military service in Egypt, India and South Africa.

At the outbreak of the World War he was given command of the British forces in the attempt to take Bagdad from the Turks. After a few initial successes the Turks, who greatly outnumbered the British, drove gack General Townshend's forces to Kuy-El-Amara, the British suffering heavy losses in their retreat. From December, 1915 to April 1916, the British gallantly held Kut-El-Amara, but finally were compelled to surrender.

During the siege British aviators several times flew over Kut-El-Amara and dropped food to the starving troops inside. Gen. Townshend declared afterwards that Kut-El-Amara never was captured by the Turks; that the town fell after 148 days of siege from starvation and mental and physical hardships which were indescribable. The Turkish commander permitted General Townshend to retain his sword when the town fell.

The British official report at the time of the capitulation announced that the British force numbered 8,970 men. General Townshend was released by the Turks when Turkey signed the armistice on October 30, 1918.

SECESSION BY ARMS FOOLISH

South African Nationalists Will Not Force the Issue, General Kemp Says — Smuts In Controversy.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, May 19. Canadian Press Cable.—Denying the report that he had advocated recource to arms in order to secure secession from the British Empire in the event of peaceful means failing, General Kemp, member of the last Union House of Assembly declared on Sunday that the "Nationalists leave the question of secession to the unfettered decision of South Africans. They will not force the issue no matter how long it takes to bring about a solution."

Fervently appealing for national unity and peace, General Kemp said it would be foolish to attempt to secure independence by force nowadays. The Nationalists, he added, do not desire war. If they get into power they would try to improve conditions and would not touch the question of secession.

Smuts' Controversy.

The latest developments in Premier Smuts' election campaign is the controversy in which he has become involved with the Chamber of Mines, over his recent declaration that the mining organizations had given a promise, to which he would hold them, that if the low-grade mines were given a chance there would be such further development that every man let out would be taken back to work. Premier Smuts, who is at present touring the Western Transvaal, now declares: "Two years ago I had at no little risk, politically and otherwise, to get these gentlemen out of the hole in which they were. I did so to to save the mining industry for the future. I succeeded and the only thank I ever got from them is this sniping in the rear, when I am heavily engaged on another front. It is not fair. Let Sir Evelyn Wallers, vice-president of the Transvaal Chamber of Mines, tell me quite plainly that he no longer believes there is a prospect for development and expansion and an increase of white employment in the mines which he held out two years ago, and then I will know what to do."

Cruelty to Send People to Seek Work in Canada

LONDON, May 19.—(Canadian Press).—Tom Richardson, a former member of the British House of Commons who has been in Canada for three years and has just returned, severely attacks Canada's immigration policy.

Addressing the National Council of the Independent Labor Party Saturday, he asserted that in view of the unemployment in the Canadian cities and the poor conditions prevailing on the land, it was not only criminal but an act of cruelty to encourage people to seek work in Canada where thousands of unemployed in the cities and 75 per cent. of the immigrants who went to work on the land went down. The economic position of the farmers, he said, was so bad that potatoes and fruit were often allowed to go to rot in large quantities.

585,077 MOTORS CANADA'S SHARE

Of This Number Registered Last Year 515,077 Were Passenger Automobiles—Eleven Millions In Taxes

OTTAWA, May 19 (Canadian Press). — The total registration of all classes of motor vehicles in Canada last year was 585,079, according to Circular No. 5 of the Highways Branch of the Department of Railways and Canals.

The registration included 515,077 passenger automobiles, 54,235 commercial trucks, 1,937 buses, 8,311 motor cycles, and in the various provinces 5,483 different dealers and manufacturers were licensed.

There was an increase of 13 per cent. in the registration of passenger vehicles in 1923 over 1922 and an increase in commercial vehicles of 18 per cent.

Registration Revenue.

The gross total of all revenues collected in the nine provinces and the Yukon Territory, from registration of motor vehicles, licence fees, etc., amounted to $11,402,421.03, an increase of 22 per cent. over 1922.

A large increase is shown in the number of automobiles that entered Canada from the United States last year for touring purposes.

There were registered for a period of from one to six months, 1,956 motor vehicles; for a period of from two to thirty days, 273,444 motor vehicles, and for a period of twenty-four hours, 1,682,200 motor vehicles.

The circular states: "Assuming that each vehicle so registered at the different border ports carried four passengers each, who spent $5.00 daily per person during their sojourn in Canada, and that for the shorter periods, all remained the full time of the permits, and for the longer periods, one-half of the time, the amount of money expended by these tourists in the different provinces of Canada last year would amount to nearly $118,500,000." The circular contains extensive information regarding motor vehicles and highways.

EUROPE ON EVE OF NAVAL CONFERENCE

Italian Newspaper Expects Limitation Convention — Meanwhile Competition Continues.

ROME, May 19. — The Corriere Italiano thinks Europe is on the eve of a new international conference for the limitation of naval armaments, completed the work at Washington in 1921. It is of the opinion that an understanding that it is especially necessary for equilibrium in the Mediterranean, "where England is about to concentrate naval forces sufficient to face the combined French, Italian and Spanish fleets."

Meanwhile, the paper says, France is preparing even under the left to carry out M. Poincare's naval programme. In 1930 France, according to the Corriere Italiano will have absolute naval superiority over Italy, in order to insure the safe transportation of her African troops across the Mediterranean.

McMASTER RECROSSES FLOOR TO LIBERALS AS MITCHELL QUITS KING

"The Government Is Following the True Line of Public Welfare and Is Disregarding the Desires of the Big Interests," Declares Member From Brome In Explaining His Return.

LOW-TARIFF LIBERAL.

OTTAWA, May 19 (Canadian Press). — "My reason for recrossing the floor of the House," stated Andrew R. McMaster, Liberal, Brome, to the Canadian Press, in explaining his announced intention of resuming his seat on the Government side of the House of Commons, "is because of the changed attitude of the Government in regard to tariff matters. The tariff changes, although covering no very wide extent, are yet substantial, and in my view based on sound economic principles. The reaction to the Budget of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, is also a reason why low-tariff Liberals should rally to the support of the Government.

"Above all, the attitude of Sir Lomer Gouin, who failed to appear to vote for the Budget presented by a Ministry of which he was so lately a member, and his cancelling of his pair, shows to be at least very plainly that the Government in its stand is following the true line of public welfare, and is disregarding the desires of the big interests.

Prudent Changes.

"Everyone desires that the necessary changes in the tariff should be made with prudence and forethought. I have on several occasions invited the manufacturers of this country to contribute their experience and knowledge to the task of how best the tariff can be reduced, and to indicate the steps which would ensure the least possible dislocation of industry. So far as their official representatives are concerned, such invitation is answered by an attitude which in some sets forth the idea that the tariff must not be reduced in any particular whatsoever. It would appear to me that such an attitude was unwise, not only from the viewpoint of the public interest, but from the viewpoint of the interest of the manufacturers themselves."

Relief of Consumers.

"Two, nay, three," Mr. McMaster concluded his statement, "lie before the Government: First, the further reduction of the tariff along lines which will bring relief to the consumers of this country, and which will stimulate industry now shackled and hampered by many tariff restrictions; second, the uniting of all those in the country who believe in the principles of fiscal freedom; and third, the uniting for political action of all the adherents of such belief, no matter under what political banner they may now be enrolled."

THE WEATHER.

Rain yesterday totalled .25 of an inch. This makes nine days in May on which rain has fallen, and the total is already around three inches. This morning there was ice as thick as window glass, and a crust on the newly dug earth. The season is undoubtedly late but not more so perhaps than last year. No surer indication is there than the leafing of the trees. Last year the maples were only in half leaf on May 24th, and the leaves had only fully expanded by May 30th.—W.P.

SEVEN KILLED.

RALEIGH, N.C., May 19 (Canadian Press). — Seven persons were reported killed late yesterday in a head-on collision between two passenger trains on the Seaboard Air Line Railway at Cary, seven miles from Raleigh.

Hon. Walter Mitchell Makes Public His Letter of Resignation Dissenting From Government's Tariff Program — The Laurier-Fielding Policy of 1898 to 1911, He Says, Has Been Abandoned.

ISSUE FOR ELECTORS.

MONTREAL, May 19 (Canadian Press). — Interviewed here yesterday on the subject of his letter of resignation to Premier King last week Walter Mitchell, Liberal M.P. for the St. Antoine Division of Montreal, consented to have his letter made public, and pointed out that the Premier had manifestly been misled by the use of the word "private" in the despatch from New York covering the first interview with Mr. Mitchell after his resignation.

The letter states that Mr. Mitchell, in standing for St. Antoine, adopted what he described as the Laurier-Fielding tariff as practised by the Liberal Administration from 1898 to 1911.

This position was, he says, expressly referred to in the debate on the Speech from the Throne in the House in 1922, while he states that Mr. Fielding, as late as last session, reiterated his dissent from the Liberal platform of 1919.

Policy Abandoned.

Mr. Mitchell's letter continues:

"On receipt of the Budget speech this year, as delivered by the Acting Minister of Finance, although disquieted by what seemed to me to point to a change in the principles which had hitherto governed our tariff legislation, I nevertheless hesitated to offer any dissent until I was convinced by the declarations in the House of no less than three of your Ministers, that the Laurier-Fielding policy had been abandoned.

"The Minister of the Interior referred to the present Budget as the death knell of protection, while the Solicitor-General and the Minister of Agriculture made it equally clear that the policy of your 1919 platform which the Minister of Agriculture declared Government was directed towards carrying into effect the to be similar in effect to that of the Progressive Party."

Referred to Electors.

Mr. Mitchell then states that the 1919 platform was one to which he never subscribed, and in view of the platform upon which he was elected cannot now subscribe. He adds:

"I feel that the only course left open to me is to tender my resignation as a member of the House of Commons and thus afford to the electors of the St. Antoine Division an opportunity to express their views and to elect a representative who will carry with him a clear mandate upon an issue which I feel to be so vital to Canada at the present time."

LAST MESSAGE OF ILL-FATED 'DIXMUDE'

Washed Up In Bottle on Shore of Corsica — Disappeared In Storm.

AJACCIO, Corsica, May 19.—"Gasoline given out. We are adrift. Wind like a tempest. Dixmude's crew. Adieu and Vive la France."

This scrawled message found in a bottle washed up on the Corsican coast at Propriano is believed to be the last message from the ill-fated airship Dixmude lost in the Mediterranean last December.

The French super-zepplin Dixmude at the time of her destruction was attempting a distance and endurance record. She disappeared in a series of storms with fifty-two men aboard. Extensive search for her was made by French warships and airplanes.

ONCE PROSPEROUS NEW YORK STATE TOWN IS DESERTED

SARANAC LAKE, May 19. —The removal of the last family from Peaseville has added that once prosperous lumbering hamlet to the list of deserted villages scattered throughout the Adirondack wilderness.

A few years ago Peaseville, situated a few miles north of Saranac Lake, was a prosperous community with several score families. Today finds not a person living there, the homes having been abandoned to the ravages of the elements and wild animals.

The cutting of the last marketable timber in that section of the wilderness forced the passing of the lumber town, whose homes probably will become the prey of forest fires.

GERMAN MINERS REJECT AWARD

Arbitration Failed to Provide Overtime Pay and Lockout in Ruhr District Will Likely Continue.

BOCHUM, Germany, May 19.—The four miners' unions have voted to reject the arbitration proposals recently made in Berlin as a means of settling the dispute between the miners and the mine owners. The rejection was voted because the proposals failed to accord the workers pay for overtime. The mine operators confer to-day on the situation. The belief is that they will favor the arbitration proposals, which were rendered through the mediation of Minister of Labor Brauns, and that the lockout will continue.

While the miners agreed to accept the covering schedule regulating wages they are holding out for recognition of their demands for overtime. They assert that they are willing to work in order to enable Germany to carry out the obligations imposed by the "Micum" accord and accuse the operators of arbitrarily preventing them from working.

The miners' unions warn members against yielding to Communistic propaganda, which is declared to be attempting to incite lawlessness throughout the Ruhr Basin.

BELGIAN PREMIER VISITING MILAN

Conferred With Mussolini — Press Sees Change in Belgium's Foreign Policy

MILAN, Italy, May 18.—Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium arrived here to-day for a conference with Premier Mussolini on the question of the proceduse of the Allies in connection with the report of the Reparation experts headed by Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes.

Premier Mussolini reached Milan this morning and after visiting his family went to the station to greet the Belgian statesmen. The conference held later between the Premier and the visitors in the Prefecture is described as having been most cordial and fruitful in valuable results. The newspapers consider the presence of the Belgian statesmen in Milan as marking a new era in Belgium's foreign policy.

GOVERNOR SMITH OF NEW YORK BEREAVED

Died on Sunday of Pneumonia — Son's Political Success Was Her Great Pride.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Mrs. Catharine Smith, mother of Governor Smith, who has been ill for several weeks, with pneumonia, died at 6.20 last night at the home of her daughter in Brooklyn.

Governor Smith's mother was born on Dover street on the Lower East Side. Within the old Fourth Ward she spent her girlhood, married and raised her family.

The success of her son in public life was a source of the greatest pride to Mrs. Smith. A deep bond of attachment existed between mother and son.

The Governor for many years made it a point to visit his mother on Sundays, when she used to cook an old-fashioned dinner for him.

REFLECTION ON SOBRIETY STIRS BRITISH HOUSE

Members of the Commons Amused Rather Than Indignant at Temperance Convention's Proposal to Apply Public Restrictions to Bar in the House.

LESS DRINKING NOW.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 19 (Canadian Press). — As a consequence of the attitude of the British Government in lowering the preference duty on sugar and other products of the British West Indies, widespread dissatisfaction prevails in Trinidad and British Guiana.

Orders cancelling purchases of machinery from British firms have been sent out by the sugar growers.

Similar action is being taken in Jamaica.

LONDON, May 19 (Canadian Press Cable). — Amusement rather than indignation has been created among members of Parliament at statements made at the National Commercial Temperance Union convention at Leicester concerning alleged excessive drinking in the House of Commons.

A resolution urging the same restrictions on drinking in the House of Commons as elsewhere, was referred to a special committee.

Soberest in History.

There is some talk of bringing the statements to the notice of the Speaker, with a request that the offenders be called before the bar of the House to answer for their assertions, but it is said to be unlikely that any member of the House will give the Leicester gathering this additional publicity.

One veteran member of the House declares the present House is the soberest in the history of the British Parliament. Drinking ,he says, has declined steadily at Westminster as elsewhere in the last thirty years.

Labourites Abstain.

Nearly twenty years ago, when Labour members were first returned in any considerable numbers, they made a dramatic and spontaneous gesture for temperance by pledging themselves collectively to partake of no stimulants while engaged in parliamentary work.

Although this gesture has not since been repeated, it is understood to be a fact that the majority of the Labour members are complete abstainers. No reliable figures are available concerning the attitude of the whole house towards abstinence, but probably 50 per cent. would be ready to forswear.

The amount of exciseable liquor consumed within the precincts is no criterion either, as much of it goes down the throats of thousands of constituents and others who wait on members at the House and are modestly entertained.

"Drys" Most Violent.

The bars of the House are closed a certain portion of th day, but remain open an hour and a half after the House rises.

Commander Kenworthy (Liberal) declares that some of the most violent speeches proceed from "fanatical teetotallers. He ventures to cite as an example E. Scrymgeour, the Prohibitionist member for Dundee.

REPAIRS MAKE UP MOST OF PERMITS

One Dwelling Named Last Week—Total For the Week Was $8,585.

Building permits taken out since last Monday total $8,585, and include one dwelling. Extensive repairs are in progress in many localities and in some cases amount to large sums. The C. P. R. Company, for instance, is making repairs to the water tank that will cost $1,500, and repairs to a house at 119 Mark Street will run into $800.

From conversation in the city it is evident that many people are looking over plans and discussing the building of houses, and it is noticed that in most cases where the houses have been started they are of a home-like construction. Evidently the present generation is building for its comfort, and most plans call for bungalows and one and a half storey houses. Only two garages were included in the permits last week compared with six during the previous week. Those started last week were at 498 Bonaccord Street, R. J. Frise, and 296 Margaret Avenue, H. Dawson. The only dwelling in last week's permits is at the intersection of Gilmour Street and Monaghan Road, an eight-roomed house owned by W. G. Reid, to cost $4,000.

H. H. Gibbs, 421 Water Street, is constructing a runway in his stable at a cost of $150; F. A. Preston is making 304 Freedrick Avenue into a duplex, $500; J. E. A. Fitzgerald is altering 253 Hunter Street and erecting a 15-ton truck scale at a cost of $700; Mayor J. J. Turner will erect a verandah and balcony at 515 Water Street, $500; and there is a number of small repairs.

CRUELTY TO BRING PEOPLE TO CANADA

Declares Former Resident in Dominion to British Labor Party Meeting--Says Immigrants Fail.

LONDON, May 19. — British United Press. — It is not only criminal, but it is an act of cruelty, to encourage people to seek w...k in Canada, is the statement of Tom Richardson, a former member of the British Commons for Workington, who recently returned to his homeland after a three year residence in the Dominion. Mr. Richardson, speaking at the National Council of the Independent Labor Party, pictured conditions in Canada as worse than they are in Britain. He claims that the cities are filled with the unemployed, and that of the immigrants taking up land at least 75 per cent. fail.

BALDWIN REPUDIATES REPORTED INTERVIEW

Says He is Not Responsible For Statements of Personal Character.

LONDON, May 19. — (Canadian Press). — Another mild sensation among politicians here has been created by an interview with former Premier Baldwin, which appeared in "The People" paper which is controlled largely by Col. Grant Morden, well-known Canadian financier. The interview was a strong attack on Viscount Rothermere and Baron Beaverbrook, whose newspapers opposed the Baldwin Government in the last general election.

It had been anticipated that Mr. Baldwin would repudiate the interview and he has done so, but repudiation appears to be rather qualified. His statement is as follows: "The report contains many statements, particularly those of a personal character, which I did not make and for which I accept no responsibility whatever."

The interview in its general details is merely an exhortation to Conservatives to adopt the vital democratic creed. The personal statements in question which Mr. Baldwin is more particularly anxious to repudiate have reference to a meeting in the Carleton Club in 1922, which resulted in the Conservatives' return to power.

"I was determined," says Mr. Baldwin, "that never again should the sinister and cynical combination of the chief three of the Coalition, Lloyd George, Winston Churchill and Lord Birkenhead, come together, but to-day you can see the signs of the times. But I did not expect the exiled Conservative Ministers would take things as badly as they did."

TWO MEN SHOT DOWN ON COBOURG ESTATE

One Crawled Through the Bush a Mile For Help and Was Found Unconscious By Doctor Who Followed Trail of Blood—Taken to Toronto Hospital—Gamekeeper Charged.

COBOURG, May 19.—(Canadian Press)—Shot by a game keeper on a pirvate estate near Baltimore 5 miles north of here, Byron A. McCrodan, 175 Dunvegan Road, Toronto, and Edward Rowe of this town, were seriously wounded at an early hour yesterday morning.

William John Crossen, who fired the two shots at practically point blank range from a 12 gauge shot gun is held here on $5,000 bail on a charge of wounding with intent to do serious bodily harm.

Mr. McCrodan, who is factory superintendent and chemist of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., Toronto., was removed to Wellsley Hospital, Toronto last evening, where an operation was performed by Dr. Herbert Bruce, assisted by Dr. Gordon Armstrong, of Roseneath. His condition is said to be very serious but strong hopes are held out for his recovery.

Mr Rowe who dragged himself nearly a mile through the bush after being shot was able to be removed to his home after treatment at the General Hospital here. His condition is not regarded as dangerous but he will be confined to his home for some time.

The first information of the shooting was received by Dr. Armstrong by telephone about 5 o'clock this morning. He drove at once to the scene, a private estate and fishing pond owend by William James Crossen, retired manufacturer of this town, who is no relation to the man held, where he discovered McCrodan in a cottage owned by the gamekeeper.

After some time spent in searching the vicinity, Dr. Armstrong who followed the trail of blood, found Rowe, also unconscious in a ditch by the roadside. Both men were immediately removed to the hospital.

Crossen was taken into custody by Provincial Constable T. W. Cousans.

Conflicting stories are told as to the shooting. Whereas the wounded men state that they obeyed the command to halt and were fired upon without warning, the gamekeeper tells the police that he did not shoot until the men attempted to escape. Crossen, the man under arrest, is about 55 years of age and is said to be unfamiliar with the use of fire arms.

According to the story told by McCrodan and Rowe they were walking through the bush when accosted by Crossen who order them to halt. They were then told to move in a certain direction and when they did so, they allege, they were fired upon. McCrodan received the contents of one barrel and Rowe the other. Both men fell down.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Lacrosse Magnates Held a Meeting--Care in Selecting Umpires.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 19. — Campbellford, Havelock and Hastings will have junior lacrosse teams this year affiliated with the O.L.A., Peterborough, Marmora, Tweed, and Madoc having decided to remain outside that association. At a meeting held Friday afternoon in Havelock, the delegates present were H. MacArthur, Campbellford; W. Wellman and W. Clapper, Hastings; T. P. Lancaster and Burgess, Havelock.

A. Armstrong, convenor presided. He reported that he had communicated with all the clubs on the district and of these only the three already mentioned had decided to enter the O.L.A. Havelock will have a Midget Team besides the Juniors. Peterborough will be permitted to develop their players among themselves and to take part in the semi-finals.

One point stressed at the meeting was the desire to keep the play clean and to accomplish this care was taken in the selection of a competent board of umpires those chosen being as follows:

Campbellford—C. Holmes, H. D. Atkinson, and Jack Nesbitt.

Hastings—I. Doonan, W. Clapper and J. Armstrong.

Havelock—G. Burgess and A. Armstrong.

T wo neutral referees, were selected "Phoney" Shannon of Marmora and Alex. Kemp of Norwood, these to act in case the teams fail to agree on members of the regular staff.

The referees will be paid $5 for each game, the contracting teams to contribute $2.50 for this purpose. The teams must notify Convenor Armstrong three days before a game as to what referee has been agreed upon.

Each team will pay its own expenses when away from home and no guarantee is required.

The Schedule

In drawing up the schedule the delegates avoided conflicts with dates on which Northumberland and Trent Valley baseball league games will be played as well as the dates for the departmental examinations, so many high school students being members of the teams, Hastings showed a preference for Friday games as the baseball games in that village are held on Wednesday and this arrangement also suited Campbellford. The schedule as finally adopted is as follows:

May 30—Campbellford at Hastings
June 6—Havelock at Campbellford.
June 13—Hastings at Havelock.
June 20—Hastings at Campbellford
June 27—Havelock at Hastings.
July 4—Campbellford at Havelock.
July 11—Hastings at Campbellford
July 18—Havelock at Hastings.
July 23—Campbellford at Havelock.
August 1—Campbellford at Hastings.
August 8—Havelock at Campbellford.
August 15—Hastings at Havelock.

All games, whenever possible will begin at 4:45 p.m., to give pupils of the public and high schools a chance to attend.

The members of the Campbellford team have purchased their own sweaters and no canvass for funds will be made. The officers have offered to donate the use of their cars when the team plays away from home.

The nets on the fair grounds have been placed and at the practice on Monday night a full team and five or six substitutes will be selected for the game with Trenton at the celebration on Friday afternoon.

The members of these three teams have faith that lacrosse is one of the most popular games in this district, next year they aim to have an intermediate as well as a Junior and Midget team in Campbellford, Hastings and Havelock.

Marmora, Tweed and Madoc will have Junior baseball instead of lacrosse teams this year.

Baseball Practice.

Manager Davidson's Northumberland League team had their first real workout on Saturday evening when they played the new team organized by the Hydro employees. The prospects for the game are bright. The Hydro team contains some excellent players and these can be used to strengthen the league team as occasion requires. The work of Scott, the Hydro's left hander, was closely watched and he demonstrated that he had plenty of speed and with a little more practice will have no trouble in getting them across the plate. Hutton, who pitched for the leaguers, also gave a good account of himself, although the weather was too cold for fast work either by pitcher or fielders.

Another new man tried out by the League team was Captain Hyland, who worked behind the bat for two innings. He can stop them all, going into the air after the high ones, reaching out for wide pitches, and scooping the low ones off the ground. Base stealers have little chance to beat his throw to second. The captain also made one of the four runs scored by his side, going to first on balls, stealing his way to third, and and going home on a sacrifice. He should prove a valuable addition to the team.

The most of last year's reliables were in the line-up, these including Charlie Holmes, Jack Nesbitt, Blakely, Shillinglaw, West, Eagleson and Hume, every one of them as full of "pep" as ever.

The game went five innings, being called on account of darkness, and the score was 4-4.

Baseball is incressing in popularity here and the prospects are that the games will be well patronized. There were more cars and spectators on the Fair grounds Saturday evening than were seen at some of the regular scheduled contests last year. The organization of the Hydro team also shows that more young men are becoming inspired by the ambition to perform on the diamond.

Season Opens Wednesday.

The league season opens Wednesday, when Roseneath will be here Considerable mystery surrounds them this year and all the other members of the league are disposed to regard them as potential champions. The Roseneaths were going strong when the season closed last fall and it is understood that they have been strengthened by the addition of several new players. They are modest about their prospects, but it seems to be modesty born of confidence in their prowess. Last year they were a bunch of clean sports who carried on early in the season under a handicap, but when they suffered defeat they accepted it gracefully and did not lay a reverse to outside causes.

Anyway, Wednesday's game is sure to be a good one. Everybody interested in baseball will be anxious to see just what the strengthened Roseneaths are able to do.

CHURCH UNION IN MILLBROOK

"Why I Believe in Union" Was Pastor's Subject on Sunday.

MILLBROOK, May 19.—"Why I Believe in Union" was the subject of Rev. S. T. Tucker's sermon on Sunday morning, the topic which has been, and is still, the subject of much bitter controversy, being presented for the first time to a Millbrook congregation.

Divisions have apparently gone to the extreme, and now the movement is to unite the Christian forces. Since 1860 this movement has steadily been gaining ground in the United States, in Australia, in England, and in Canada it is twenty years since it was first brought up, the original suggestion coming not from the Methodist Church, but its General Conference being approached by the Presbyterian Church on the question.

"I believe in Union because it is the ideal of Christ. Paul gives the correct picture when he speaks of all being one body in Christ, with the Saviour as the Head, and every organ functioning for the service of the whole, which is the secret of health and vitality." "That they all may be one" was Christ's prayer, not alone oneness of organization being that for which He was pleading, but oneness of spirit and a oneness of objective, all drawing upon the same source of power. Sectarianism is based upon loyalty to an organization with prejudice and rivalry as its fruitage, but a multiplication of sects is not necessary to the development of the kingdom.

Divisions in the church come about over questions of doctrine, while progress is based upon the discovery of Christian truth, the great body of which was enunciated by Christ. Illumination on certain fundamental doctrines has been given by the Holy Spirit during the centuries making a re-statement of theology necessary each time, with consequent divisions. Why should the Catholic Church have excommunicated Luther, and has not the Anglican Church regretfully admitted her mistake in letting John Wesley go? These actions represent the weakness of human prejudice but are not in the Divine plan.

The course of science proves that because a theory is old it is not necessarily true, and that age is not the basis of value. The true test is whether a church has the power to adapt itself to the needs of the time and to serve humanity, and in this respect the Methodist Church has a record of which its followers may well be proud.

"I believe in Union because a new country needs a new organization. We have not copied the political organism of the Old Land but have developed our own type of government, why not our own type of church? Missionaries in older lands where civilization and traditions differ have found this policy imperative. To bring Protestantism to a common platform is one of the great needs of our national life, from the standpoint of freedom, democracy, and individualism, and we have now reached a crucial point on the question."

The churches have seen best to unite their forces on all great questions of social service, why not present a united front all the time? We shall never solve the problems of immigration, of Canadianising and Christianising our foreign population, nor settle aright our educational difficulties until the Christian church has a united programme which she is ready to stand for, and fight for, until it be accomplished.

If this matter of union is really wrong why have the anti-unionists waited until the last minute before expressing their opposition? Thirteen hundred churches have already come into practical union because representatives of each pledged themselves that ultimate union would come, and these are at present without any connexional organization.

The rights of the minority have been safeguarded in the basis of union, and no fault has been found with the details of organization which can be amended and adjusted as the years go by. The greatest minds of the three churches seeking union have conserved all that is best and really true in framing the document, and any church remaining out may retain its own property and receive its full share of the common property, upon the decision of a commission. No local church is under any obligation to merge itself in any other local church unless of its own free will. So it would seem that the contention, "the minority is not being given a chance" is somewhat farfetched.

Painful days lie ahead but surely one Master, one kingdom and one objective is the ideal of the Christian church.

CLIFF BOUNDY HAS RESIGNED

Will be Unable to Act as Umpire This Year on Account of New Position He Has Secured.

OSHAWA, May 19. — The first resignation to be received from the list of umpires appointed to the Central Ontario League staff came into the secretary at Oshawa on Friday morning last from Cliff Boundy of Cobourg as follows:

"I regret to say I will not be able to handle the games I am allotted this year."

Boundy has a new situation which will not allow him to be away only on Saturday afternoons at one o'clock. Losing this ump from the League will be learned with regret by the teams, but the Horse Show town ump is to be commended for passing out his retirement before the opening day.

Secretary Nott has mailed out to umpires appointed a schedule of the games for which each is booked up, accompanied by their mileage to the different towns, amount they are allowed to collect for mileage, and total amount they are to receive, including the $7.00 a game as umpires' fees.

Clubs of the League will also receive the same tariff schedule, and will be able to tell at a glance what clubs should pay and what umpires can collect.

Also included in the folder are the umpires' addresses and telephone numbers, if any; secretaries of different clubs in the League.

AT LAKEFIELD AND DISTRICT

Salvation Army Band Made a Trip to Northern Town.

LAKEFIELD, May 19. — On Thursday evening the Salvation Army Band of Peterborough, gave a concert for the Lakefield Citizens' Band in the Memorial Hall. There was a large and very appreciative audience who enjoyed the splendid programme presented to them. Mr. E. R. Tate filled the office of chairman in his usual pleasing manner, and in the chairman's address expressed his appreciation of the work of the Salvation Army, which has gone forward in spite of difficulties and for which the future looks so bright.

He thanked the Band on behalf of the local organization, which is just getting on its feet after the fire in the old hall, in which the old instruments were destroyed, and the kindness of the S. A. Band in coming out and giving their services is a direct benefit to the village.

The programme was well rendered and each number was applauded, Mrs. Mendell Braund's rendition of Tosti's "Good-bye" being one of the most popular numbers. Mrs. Braund kindly responded with an encore number.

The saxophone party gave a couple of numbers which were very popular and the vocal solo and chorus, "Roll on Jordan," brought down the house.

The programme was generous and at its close W. H. Casement moved a vote of thanks to the Salvation Army Band for their neighborly spirit in assisting the local band. J. F. Lillicrap seconded the motion, which was endorsed by the audience. Adjt. Smith responded, and expressed their appreciation of the chairman who had made a hit with the bandsmen as well as the audience.

Nott, Oshawa, convened in the motor city on Saturday afternoon to scrutinize and pass on all Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League certificates and Belleville was the only club in the league to get a clear sheet at the close of the five hours session. The big bone of contention at the meeting was the passing of three Cobourg players who had attached their autographs to Peterboro slips and while all the delegates expressed the opinion that they would like to see the horse show town ball tossers playing in Central League Messrs. R. D. Adams of Belleville and C. M. REV. D. McLACHLAN AT CAMPBELLFORD

The Congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Heard Talk on Ontario Temperance Act.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 19. — Rev. D. N. McLachlan, Presbyterian Secretary of Social Service and Evangelism, preached at both services in St. Andrew's Church yesterday, dealing in the morning with the nature of the special work in which he is engaged and preaching a temperance sermon in the evening.

The speaker dealt with the proposal to have another referendum on the Ontario Temperance Act, and defended the present liquor law in this province as one of the most effective measures to deal with the liquor problem in the Dominion.

All the leading arguments of the anti-Prohibitionists—that the Act is wrong in principle, that it encourages bootlegging, and that under its operation drinking has increased, were dealt with by the speaker, who had an array of figures to support his position.

Mr. McLachlan has travelled over the country, and is familiar with the liquor laws in the various provinces. He pointed out what he regarded as the weak points in each of these.

The preacher urged the women of Ontario, now that they have the vote, to use it for the overthrow of the liquor traffic.

John Hall Injured.

John Hall is going around with his right hand bandaged as the result of an accident he met with while constructing a private sewer connecting the residence of J. F. McGregor with the new sewer on River Street. Mr. Hall was holding the drill to make a cavity for dynamite in the rock when the man who [illegible] the sledge missed his aim and struck Mr. Hall on the back of [illegible] hand, which is badly bruised. The injury would have sent many a man to the hospital, but Mr. Hall is still at work, and now holds the drill with his left hand.

Luminous Legs Latest Lunacy

LONDON, May 17. — Luminous legs for the ladies constitute the latest luxury of the elite.

The 1924 summer model feminine hosiery is splashed with a phosphorous substance that glows in the dark so night-blooming calves and angles have captured the fancy of fashion enthusiasts.

Only the wealthy however can afford the new hose. They are very expensive—and after one night's wearing they cease to throw off light.

PROHIBITION CONDEMNED BY SOUTH AFRICA CHURCH

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, May 19.—Prohibition is condemned as the wrong method for combatting drunkenness by Synod of a Dutch reformed church of South Africa, which holds that "wine is the gift of God which no one should desecrate." The Synod declared that it does not fall within the scope of ecclesiastical meeting to give any further opinion on the measure of a political character.

THE CONCERT SEASON.

The summer concert season in the city's parks, which will open next month—always providing the weather conditions are suitable—promises to be of very unusual interest and variety inasmuch as not only will the Rangers' Band be heard in programmes as usual but there will be concerts by the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra, the Male Voice Choir and the Caledonian Pipe Band.

In view of these unusual features the proposal to establish a zone of quietness so far as motor cars are concerned is of much importance inasmuch as even under the best of conditions some of these organizations will be performing at a disadvantage in open-air work.

The motorists are, however, not the only people who make a noise at band concerts, and if the splendid programme arranged for the summer is to be the success it should be, it will be necessary to have the assistance of the Police Department and the co-operation of the public.

The string section of the orchestra, for example, will find itself fighting an uphill battle if the usual army of youngsters is allowed to indulge in its usual noisy games while indulgent parents make no attempt to curb the exuberance of their flock.

THE PARKING PROBLEM.

Many motorists agree with the Examiner's suggestion that more parking facilities should be provided, and that the City Council should give its early attention to this question.

The market square does not provide sufficient accommodation for the business section of the city, and at present no other area is set apart as a parking zone.

The result is that both motorists and merchants are finding the conditions unsatisfactory, and there is a growing demand that certain streets within the business section shall be designated as available for parking purposes within reasonable limitations.

It is believed that such an arrangement would meet with the approval of the Police Department, which is finding this parking problem one that gives constant trouble.

If the law is to be strictly enforced and carried out to the very letter the Police Court will have to be enlarged in order to afford an opportunity of hearing the multitudinous cases that are bound to arise.

There are more motor cars in use at the present time than ever before, and conditions that were satisfactory when the automobile first began to make its appearance will not answer the purpose now when motor cars are as numerous as women with bobbed hair.

PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

With the approach of Victoria Day the usual complaints are being heard that Peterborough as a community is lacking a knowledge of how to properly stage a public celebration—indeed even the ambition to attempt such a thing is said to be absent.

Unfortunately, the indictment is well founded.

Our public holidays go by unmarked by anything in the way of a community demonstration.

Everybody who can think of a place to go to on a holiday and who can obtain the means to get there flees from Peterborough as if the city were stricken with a plague.

Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Civic Holiday and Labour Day, the four summer holidays, are notable only for the great exodus from the city.

While other centres not only seem able to properly observe these date but find time to stage special events as well—witness Lindsay's old home week and Belleville's United Empire Loyalists celebration—Peterborough's summer season passes without a single demonstration to keep people at home on a holiday, and by way of a change to bring other folks here.

For variety's sake, if nothing else, the Examiner believes that a big community celebration on one of the holidays of the summer months would be welcomed by the majority of the citizens who are tired of seeing these occasions pass as quietly as a feather dropping into the ocean.

It does a community good sometimes to break loose from the daily routine and to unite in a frolic that contains something of interest for everybody.

THE RURAL CARRIERS.

The case of the rural mail carriers will, it is expected, occupy the attention of Parliament before the session closes, and there seems to be a strong measure of public opinion in favour of a change in the existing system.

In the first place, the contract system leaves much to be desired.

There is no more reason why a rural mail carrier should have to tender for his position every three or four years than there would be to make city carriers do the same thing.

The position should be permanent, conditional upon good conduct and service, and the remuneration should at least be equivalent to a fair living wage.

Whether the $75 a mile asked for by the rural carriers is too generous is an open question—but at least it will be admitted that most of these carriers are not sufficiently paid for their services under the present system.

The Examiner's Campbellford correspondent on Saturday gave some particulars in regard to the five rural carriers in the mail zone around that town whose daily routes are in three cases 21 1-2 miles, in one case 23 miles and in the fifth 18 miles.

These carriers have to have two horses, alternating them to keep them fit, and they must have the necessary vehicles.

When the cost of feeding the horses and paying for the wear and tear upon equipment is taken from the present pay of the contractors, it will be readily realized that they have a legitimate claim for consideration when they ask for a permanent position and a sufficient salary.

WANTED—A BOOKKEEPER.

Surely the bookkeeping antics of our Parliamentary panjandrums have gone beyond a joke, says the Montreal Star.

When the Finance Minister and the Leader of the Opposition disagree as to the net results of the financial operations of this country last year by the astounding sum of seventy-two million dollars, our public accounting system enters the region of farce!

It is all right and quite the expected for them to disagree on questions of policy or even in the choice of governing principles. That is what makes parties—or should. But the simple and straight-forward business of keeping the accounts of a firm, a company or a nation cannot possibly lend itself to monstrous variations of this sort when the job is done seriously and with the honest intent of telling the truth.

What would happen at a meeting of bank directors if two expert accountants reported on the operations of the year, one stating that the bank had earned a fine surplus of $30,000,000 and the other as calmly declaring that it had incurred a deficit of $42,000,000? Would the bank directors sit down serenely to listen to an argument on the subject, with the feeling that whichever accountant proved his case, the facts would be very much the same? Not for a moment. Any alert banker would realize that the very fundamentals of his business were shattered to the bottom, and that things could not go forward for an hour until he had discovered the exact financial state of his institution. That is a subject upon which there could be no doubt and no argument. After the facts were ascertained, then, of course, there might be all the debate in the world as to policy or future developments.

But if this absolute and meticulously accurate certitude as to the fiscal facts of the case is imperatively essential in minor businesses such as banking, industry and trade, how can the people of Canada—who are shareholders in the far larger and more important business of running the nation—possibly be expected to tolerate so nebulous a method of keeping their books that two serious statesmen, speaking in the House of Commons, can gravely differ so amazingly that one pretends to think that we have paid off the handsome sum of $30,000,000 of our indebtedness, while the other—dealing with precisely the same figures—believes that we have really run deeper into debt by the still larger sum of $42,000,000?

Why, a difference of ten cents will keep a bookkeeper up all night trying to find the mistake.

THE PROBLEM OF EDUCATION.

There will always be room for argument as to what should be taught in our Public Schools. This grows more or less naturally out of the angle of view, and often leads to the giving of exaggerated importance to this or that, with the result that a compromise here and a concession there has given us rather a fearsome list of subjects in the curriculum. The danger inherent in this tendency toward elaboration is that thoroughness in essentials may be sacrificed to variety.

It is not difficult to identify the underlying cause of this modern disposition to teach many things in our Public Schools. It is to be found in a desire to make the common school serve in some degree the purposes of a university, and in that way to help the children of parents in humble circumstances. This is a laudable ambition; but the question of its practicability is at once suggested. There will always be the risk of teaching a smattering about many things and not enough of the fundamentals. This means that the poor man's son will in the end go out rather poorly equipped. The effort to give him special advantages by means of a crowded curriculum is likely to do him more harm than good.

There is, however, one thing our schools may do quite apart from the teaching of prescribed subjects. They can teach boys and girls that life is not made up of easy and pleasant tasks. To do less would be to deceive; but to do that one thing thoroughly is very clearly worth while. If that lesson is learned at an impressionable age, it has in it the power to start our youth with a sound foundation; for it happens to be the truth. It may very easily make all the difference between success and tragedy, misery and happiness. It can be done, too, without unnecessarily alarming or discouraging those who quite naturally paint the future in glowing colors. Rightly done, it should fortify and prepare our school children for the long and strenuous struggle before them, and unless so prepared they may shrink from life's realities rather than grapple with them valiantly.

We should all be pretty well convinced by this time that our system of Public School education is costly. No one, however, begrudges the payment of taxes which are prudently expended, especially for educational purposes; yet we should all be prepared to acknowledge the possibilities of waste, even for most essential and worthy purposes. This means that our schools are not necessarily perfect, though they may be absorbing a swelling volume of taxes. In fact, as the cost rises, we should be more and more disposed to watch the outlay in a critical spirit. We have undoubtedly added greatly to facilities. Let us be sure that there has been commensurate growth in all that attaches to the purpose of the system as a whole.

No boy, dependent on his own resources, goes into life adequately equipped if he has unsound notions about the problems lying before him. Under the impact of experience and disillusionment he may lose heart; whereas his education should have warned him that he would have to take up disagreeable tasks and work very hard. To face such tasks cheerfully, and to work courageously, should have been his attitude toward life as taught to him in schooldays. If his schooldays have not implanted that spirit in his heart they have failed of one of their basic purposes. And that is something we must all have in mind as we think out our educational plans; for it is very obvious that the intensifying conditions of life, while widening opportunity, will call for more and more of fibre in those who desire to win.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That gale last evening must have been an echo of the Budget debate.

Private members will have no opportunity to bring their business before Parliament for the rest of the session—another effect of drawing out the debate on the Address and the Budget to an intolerable length.

So many airmen are flying around the world just now that the League of Nations may find it necessary to appoint some aerial traffic officers.

Twenty-five thousand people saw the King's Plate race on Saturday. The "sport of kings" loses none of its popularity despite restrictions on gambling.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Trying to get even usually makes a man look odd.

No town is big enough for a reckless drivers' convention.

It is a fact that singing prolongs a person's life if said person is careful where and when he sings.

Every man has a letter he intends writing when he has time.

People who talk in their sleep should tell the truth when awake.

The great silence you hear is the kids kicking because vacation days are coming.

Perhaps some people wear tight shoes because they feel so good when they take them off.

AUTO HELPS.

Never hit a traffic cop. The pin on his badge is liable to puncture one of your tires.

DICTIONARY.

Sleep. Sleep is what you find it had to do when you have time and easy to do when you haven't time.

HOME HELPS.

Do not let the baby play with an opened box of corn flakes.

BEAUTY SECRETS.

Chewing gum after eating onions doesn't do much good.

LATE NEWS.

Kissing a short girl too much may make you bow-legged.

FOREIGN NEWS.

In New York, a man fell five floors without being hurt, but it is too dangerous to become very popular.

TO STAY SINGLE.

Smoke a pipe while calling on her instead of eating mints. One wards off kissing, while the other brings it on.

GARDEN HINTS.

To keep beans coming in all during the summer plant five or six beans every morning.

HOW TO MARRY.

Don't tell a man how lonely you are, tell him how lonely he is.

POLITICS.

Hard thing about being a politician is looking satisfied at the results.

HEALTH HINTS.

Never sleep in a bed so comfortable you miss it during the day.

CUSSING NEWS.

Cussing flies only amuses them.

TO CATCH FISH.

Just after arriving at the place pack your things up, saying: "It is time to go home." Fish often bite best when you have to leave.

VACATION TIP.

Quit listening to scandal and give your ears a vacation.

A Thought

THE OPIATE.

My thin, grey hair, my watery eyes, my uneven teeth with crowns, my number of years and my slower or less springy step are no indications of age.

These outward signs of having lived to 58 bear no relation to my true age.

I shall be old in usefulness and feeble in value to the world when I no longer hold in my heart kind and generous thoughts toward others.

When the happiness of others peeves me—when the pleasures of the younger folks enrage my envy—when the world and its progress fails to interest me, I will not only be old, but I'll be an obsolete writer—will be an obstruction to others and should be given the opiate.

It was late at night. No one seemed to be about, and the poor woman was very seasick. She thought that if she could get up on deck for a few minutes the fresh air would do her good. So, in her nighty, she was crawling up the stairs when she met an equally sick man coming down. She gave a feeble scream of embarrassment. "Don't worry, lady," the man groaned, "I'll never live to tell it."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

PETERBOROUGH COMMUNITY CONCERT.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Those citizens of Peterborough who were fortunate in being present at the Opera House last night demonstrated in no small way their hearty appreciation of the programme given by the musical organisations and artistes of this city who returned from the Ontario Musical Festival recently with awards testifying to their ability.

Aside from the personal effort put forward by individual artistes in entering a competition of this description there is much time and money spent in reaching the desired goal, which unfortunately is not always appreciated by the public, but our vocalists can rest assured that their efforts are appreciated to the fullest extent and as the result I confidently expect that several aspiring young vocalists of this city will see to it that fresh laurels are brought home next year.

The Symphony Orchestra and the Male Voice Choir deserve all the applause which we can give them. Their conductors should be freemen of this city, for as much as we appreciate their work now, we cannot measure its true value since music of this description once well planted cannot be uprooted, but will bear fruit a hundredfold in time to come.

These two organizations must keep on and if embarrassed financially at any time, should be assisted by the city.

"What we have got let us hold" can and must be applied to those shields. We have the talent, as was evidenced last night, but the work of encouraging rests with the citizens of Peterborough. Don't let us shirk our responsibilities.

It is therefore hoped that our orchestra and choir will carry on the good work commenced and will see to it that their presence at the Festival next year will be felt in no small degree.

"A Lover of Musical Effort."

BURIAL OF BANDIT.

MONTREAL, May 18.—The body of "Harry Ward," the bandit of many aliases who was shot dead in the Banque d'Hochelaga collection car hold-up on April 1, was taken from the vault where it had lain for the past six weeks and buried in Hawthorndale cemetery, at the extreme east end of Montreal Saturady. A wooden marker bearing the number "86535" was placed in the mound of earth marking where the coffin lies, and is the only indication of burial.

STEAMERS RELEASED.

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., May 18.— Tugs released the steamers Jolly Inez and Collingwood this morning from their groundings in St. Marys river. The Jolly Inez struck Vidal Shoals yesterday and was released without any damage. The Collingwood went ashore on Detour Point on hard rock bottom. "FATHER OF 57" TO GO ON TRIAL

He Is At Present In Pittsburgh Jail Waiting For Trial on Charges of Violating the Mann Act

PITTSBURGH, May 19.—Helon Bertram Allen, "father of fifty-seven" adopted children, who is in jail here on charges of violating the Mann Act, will be placed on trial in United States District Court within a month, it was learned from the United States Attorney's office.

Allen has been in jail here since last February, when an episode in a downtown hotel landed him into the hands of the authorities.

The "father of 57" became widely known in 1919 when he was subjected to a suit in Washington, D.C., courts by James Cruze, whose wife and daughters were said to be in Allen's company.

It was learned then that Allen had plantations in Virginia and North Carolina where he conducted schools. He is alleged to have brought poor white boys and girls from remore mountain regions to his plantations, where he educated them and then adopted them in the courts of Virginia.

Through the activities of the children's service bureau of Pittsburgh and the United States Department of Justice, Allen was arrested in Los Angeles last Fall, and after ten weeks' litigation he was returned to Pittsburgh to face criminal charges.

Allen is alleged to have brought one of his "daughters," Gladith "Gypsy" Allen, 17, also known as Myrtle Cruze, to Pittsburgh from Cabot, Va.

The girl is now being cared for by the Children's Service Bureau.

BEGAN THEFTS EARLY.

ROSENEATH SCENE OF DISTRICT CONVENTION

Thirtieth Annual District Methodist Church Convention Was a Big Success — Reports From Various Organizations.

ROSENEATH, May 19.—The thirtieth annual convention of the Cobourg district of the Methodist Church was held in the church at Roseneath last week.

The morning session opened at 9.30 o'clock, with Mrs. Rev. A. R. Walsh, retiring President of the Roseneath Auxiliary, taking charge of the opening devotional exercises.

After the opening hymn had been sung several of the visiting ladies led in prayer. Mrs. J. G. Nicholls of Cobourg was nominated for the coming year's Secretary, as also was Mrs. J. J. Reid, the past Secretary. Mrs. Nicholls was declared Secretary as Mrs. Reid declined the position. Mrs. Garland and Miss Henwood were appointed for the Courtesy Committee.

Then the reports for the different auxiliaries were given:

Baltimore had twenty annual members, six life members, raising $204.00 and sending $184.00 to the branch.

Bethel Grove had raised a little over sixteen dollars.

Bethesda had a fine report to give, having twenty-seven annual members and four life members. They raised sixty dollars from mite boxes and sent $168.87 to the branch.

Cambourne was the next report given, showing a healthy increase in funds, $19.84 more than last year. They reported twenty-nine annual members and one life member; total amount raised, $143.53; sent to branch, $140.84.

Hampton auxiliary were not represented by a delegate and thus had no report given.

Miss Peters, the Secretary for Centreton, gave an oral report as the delegate had not received it in time to give one. She reported a decrease of three members, thirteen annual members, holding eleven meetings with an average attendance of eight. They raised thirty dollars from a bazaar, $30.03 from mite boxes, an increase of $3.62 over last year, and had sent $93.41 to branch. They had no life members.

Canton had a fine increase in funds, $26.00 more than last year. They had sent $110.00 to the branch. They reported five life members.

Cobourg auxiliary, of course, had a good report, as they have so much opportunity in their town for a large membership. Their delegate reported twenty-six life members, sixty annual members. They have seven new members already this year, with thirty-seven of an average attendance. $30.46 was raised from mite boxes and a grand total of $701.55 raised, but owing to the branch meeting being held there last year, their expenses were heavy and they were able to send only $423.30 to the branch.

Grafton had held thirteen meetings in the year, one of them being an open meeting, with an average attendance of twelve. They had twenty-one annual members and six life members. They had raised a total of $155.07 and had sent $153.52 to the branch, an increase of $10.52 over last year.

Zion auxiliary, although not represented by a delegate, had a most wonderful report for a small number of members. They had an increase of $91.67 in funds.

Port Hope had a good report, too. They had one hundred and sixteen members and held twelve meetings, with an average attendance of forty. They had a banquet in September, which helped raise their objective. They received $24.55 from mite boxes. Total amount raised, $500.75 and $494.15 to branch.

Plainville had held eleven meetings and at the other one in June the W.M.S. ladies had cleaned the church. Three of their members had gone to Oshawa. They had an open meeting in September, when the Presbyterian ladies of the Coldsprings Church gave the program. They had twenty-two annual members and two life members. They raised $134.00 and sent $124.00 to branch, an increase of $31.11. They had raised $8.31 from mite boxes and sent $10 to the Japanese Relief Fund.

The Roseneath auxiliary report was given by the Corresponding Secretary and showed a general increase; thirty annual members and four life members, average attendance of twelve. They had sent a bale valued at $54.00 to the Indian Mission. They had raised $18.86 from mite boxes and sent $150.00 to branch, an increase of $43.00.

Welcome's report showed thirty-five annual members, six life members and four little light bearers. They raised $16.79 from mite boxes and a total of $185.82. They sent $174.05 to branch, an increase of $44.55. Although they were not present, the Superintendent read the report.

Wesleyville reported $70.00 to the branch, an increase of $10.00.

The Wicklow auxiliary have been laboring under difficulties, some members not active and some moved away. However, they had raised $60.54, sent $59.30 to the branch, a decrease of $2.42.

Next was the report of the different circles and bands:

Cobourg circle had sixty-seven members, fifty-two annual and fifteen life members. Besides sending a bale of clothing valued at $150.00 to the West, they had raised $192.39 and sent $187.39 to branch.

Baltimore band had twenty-two annual members of senior girls and had raised $38.34; also twenty-nine junior girls, who had raised $36.29. They were able this year to send $52.33 to the branch.

The Bethesda Sunset Circle held ten meetings. In August they had a picnic, selling home-made candy and ice cream. They had $16.08 from mite boxes, $72.80 total, and sent $62.52 to branch.

The Sunrise Band from Bethesda had fourteen annual and four life members, had raised $48.15 and sent $23.00 to branch.

Cambourne Good Cheer Band had twenty-two members, with an average of eighteen attendance, $26 increase of funds and sent branch $51.75. They had also made one person a life member.

Centreton King's Own had raised $25 to pay on Miss Jackson's salary. They had made the person with the most in her mite box a life member. They sent $57.00 to the branch, an increase of $1.60.

Cobourg Helpers had, with the assistance of the auxiliary, raised $100 from a bazaar. They had sent the total amount raised, $126.60, to the branch, as there were no expenses.

The Roseneath Band had a very successful year and had been able to send $36.00 to the branch as well as making a quilt for the W.M.S. bale.

The Wicklow band had not sent a delegate. The Alderville Band reported $20.00 raised during the year.

District Superintendent

The most important report of all was that of the district superintendent when she summed up the givings; four hundred and nineteen annual members, with an increase in fees of $44.00. They had more than covered the special appeal made to them to raise more money. The total amount raised was $2,044.24, an increase of $462.40. The report of the circles was just as encouraging: $218.39 sent, an increase of $42.91. The mission bands had sent $534.67, an increase of $96.77. When the grand total of increase during the year from all the societies was given, $602.15, all arose and sang "Praise God from whom all Blessings Flow."

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Roberts, the district superintendent, for her untiring efforts, and when a vote was called for the new superintendent, Mrs. Roberts was again unanimously chosen.

This concluded the morning exercises and all the delegates, numbering about one hundred and forty, repaired to the Orange Hall, where the local auxiliary had prepared dinner.

The afternoon session opened at two o'clock with Mrs. T. W. Philip in charge of the devotional exercises. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. W. J. Jibb, of Fenella, one of this auxiliary's members. On behalf of the Presbyterian W.M.S., Mrs. (Rev.) McCord entended greetings from their society. Rev. Pippen, the Anglican minister of St. James Church, conveyed a message of welcome from the auxiliary of that church. He said that after listening to the different speakers he had come to the conclusion that the work was much the same as done in his church, and he hoped that they would have as good or better results. He said that the W. A. was a great help to the auxiliary as well as an aid to the missionaries, many dollars being raised to aid Christianity in this great world.

Mrs. Stephens then sang a solo, "Make Me a Channel of Blessing To-day." A member of the Baltimore Auxiliary, Mrs. Boddy, gave the response to the address of welcome. Rev. and Mrs. Walsh sang a duet, "Hold Thou My Hand." One item of the programme, "Methods of Work," had been left over from the morning so it was now put on by the Port Hope ladies. Each office was filled, and as each was called in turn she told the duties of that particular officer to the society; the president, corresponding secretary, recording secretary, strangers' secretary, treasurer, and the superintendent of Christian stewardship. The meeting was then thrown open for discussion, and many helpful suggestions were given as regards sending in reports, etc. Some instructions were given about sending delegates to the branch meeting in June, to be held in Port Hope. The Roseneath Mission Band gave their exercise, "Little Lights", composed of twenty-two members.

Mrs. (Rev.) Stillman, of Cobourg, gave a paper, "What the Church Can Expect From the Woman's Missionary Society." Mesdames Baird and Mulholland, "The Heart That Was Broken For Me." A paper, "The Incoming Tide," was given by Miss Alice Scarfe on the much-discussed subject of today, immigration. The secretary, Mrs. J. G. Nicholls, read a paper on "Leaking Valves," explaining that this meant loss of power and, therefore, no co-operation, and indicated that it was absolutely necessary to have no leaking valves in the machinery of our society if we would all work together for a successful end. The Camborne auxiliary gave a paper, "How Far Does the Success of the Work Depend Upon a Strong Spiritual Home Base." Mrs. T. P. Westington sang a solo, and Mrs. S. E. Roberts, of Wesleyville, read a paper on "Our Successors," telling of the great debt we owed our ancestors as we were the successors, under what terrible hardships they hewed their way into our province; how they had given us such a good start, educationally and religiously. We owe the same to our successors. Are we making as profitable an advance to that achievement? Mrs. F. H. White gave an interesting paper on "Bands and Circles," a potential source of leadership which would be of great benefit to the younger societies. The offering was now taken and the proceeds of the day announced.

Rev. Mr. Lovelace, of Centreton, pronounced the benediction. Several of the delegates again went up to the Orange Hall for lunch as there was plenty of supplies left over, a free-will offering was taken.

The total receipts for the day were $55.10, but the district and local expenses will have to be paid from it.

English Bill Would Abolish 'No Trespassing' Sign on Uncultivated Land.

LONDON, May 19..—All parties in the House of Commons are supporting the "access to mountains" bill now before Parliament. The bill provides that no owner of uncultivated mountain land or moorland shall be entitled to exclude any person from walking thereon "for purposes of recreation or scientific study."

The bill is not merely intended to give access to highland fastnesses, but its backers are more particularly concerned about the uncultivated land near populous centres and holiday resorts which it is asserted have been closed in recent years in an arbitrary fashion. There are provisions in the measure to prevent people walking on these lands from breaking down trees or damaging fences.

"MATERNAL PRIDE" WON KING'S PLATE

Outsider Upset the Dope At Woodbine Opening — Paid Record Price.

WOODBINE PARK, May 17.—While the crowd of 30,000 spectators gasped in astonishment, the purple and gold colors of the stable of H. S. Wilson, of Oakville, carried by the three-year-old gelding by Plaudmore, mother, were carried home to victory here to-day in the 65th annual running of the King's Plate while the favorites trailed behind, decisively beaten by a horse that was not conceded a chance by any of the critics. It was one of the biggest upsets in the history of the famous race. The winner paid $193..35 for each $2 ticket, which indicates clearly what the speculators thought of his chances.

Maternal Pride got away in front, opened up a big gap and held on long eonugh in the stretch to win by two lengths from the Thorncliffe stables, Thorndyke, with the Brookdale stables, Maypole third and the favorite Isoletta fourth. The time of the race was 1.57 3-5, good time for the distance.

Hubert Derry Dead.

A very sad death occurred this week in North Marmora, when little Hubert Derry passed away.

Hubert, a bright little lad of about 11 years, was apparently in the best of health until about ten days ago when he was attacked by appendicitis.

As he grew worse it was decided to operate, and an operation was performed on Wednesday morning. But it was in vain, as he passed away about 6 o'clock that evening.

He leaves a widowed mother, a brother, and four sisters to mourn his loss.

The funeral service was held in the Methodist Church, Marmora, on Friday afternoon, by Rev. Mr. Herrington of Cordova. He spoke from the text, ii Kings, 4:26—"It is well." His words were full of cheer and comfort to those bereaved.

Mr. Grant Sine, of Frankford, was in town Friday evening.

Mrs. Archer, who left Delora with her two children ten months ago to make a trip to England to visit her friends, returned last week. Her trip was a splendid success. Musical Treat.

On Friday night Boris Hambourg with his soloist, Mrs. Farnum, and his accompanist, Mrs. Wagner, of Toronto, gave a delightful programme in the Methodist Church. Boris Hambourg is a cellist of great skill, and the classical music which he rendered were a real treat to all who heard him.

Mrs. Farnum showed a most wonderful range of voice and showed herself capable of entertaining a varied audience.

Mrs. Wagner especially delighted her audience by her rendering of "The Rosary," although each of her selections were worthy of commendation.

A good crowd attended and everyone was well pleased with the entertainment they received.

Miss Marian Newton, of Tweed, is spending the week-end with Miss Taft.

The young men of the Sacred Heart Church held a very successful dance on Friday evening. The music was provided by the Bon-Ton orchestra, of Havelock.

HOME BANK WAS BUILT ON SAND HE DIDN'T SEE

Sir Thomas White Conducts His Own Case Before Commission Inquiring Into Collapse of Bank--No Other Course Than That He Took.

BELIEVED DIRECTORS

OTTAWA, May 19.—(Canadian Press.)—"The building, the minister saw. The quick sand underneath he did not see. It was hidden form him by fraud. I did not suspect underlying fraud. No honest man could suspect such a condition of fraud as has been disclosed."

Sir Thomas White, former Finance Minster, arguing his case in his own behalf, this morning, before the Home Bank Commission, emphasied the fact that he was deceived as to the real condition of the institution. He supported this statement by quotations from letters received by him when Finance Minister.

Sir Thomas insisted that if he had closed the Home Bank after receiving a uetter there would have been a cry to heaven against his injustice. "People would have claimed that I was in league with the big interests. I believe that if I had receiving a letter there would have gone out that it was most sacreligious thing done since the time of Martin Luther," he declared.

As for the complaints of the western directors of the bank, Sir Thomas claimed that their attitude had shown considerable variation. In the first place they complained against certain accounts, but did not ask an investigation. Secondly they asked for an outside investigtaion. And, finaily when the management was re-organized, Hon. T. A. Crerar had come to Ottawa, said that the Bank's condition was improved and declared against an independent investigation.

He had every confidence in Mr. Crerar, Sir Thomas reminded the commissioner. "What would your Lordship have done if you had received that letter?" he asked.

Finally the former Minister dealt with the Machaffie letter of August, 1918, making charges against the bank directors and management.

"Such letters are frequently received in the Finance Department, and nine out of ten are based on a quarrel or on pure spite," he said. "Most people that write such letters have axes to grind." However, he claimed that he had taken the letter seriously. It was the usual course to refer such letters to the Board of the Bank concerned in order to allow them to answer the charges, and this had been done. The answer had been a unanimous report from the Board denying the Machaffie charges and intimating that he was inspired by animus in making them. Sir Thomas said he was of the opinion that the Board of the Bank was honest, and he accepted the report.

SERRICE AT TRINITY CHURCH

Services of Praise and Thanksgiving, celebrating the discharge of the church debt, opened at Trinity Methodist church yesterday morning, when Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., D.D., of Napanee, the first pastor of the church at its foundation, wah the speaker. Another former pastor, Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., D.D., of Belleville, was present also, and read the lesson. A prayer of thanksgiving was offered by Rev. B. Greatrix, and the notices for the week were read by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Langford. The church, whose pulpit and choir loft were decorated with a profusion of ferns and pink and yellow tulips, was filled at the morning service, and a very attractive portion of the service was the special music rendered by the choir, with Mrs. G. H. King as soloist for the anthem, "Hear My Prayer," and a mixed octette in a second sacred number.

Rev. Mr. Wilson's sermon was a moving, eloquent discourse, based on a text from Matthew, 10:38, "And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me is not worthy of me."

Referring to a chapter headed the "Royal way of the holy cross," in Thomas a Kempis' "Imitation of Christ," Rev. Mr. Wilson said that the salvation of the sinner was through the crucified Lord, and the symbol of his salvation should not be forgotten. No matter what theory of the Atonement might be held by men, they must not forget that it was through His stripes that they were healed. Christ's sacrifice was the sacrifice of self. Although a stupendous miracle-worker, He never performed a miracle for His own benefit. His attitude toward His children was that of a mother, whose all-embracing love counted no sacrifice too great in their cause. The problem confronting the nations of the world at the present time was not one of reconstruction, but of regeneration. Not one among them could say with truth: "I trust my neighbor." The words of Wilson, "Self-determination," had aroused distrust and hatred the world over.

"God sees His children as they really are. He sees the sound spot in every creature. To earthy eyes, things are different. A cow looks at a landscape and sees clover; a poet looks at it and thinks of a poem; an artist of a picture. God looks down on humanity and sees it right. When he looked at Simon, He saw Peter and back of Saul, the persecutor, he saw Paul, the zealot in the cause of Christ."

"To those who love, the cross is inevitable. No wonder Jesus died. He was unable to stand the burden of men's woes in the world, but His influence has been so potant and far-reaching because He was a Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief. He that would save his life must lose it."

Commending the congregation for its endeavors in the foundation and erectionof "this stately church," the speaker referred to "the strength and beauty" to be found in the sanctuary of God, saying "there is no more sanctifying, elevating, saving institution in the world to-day that the church dedicated to the worship of the Lord." The great Wesley was nurtured in the church of God, and Rev. Dr. Wilson spoke also of an incident which took place in the great Cathedral of Milan, where a poverty-stricken man attracted the attention of the congregation with his dedictaion of his motherless children to the care and protection of the Blessed Virgin.

That happiness of the truest and most enduring type, that fame of the most lasting nature, that victory itself rested beneath the shadow of the Cross, was asserted by the reverend speaker. "And in what srange ways the call comes; to Paul on the Damascus Road, to the woman at the well, to the Magdalen, stained with sin."

In his opening remarks, Dr. Wilson spoke of the pleasure experienced in seeing among his congregation many familiar faces of other years, speaking with particularity of the presence of Mr. Thos. W. Robinson, of George street church, who was superintendent of the Sunday school during Dr. Wilson's term as pastor of Trinity church.

The Evening Service.

At the evening service, Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., D.D., spoke on the "Elims of Life."

Mr. Malott's message, taken from the 15th Chapter of Exodus and the 27th verse was an appropriate one for the occasion. The speaker referred to the changing of the day of rest into a day of labor. When Moses was leading the large masses of people through Israel he bade them to keep the Lord's Day a day of rest but they heeded not and went forth on the Sabbath to gather food and water, but they found no food nor water and thus it was proven to them that the Lord's day was to be kept sacred. The masess grew afraid and would have turned back had it not happened that they came to the oasis of Elim where they found 12 springs of fresh water and 70 palm trees, so they camped there for one month.

Mr. Malott compared them with the people of to-day. He said that the to-day people instead of resting are having pleasure and that the Sababth would soon beturned into a lay of labor. He said that the Lord walked about the woods and in the fresh air on the sabbath, but that he did not do any labor. Mr. Malott said that the church had been paid for by the congregation and that it was theirs to make amends in but the thought that it was folly to build such a beautiful edifice and then for the people not to use it. He said the church should be filled to capacity every Sunday. There are enough people in the world to fill every church on the Sabbath day and that there was no sense in building such large and beautiful churches if the people did not use them. Some people go to the woods and out of doors to worship on Sunday, but what do they do when it rains and they cannot go out. On such a day as this these people do not worship at all. He said that there were many different oasis suc has that of Elim in the world and that the people would find them in the walks of life if they would have faith and courage like that of Moses and other great men. Let us rise up in our might and no power in the world can stay the progress of the Christian church, said the speaker.

FIRE GAVE FIREMEN EARLY MORNING RUN

At an early hour this morning the Peterboro Fire Department was called out to a fire at the rear of 302 Louis Street. The alarm was received at 1 o'clock, and in a few minutes the firemen were at the scene of the fire, where the flames of a frame shed were reaching high into the sky. The fire had a good start before the alarm was sent in, and with a high wind blowing to help it along, the fire was making good headway. The building was a mass of flames when the firemen arrived, and was burning like matchwood. Hot ashes that were left in a barrel was the cause of the fire. The damage was estimated at about $100. A line of hose was laid and the fire was extinguished before it did any further damage. Chief Gimblett wishes to call the attention of the public to this menace which has caused a number of fires lately. The Chief asks the citizens to be more careful with their ashes in the future.

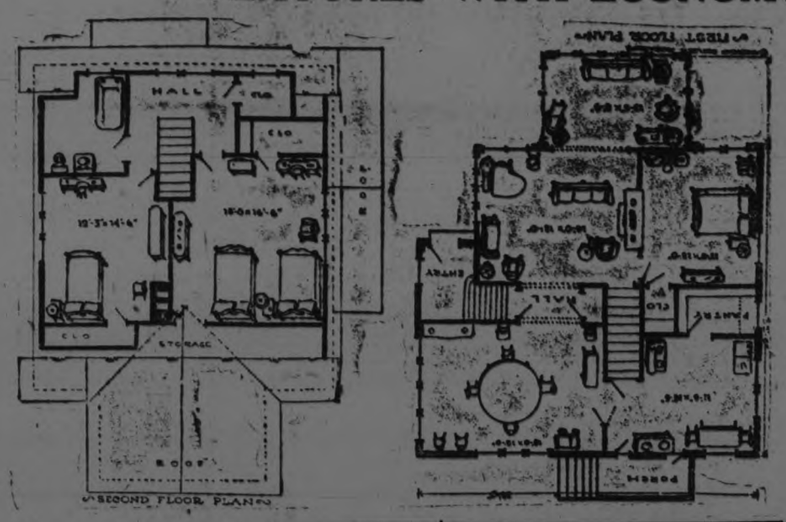
HOUSE COMBINES PRACTICAL FEATURES WITH ECONOMY



An entrance that insures privacy is one of the features of the home pictured here.

Homes of brick and stucco of this story-and-a-half, or semi-bungalow, type are popular in many sections of the United States because of the combination of practical features with comparative economy of construction.

Houses of this type, although not particularly of inviting aspect when they stand alone, combine readily with surrounding foliage and are delightful in proper settings, particularly if care is used in the selection of a decorative roofing material.

The height of the first floor above the ground line insures an exceptionally light and airy basement. Notice that the entry door is on the ground level, and that the first floor is gained by means of a short flight of stairs in the entry hall.

This entryway gives access to the living room, the dining room and the stairs to the second floor. Both the living room and dining room are of comfortable dimensions. The size of the living room is augmented both in appearance and utility by the large sun porch. The large opening between the two makes them virtually one large room. The fireplace is a feature which few homebuilders will be willing to do without.

The dining room is well lighted and of pleasing rectangular proportions, and the kitchen is planned to give the utmost convenience to the housewife. Note that provision is made for icing the refrigerator from the outside and that the pantry is well lighted.

The first floor bedroom is a feature which will appeal to many families. The two chambers on the second floor are of good size and have roomy closets.

The cost of this home may be between $7500 and $8000, depending on choice of materials, the distance of its location from sources of material supply and the condition of the local labor market. In many sections of the country the figures will vary more than those given.

FEMINIST DEPLORES TREND IN STYLES

Modern Dressmakers Try to Conceal Glorious Female Form. Says M. Prevost.

PARIS, May 19.—"Like all revolutions, the great war created saints among women, but it also made many fools."

So says Marcel Prevost, famous authority on feminism and member of the French Academy. He continued:

"After the crisis in morality, the crisis in intellectuality, the crisis in relation between sexes, the crisis in marriage, the crisis in money, woman seems to have abandoned the effort for the triumph of her personality which was begun at the end of the last century and checked by the war.

"This psychical phenomenon is evident from the new sort of emancipation which has found its expression through the jazz band and shimmy, and the bizarre fashions of to-day which are such that a boy and girl of the same age in identical modern gowns could not be distinguished from each other at first glance.

"The whole aim of the dressmakers has been to conceal the glorious female form.

"The dressmakers, finding the waist line an obstacle to their deliberate vandalism, have removed it altogether or placed it below the hips. As to the bosom, they have tried to suppress it altogether.

"Now feminism comes to the last trench, with fashion having declared against the high-heel shoe. With that heel, so impractical and yet so dear to men, will go the last bulwark of the girl we used to know."

The evening was spent in music and dancing, concluding with the members of the choir singing "For she's a jolly good fel'ow."

Miss Lynch is leaving in a week's time for Port Huron, Mich.

DEATH RAY SOUGHT BY A FRENCH FIRM

British Government Would Not Help in Experiments With Ray to Kill Whole Armies.

LONDON, May 19. British United Press. — Grindley Matthews, the inventor of the famous "death ray," which he claims will render entire armies helpless within a distance of four miles, left London this morning for Lyons, to consider an offer which has been made to him by one of the largest firms in France to take over his entire invention. Matthews, before leaving, stated that while the British government is interested it is not willing to assist him in perfecting his experiments, and that he is unable to refuse to accept the princely offer made by the Lyons firm.

FOREIGN MISSIONARY HAD STIRRING CAREER

COBOURG, May 19.—(Special).—In view of the fact that at the coming Bay of Quinte Conference at Picton, the centenary of the organization of a Canada Conference in Hallowell (now Picton) on August 25, 1824, and also of the first Missionary Society, is to be observed, lends interest to the fact that Rev. B. Hillier was sent from Canada to the West Indies about 1824, or possibly 1823. He was one of the British missionaries who labored in Canada under the superintendency of John Hicks, St. Armand, and Quebec being among the circuits to profit by his services. Rev. Mr. Hillier was one of five missionaries drowned in the wreck of the Maria on February 27, 1826. His was a hero's death. He attempted to swim to shore to secure help for those on the ill-fated vessel, but sank amid the angry waves. The captain of the boat, the crew and passengers, with the exception of Mrs. Jones, wife of an outgoing missionary, and two men, were buried in the depths of the Caribbean Sea, where the fatality occurred. Although sent out by the British Missionary Society, this devoted early missionary labored for some years in Canada, and helped to lay the foundation of the Canadian Methodist Church.

TRI-COUNTY EXECUTIVE BARS DOOR TO LINDSAY

LINDSAY, May 19.—At a meeting of the executive of the Tri-County Baseball League, held at Sunderland on Friday, Lindsay's application for admission was considered. As a result of the action of the executive any hope that Lindsay fans may have entertained in this regard were shattered. Sutton and Uxbridge were very strongly opposed and plainly showed by their attitude that if Lindsay was admitted they would drop out. The Sutton and Uxbridge representatives both claimed that their teams had lost money in games last year with Orillia and Newmarket. They claimed that both towns were too large, their teams were stronger and they were able to get the fans out to the games. Lindsay, on account of her size, was included in this category. Sutton also claimed that two or three years ago, when they were playing with places of the same size, they were able to show a profit on the season's games.

PICKEREL FRY IS DISTRIBUTED

100,000 For This District Secured by Fish and Game Association.

The executive of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association received a shipment of 100,000 pickerel fry, which were distributed to-day by the members in Chemong Lake, Gull Lake, Pigeon Lake, and the Otonabee River.

The Association is doing much to develop and protect the fishing resources of the district, and it is felt by them that the sportsmen of the vicinity should show their appreciation by becoming members of the organisation.

POULTRY REGISTRATION

Poultry registration is now well under way. The first inspection of 1924 is completed, and the inspectors in the various provinces report favourably on the work. The breeders have given generous support to the movement, and interest seems to have increased materially during the last year. This is no doubt due to the better knowledge gained with respect to registration work throughout Canada. Those in direct charge of the inspection of registered hens have tried to impart such detail to the breeders as will enable them to keep accurate records of the progeny of the registered females. Recording forms have been supplied to each breeder, and leg bands, which later are to be used as wing bands, have been furnished for all chicks, the progeny of registered females. All male birds have been inspected for these matings, and in nearly every case the very finest of producing blood lines matings, and in nearly every case the are to be found behind these males.

An honest effort is being made by every breeder to establish a firm basi for his registered poultry, as he realizes that fraud or carelessness of any kind will later reflect on the strain. The firm confidence displayed by the public generally in registration shows that the work of the Canadian National Poultry Record Association is being appreciated by the poultrymen of Canada.

Reports of fertility and hatchability are very encouraging and give promise of being very much better than the hatching season of 1923. To hear of 75% hatches is quite common, and many breeders are getting even 90% hatchability from their registered birds.

Generally speaking, the contestants who have been successful in the various laying contests throughout Canada report active business conditions, which indicates that the egg laying contests are serving as a guide to the buying public in the securing of reliable bred-to-lay stock.

KEEP PHILLIPINES IS LATEST ADVICE

B. W. Cadwallader Lumber Merchant Spent 20 Years on These Islands

PHILADELPHIA, May 19 (United Press).—"The Filipinos, if they knew what is good for them, would not be clamoring for the United States to turn them loose to try their luck as an independent nation."

After twenty years as a resident of the Phillipine Islands, B. W. Cadwallader, lumber merchant of Manila, makes this assertion and supports it with facts and figures. Cadwallader, who is now here on business, has come to the conclusion that not only would the Filipinos be out of luck if they were set free, but the United States would lose a ward well worth holding for commercial and military reasons.

A generation or two of education, the visitor believes, will produce a crop of Filipinos who will be free from illusions about independence and look rather to annexation as a territory of the United States.

"All the hullabaloo about independence," he said, "is the work of native politicians. They have nothing else from which to make political capital.

More Freedom Than in U. S.

"If the Filipinos could come here they would see for themselves in their present status that they have more freedom than any citizen of the United States. There is no Filipino who can come down to facts and explain just why he wants independence.

"To the Filipino who listens to and votes for the independence shouter, independence means free fish, free rice and no taxes.

"Right now General Wood is in a stronger position and has made more friends than he did when he took the job, but it will take some time to undo unwise pieces of administrative work during previous administrations. General Wood is sitting on the lid and will probably continue to do so until the Filipinos change their minds about independence, and that, in my mind, is the proper procedure.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Closing Session of the Demonstration and Lecture Course.

HASTINGS, May 19.—Friday afternoon was the last session of the Demonstration-Lecture Course in Food Values and Cooking under the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

This course is usually given under the Women's Institute but Hastings has no organization of this kind and it was provided for the ladies of Hastings' community and district.

An application for the course was sent into Mr. F. C. McRae of Norwood and through his efforts the course was provided.

Miss Hopkins was sent as instructress and much may be said of her practical work.

Before the class was really started many were dubious thinking it impossible that the required number of ladies would join. The roll was called after every demonstration and eighty responded, making the attendance far above expectations.

Classes were held Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

The first lesson was on Food Values, which were fuel foods, building and repair foods and regulating foods. The measuring of food value was given and the daily calorie requirements of individuals. A list of foods rich in protein, fat, carbohydrates, protein cellulose and water were given. Other lessons given in order, were: vegetables, fruits, eggs, milk, cereals, and cheese, meat, meat substitutes, desserts, cakes, salads and pastry.

At the close of every lecture and demonstration six servers were appointed to serve the foods made during the lesson and in this way every one present derived thefull benefits.

Mrs. W. M. Lowlds who helped to make the class a success, was tendered a vote of thanks.

Mr. McRae was present at the lecture on Thursday evening and made a few remarks to the ladies present.

A three months course was spoken of which could be taken up during the coming winter, for young men and women. For women it would consist of home nursing, domestic science, dressmaking, millinery instructions in English, mathematics, public speaking and debating for young men, agriculture, English, mathematics, public speaking and debating.

The latter course is equal to one or one and one half years at Guelph Agricultural College.

No definite steps were taken but it is the opinion of several that much might be learned from this course mentioned and it is hoped that the matter will be given consideration.

GIVE THE PASTURE A START

Turning cattle on pasture before it gets a good start will make a huge cut in the stand and carrying capacity of the grass. Every day that the pasture suffers from too early use will cost three days or more of grazing later in the season. Give the grass a chance to get a good healthy start and the ground a few days to dry off and get firm so that the tender roots are not all torn by cattle hurrying along to get the first bite of good green grass.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, who has become entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—guest at the country home of Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, from whom (unknown to all, save Prudence, who has been wrongly accused of one of her thefts) Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Performing an experiment in his laboratory, there is an explosion, and Peter is blinded. His nurse, Janet Mercer, takes Prudence to see the injured man.

CHAPTER LXXIII.

Bert's Opinion.

"There's a young lady with the patient," Janet informed Nurse Brown, when the latter came in from her walk. "Don't go into the room until she comes out."

"S'pose there's no hope for his eyes?" inquired the newcomer, laconically, throwing her cloak and bonnet on a chair, and setting about making herself a cup of tea. "S'pose the 'Great One' said just what I thought?"

Janet nodded shortly. Brown wasn't really quite as callous as she sounded, but she riled Janet, just the same.

"How did young Armstrong take the blow?"

"Like the brave gentleman he is. We've got to do the best we can to cheer him, and don't you forget it. Janet departed for the Towers.

It was a sunny afternoon, but the woman's thoughts had little sunshine in them as she hurried on her mission. Reflections on her patient's ordeal and bleak future were mingled with Virginia's defection and the coolness existing between herself (Janet) and Will, her quondam sweetheart.

What a hopeless, painful puzzle life could be!

Better to live on the surface of things, better never to feel real emotion, than to suffer so!

Turning in at the west lodge gates, she spied Virginia's two-seater car ahead of her, a man, who looked like Traymore, beside the fair driver.

"And she wasn't well enough to see her lover!" reflected Janet, grimly, with sardonic lips.

When she reached the Towers, Mrs. Vansittart, Virginia and Traymore were enjoying a cup of tea in the library.

Janet stalked on.

"How's the patient, nurse?" cried the lady of the Towers, all sympathy; for, indeed, she was kind at heart, and had always liked poor Peter Armstrong.

"He's alive, if that's what you mean," said Janet, ungraciously; "but I'm thinking it'ud be better a hundred times if he were dead."

"Good gracious!" What's happened?" Virginia bounded up from the deep 'chaise lounge' where she was luxuriously reclining, in a clinging mauve tea-gown of some silken substance that freely displayed the love lines of her carefully cherished 'figure.' "What on earth's wrong?"

"Sit down. Don't let me disturb you." Janet took a chair and coldly regarded the entrancing vision. "Seat yourself."

Virginia shivered uncontrollably.

"Don't tell me he's going to be permanently disfigured? I couldn't stand that! ' couldn't——"

"Then you'll have to stand it, and a good lot more," said Janet, brutally, "because, in addition to being 'permanently disfigured,' as you call it, he's going to be permanently blind!

Virginia's tea-cup fell with a clatter to the carpet, the hot liquid making a great stain down the front breadth of the lovely silken gown.

"Good God!" She rushed at Janet, caught her by the arm, and her pointed nails dug into the other's flesh. "You're lying, just to frighten me—just because you hate me!"

Janet shook her off as though she were some loathsome insect.

"You flatter yourself if you think I'd bother one way or the other about you, Miss Dale. I'm only here on behalf of my patient, who wants to see you, and has been asking for you. I understand you're his affianced wife, and strange—strange as it may seem to you—the general idea would be that your place is at his bedside if he wants you. And, curiously enough, he does seem to want you!"

Virginia did not appear to understand the meaning of the words.

"Blind? Disfigured?" she repeated, stupidly. Then almost with a gleam of hope: "You're sure he isn't going to die?"

"Sorry if I'm disappointing you, but there is a little chance of that." Then, relaxing for a moment, and turning to Mrs. Vansittart, who was leaning forward eagerly in her chair: "The specialists both said that it's only his magnificient constitution that has pulled him through."

Mrs. Vansittart rose, and with a determined air addressed Virginia:

"Get your coat and wrap at once and hurry back to the cottage with Miss Mercer. The car'll take you there in no time. Hurry!"

Virginia drew back. She—a beauty lover—to be compelled to look on man's disfigurement! She—to be forced into this disgusting situation!

"I'm frightfully sorry for poor Peter, but I simply can't go," she cried. "I'd faint, or take hysterics, and it would only upset him. Give him my—my—" —she hesitated over the word 'love,' then substituted instead: "sympathy and—and best regards and wishes. And I'll come whenever my nerves are fit enough."

Mrs. Vansittart caught her wrist with a grip of iron.

"You'll do as Miss Mercer asks you, right away, or you leave this house at once. I'm not going to have any scandal under my roof, young woman! Either you visit poor young Armstrong—now—when he asks it, or you pack your trunks, and don't return to Winston Towers!"

The ultimatum was delivered like a Roman empress, and it cowed Virginia.

"Oh, well, since you're all making such a fuss——" She gave in, and went away with Janet on her highly distasteful mission.

"There goes a girl totally without a heart!" exclaimed Mrs. Vansittart to Bert Traymore, when the car had carried the beauteous one away. "I'm beginning to think that Peter Armstrong's tragedy has one alleviating feature, since it certainly will free him of Virginia!"

"I quite agree with you," said Traymore, unexpectedly.

She wheeled around on him sharply.

"You mean, because you'll marry her yourself?"

Young Traymore's answer wasn't what she thought it would be, but it was forceful.

"I know too much about Virginia Dale ever to contemplate marriage with a woman of that type!"

Mrs. Vansittart gasped.

"And I thought you were wild about her!"

Bert offered her a cigarette and grinned sardonically.

"Have one? No? Excuse me if I smoke?" And then he added:

"I'm friendly with Virginia just to find out certain things—never mind what! But as for romance—poof!"—he blew a ring of smoke into the air—"she's the last creature in the world I'd ever want to marry!"

BROWN ROT OF STONE FRUITS

Brown rot is found annually in the peach, plum and cherry orchards of Ontario. However, in most years the attacks of this fungus are not severe and it is only when weather conditions are extremely favourable to its development that serious epidemics of brown rot occur and great financial loss to the grower results.

The destructive attack of this fungus has assumed two forms—one an infection of the blossoms, causing blossom blight, and the other a rotting of the fruit as it approaches maturity.

Blossom blight, especially on cherries, is often severe if damp, muggy weather prevails at that time. Again, if the same weather conditions prevail at the time of ripening of the fruit brown rot sets in and great loss to the crop will result unless careful, well-timed, suitable sprays or dusts are thoroughly applied. Blossom blight is generally initiated as a browning of the calyx lobe, but later may spread to involve the whole flower and the stem which bears it. Such blossoms are killed and are therefore worthless from the standpoint of fruit production and they also serve to spread the disease throughout the orchard, since countless numbers of spores are produced thereon. These spores, are carried by the wind to the fruit where they germinate under favourable conditions and cause infection.

Systematic pruning that tends to produce an open head is of prime importance in controlling brown rot, as bad air drainage favours this disease. Thorough applications of lime sulphur, or Bordeaux mixture just before the blossoms open (when they show white); just after the petals have fallen and when the shucks are shed should give good control. About 3 to 4 weeks before harvest if damp muggy weather prevails an additional spray will be necessary. Many growers are applying dust instead of spray for the later applications. In such cases a dust may be applied at any time up until harvesting if weather conditions warrant it.

In the Niagara peninsula peaches generally are not sprayed for brown rot as they receive only the dormant application for scale and peach leaf curl. If, however, later applications are applied, self-boiled lime sulphur, wettable sulphur, or sulphur dust should be used. The first brown rot application on plums is generally delayed until the shucks are off the fruit.

The brown rot fungus lives through the winter on the mummied fruit that hangs to the tree or falls to the ground. Mummied fruit that falls to the ground and is not too deeply buried will give rise in the spring to microscopic, stalked, cup-shaped fruiting. However, if the mummied fruit is plowed deeply under they are unable to produce spores. This is the reason that plowing and cultivation of the orchard in the spring until after blossoming time is recommended. Such practices tend to bury the mummied fruit and prevent the production of spores.

MORGAN HELPED FRANCE HURT STATES VISITORS

Prices Jump as Result of Shift in Exchange and Burden Falls on Both Foreigners and Natives

By MINOTT SAUNDERS

PARIS, May 19 (United Press).—When J. P. Morgan stretched out a helping hand to France in its exchange crisis he struck a hard blow at his countrymen who live or travel here. The improvement of the franc has made this country more expensive for foreigners.

With the tourist season just beginning and the Olympic games not far off, prices are rising each week. It was all very well for foreigners when the francs was sliding, because they broke about even on the exchange, but the sudden improvement of the franc has caught them both ways.

The purchasing power in francs of the dollar has decreased over one-third, and prices in francs have increased about one-third during the past few weeks. Americans who come here with the idea of living and buying cheaply are sadly disillusioned.

Increases in taxation and other legislative measures taken in the emergency to arrest the fall of the franc have reacted directly on the man in the street. The general augmentation of prices to cover up on the depreciating e change have not, however, reacted. Foreigners have to meet low exchange prices with a comparatively high exchange.

Expensive As New York

Rates of ordinary hotels here are on a par with first-class New York hotel Restaurant prices are high because proprietors are forced to meet the increased taxation. Wines are expensive now. The average first-class theatre charges about $2.50 for its best seats. Railway rates have gone up nearly 50 per cent., and travel here now is just about as expensive as in America or in England.

A tour of the gay night places in Paris develops into a dismal orgy of expenditure, and after a couple of nights of it the newcomers begin to call a halt. Champagne in the Montmartre is now at a standard price of 100 francs a bottle. That wasn't so bad when the franc was twenty-six to the dollar, but with the franc at sixteen, it has a corrosive effect on the holiday bankroll. And champagne is compulsory for patrons who sit at a table in any of the dancing places. It is the entrance fee. If you drop in a place in the early hours for some pancakes and sausages you have the bottle of champagne with them. No matter how funny this combination seems, the joke is not on the house. Cigarettes in such places cost five and six times the market price, so those who know the ropes call the chasseur and send him around the corner for cigarettes and give him a handsome tip to save money. All down the line the foreigners are plucked, and Montmartre, with the wisdom of the ages, is no less expert in this regard.

After midnight taxi drivers who enter the night life district pay no attention to their meter. They fix a price of ten or twenty francs at least before they take a passenger. Of course, one might call a policeman and get justice, but there are not enough policemen in Paris to enforce justice for you during a night. All visitors like to have a nught out, but when they are through they find they are out more than they bargained for.

Clothes Are High

Women who come here to buy clothes cheaply quickly discover they could do just as well at home. All articles of finery and feminine trinkets bring prices far out of proportion to their worth. The brilliantly-colored silk scarf is "la mode" now, and every woman must have one, but a respectable one costs twelve or fifteen dollars.

PARIS WOMEN TAKE UP MONOCLE FAD.

Smart Set Also Goes in for Highly Colored Spats to Match Grey Hats.

PARIS, May 19. — After their abandonment by smartly dressed men monocles and spats feature the latest attire of the up-to-date society woman.

Judging from the fashion panorama at Longchamps' racetrack yesterday, however, both spats and monocle have been considerably feminized. The monocles worn have the weirdest shapes, some square and other triangular ,the frame being frequently studded with jewels, while the usual black ribbon has been replaced by a rope of finely strung pearls.

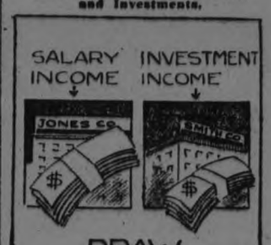
MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



When you buy a good bond or a share of stock you purchase several by-products in addition to collecting interest and dividends.

1. You can borrow money on good bonds or stock if you have to. You may have an unexpected doctor and hospital bill, and in such cases ready money is usually a necessity. The ability to borrow easily on your securities, then, is worth something; a by-product.

2. When you become the owner of good, sound securities you find yourself taking more interest in business and industrial enterprises in general. In other words, your horizon is widened by virture of your new business interests; a by-product.

3. You develop self-respect through ownership of good bonds or stock. As a bond-holder, the corporation is indebted to you, and you stand in the position of lender, and through the purchase of a share of stock you actually become a part owner of the business, and such ownership develops self-confidence and self-respect; a by-product.

300 Italians Are Held at Halifax

HALIFAX, N.S., May 19.—No disposal has been made as yet of the three hundred Italian immigrants who arrived here on Tuesday night on the steamer America from Naples. The men possessing altogether $113,000 in cash and who ostensibly came here as farmers, will be detained until word is received from Ottawa.

The men are regarded as of good type physically.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

CUSTOMARY SABBATH CALM WAS DISRUPTED

AYR, Scotland, May 19.—(Canadian Press.)—The customary Sabbath calm of the little mining village of Annbank, near here, was disturbed yesterday in an unprecedented manner. Main street was thronged with local inhabitants and visitors on the occasion of the solemn farewell to "Jamie" Brown, on the eve of his departure with his wife and son to assume his temporary office as Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland at Edinburgh, where he is to represent the King as head of Court.

The old miner and his wife, still unperturbed by the honoros thrust upon them, received the greetings of their friends and visitors with unruffled ease. In the afternoon Mrs. Brown entertained a number of friends at tea, at which scones of her own make were served. Today she becomes "Her Grace," to be waited upon by numerous servants, and her husband dons court dress and sword.

NEWS JANETVILLE AND THE DISTRICT

JANETVILLE, May 17.—Mrs. William Hill, of the Township of Ops, while on her way to Lindsay in company with her husband, was thrown from the buggy and sustained painful cuts and bruises about the neck and head. Owing to the roads being unusually bad this spring, many small bridges and culverts have to be constructed. Mr. Hill's horse, becoming frightened at a pile of timber lying near one of these, began to run, and Mrs. Hill, who became excited, attempted to leap from the rig, was thrown violently to the ground.

She is at present in Lindsay under the doctor's care, and is slowly recovering.

Motor Troubles By The Way

While Dr. Clarke and daughter were motoring from Lindsay to visit a patient in Janetville, their car sank in the mud while taking the edge of a narrow road in order to permit a buggy to pass.

Dr. Clarke walked a mile across the swamp to find help. While he was gone, two men came along, and while Miss Clarke, who is an excellent driver, gave the gas to the engine, the men put their muscles to the car and got the car up on the hard road again.

But their troubles did not end here. Miss Clarke overtook the doctor and they drove on to Janetville. Just as they were entering the community shed, the front wheels broke through and sank until the front axle rested on the ground. To back out by the engine's own power was impossible until five or six men gathered together, pried the car up, put on the chains, and put planks under the wheels. When this was done, Miss Clarke once more proved herself a real master at the wheel, and the great car rolled back out of the deep mire into which it had sunk, to the firm road again.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

JACK THE GIANT KILLER

What kindof a kite do you fly-" he asked.

The magic automobile with Nancy and Nick and Mister Muggs, the fairyman, sped through Once-Upon-a-Time Land at about a hundred miles an hour.

It passed seven castles and seven moats and came at last to the place where Jack the Giant Killer lived.

Jack was out flying a kite, but when he saw the visitors he wound up the string and came over.

He was extra glad to see Nick.

"What kind of a kite do you fly?" he asked when he had said "How do you do."

"Mine's a red parrot," said Nick, "but I like this kind better. Next time I'm going to get one like it."

"I'd like to have a box kite," answered Jack. "You know what they are like, don't you?"

"I know a man," put in Mister Muggs, "who has a box kite, and he takes pictures with it. He has a camera fixed to it some way, and when he wants to take the picture of a mountain top or something very high, he sends up the kite and then pulls a string and that works the camera and the picture is taken."

All this time nobody thought of a giant.

"Some day, when I'm a man," declared Jack, "I am going to have an airplane. I'm going to learn to do nose dives and tail spins, and how to bank, and how to loop the loop, and if there's a war I'll chase the enemy. What are you going to do when you're a man, Nick?"

"Maybe I'll be a soldier or a ploiceman or a conductor. Or else I'll build houses and bridges."

"I'd like to lead a band and throw up a big stick and catch it," said Jack. "I'd like to wear a tall fur hat with a strap under my chin, and a red jacket all covered with gold braid."

And still nobody thought of so much as mentioning a giant.

"When I grow up I'm going to wear a pink-spangled dress and jump out of a balloon," said Nancy, although nobody had asked her what she was going to do. If girls want any notice they have to speak up for themselves.

"I've thought of that, too," said Jack. "But I'll have a little parachute on my airplane and I can jump out and come down whenever I want to."

"We'll have to be going now," said Mister Muggs. "It's a long way back and time is flying."

And then Nick remembered.

"Did you really kill any giants?" he asked suddenly.

"Seven," said Jack, as though he were speaking of autos or something. "Oh, say, you play baseball? I wish you could stay."

Summer Evening Gowns

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 19 (United Press).—At present every woman is turning her thoughts toward the summer evening gown.

There are three silhouettes which will be popular this season for evening wear. Firstly, there is the slender, tubular frock which is even used in sheer chiffons as well as in heavier materials. These slender chiffon frocks are usuallymade over slips of chiffon of a contrasting or deeper shade and they are often bordered about the hem with wide bands of marabou, ostrich, or with flowers. The bodice of these frocks is usually untrimmed, with simple rounding neckline and sleeveless. Frocks of crepe de chene beaded in self-colored beads also use the straight, tubular silhouette this season.

The second silhouette is the billowy one with the skirt trimmed with row after row of flounces or layer after layer of tulle. Soft, pastel shades are invariably used for such frocks, and yellow, rose, amethist and pink are favorite colors. These gowns are particularly attractive for dancing and their simple, youthful lines make them becoming to almost everyone.

In the case where narrow lace ruffles form the skirt, one might use rows of lace of different colors. One very lovely model which uses tan georgette has row upon row of yellow, green and brown lace placed upon the skirt. Another white frock adorns its skirt with alternating layers of narrow black and white silk lace and the effect is very lovely.

Soft Clinging Gowa

The third silhouette is the soft clinging one which terminates in a full flounce at the hem. The flounce is usually cut on the bias of the material and stretched at the bottom into a frilly edge. Again the flounce may be pleated lace to give the fluffy hem effect. Several models of black georgette or chiffon have their flounces trimmed in lace motifs, the lace being narrow and sherred to give fluffiness. The upper portion of these frocks are invariably tubular in effect and are simple as to trim.

By following any one of these silhouettes one can not go wrong in the selection of the summer evening frock. Of course, none but the slender person can attempt to wear the billowy frock with the ruffled skirt. A more mature figure will look far better in the tubular frock, providing of course, that the garment is cut to conceal rather than reveal the figure. Although many of the straight-lined tubular frocks have no beltline whatsoever, I would suggest a fold of material placed at a low waistline where the wearer has a rounded figure.

The flounce silhouette is decidedly feminine and alluring and one which many women will undoubtedly choose for the dinner or dance frock. When made of lace or of a sheer material, almost any figure will find such a gown quite becoming. Many afternoon gowns of dressier type follow this silhouette adding sleeves which have wide, bias flounces beginning at or below the elbow. This is very effective in black lace.

The newest bead necklaces combine the choker effect and the long chain effect by wrapping the necklace once about the throat. Very large beads are being worn this year, some of them being as large as robin's eggs. Colored glass and wooden beads the size of marbles are very popular. Agate beads, which resemble marbles, are much in demand. Almost every frock has its own necklace this season and, as many lovely chains can be purchased very cheaply, this is no strain on the pocketbook. There is a new imitation jade chain which so closely resembles jade that the difference between the real and the imitation is almost unnoticable. These are very popular.

Bracelets of every description are being worn. The newest, however, is a chain effect with dangles of colored stones or colored enamel extending completely around the bracelet.

Maine Plans Memorial to Intrepid Lumberjack.

BANGOR, Maine, May 19 (Associated Press). — The spirit of the old-time Maine lumberman who guided the great log jams down the rushing rivers is to be perpetuated in bronze. On the base of a fountain to be erected near the Bangor Public Library as a memorial to the late Colonel Luther H. Pierce of Chicago, a former Bangor resident, will be placed a great bronze relief depicting the three river drivers engaged in the perilous task of breaking out the key log of a jam to release the millions of logs behind.

Colonel Pierce provided for the fountain in his will. The memorial commission has accepted a design submitted by Charles E. Tefft, of New York, a native of Bangor.

The sculptor obtained much of his information and inspiration for the design from Patrick Conners, of this city, now 84 years of age, the last survivor of four brothers who for many years piloted log drives down the Penobscot.

NEW ENGLAND ESPECIALLY FOND OF READING DAILY NEWSPAPERS

EUGENE, Oregon, May 19. — New York, New Jersey and the New England states are first in the United States in the percentage of newspaper readers, with the Pacific Coast states first in magazien reading and second in newspaper reading, Professor George S. Turnbull, of the University of Oregon here has declared after a study of statistics.

Massachusetts was first in the nation in newspaper readers with 54 per cent. and California having a circulation of 1,860,000 daily papers among a population of 3,426,861, was second with 53 per cent. New York, 51.5 per cent., was third; Missouri, 47, was 4th, and Oregon, 42, 5th.

Oregonians read 1.4 per cent of the number of copies of magazines circulated in the country, or nearly twice the average for any other of the states.

Thirty per cent. of the 1920 population of the United States read the morning and evening papers, according to Prof. Turnbull's figures.

The island of Madagascar, where radium was recently found, has hardly any roads. Crude hammocks on poles, carried on the shoulders of natives, furnish the only means of conveyance in many places.

By No Means Allow Your Bowels To Get Constipated.

If you allow your bowels to become constipated you will have bilious attacks, sick headaches, coated tongue, foul breath, sallow complexion, specks floating before the eyes, whites of the eyes dull and yellow, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as by doing so you will be able to keep well and have no more trouble with your liver.

Mrs. I. Rubin, Halbrite, Sask., writes:—"I was very badly troubled with constipation, often had bad headaches my tongue was coated, and I felt anything but well.

After taking Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills I have felt much better as they certainly did me a lot of good."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FABLES ON HEALTH

DON'T "SHOW OFF" BABY

"Have you seen our baby?" Mr. Mann would probably ask of visitors who dropped in for an evening call.

The hour was about 8.30, and Mrs. Mann knew from past experiences what would happen if the baby awakened.

When the company had gone, Mrs. Mann let "father" have it with both barrels.

"You've got to stop this show-off parade," she declared. "The child must not acquire bad habits of sleep. It wakes up often enough as it is without any outside help."

Mrs. Mann's rebuke should be every mother's rebuke.

A child is likely to acquire bad habits of sleep by being disturbed in the early days of life. Being "shown off" to relatives and friends is extremely disturbing to a reacting child. To be continuously lifted up for "show off" purposes is bad at any time for the baby.

Such little things help to develop irritability and fussiness, which one day may form the basis for nervous troubles.

A baby is only too likely to reflect nervous environment.

Try and remember how you feel upon being suddenly awakened, or disturbed while resting and DO UNTO YOUR CHILD AS YOU DO UNTO YOURSELF!

BUSIER

Germany is working harder now. A good sign, for her creditors. The reparations problem is more than a matter of bookkeeping, conferences, parleys and loans to bolster up the value of the mark. The real problem is to keep the Germans busy at production. They can't pay unless they produce.

Don't Neglect Your Skin

Ladies—A few days' treatment with CARTER'S Little Liver Pills will do more to clear up the skin than all the beauty treatments in creation. An imperfect complexion is caused by a sluggish liver.

Millions of people, old, young and middle age, take them for Biliousness, Dizziness, Sick Headache, Upset Stomach and for Sallow, Pimply and Blotchy Skin. They end the misery of Constipation.

(A Daily Menu for the Stout and Thin)
EAT AND—

Lose Weight.

One cup clear tomato soup, 1 cup fruit salad, 1 cup beef en casserole, ½ head lettuce, ½ cup cucumber jelly, 2 tablespoons pineapple sponge, 1 macaroon, 2 gluten muffins, 1 slice gluten bread, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1018. Protein, 308; fat, 132; carbohydrate, 578. Iron, .0271 gram.

If your daily allowance of calories is around 1200 you can add an apple and a shredded wheat biscuit for your breakfast. If you pine for a chocolate soda don't indulge on the strength of few calories for the day. The chocolate and ice cream add many calories of fat that will undo the work of days, while the apple and "shredder" furnish nourishment and satisfy hunger without upsetting the plan of things.

This menu provides no breakfast. However, a cup of hot skimmed milk might be found welcome.

The gluten muffins are planned for luncheon with the soup and salad.

The casserole of beef is composed of carrots and onions cooked with the beef and string beans cooked separately and added just before serving.

Gain Weight.

Four stewed figs, 1 cup cooked wheat cereal, 2 codfish balls, 2 waffles, 4 tablespoons maple syrup, 1 cup clear tomato soup, 1 pork chop, 2 tablespoons creamed potatoes, ½ cup fruit salad, 2 cheese cups, 1 cup cream of asparagus soup, 1 cup beef en casserole, 4 tablespoons boiled macaroni, ½ head lettuce, ½ cup cucumber jelly, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons pineapple sponge with 1 tablespoon whipped cream, 1 piece sponge cake, 1 chocolate cup cake, 2 pieces rye toast, 2 gluten muffins, 2 pieces whole wheat bread, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 pint whole milk, ¼ cup cream, 1 dessertspoon sugar.

Total calories, 4208. Protein, 431; fat, 1618; carbohydrate, 2159. Iron, .0288 gram.

The lettuce should be divided between the luncheon and dinner salads.

The chocolate cup cake is suggested for the luncheon sweet.

You will like the boiled macaroni with the casserole of beef in place of potatoes.

The fruit salad for this diet is masked with a whipped cream dressing.

Gluten muffins are quite as acceptable for the entire family occasionally as for the reducing diet.

PNEUMONIA VACCINE TO BE A PREVENTIVE.

Felton Treatment May Be Used to Avert Serious Illness, Dr. Park Says—No Fear of An Overdose.

NEW YORK, May 19.—After studying the action of the concentrated pneumonia vaccine developed by Dr. Lloyd B. Belton at Harvard, Dr. Wm. H. Park, directeor of bacteriological research in the Health Department, said yesterday that it could be administered as a routine precaution in chills and fever or any other condition disposing toward pneumonia with the hope that it would save the patient from serious illness.

"It will make the use of antipneumonia serum general, and will give all the good effects of the old type of serum without the deleterious and dangerous action,' 'said Dr. Park. "The serum already developed has been very effective in combatting pneumonia, but it produced such a violent reaction in many cases that it could not be safely introduced into general practice. For instance, I have just been in contact with a case where a patient, a month after the serum treatment, is still suffering from rashes and from a painful condition of the joints. Many physicians had discouraging experiences with the serum.

"Pneumonia is generally classed into four types and to be sure of having a dose effective against all four it would be necessary to give four quantities of serum. This would mean introducing so much foreign matter into the blood that it might case very serious or perhaps fatal results. Such chances could not be taken, and it was necessary to give doses usually of one type without being always sure that it was the right type.

May Mix Anti-Bodies.

"With this treatment developed by Dr. Felton it will probably later be possible to give a mixture of all four types of anti-bodies, feeling sure that the injection will not produce any harm. Within reasonable limits, there is no such thing as an overdose in the Felton treatment. The harmful factors in the serum are all eliminated. The treatment is thus made effective and harmless in the hands of the general practitioner and I have no doubt that it will be widely used and will save many lives.

"At present the treatment is developed from Type I, only, but this type accounts for about one-third of the deaths. It is highly probable that the treatment will soon be made available against Types II and III.

"There has been a demand for the Felton vaccine, since it was described two days ago, but our pneumonia season is virtually past and there will not be any occasion for its wide use until next season. There is no doubt that the discovery is an extremely important and valuable one."

Thirty cases have been treated by the Felton vaccine at Bellevue Hospital with highly encouraging results. There was one death under treatment in a case far advanced. The others are said to have all recovered. Pneumonia usually killed an average of more than one patient in three.

Dr. Russell L. Cecil, who was in charge of the cases at Bellevue and has carried out work during the war and since in the use of vaccines against pneumonia, said yesterday that there was no doubt that the discovery was one of the very first importance.

Eliminates Serum Sickness

"It does away entirely with the serum sickness which has interfered with the use of other types of serum. The sickness is due to proteins in the serum which are entirely eliminated in the concentrated and purified substance produced by Dr. Felton. Other steps have been previously made in the same direction. The anti-body solution developed by Dr. Huntoon combined anti-bodies against all types of pneumonia and was used with a good deal of success, but was sometimes accompanied with severe reactions, so that many doctors were afraid to use it.

"Another thing is that the old treatments involved a great deal of technique, careful measurements and bacteriological work, all of which barred the use of the serum from country districts and small towns. The substance isolated by Dr. Felton can be brought into general use in country and city practice.

"There is no reason why it cannot be administered at the onset of chills and fevers or severe colds. This may not prevent pneumonia in the lungs, but would probably check diffusion of the disease through the blood. The thing that really kills in pneumonia cases is blood poisoning. As long as the disease is confined to the lungs it is like an abscess or carbuncle, but when the germs once enter the blood in quantities the result is what the layman would term blood poisoning and recoveries are seldom made from this condition. Antibody destruction of Dr. Felton results in the destruction of the germs in the blood in Type I of pneumonia, but it is doubtful whether its early use could entirely check the lung condition itself."

It was said that the discovery of Dr. Felton might pave the way for an improved serum treatment in several other diseases.

Dress Engineer Advocates the Building of a Wardrobe As One Would Build a Home.

(By Hortense Saunders).

Until beauty, not style, is our ideal in dress, we will always have a dress problem, according to Bertha Holley, dress engineer.

She believes a wardrobe should be assembled as a home is — starting with a few good pieces. Then year by year one adds to a permanent collection instead of discarding the major portion season after season.

"A woman's first step toward freedom in dress," she says, "is to determine her color scheme and then build her permanent wardrobe closely adhering to it, so that all hats, coats, shoes and dresses may be harmonious.

"The blond will find that grays and blues with touches of warm colors, used discreetly as high spots, are her most lovely setting.

"Brown eyes call for golds and tans. For the extreme brunet the dark tones of red and purple, and black are best."

Miss Holley builds what she calls interchangeable wardrobes. She pins her faith to slips and overdresses. Every outfit starts with a foundation slip which is sleeveless and straight as to line. It is usually of satin or crepe.

Over this she arranges any number of over-tunics that transform the same slip into an evening frock, or morning dress to suit one's needs.

"The variety is gained by the use of harmonious overslips and undertunics," she explains. "One may build an elaborate or simple wardrobe by this plan, and as soon as one tunic or slip has outlived its usefulness, it may be replaced by another.

Since the clothes I make are never conspicuously in style, they neevr go out. The underlying ideal is beauty and harmony rather than style, and a thing of beauty should be a joy as long as it exists."

Many of her coats are reversible, plain on one side and elaborate on the other. Many of the gowns are made in rich tissues, elaborately decorated brocades or chiffons, but her lines never vary and her color sequences are never violated.

She began her career as an artist, then became an interior decorator, and finally, as she became more interested in the occupants of rooms than the rooms themselves, she developed into a dress engineer.

PASSE

The editor of a highbrow magazine writes on the "Tyranny of the Classics." He claims that the classics, used in schools, are intellectual straitjackets. And children, he argues, instead of reading novels describing life in past generations, should read fiction dealing with our own times.

For this purpose he recommends Fannie Hurst, Edna Ferber, Booth Tarkington and others. To do the job properly and reflect the modern spirit, the list should include Sam Hellman, H. C. Witwer and Ring Lardner.

NAMES OF SPECIAL AGENTS WITHHELD.

Minister of Justice Refused to Divulge the Names of Mounted Police Fighting Drug Traffic.

OTTAWA, May 19.—(Canadian Press.)— The identity of special agents of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and how much was paid to them was asked in the House of Commons Monday by Hon. H. H. Stevens. The Minister of Justice objected. Those who engaged in the illicit drug traffic were already too difficult to apprehend. Such a list made public would strengthen their hands tremendousiy against the police.

Mr. Stevens was not in his seat and the Speaker ruled that the motion must stand as did two other of Mr. Stevens' motions calling for information concerning the administration of the Druga Act in British Columbia.

FRENCH TELEPHONE SYSTEM TO BE GREATLY EXTENDED

PARIS, May 19.—(Associated Press).—Long distance telephoning between Paris and other European capitals, which with the exception of London and Brussels, is practically non-existent, as well as the service between Paris and the great provincial cities of France, which today is just a little faster than the mails, will be greatly improved when the program now in course of realization by the French Government is carried out.

Trunk cables, containing between 110 and 220 wires each, are now complete between Paris and Strasbourg and Paris and Havre.

Bids for similar cables between Paris-Lyons, Paris-Lille, Paris-Marseilles and Paris-London have been called for and the Government intends to begin work on them before the end of the year.

Americans, accustomed to obtain telephone communications between New York and Chicago in about as short a time as it takes the average Parisian to call up the grocer, have little idea of the patience required to get a distant French city on the wire from Paris.

Some days ago the Calais-Vintimille train jumped the tracks near Lyons. Several passengers were killed and wounded. As soon as the news reached Paris, a correspondent put in a call for the Lyons hospital to which some injured American women had been taken.

"The ladies have left for Monte Carlo," he was informed when he finally got the call through. They had remained at the hospital 12 hours.

ON THE STREET, AT TEA TABLES AND FOR SPORT

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 19.—(United Press).—

THEY ARE WEARING

Bands of contrasting colors about the skirt bottoms. Both cloth and silk frocks and suits efects. A white sports frock uses bands or red, black and yellow about the hem. No other trimming is used on the frock.

While almost everybody is wearing the printed scarf, the better dressed women prefer the scarf for morning wear only, as the fur neck piece seems more appropriate for afternoon and dressy wear.

Black and white scarf effects are chosen by many well dressed women in preference to scarfs of riotious colors.

Long black coats trimmed in white fur are seen in numbers. Hats carrying out the black and white idea are worn with them.

Spanish shawls are appearing at the dinner dances and doubtless these will become very popular as the season progresses.

Simple straight-lined coats of black or brown satin are among the smartest of wraps worn on the Avenue. Many of these are not fur trimmed as they follow mannish lines, being worn with colorful scarfs.

Yellow will probably be the most popular color of the season, as all Fifth Avenue windows are displaying the color in every shade from pale butter cup to brilliant orange.

Black shoes trimmed in colored leather piping are being worn. Trimming ranges from tan, gray and subdued tones to bright green, red, orange and gold.

At tea hour, one sees large wide-brimmed hats trimmed in one single flower on the brim. The large silk rose seems to be the favorite flower tri on these large hats and some times the flower is placed on the under brim.

Large envelope-shaped handbags suspended on long strap handles are carried over the shoulder, the bag being worn on the hip. These come in red and black leather and in moire silk.

Yellow sports suits cut on mannish lines are being worn by some of the younger misses. The tendency to wards colorful suits asserts itself this season in variance with the mode for dark tailored garments.

So far, one sees little of the flowered street hat. Felts and straws are worn by almost everyone and these are small and very simply trimmed. Cloche shapes predominate.

Yellow toned gloves of unglazed kid or of chamois are being worn where one's hosiery takes on the new yellowish tone.

Sheer, chiffon stockings of light colors remain the vogue in New York, dark brown and black hosiery being placed in the discard.

Colorful blouses are invariably worn with the suit unless the boyish vest effect is used.

CUTTING BREAD.

Cut your cakes and loaves of bread through the centre instead of at the sides. Then place the two parst together and they will not dry out.

Hide the Eyes

Then note what pretty teeth mean to you

No other factor in beauty and charm means so much as pretty teeth.

Millions of people have found the way to whiter teeth, to keep them safer, cleaner. This offers you a ten-day test. Learn what it means to you.

That film-cloud

That viscous film you feel on teeth is what hides their luster. Under old methods of teeth cleaning, much of it clings and stays. It becomes discolored, forming dingy coats. The teeth become unsightly.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Most cloudy teeth and most tooth troubles come from film you leave.

When this fact was discovered, dental science sought ways to correct it. It found two film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring. Many clinical tests have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

That tooth paste has brought a new dental era to the homes of some 50 nations.

Let your mirror be the proof

Pepsodent brings many new results. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva, which is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined effects will change your whole conception of clean teeth.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Let the results you see and feel tell what you and your people should employ. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

OLD WORLD TAKES TO THE AIR TO FORM A GIANT SPIDER-WEB THAT STRETCHES OVER EUROPE

Only Five Passengers Killed In Three Years On British Airships Though Thousands of People Transported—Severe Tests For Pilots--Frontiers Abolished By New Airship Routes.

WAR AND PEACE MIXED UP.

By CLIFFORD L. DAY

LONDON May 19 (United Press).—High up above the face of Europe today there hangs a gigantic invisible spider-web which a few years ago was non-existent.

Its basic origin dates back more than twenty years or to the days when Orville and Wilbur Wright stood on the sands at Kitty Hawk N.C. watching the flight of gulls for ideas on how to invent an airplane. The giant web is Europe's network of commercial airways. Asiatic frontier from the Finnish edge of the Baltic to Africa the continent is criss-crossed like a crazy quilt with flying routes. The continental and English operators have pushed on well beyond their own territorial borders penetrating Africa Asia and Asia Minor. Their present area might be circumscribed on the map by a pen-stroke which takes in Manchester Copenhagen Helsingfors Moscow Nijni Novgorod, Rostov, Tiflis, Bucharest, Ajaccio Biskra and Casablanca, then Manchester again.

An offspring largely of the late war, this comprehensive system of lines has today already become a powerful instrument for peace in vitally extending and facilitating the channels of trade and communication. Yet, supporting it are national subsidies so arranged that it might at a moment's notice be reconverted into a stupendous weapon of war.

Many Daily Lines

More than a score of separate lines are operating regularly, most of them daily. They carry tons of merchandise every twenty-four hours — shipments ranging all the way from pins to ploughshares, from rabbits to race horses. Not merely hours, but days, are clipped off the ordinary land and sea schedules of transportation. A London girl may carry to the theatre here in the evening a bouquet of flowers which were growing but a few hours before in the South of France. If an Amsterdam gourmant prefers Tunis chickens' eggs for his 8 o'clock breakfast at home he can have some that were laid in Tunis at 8 the previous night.

Commercial aviation's importance as a time-saver for passengers and mails has proved even a greater blessing. Within the past few weeks a hustling American business man, anxious to reach Berlin from the liner which brought him to Southampton, has been known to jump into an airplane as he left the steamer's gangplank and seven hours later to be walking down Unter den Linden. The journey by train and boat would have taken from twenty-three to twenty-six hours. In the "good old days" or, by the old transport ways of today, it has taken a week to reach Moscow from London. Now it takes two days by air.

Faster Postal Service

Faster postal services have meant an enormous increase in the business turnover and a more bustling social life generally. Slow-moving peoples of Europe have learned to appreciate more than ever that there is something in the proverbial Yankee slogan, "Time Is Money."

The development of commercial aviation on this side of the Atlantic has been almost entirely a post-war process. England and France, though pioneers in the enterprise, took it up in real earnest only after the smoke of the late hostilities had drifted off into history, and these two countries retain the paramount positions as operators.

They started in 1919 with cross-channel services which were largely experimental. Other attempts at localized commercial flying followed, until now there are great transcontinental chains linking up nation after nation, city by city. Paris has become one of the most important crossroads. The others include Brussels, Hamburg, Berlin, Danzig, Prague and Warsaw. Today a traveler can go by air on regularly established routes all the way from Manchester to Constantinople or, similarly along another diagonal, from Casablanca to Nijni Novgorod.

At the present season of the year there are more than a dozen separate services being operated by British, French, Belgian, Dutch, German, Spanish and other concerns. They embrace, primarily, the following routes:

London, Paris, Basle, Zurich; London, Brussels, Cologne, Manchester, London; Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Berlin; Southampton, Channel Islands; Paris, Rotterdam, Amsterdam; Paris, Strasburg, Prague, Warsaw; Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest, Constantinople; Antibes, Ajaccio, Tunis; Toulouse, Berpignan, Barcelona, Alicante, Malaga, Rabat; Casablanca, Rabat, Fez, Oran; Marseilles, Perpignan; Oran, Alicante, and Algiers, Biskra.

In addition, the following lines have been in operation, some of them intermittently and some of them discontinued over the wintry weather:

Paris, Brussels; Koenigsberg, Smolensk, Moscow; Hamburg, Copenhagen; Danzig, Warsaw, Lemberg; Koenigs Moscow, Kharkov; Kharkov, Rostov, Novorossuesk, Batoum; Batoum, Tiflis; Moscow, Nigni Novgorod; Bremen, Dessau, Leipzig, Nuernemberg, Munich, Zurich, Geneva; Berlin, Danzig; Berlin, Hamburg; Berlin, Dessau and Berlin, Warnemuende, Malmo.

Volume of Business

Complete figures are not available to show the volume of this traffic or the extent to which business has actually been developed. Yet the statistics as pertaining to British stations and machines may serve as an indication.

In the fiscal year 1919-20 there were 377 flights by British aviators on established routes, and the total mileage flown was 84,000. During the corresponding period of 1922-23 there were 2,000 flights covering an aggregate of 389,000 miles. The twelve months of 1923, taken alone, registered a total mileage of 943,000.

The arrivals and departures at British aerodromes during the calendar year of 1923 totaled 4,575, of which 2,559 were British machines, 1,066 French, 390 Belgian, 548 Dutch and 12 German.

In the same period, at these stations, 15,136 passengers were handled to and from the continent, besides 825.4 tons of cargo. The latter included 23 tons of mails. The imports had a total value of 557,303 pounds sterling, while exports and re-exports were valued at 218,948 pounds.

Besides the flying on established services, a large traffic is carried on by purely independent taxi-planes. These handle passengers mainly, although also taking care of a wide variety of goods. The latest independent machine to appear is an ambulance airplane, capable of carrying two stretcher cases and four sitting cases at one time.

Despite the surprisingly rapid growth of European commercial aviation, accidents have been comparatively few along the established routes, particularly as regards British machines.

Small Loss of Life

Four years of commercial aviation: only three crashes on regular routes and only five passengers killed!

Such is the record established by British flyers in handling tens of thousands of passengers between England and the continent since commercial transport by air was introduced in 1919. To this comparatively insignificant toll must be added, however, the lives of six members of crews and injured passengers numbering three. And even then the toll remains comparatively insignificant.

Air officials and experts here believe this accomplishment is unsurpassed in the United States, France or any other country of the world where commercial flying has been extensively adopted. It is understood to be far better than the general average maintained throughout the great network of transport airways which cross and recross Europe in almost every conceivable direction.

On the whole, however, the entire system of commercial aviation in the western Old World has been proportionately free from casualties, considering the immense volume of traffic carried on. British observers attribute this immunity almost entirely to the international air-ial legislation convention adopted in Paris on Oct. 13, 1919, in connection with the peace treaty. All the countries of Europe excepting Russia and Germany adhere to this convention, which was drawn up with the cognizance of United States representatives, who actually signed the document but whose Government never has ratified it.

The convention provided for the establishment of an international commission for aviation and set up a schedule of general rules and understandings. The commission meets regularly at Paris and other European centres to make recommendations for alterations of the convention subject to acceptance by the ratifying powers.

Rigid Legislation

Great Britain's adaptation of the general legislation is said to be more rigid than is that of any other power. In an intensive effort to avoid accidents she is following the conviction that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. "Gypsy" flyers and machines are things unknown. Inefficiency and inferiority are hounded out of the air.

It is a stiff examination required of the personnel operating and maintaining aircraft. No machine can fly in the commercial service without an original certificate of airworthiness, supplemented by a daily flying certificate. Experts determine on the spot whether a plane is capable of taking the strains and stresses of the particular flight intended. Regulations cover every part of the construction from the smallest split-pin to the machine itself.

Pilots are subjected not only to a most careful medical examination, but to tests which must show that they are fully competent from a flying point of view and as regards navigation, meteorology, rules of air, signals and maintenance. A pilot is medically examined every six months.

Any flyer who passes the British medical tests is a hardy specimen, indeed. The Air Ministry's medical officers have even perfected an apparatus now with which film records are taken of the varying actions of aviators' lungs and hearts. A flyer comes in from a trip across the channel, perhaps as far as Berlin or Zurich. A "movie" is immediately made of the effects the flight has had on his vital organs, and a comparison is made with films snapped before he began the voyage. Another takes a drop of rum or a cup of tea and the effects on his system are registered by the pitilessly infallible process of cinematography. After the flyers' recations are filmed, deductions are made and any necessary remedies applied.

Grand Engineers Control

However general the British rules and methods may be in other respects, there is at least one department of civil aviation maintained here which does not exist in other countries. It is the section of licenses inspectors known as "Grand Engineers." Although licensed by the Air Ministry Civil Aviation Department, they are employed by the operating firms, and thus bear a dual responsibility. It is the duty of a Grand Engineer to pass judgment on every British engine and machine flying within his jurisdiction. No matter if a plane has been in continuous, regular operation, it must have a daily certificate from the grand engineer in charge before it can leave an aerodrome. Even the general manager of an airplane line cannot legally let one of his own machines take flight without the grand engineer's approval. The total number licensed at the end of 1923 was 280.

How well this personnel does its work may be judged from the fact that during the tati stical year 1922-23 there was only one fatal accident on the regular routes. Two members of the crew and three passengers were killed in the crash. The year before there also was but one fatal accident, resulting in the death of two crew members only. The year 1921-22 was absolutely free from accidents, while in 1920-21 there was but one fatal fall, two members of a crew and two passengers being killed.

Very Few Accidents

Since the statistical year 1919-20, the number of annual machine flights per fatal accident had risen from 377 to 2,000 and the mileage flown, at a similar ratio, has increased from 84,000 to 389,000. The total mileage for the past three calendar years respectively has been stretched from 644,000 in 1920 to 943,000 in 1923. British machines handled 11,947 of the 15,136 passengers passing through British aerodromes in 1923, besides a major percentage of the 825.4 tons of goods imported and exported by air.

It is believed here that commercial aviation has been developed more extensively and successfully in England and the continent than in the United States and other parts of the world largely because of two factors—the public confidence aroused by the enforcement of aerial legislation, and the substantial subsidies granted by the respective Governments.

British officials and experts forecast an even greater future for its progress once there is an adjustment of the conditions which make Germany and Russia refrain from entering the international agreement on regulations.

And they believe aviation the world over would undergo decided stimulation were the United States finally to honor the signatures of 1919 by ratification of the document. It was announced from Washington recently that the United States would be represented at an international aerial congress in Rome on April 22, but the convening body is authoritatively described here as "an unofficial bunch of lawyers interested in aviation, the organization having no connection with the European international convention on aerial legislation."

New Development

Potentialities of war and pledges of peace govern to a vital extent the further development of commercial aviation in Great Britain and Continental Europe.

With inflammable political material lying scattered about there is always in the offing the likelihood that some stray diplomatic or other spark may set off another old world conflagration.

And war lords in nation after nation have repeatedly emphasized that the battles of the future will be decided in the air. Signs multiply that these considerations and possibilities are playing no small part in the quiet race now going on in the subsidization of private aerial transport.

And, while there still is a firm determination among the allies that Germany shall fully meet her treaty obligations, the opinion appears to be growing that all Europe's air trade is suffering as a result of certain disarmament restrictions imposed upon the Germans at Versailles. The problem is one of co-operation.

Germany so far has not exercised her right to join the other powers of Europe, including all but Russia, in the 1919 international convention on aerial legislation. She is a holdout, intent on driving a bargain. She objects to the so-called "nine rules" which the allies adopted for her aerial disarmament, in accordance with the treaty.

As a result of these rules, Germany cannot build or operate aircraft capable of carrying more than three or four passengers or the equivalent in goods. No airplane engine of more than 185 horse-power is allowed her. The transcontinental machines used by Britain and France have engines of from 400 to 600 horse-power and can carry as many as fourteen passengers each, besides the crew.

Germany a Bar

The peace treaty requires that Germany accord the same rights to exenemy nationals as to her own. This provision, however, gives her the privilege of preventing the flight across her territory of any machines more powerful than those allowed her nationals. By joining the international convention of 1919, which would involve waiving of such a right, Germany would relinquish the only weapon she retains for securing abrogation of the "nine rules."

Despite this state of affairs, Great Britain has been able to get German permission to fly as far as Berlin. Germany has the reciprocal right to fly to London, but has not yet availed herself of it to any noteworthy extent, due, in part, to the restrictive capacity allowed her craft.

About eighteen months ago the British similarly obtained permission to extend their London-Brussels line as far as Cologne. Although Cologne lies in British occupied territory, German authorization was required because German personnel mans the customs offices, landing places and meteorological stations.

Czecho-Slovakia wanted an extension of the same line to Prague, but Germany this time declined permission to the British on the grounds that French flyers would otherwise demand a like concession, which could not be granted under existing conditions. As it is, the French make the flight anyway via Strasburg and the Nuieremberg district, and the German authorities have temporarily confiscated such machines as have been forced down on German soil by weather or engine trouble.

Germany's quid pro quo attitude on the whole question of aerial co-operation has made a stumbling block in the path of progress, out of a section so located geographically that it forms an important link in the network of continental airways. Behind the scenes, however, it is clear that British aviation circles sympathize with her point of view. It is not unlikely that before many moons have waned the British will have interceded with the French in the hope of effecting a readjustment whereby German co-operation would be assured. It is probable, too, that facilities for the extension of British air lines into Russia may grow out of the Anglo-Russian resumption of diplomatic relations.

Wiped Out Frontiers

Aside from the fact that Russia and Germany are not parties to the general pact on aviation, an unparalleled situation now exists in conditions of European transport. It is merely that frontiers no longer matter to any great extent. Many red-tape barriers have had to be broken down or readjusted at the customs and passport gateways. Yet, frontier officials, generally, have entered into the spirit of the game with gusto. They seem to feel that airplane loads are "rush" and find it possible within their elastic rights to expedite the passage of aerial passengers and goods by a liberal application of the frontier regulations.

Subsidies have proved the life-blood of commercial aviation this side of the Atlantic. In the case of Great Britain, the subsidization has been only partial and did not begin until three years ago. Schemes had previously been considered by the Government but rejected. By February, 1921, all the regular British air transport companies had abandoned their services to the continent, for financial reasons. "They found it impossible," said an official report on the subject, "to compete against the recently but heavily subsidized French companies, who were required to reduce the fare to the uneconomic rate of 6 pounds 6 shillings (about $27) for the single, and 12 pounds for the return journey."

A public uproar occurred in England and the Government immediately got busy. Between March, 1921, and March, 1922, two companies then operating in the cross-channel service received 85,671 pounds in official financial aid. The ensuing six months 66,169 pounds in subsidies and compensation went to the three companies then operating.

It was then the Government woke up to the fact that it was competing against itself by subsidizing companies plying on the same line. Consequently, new routes and the old were apportioned out. The period of assistance expired on March 30, 1924.

Cost England Millions

Altogether, including aid in equipment and otherwise not embraced in subsidies and compensation, Great Britain has dug down in her pockets to the tune of about 511,940 pounds to keep her aerial Union Jack flying these part three years.

On the first of this month Imperial Airways, Ltd., came into being as an amalgamation of the four companies which were operating previously: Handley Page, the Instone Line, Daimler Hire and the British Marine Navigation Company. Imperial Airways, of which Sir Eric Geddes is executive chairman, is to receive 1,000,000 pounds in subsidy over a period of ten years. It has a monopoly as far as subsidy is concerned for that period. It agrees to fly 1,000,000 miles a year. All of its pilot and maintenance personnale must be members of the Royal Air Force, or its auxiliary services, and at any time of "national emergency" the Government may take over its entire organization.

Figures available here show that French subsidies voted in the past four years have totaled 134,441,253 francs.

Ohter countries, including Germany, also are entered in the sub-rosa subsidy race, which is actuated by two primary lines of thought; that modern trade and national pestige demand the utmost possible development of commercial aviation, and that, although not admittable officially, it's not a bad idea to have a good-sized aerial establishment on hand in case a war breaks out.

SERVICES CLOSED AT CATHEDRAL

On Saturday evening Father De Coste spoke again to the usual large congregation of men. Taking for his text these words of our Divine Lord from the cross, "Son, behold Thy Mother," he made a stirring appeal to all present to increase their devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary. She is our most powerful intercessor in heaven, for she is the mother of God, and has a mother's influence with her Divine Son.

She is called the refuge of sinners. You know well that, in this world, long after the father has discovered his wayward son, long after his brothers and sisters have grown ashamed of him, there is one who never goes to sleep at night without a sigh and a prayer for him. This one loving faithful soul is his own natural mother. So too will our spiritual mother Mary remember us in heaven. Children in this world, through the intercession of loving mothers, often obtain favors from their fathers which otherwise might have been denied them. So too, though undeserving, we may appeal to God through His blessed mother our most powerful advocate. She was always constant, devoted and faithful to her Divine Son during His life on earth. She fled with the Divine Infant, for His safety, into Egypt; she returned and lived quietly at Nazareth, where in His tender years she cared for Him with the sweetest maternal solicitude. She was always near Him during His public ministry; and on that first Good Friday afternoon, when the apostles and discinles fled away she remained beside Him. She stood by the tree of crucifixion, suffering in sympathy until Jesus expired. And when He was taken down from the cross she received His body into her arms with unutterable tenderness.

No man who meditates on Mary's love and fidelity to her Divine Son will ever question her great power to intercede for us. Look about the world to-day and see the many shrines raised in every land to her honor. Visit them and you may hear, and see, and know for yourselves how powerful is her prayer.

There at these shrines she moves the hand of God to perform stupendous miracles for the afflicted but pure of heart who love her Divine Son. Strive then to increase your devotion to Mary. Imitate her immaculate purity, her charity, humility, meekness and patience. On earth we love those who honor our mothers. In heaven God loves those who honor His mother.

On Sunday evening, in making the announcements, Father Crowe expressed his sincere gratitude to the men who had been faithful all the week in such large numbers. He added that he would carry home pleasant and consoling memories of the splendid faith and devotion of the good people of St. Peter's Parish. He exhorted the men to continue the pious practice of making the Way of the Cross; and he urged upon them the necessity of frequent Holy Communion.

Father McCann delivered the last sermon of the Mission. His discourse was a splendid instruction on the sacrament of baptism.

By baptism you were cleansed from original sin, made children of God, members of the Church and heirs to the kingdom of heaven. The Jews of old, and even the orthodox Jews of to-day, still celebrate each year the feast of the Passover. It commemorates their liberation from the tyranny of Pharoah. My dear men, you have good reasons to honor any commemorate the day of your baptism. On that day you were liberated from sin and from the power of satan. The virtues of faith, hope and charity were infused into your souls. You renounced allegiance to sin, and professed allegiance to God; and from that day the Church, benign mother that she is, has supported and safeguarded you in your new allegiance.

I ask you now to make again a profession of faith and to renew your baptismal vows. Then was witnessed a spectacle so imposing that it is seldom seen in a lifetime. The whole congregation, each man holding a lighted candle in his left hand, and his right stretched toward the baptismal font, recited in soul-stirring accents a solemn profession of his faith. Then followed the renewal of their baptismal vows. Years ago, their sponsors speaking for them, had made these vows. But to-night these men, in no uncertain tones, gladly renewed them. They again solemnly promised to renounce satan with all his works and all his pomps.

When this solemn and magnificent ceremony closed, Father McCann took opportunity to thank in the name of the Redemptorist or all and each who labored to make the Mission such a splendid success. He then imparted the missionary's blessing and the papal blessing to all.

The bond of grace and love which binds missionary priests to all the faithful souls who simply, yet nobly, make a mission, is plainly manifest in these closing exercises. Every soul present experiences the force of this tie. It is very tangible and can be felt far better than explained. There is a clear expression of spiritual happiness on the countenances of all, and there is a very perceptible tugging at the heart also. These men of God are happy that their task is finished, and yet they are loathe to say the final word. The congregation is happy with consciousness of duty well accomplished, yet would willingly continue.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, filled with these sentiments, and deeply stirred by happiness and consolation, spoke with much feeling. "We are indeed thankful to Almighty God for the abundant graces and blessings He has poured down on this parish during the last two weeks. The zeal, fervor and devotion of our dear good people has been a genuine inspiration and consolation to us and to all who witnessed their devotion. With a heart full of happiness, we thank Almighty God for His goodness to us all. We thank these devoted missionary fathers for their zeal, self-sacrifice and fraternal kindness. We thank you, our dear people, for your zealous co-operation with God's grace, and with the untiring efforts of the missionaries. We thank all and each who labored to make this Mission the splendid success that it has been. One word more. We exhort you, each and all, to preserve your souls pure as they are now. We beseech you to increase in God's friendship daily, and we hope with great assurance that we shall all meet again one day in the kingdom of God's eternal glory. The exercises closed when His Lordship gave solemn benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Some time ago you ran a very excellent article concerning people who are prone to use the telephone and write anonymous letters as a means of communicating some evil thought or motive. This does not always happen in the city; there is a township north of Chemong where a lady is employed in a public building. She has been getting obscene papers through a pigeon hole in her desk from some unknown person. A gentleman employed in the same building happened to cast his eye on this pigeon hole on a half-holiday and spied a notice with his name on it. He went back to the pigeon hole and got a bunch of those papers. Now this lady had the gall to accuse this gentleman of putting those papers there, and this gentleman is getting fed up on such dirt. If this lady can prove he is the guilty party she can hop to it as fast as she likes, for he is ready to walk into the witness-box any old time. This lady also said on her notice that she said a prayer in the same building for this gentleman's immortal soul. This lady's immortal soul might need this prayer worse than the gentleman's. This lady has been trying to make a mop cloth out of me but she has got the wrong rag in the mop.—Yours truly,

A READER.

PREMIERS HAD A CONFERENCE

Italy and Belgium Agree on Certain Policies of Reconstruction.

(By Francis Corea, United News Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, May 19.—Premier Mussolini visited Milan yesterday to confer there with Premier Theunis of Belgium regarding questions rising out of the experts report.

Premier Theunis accompanied by Foreign Minister Hyams of Belgium was due to arrive at Milan at 4 p.m. and the leaders planned to begin the conference immediately. The conference will continue to-day.

Meanwhile Italy is enthusiastic over the news that Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Benes of Czecho-Slovakia have agreed upon a pact providing for cordial co-operation in the policies of the two nations.

Benes has just concluded a visit here and his statements to the press as well as an Official Communique show that his meeting with Mussolini has paved the way for a peaceful solution of reconstruction problems.

The Nuovo Paez says that it is certain that an understanding will also be reached at the meeting regarding Hungary for whose financial rehabilitation both England and Italy are now working.

Apparently Czecho-Slovakia has agreed to participate in the reconstruction of Hungary, providing Budapest agrees to rectify the Czecho-Slovaki-Hungarian border.

The Messagero understands that the Italo-Czecho Slovak pact defines the attitudes of the two countries on all questions likely to arise in the execution of the peace treaties, especially as concerns middle Europe and south eastern Europe.

Benes will return to Rome in a few days and the treaty probably will be signed during his stay.

CONVICTION MADE IN A LIQUOR CASE

Still Was Fished Out of Stoney Lake--G. M. Winslow Fined.

On Saturday Magistrate Langley gave judgment in the case of the Inland Revenue Department against G. M. Winslow, of Stoney Lake, charged with concealing a still on the farm of Kenneth Hull, and making homebrew there last summer. Part of the still was found buried by Inspector Stewart and Mr. William Buller, and the worm, made of copper, was fished out of Stoney Lake, by Walter Miller of the Customs Office. The evidence was of a conflicting nature but the magistrate stated that on the whole he believed the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Hull who swore that they had actually seen Winslow operating the still. He was fined $200 and costs.

Mr. J. F. Strickland appeared for the accused and Mr. Joseph Wearing for the prosecution.

'You know our goods don't you? I'm prepared to give you the best service you ever had. Will you give me a chance, on the basis that the first complaint you have of service or goods, I'm through?'

"I know their goods well, and his earnest straightforward talk made a very good impression. Prompt personal service means a lot to me, and I promised him my next order."

WHITEHOUSE FANNED 17 OF TORONTO BARACAS

Lakeview's Star Opened Season In Great Form — Blanked the Visitors In First Seven Innings of Exhibition Game--Le Barr Team Won 5-4.

Frank Whitehouses fine pitching was the outstanding feature of the exhibition game at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon when the Lakeviews defeated the St. John's-Baracas of the Spalding Intermediate League, Toronto by 5 runs to 4. Whitehouse blanked the Queen City crew for the first seven innings and then changed places with Lew Lebar in the eighth. The visitors jumped the right hander for four big runs and had the tieing and winning counters on the bases when the inning ended. The Lakeviews took no more chances and Whitehouse went back to the mound in the ninth finishing in great style and protecting the one run lead.

Whitehouse who twirled the Lakeviews to the Ontario Championship last season made a great start on Saturday, striking out 17 and allowing 5 hits which he kept well scattered. In the fourth and fifth innings the Baracas fanned in order while in the third and seventh he fanned three in each.

The only innings in which it looked dangerous for him was the sixth. It was this way, Cockburn the first man up for Baracas hit to LeBarr who made a nice pick up and touched him out. Jones fanned and Rashley drilled one over second. Plumber singled over short, sending Rashley to second. Cameron threw the ball wild when he had Rashley between second and third and Rashley was safe at third, Plumber going to second on the wild peg. With a man on second and third and two hits in a row it looked rather dangerous but Davage popped to short, retiring the side.

Plumber a young southpaw, did the hurling for the Baracas and turned in a good game but his team mates fell down badly behind him several times. He fanned four and allowed nine hits, while his teammates were the cause of two errors and a number of bone head plays.

The Lakeviews got their first counter in the fourth innings when Collins scored, after being advanced to second by Whitehouse on a timely hit to right field by McIntyre. The Baracas blew in the sixth and the Lakeviews piled up four runs, Collins fanned. Whitehouse poled out a single and McIntyre advanced him to second on a hit over short. Cheu who took Marchan's place at third sacrificed to short.. Whitehouse scored on a balk. Johnston struck out but Jones missed the third one and threw wild to first, McIntyre scoring and Johnston going to second. Cameron doubled, scoring Johnston. LeBarr hit through second scoring Cameron. Ash fanned. That was all the scoring and it was plenty to win the game. The Lakeviews all worked well, with the new recruits showing lots of form and with a little more practice should turn out to be a championship aggregation.

T. Manketlo at second and Davage at first were the pick of the Baracas outfit.

The Baracas made their four runs in the eighth inning. Cockburn the first batter to face LeBarr, doubled to right field, Jones hit to short stop, sending Cockburn to third but himself was thrown out at first by Cameron. Rashley singled, sending Cockburn home and advanced to second when Plumber walked. Davage flied to first. T. Mankelto was hit by pitcher, filling the bases. L. Simms walked, forcing a run and H. Manketlo singled scoring L. Mankelto and Simms. W. Matthews who was rushed in as a pinch hitter to take G. Simms place hit to LeBarr who threw him out at first and thus ended the Barcas rally.

OLYMPIC RUGBY HONORS WON BY AMERICAN TEAM

SCORE WAS 17-3.

PARIS, May 19.—The American Olympic football team won its match Sunday from France by a score of seventeen to three.

A disappointed crowd of thirty thousand saw the Stars and Stripes hauled to the top of the flagpole at Colombes Stadium. The game was rough and hard fought throughout, although Referee Sam Freethy did not see fit to use his aribtrary powers with severity on either team. He cautioned two French players.

The superior weight and condition of the United States team told against the French from the beginning of the game. .Playing most of the time with fourteen men and for the last part of the game with thirteen, the French fought doggedly, using their better strategy and technique desperately in an effort to save the situation.

When, after twenty minutes of play Jaureguy, France's fast three-quarter, was laid out by a hard tackle and had to retire for the rest of the game, the crowd who up to this time had impartially cheered the Americans and the French, began to boo the United States players. The French were continually going down under the fierce tackling of the Americans and when the game was over the strains of the Star Spangled Banner could hardly be heard above the cat-calls from the stands.

Despite the protest of the United States team, it was thought necessary to furnish an escort for the victorious players who left by a side gate.

During the match the United States team made five tries, only one of which was converted. The French made a single try, which they failed to convert.

WHITE'S DEFEAT NORTH DUMMER

Township Team Gave the Masseys Strenuous Game But Were Downed 2 to 1--Louis Yeotes Kicked Off.

North Dummer made their first appearance in the city on Saturday afternoon when they met the White Bros. Sporting outfit "the Masseys" in King Edward Park in a League game for the Yeotes Cup and lost by the score of 2 to 1. The donor of the Cup, Mr. Louis Yeotes was present and kicked off for the visitors, who won the toss.

The Masseys by some nice passing gave the visitors' goal keeper an opportunity to show his ability by repelling a fast drive from the foot of Edgar. Payne of the visitors, was very fast and his runs on the extreme right were of great advantage to the visitors many of the centres were not met and the visitors lost a great chance to open the scoring. Cooper and his partner were continually clearing their lines and placing their forwards in possession, but the visitors defence was safe. Payne went sailing away passing to H. Batten. Saunders was called upon to save what seemed a certain goal. He tipped the ball over the bar from the corner kick which was well placed. He again was conspicuous by fisting the ball out of danger. Smith, the Masseys' centre half, was now in evidence by nice work and urging his forwards to play up gave the visitor's defence an anxious time. A. Jury placed nicely to Payne and beating all opposition, beat Saunders with a grand shot. Half time arrived with the score 1 to none in favour of the visitors.

After the usual refresher the Masseys put all they knew into the game and Edgar's runs on the left were delightful to watch. Smith kept plying him with nice ground passes which he was making the best use of but the visitors were sound in defence and kept the Masseys at Bay. Smith would not be denied. He saw an opening and with a beautiful drive beat Jury all the way. The game was now very exciting. Masseys were playing in their best form, Laughlin put the ball to Cordrouy and this fine young player centered nicely to A. Vinette and the visitor's goal keep brought off a fine save. Just one goal and then the other was the order until A. Vinette receiving from Edgar put the ball out of reach of Jury and put the Masseys one ahead.

The visitors went at it with a will the Masseys' defence having plenty to do; their forwards were testing Saunders who kept a fine goal all through by some daisy cutters. Ashmore gave a foul and A. Jury took the kick Saunders fell on the ball and it seemed as if the visitors would equalize. The game was fast and evenly contested. There was no further scoring time arrived leaving the Masseys winners of their first league game by 2 to 1.

The visitors made a good impression and with a little practice will be a good team. After the game the Masseys entertained the visitors to supper.

The following were the teams:

North Dummer

Oswald Jury, W. Garveth, E. Batten, A. Taylor, H. Jury, A. Jury, R. Payne, H. Batten, M. Payne, H. Munro, F. Bell.

The Massey

Saunders, Cooper, Slaughter, Ashmore, Smith, Naish, Cordrouy, Laughlin, A. Vinette, E. Vinette, Edgar.

Referee—S. Calladine.

QUAKER'S LEAD WAS OVERCOME

Scored First Goal Against Thistles Saturday But Failed to Hold Advantage and Were Defeated 5 to 1.

The expectation of witnessing a desperate struggle by the Quakers in revenge for the defeat two weeks ago did not materialize before a good attendance of spectators at King Edward Park on Saturday. The Thistle won five goals to one. Although outscored, the Quakers put up an excellent brand of soccer and the score does not indicate the run of play because they were unfortunate in front of goal.

The teams:

Quakers—Williams, goal; Honor and Willshaw, full-backs; Logan, Metcalfe and Butler, half-backs; Mayette, Hepburn, Craig, Croft and Walker, forwards.

Thistle—Curtis, goal; Rae and Anderson, full-backs; Jackson, Dawson and Ross, half-backs; Burgess, Hutton, Richmond, A. Williams and T. Williams, forwards.

Referee—J. C. Russell.

Thistle had the wind behind them and were the aggressors right away through the efforts of Hutton and Burgess on the right wing. Burgess crossed nicely but Willshaw picked up the centre in time to give Craig the opportunity to make headway but Dawson checked him, then made a splendid drive from twenty yards out to skin the bar. An individual move by Craig was nullified by the Thistle's full-backs who had to be on the alert against the fast moving Quaker forwards. Mayette, outside right, was going all the time and he repeatedly made things lively in Thistle area. All the Quaker forwards hemmed the play around the goal and were rewarded when Mayette landed the ball into far corner of the goal out of Curtis' reach for the opening goal. At this reverse, Dawson awakened to the shock and tried hard to even up the score but his parting shots were wide of the mark, ultimately the centre half let Hutton away on the right to trick Willshaw and shoot hard for goal. Williams made a one-handed save at the expense of two fruitless corners. Honor and Willshaw were a power of strength in Quaker's defense and were much needed when the Thistle forwards attacked. A foul outside the penalty area looked dangerous for Quakers. Richmond took the kick which was banged againt the playesr without any result. Aided by the wind, Thistles could not make any progress against the stubborn defense of the Quakers. At length, Dawson sent a fifteen yard drive for goal, Williams made a smart two hand save at the expense of an unproductive corner. The Quaker forwards travelled to the other end without gaining any advantage. Jackson sent Burgess down into the corner where he got a corner-kick that was placed in front of goal. Honor headed clear.

Tied the Score.

Hutton touched the ball back to Burgess who drove right across the goal to equalize. Both teams again on equal terms resulted in the Quakers making raid after raid upon Curtis' goal. Nice combination by the Quakers left wing was checked cleverly by Rae as they were making for goal. Thistles went right back again to gain a foul against Butler. Jackson placed his parting kick into the goal-mouth, Honor headed out, then kicked clear. Ross returned it to goal area where Richmond dribbled past the defense to put his side ahead. A foul-throw against Burgess transferred the play to the other end where Rae and Anderson held Quaker forwards at bay. One more raid by Thistle's left wing on Quaker's goal saw Williams save in the nick of time just before half-time. Half-time—Thistle 2, Quakers 1.

Half-Time

With the wind assisting them in the second half, the Quakers soon became busy and Mayette forced a corner, following which Craig misheaded in front of the goal. No sooner was this fright applied to the Thistle, Mayette beat the defense on the run for the ball and travelling fast in on goal shot hard with a right foot drive that was marvellously saved when Curtis diverted the ball past the upright to his own personal injury but continued after getting attention from the trainer. The Quakers still applied the pressure but finished poorly on front of goal Each team was giving the bast and nice play was applauded on many occassion. During a spell of pressing, good attempts at goal were made by Jackson, Dawosn and Richmond, the centre-half's shot being well saved. At last, from a solo effort by Dawson, Richmond was left to do the needful with a low ground shot that Williams could not hold.

Quakers Out of Luck.

Try as hard as they liked, the Quakers had no such luck at goal, in fact, Curtis was brilliant in goal and cleared smartly every shot he handled from Quaker's forwards, despite his handicap with an injured arm. The Thistle made it four when T. Williams outwitted the defense, crossed to Richmond who lifted the ball over his head into goal. Five minutes to go Alex Anderson scored from a penalty. Full time—Thistle 5, Quakers 1.

Goal scorers—Quakers: Mayette. Thistle: Richmond 3, Burgess and Anderson.

Ruth's Nine Homers Leading in Majors

CHICAGO, May 19.—Babe Ruth of the New York Americans maintained his home run supremacy in the two major leagues last week by cracking out two four-basers, giving him a total of nine. Fournier of the Brooklyn Nationals led his league with eight. Next to Ruth in the American League was Hauser of Philadelphia, with six circuit clouts. Fournier made the most homers during the week, cracking out two on Thursday and one on Saturday.

DIAMOND DUST

Lock Works, champions of the Mercantile League, and Maple Leafs, city juvenile champions, played an exhibition game at King Edward school grounds Saturday afternoon, the Leafs winning by the score of 10 to 1. The Lockmakers used "Duke" Neary, who relied on a fast ball, which the Leafs hit hard and often. Bradley held the Lockmakers scoreless for six innings, and "Lefty" Donnelly finished the game for the Leafs in good style.

Field Day June 7.

The City League Field Day was to be held on the 31st of May, but has been postponed until June 7th, the following Saturday, so it will not interfere with the Central League game at Riverside on that date. This shows good sportsmanship on the part of the management of the City League.

McIntyre and Whitehouse showed old time form at bat on Saturday when they each netted two hits. Whitlow, who is held as one of the heavy hitters of the Lakeview aggregation, fell down badly on Saturday, but it shall not be long before he gets his batting eye back again.

Rice, the Indian twirler, who was given a try-out with Solomon's aggregation a few years ago, was out at the Raybestos practice on Saturday and may be signed as one of their moundsmen.

Chuck Bradley and Abe Delahaye will likely be the battery for the Crescents next Saturday when they meet the Lakeviews in the opening game of the Junior series.

Hap Harrison is at present laid up with a sore leg, and may be on the sick list for a week or so. It is hoped that he will be able to do his old stuff on first base next Saturday.

The Mercantile league opens on Tuesday night at Riverside, when the Bankers and the Western Clock Company will clash. The Mercantile will supply the fans this season with some snappy ball.

Diamond Rolled.

The diamond at the Exhibition grounds has been skinned and rolled and is now in splendid shape for the opening games. A number of teams took advantage of the dry weather to try out the grounds. Among them were Raybestos of the Midland League, Mackeys of the East Peterborough League, and the C.G.E. team of the Mercantile League. The Peterborough and De Laval Cricket Clubs also were out in the east end of the grounds.

Manager Alex Miller, of the Raybestos Midland League entry had about twenty prospective players out. Among those he has signed are Jobbitt, Kirn, Corrin, White, Butcher, Lundy and Coursey of last year's Raybestos, Duggan, a pitcher from the Trent Valley League, Hensley and Rogers of last year's Adanac Juniors and Jamieson, O'Dette and Delahaye of the East Peterborough League.

The committee in charge of the Exhibition Park will meet on Tuesday night to assign practice and playing hours to the various teams that intend to use the grounds.

ENGLAND 3, FRANCE 1.

PARIS, France, May 18.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—England defeated France 3 to 1 in an international association football game played here Saturday. The game was keenly contested and a fast pace was maintained throughout, despite the prevailing heat. Gibbs, of Clapton Orient, opened the scoring and Storer of Derby County, placed the visitors further ahead. The result at half time was 2 to 0.

Bowling

BIG GAME TONIGHT

The big game between the High Rollers and the De Laval will be played tonight at Solomon's Alleys starting at eight o'clock. This is the most important game of the league, as a win of one game by the High Rollers will tie the DeLaval and the Lawn Bowlers. If the High Rollers take three they will win third place. If the De Laval win all three they will go into undisputed position of second place.

With cool weather reigning supreme a record crowd is expected to be on hand tonight to witness the battle.

WILL STAY OPEN FOR A FEW WEEKS

Owing to the cool weather Mr. Solomon wishes it to be known that Solomon's Alleys will remain open for a few weeks longer. That the bowlers are taking advantage of the weather is noted by the big crowds that have been rolling lately. The Belmonts struck great weather as is noted by the fact that over 45 rolled in their tournament.

A GOOD GAME FOR THE OPENER

Bankers and Western Clock Wi Clash in the Opening Game of Mercantile League.

Tomorrow night will see the opening game of the Mercantile League when the Bankers and Western Clock will meet at Riverside Park at 6 o'clock sharp.

This game should be a humdinger as both teams have a good bunch of ball players and have been working pretty regular lately.

Frank Whitehouse or the Banker's new pitcher from Kingston, will get the pitching assignment for that aggregation. They will also have 'Jeff' Hardill to fall back on. The rest of the team will be strong and should give a good account of themselves.

The Western Clock have not decided who will do the heaving for them, but they have a couple of good pitchers to pick from. They will trot out a good infield and outfield and they should make the Bankers step.

The game should be a thriller and should draw a good crowd as it is the first league game to be played by any team this season. Both aggregations will have a good bunch of rooters over to encourage them and there should be a big turnout of fans for this game.

The next scheduled Mercantile League is for Thursday night when the Examiner hooks up with the Quaker Oats.

BASEBALL

WILLIAMS RUMOR.

Lindsay Post: The ship which sailed away early in the spring, bearing Jack Williams, southpaw pitcher of the Grand Trunk ball team, to fields afar, has apparently struck a reef and gone down with all hands on board, if reports, which are current about the city to-day, are true.

Rochester having no place for him, shipped him to Pittsfield, N. Y., and after pitching a part of the game was sent back "not required." He then was sold outright to Binghampton, N.Y. There he was tested under fire and they passed him up, and reports are he is home in Verona.

When a jump is made from amateur to professional, a player must be at least 75 per cent. stronger than the league he is playing in. Jack had a wonderful curve ball and a real arm, but was sadly lacking in speed on the fast one. He was a little faster than the ball played in Central Ontario League, and not quite fast enough for the class played where he was.

A letter has also been received in town from Ken Colling, in which he states that he is getting on fine. Next Monday he goes to Binghampton for the week.

AL SIMMONS OF ATHLETICS HAS LESS FORM THAN ANY HITTER IN MAJORS YET HE IS STAR AT BAT

BY BILLY EVANS

What part does form play in the success of baseball's greatest batters?

In golf you must follow through with your swing if you would get distance to your drives.

In the history of the ring, there was never a great puncher who delivered his blows when off his stride, backing away.

A few of the great punchers of the fight game must set to get power back of their blows. They are seriously handicapped.

Others need only to step in, get the power of the body back of the punch, and pack a dynamite wallop in a blow that carries only a few inches.

Step into the ball has long been a baseball truth. To be a great hitter it has always been considered essential that the batter step into the ball as he starts his swing.

Pulling Away Bad Fault

Pulling away from the ball, thereby getting off balance and losing much of the body power, has long been considered one of the worst of batting faults.

"He has one foot in the water bucket," has long been a baseball phrase used in describing the batter who pulls away from the plate with his foremost foot. Reference is made to the water bucket that in the old days rested on the bench.

It is possible for a batsman to achieve greatness in baseball with a style that is directly contrary to the theories of the game.

Al Simmons, Connie Mack's rookie outfielder, is the player we have in mind, in making the above statement.

Form Means Nothing.

Simmons casts batting form to the winds, pulls on nearly every ball pitched, yet in the opening weeks of play, his batting punch has featured the showing of the Athletics. Opposing pitchers hardly know how to figure him.

Philadelphia fans know him as "Foot -in-thebucket" Simmons, yet he is their hero because he can hit. The fan can forgive style if he gets action. Simmons has already supplied plenty of it.

The rookie outfielder is a sturdy youngster, who evidently carries great strength in his arms and shoulders. While he does pull on every ball pitcher, his fault is not nearly so grievous as painted.

AL SIMMONS

Simmons Uses Long Bat

Simmons uses an extra long bat. I don't believe I ever saw a big league player use a longer one. He stands close to the plate. Consequently, when he pulls away, he is not nearly so far from the plate as his actions would make it seem.

His habit of pulling away, plus the fact that he uses a long bat and hugs the plate, often brings him into perfect position to take a cut at the ball.

There is no poetry of motion to Simmons' batting style, but I am pretty well satisfied that he is going to be great a hitter, despite the criticism that is being handed his style at the plate.

And after all, it's the basehits that win ball games, regardless of how they are made.

LIMESTONE GANG TO GO FARTHEST

If Rain Keeps Off They Will Demonstrate to Oshawa on Wednesday in the Opening Game at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 19. — (Special.) — In the British Whig today, the sporting editor says:

"If we do not have another two months of steady rain and cold weather the Central Ontario Baseball League will start its schedule on Wednesday, May 21st, with the local eyes fastened on the Oshawa-Kingston game. The Kingston team did not make as good a showing last year as it might have if it had been in the group longer, and had been more stabilized as to managers, general policy, etc.

"This year matters should be much improved and the Limestone gang should go a long way. To tell the truth, we know more about Belleville, Peterboro and Oshawa than we do about our own team. The performers of the other clubs are nearly all known from past performances but Kingston has a few lined up this season who have been fast in other company but have yet to be tried in senior ranks, and has also two or three men on the roster unknown to the local wise acres.

"Kingston had another heavy rain on Sunday but the weather to-day is clear but quite cold with a strong wind that should help in the drying up of the playing field at the fair grounds.

"All the local games will start at 6 p.m., daylight saving time."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE BREAKING POINT" IS GREAT MYSTERY DRAMA.

"The Breaking Point," Herbert Brenon's latest Paramount production, which opens at the Capitol Theatre to-day, isa mystery drama packed with action. Nita Naldi, Patsy Ruth Miller, George Fawcett and Matt Moore are featured.

Moore plays the role of a reckless millionaire, Judson Clark, who is desperately in love with a popular actress, Beverly Carlysle (Nita Naldi). At Clark's Wyoming ranch, he and Beverly's husband quarrel; the lamp is overturned; a flash is seen in the dark, and the husband is found dead on the floor. Clark escapes into a snowstorm. He is found in a delirious condition by Dr. Livingstone who takes him to his home at Haverly, just outside of New York, and introduces him as his nephew.

Years go by and the man becomes a successful physician. He becomes engaged to a young girl, Elizabeth Wheeler. One night at the theatre he is recognized by Beverly Carlysle who faints upon the stage. From this point in the story, the old influences which he has forgotten begin once more to wind themselves around him. Schemes, of which he is the unconscious centre, are formed by characters who see in his sudden reappearance a grave menace to their own safety and popularity.

The final clearing of the mystery forms a series of scenes which build to a dramatic climax.

Patsy Ruth Miller plays the role of Elizabeth Wheeler, and Mr. Fawcett portrays Dr. David Livingstone. Matt Moore in the dual role of Judson Clark and Dick Livingstone does the finest work of his lengthy career, and Miss Naldi is more alluring than ever as the beautiful Beverly.

AT THE REGENT

J. WARREN KERRIGAN IS EXPERT SWORDSMAN; FIGHTS CANE DUEL.

Defends Himself Against Adversary With His Walking Stick.

Added to the many requisites of a finished actor is the need to know fencing. This is demonstrated in "The Man From Brodney's," a Vitagraph special production, which will be exhibited at the Regent Theatre today.

In this romantic photoplay J. Warren Kerrigan, who plays the title role, and Arthur Hoyt, who will be seen as Prince Karl of Brabetz, were given ample opportunity to display their skill in this particular field and settle a long standing argument as to which was the better fencer.

While Kerrigan enjoys a reputation as an all-around athlete, Hoyt is known as the star pupil of Professor Uyteenhove, fencing master of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Kerrigan, who uses a cane throughout the episode, bravely ignored the chance of receiving serious injuries from the sword to make the action as realistic as possible.

Kerrigan and Hoy battled up the steps of the castle, which serves as a background in the picture. The sword flashed with bewildering speed, but always the cane of Mr. Kerrigan warded off the blade. Across the mosaic pvement the two fought with increasing fury. Then finally Kerrigan, after a brilliant display of skill, caught the sword and hurled it through the air, ending the unequal contest.

This sequence is one of the important incidents in the production and leads to a delightful romance between a European princess and an American Consular attache.

"The Man From Brodney's" is a colorful romance set in the Duchy of Rapp-Thorberg and on the Island of Japat, in the South Seas. In the all-star cast are also Alice Calhoun, Miss DuPont, Wanda Hawley, Pat O'Malley, and Kathleen Key. David Smith directed the production.

AT THE ROYAL

THE BIGGEST HUMAN DRAMA EVER SCREENED

Human Document of Modern Life in New York.

There are several vital questions answered in the vital and human document, "East Side, West Side," the Principal Pictures attraction at the Royal Theatre. First it brings forth that a girl can rise above her sordid environment despite the tremendous obstacles which are ever before her; second it brings forth that love cannot be denied regardless of the fact that the parties may be widely separated from each other in the social sphere; thirdly it answers the age-old question that a mother has no right to mar her son's happiness if his choice of a bride does not meet with her approval.

"East Side, West Side," adapted from Leighton Osmun and Henry Hull's stirring drama of the same name, is a picture bound to appeal to everyone whose heart is kindled with romance and sentiment. It serves in pointing a fine moral, carries exceptional dramatic moments, and offers a realistic slice of life in the huge melting pot—New York. The barrier which separates the lowly East Sider from the lordly West Sider is torn away and the sunshine and faith destroy any false illusions.

Complications are straightened out when the mother who has learned humility—and who has finally appreciated the sterling character of the girl begs her forgiveness. Thus the lovers are reunited.

It is a vivid story—this slice of life in New York with its strong contrasts. What a city for drama—with its rich conflicts—its people! Wealth rubs elbows with poverty at every turn! "East Side, West Side" is a picture for everyone—no matter what his or her environment. It features a theme which can be understood in every locality. Its treatment is excellent, there being no false heroics, nor hokum, but what is revealed bears the stamp of reality. The sympathy of the spectator is with the heroine from the moment that she gladly accepts her burdens in the sordid, squalid home. "East Side, West Side" abounds in faithful atmosphere. It tugs at the emotions and interests the spectator throughout. The feature has been capitally staged against a background which approaches reality. In the cast and giving excellent performances are Eileen Percy, Maxine Elliot Hicks, Charles Hill Mailes, Lucille Ward and Kenneth Harlan. Irving Cummings directed. It is one of his first productions.

AT THE GRAND

STUPENDOUS SPECTACLE AT THE GRAND OPERA.

"After Six Days" Is Wonderful Picture.

The Chinese have a proverb: "It is more profitable to see once than to hear a hundred times." Meaning, possibly, that the mind grasps more quickly what is presented to the eye than the story unfolded to the ear.

"After Six Days" is a visualization of the Old Testament. Across the scroll of the silver sheet is unrolled the tale of primeval creation. Those who have turned an unbelieving ear to the sad tale of Lot's wife may see her turned into a pillar of salt before their eyes; they may vision the Tower of Babel rising to heaven, round by round, and they may glimpse the elemental grandeur of the Garden of Eden, in "days when the world was young." A peculiar attribute of this picture is the impression it creates of reality. Out of the pages of the Bible glows the story of Messianic days, with a freshness and newness to its atmosphere that is far removed from the sophisticated stories of modern times.

It is an unfolding of first things. The first man and woman dwell in the first fair garden. A might, shadowy angel figure sends them forth, where the evil-faced Cain frowns on the red flame of the sacrificial fire that his brother Abel sends up to heaven, and accomplishes the first murder. Then comes the first great enterprise in the mighty ark of gopher wood, with its rude timbers. Here is the first rainbow also, a yellow arc across a devastating waste of grey waters.

Toiling slaves built the Tower of Babel, the first monument to the arrogance of man, turning the first rough windlass, dragging huge blocks of stone up steep inclines. And the builders of the doomed tower found the evil cities of the Plain; Sodom and Gomorrah, with their wicked peoples, who fall under the fiery rain of brimstone. Curiosity of a woman once more finds its punishment in this episode.

Then come the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, living out of the screen to gaze with deep-set eyes at distant plains. The story of Joseph, the first food controller, the first great financier of the world, occupies much attention. Biblical legends embodied in life have their place on the screen, which portrays the story of Joseph and his false brethren; the fickle wife of Potiphar; the magnificent colonnades and stone gods of the Egyptians; the ruse employed by Joseph to confound his brothers.

Then come evil times to the twelve tribes of Israel, immured in Egypt. Moses, the grandson of Levi, married to a maid of Midian, tending his father-in-law's flocks in Horeb, sees the face of Jehovah in the cloud and hears the Lord's command to rise up and deliver the Israelites from the house of bondage. The sublime figure of Moses, the first miracle maker, dominates the picture. With his lofty and noble head, just as pictured in Biblical narrative, he leads his people to the threshold of the Promised Land; through the plagues of Egypt, through the Red Sea that divides in miraculous fashion before their feet; into the wilderness, where the white manna feeds them and the hordes of Amalek harass them, while Moses prays, his arms upheld by Aaron and Hur. Then the lone figure of Moses departs to his "hidden sleep", a leader forsworn because of his hesitation at the Rock of Kadesh.

From Genesis to Exodus the path of the Israelites is traced, just as in the books of the Old Testament. Those who love the Bible and those who are interested in the historical aspect of the great record will want to see this stupendous, almost overpowering, spectacle.

Just to add a little variety, and possibly inject an element of modernity into the massive production, a portion of the Songs of Solomon is tacked on to the sublime picture. Here is the mighty judge and the immortal lover, worrying over his "lily of the field", Tamah, or "joy", with whom he makes rendezvous in the moonlight. The dark-browed queen, Astis, a devotee of the bloodthirsty god Baal, engineers the death of the maiden, whose bobbed locks have a distinctly modern savour, and the curtain falls with the Wise King mourning his lost "joy", and recording the "vanity of vanities" of a world which even then was a matter of weariness to its rulers.

Special music from the Grand's eight-piece orchestra accompanies the presentation of the massive ten-reel production, which will be seen for the first three days of this week, with matinee on Wednesday.

"AFTER SIX DAYS."

The first effort of film producers to picturize unusual screen material will be witnessed in the showing of "After Six Days," featuring Moses and the Ten Commandments, which starts an engagement at the Grand Theatre tonight. This film is a complete version of the Old Testament of the Bible from Adam and Eve to the Songs of Solomon. Due to the immensity of the subject, the picture is understood to have been five years in the making and involved the expenditure of over $3,000,000.00. Weiss Brothers Artclass Pictures Corp., sponsers of the production, claim that more than two million feet of film was exposed in the making, and it kept a large corps of cutters and editors over nine months assembling this immense footage in order to present it in its present form of ten thousand feet. The picture embraces the most important episodes of the Old Testament including Adam and Eve, The Deluge, Cain and Abel, Moses and the Ten Commandments, The Tower of Babel, Sodom and Gomorrah, Joseph and His Brethren and the Immortal Songs of Solomon. Stress is laid on the fact that "After Six Days" is offered purely as a gigantic historical entertainment, with an appeal to all sects and classes through its dramatic and historical values. An elaborate musical score has been arranged for this presentation.

NORMAL PUPILS AT POST OFFICE

Mr. C. Lacheur, Assistant Post Master, Accompanied Boys Through the Office and Explained the Mail's Course.

About fifteen pupils of the Normal School, accompanied by Mr. E. E. Ingall, of the Normal School teaching staff, were taken through the Post Office at noon to-day by Mr. Charles Lacheur, assistant postmaster, who explained the course the mail takes when going through the Post Office.

The expedition started at the front of the building, where the mail is posted. From there it is taken to a machine which rapidly cancels all stamps so that they cannot be used again. The mail is then sorted and put in racks for each city or place, and is divided into four classes. The first class consists of letters, second class papers, third class pamphlets or reading matter other than newspapers, while the fourth class is made up of parcels.

The first class mail is put into large canvas bags, which are securely bound and locked with a padlock and stamped with the name of the place where the mail is to be shipped. Second and third class mail is also put in canvas bags, but an ordinary catch is used to keep the bags from coming open, while parcels are shipped separate and not put in bags. Outgoing mail is tied in bundles, which are securely bound by the mail clerk on the train where the mail is coming from. The bundles are opened and sorted into seventeen differ- being a section for each mailman who delivers the mail to the houses.

In rural mail, the bundles are separated and put in racks under the names of the men who deliver the mail through the country. Each mailman, both in the city and the country has a rack at which he sorts his mail and fills his bag before he starts on his route.

Mr. Lacheur advised the students that to assure safe postage it was better to put in the upper left hand corner of any article that is being mailed, "Return to, your name and address, in five days," or any number of days you wish. By doing this the mail will be returned to you if the correct address is not on the article and it cannot be delivered.

Registered mail is kept in a different bag from the rest, and always can be found if it has not been stolen on its journey. The article is numbered and the number is filed away at the time of registration. When it arrives at its destination the person has first to sign his name, showing that the mail has been received by the right person before it is delivered to him. This method is very cheap, and is also very safe, and any articles of value should be registered.

Mr. Lacheur says the Post Office motto is that any article that is worth mailing is worth registering.

A special rack for all mail that is returned is kept. This happens only in the case when the mail is marked return to such a person in a number of days.

Mr. Ingall will take another group of his students through the Post Office to-morrow.

TROTZKY URGES RUSSIA TO TAKE UP CHEMISTRY

MOSCOW, May 19 (Canadian Press). — On the initiative of War Minister Trotzky, who is continually urging the Russians to prepare defensive measures, a special campaign is being inaugurated throughout the country this week advising the people of the necessity of spreading a knowledge of chemical warfare.

A voluntary society will be organised for the development of the chemical industry as a means of defence.

Special instruction will be given the border populations to enable them to perfect themselves against invading armies using asphyxiating and mustard gases, and an attempt will be made to find neutralising agents to combat these gases.

ROTARIANS TO PUT THIS CITY RIGHT ON MAP

Will Arrange Camp at International Convention and Will Give Peterboro Plenty of Publicity.

PLANNING STUNTS

It was On-to-Toronto Day with the Peterboro Rotary Club to-day, with the international convention to be held next month in Toronto, as the big topic for discussion. Rotarian Fred C. Hungerford, chairman of the On-to-Toronto Committee, presided, and Rotarian Bob Kingan gave some details in regard to the accommodation of the delegates to Toronto, mentioning among other plans the engagement of Pullman sleepers, and the establishment of a camp at Toronto.

The camp idea found instantaneous favor, and President Reid Wren Rotarians Reg Turner, Noble Kelly, George C. MacDonald, John Crane, W. R. Morris, W. R. Widdess, and other speakers cordially approved of the proposition as putting Peterboro on the map, and keeping the local Rotarians together during the big convention.

Finally at the suggestion of Rotarian V. J. McElderry, it was unanimously decided that the Rotary Club adopt the tent plan as a club scheme and members will be assessed their share of the cost whether they attend the convention or not.

The Peterboro Rotarians expect however, to register 100 per cent. attendance, and are planning to keep Peterboro prominently before the thousands of delegates at Toronto.

Plans are being developed for a distinctive garb for the local Rotarians, and one suggestion that may be decided upon was the use of a float, consisting of a huge Peterboro canoe to be mounted on a motor truck, and used as a tally-ho wherever the Peterboro delegates choose to go in Toronto.

Special songs, calling attention to Peterboro, were rehearsed to-day, and it is expected that Peterboro will always be in the limelight during the big convention.

GALLAGHER REMEDY COMPANY GATHERING

President Walter Kidd Gave Report of Work During Year--Company Progressing.

The Gallagher Remedy Co., Ltd., held its annual meeting at the office of the Company Friday night last, most of the shareholders being present. Mr. Walter H. Kidd, the President, gave a comprehensive report of the work during the last year and showed how the sales of the remedies are spreading every month. It is expected that by the end of this year there will be a complete staff of salesmen in every county in Ontario. A feature of last year has been the remarkable reception given to the Indian Lung Remedy introduced during the year. The success of this remedy in the treatment of all lung troubles has been phenomenal and it has become the big seller although the Blood Purifier and Kidney Remedy continue to have big sales. Mr. Kidd stated that the Company now has a complete line of Family Remedies as well as a number of Veterinary lines which have proved of great value. All the remedies are purely herbal and contain no harmful drugs. During the meeting the usual dividend of 8 p.c. on preferred was declared and the Treasurer instructed to pay the same.—Advt.

NEW ORGANIST GAVE RECITAL YESTERDAY

Knox Church Congregation Heard Interesting Musical Treat After Service.

The large congregation at Knox church last evening remained at the close of the service and heard with much interest and pleasure a brief organ recital by Mr. Peaker. There were three numbers. A Prelude and Fugue in D major by Bach was the first. This is one of Bach's concert pieces. The pedal part with the solo toward the end indicated the great composer's unusual pedal technique. The piece combined brilliance with all Bach's contrapuntal beauty. The second number was "The Question and the Answer," a pair of dainty little pieces by the well-known blind composer, Wolstenholme, now resident in Blackburn, England. Last came the "Toccata," by Boellman, a typical example of the compositions of the modern French school, whose works are bound in brilliant display. In all three Mr. Peaker showed a high order of skill and pleasing technique, combined with artistic interpretation. Lovers of good organ music will be pleased to know that last evening's was but the beginning of a series of Sunday evening recitals at Knox. On Saturday Mr. Peaker finished writing his final exams. for the Mus. Bac. Degree at the University of Toronto, for which he is now composing a cantata.

In connection with the service at Knox last evening a pleasing feature was the solo by Mr. John Smith, who rendered "Judge Me, O God," by Dudley Buck. The broad and vigorous style of this piece proved a splendid vehicle for Mr. Smith's admirable voice and interpretation.

Dear Isabel: The members and officers of the C.G.E. Ladies' S. B. Club were delighted and moreover surprised to hear you had also developed that contagious disease, "Matrimony," so prevalent amongst the members of the team, which goes to prove that no players will spend "individual" futures.

We are sorry to lose you, but we know the man of your choice picked a winner, as you have proved your self as a member of our team.

And in conclusion we would ask you to accept this cheque as a token of our love for you, and our ardent wish is that your future may be prosperity and happiness, and heartiest congratulations to you both.

GRAIN AT ELEVATORS NOT MOVING TO EAST

LINDSAY, May 19. — While freighters are busy bringing the western grain from the head of the lakes to the elevators at Midland, the C.N.R. authorities report that not a car is moving from that terminal eastward. Business has been exceptionally quiet on this division of the railway this spring. The employees naturally expected that once navigation opened on the lakes that the grain movement from Midland would start. The reason for the inactivity in this direction is due to the fact that there has been no demand for grain.

SOME FAMOUS VIOLINS

Three specially fine sample Violins by the great French maker, DELIVET are now being shown by The J. M. Greene Music Co., Ltd., Charlotte Street.

Delivet Violins are similar in general characteristic to the Vuilleume instruments, which during the life of that maker sold at about the same prices as Delivet instruments are now being sold, but which to-day are worth from $1,000 to $2,000.

Delivet instruments will possibly be even more famous and valuable because of several characteristics peculiar to Delivet, both in construction and varnish.

Auguste Delivet was born in Hirecourt in 1861, and served apprenticeship with his grand-nephew, Victor Rambeaux, the well-known Violin maker, later following through in several well-known establishments, until establishing for himself and becoming the outstanding maker of his day.

He took part in the Exposition Universelle in Liege in 1905, where the jury awarded him the Grand Prix.

The instruments are works of art in models and workmanship and particularly their varnish and tone, and teachers, students, and all interested in this art will be delighted to see these splendid examples of Mr. Delivet's work.

SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL PASSED BY U.S. SENATE OVER COOLIDGE'S VETO

Division Was 59 to 26, Two More Votes Than Requisite Two-Thirds Majority, Ending Five-Year Fight—Insurance Policies and Cash Bonus Will Cost United States Possibly Four Billions and Will Likely Nullify the Effects of the Proposed Mellon Tax Reduction Bill.

ALSO VETOED BY HARDING

WASHINGTON, May 20 (Canadian Press). — The Soldiers' Bonus Bill finally has become law.

The measure, which has been the subject of a fight between the United States Congress and two successive prsidents, was re-passed yesterday by the Senate over President Coolidge's veto, by a vote of 59 to 26.

This was a margin of two votes more than the necessary two-thirds majority as compared with the 52 votes there were to spare when the veto was over-ridden in the House last Saturday.

Last Effort Futile.

President Coolidge made a futile last-minute effort to have his veto sustained in the Senate, calling to the White House for a breakfast conference seven Republican Senators.

Four of these who previously had voted for the Bill, cast their ballots in support of the Executive.

Altogether, there were only five Senators who had supported the Bill on its first passage to vote against it yesterday.

The last move of the Administration was to seek delay in the vote until Saturday.

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, assistant Republican leader, who had charge of the bill, moved for a vote and was joined by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, in suggesting that debate was unnecessary.

Affects Tax Reduction.

White House officials, in discussing the Senate action, emphasized that the Mellon tax reduction programme was predicated upon the assumption that there would be no bonus legislation. While they refused to say so directly, they left the impression that Congress having decided on a bonus, hope of material tax reduction must be abandoned.

Secretary Mellon was not prepared to discuss the effect of the bonus upon the Treasury's financial program, but the said that "sooner or later there must be provision for payment and it can be met only by new taxes."

Cost of Bonus.

The cost of the bonus has been variously estimated at from $2,250 000,000 to $4,000,000,000. Treasury officials making the higher estimate. The only cash provided for is $50 to each service man not entitled to more than that in adjusted service credit. Others would receive a paid-up twenty year endowment insurance policy.

The cost for the next fiscal year, when it is figured the cash payments will be made, has been estimated at $150,000,000. After the next fiscal year the cost is expected to decrease slightly and it is figured that an annual appropriation of $100,000,000 will be necessary to meet the cost over the twenty years.

Five Year Fight.

The scene in the Senate as the vote came was unusual. The galleries were crowded and many members of the House and others had places on the floor. With the announcement of the vote, which ended a five years' fight for a bonus, the spectators broke into applause. President Cummins threatened to have the galleries cleared, but scarcely had the demonstration gotten under way before a number of Democratic Senators joined in the applause.

It is estimated that 3,038,283 veterans will be entitled to the insurance policies provided by the Bonus Bill, while 389,583 will be paid cash of $50 or less. The bill also provides for payments to dependents of deceased veterans of the amount of adjusted service pension to which they would have been entitled.

Basis of $1 a Day.

Adjused service pension is figured on the basis of $1 a day for home service, and $1.25 a day for overseas service. The first sixty days cannot be counted. Also a maximum of 500 days would be allowed.

All veterans up to and including the rank of captain in the army and marine corps and lieutenant in the navy are eligible for the bonus.

It is estimated that the average insurance policy would be valued at $962, while the maximum value of the policies would be about $1,900 for overseas service and $1,600 for home service.

MILLERAND IS TARGET OF RADICALS' ATTACKS

Victorious "Red" Groups Demand President's Head As Further Proof and Profit of Victory—Leaders Hounded By Importunate Followers.

PARIS, May 20. — President Millerand is now the object of almost the entire attention of the Radical and Socialist press, which in the absence of indications as to how the three parties of the successful coalition are going to be able to profit from their victory, and what their programme is going to be, insistently demand that the chief magistrate of the republic give way to a new man.

The leaders o f all three parties—Radical, Socialist and Republican Socialists—are much annoyed by the excessive demands of their followers and are endeavoring to calm their ardour. Paul Painleve, who though recognized as the Republican Socialists' chief, is not a member of the Executive Committee, claims that the militants in that organization are making it difficult for the leaders to shape their programme of government.

Problems of Triumph.

Discounting the refusal of the Socialist Congress to authorize members of the party to enter the new government some of the deputies in the lobbies of the Chamber yesterday expressed the opinion that it will be exceedingly difficult for the triumphant leaders to form a stable government. A considerable number of Radicals and Socialists commenting on Edouard Herriot's remarks, said he talked just as Poincare would if Poincare were in his place, and asked whether if the same policies regarding the Ruhr and reparations were going to be followed there was any use of a change.

Newly appointed deputies who promised lower taxes, were rather indignant that M. Herriot should at the outset repudiate the programme that three coalition parties presented to the electors. This programme promised repeal of the twenty per cent. tax which Poincare put through Parliament, and the abrogation of the measure for economies by decree.

Presidential Silence.

Everybody at Elysee Palace remains silent as to the President's intentions. Parliamentarians and officials best acquainted with the President's state of mind say that the Radicals and Socialists are carrying out the very tactics that will make him stick to his post; that he will never retire under fire, and that if the new Chamber attempts to retire him by annoyances he will find very strong support in the Senate, and the Deputies may be faced with the eventuality of the dissolution of the Chamber, and a new election, if they push their attacks too far.

M. Renaudel, one of the recognized leaders of the majority, yesterday renewed his bitter attacks on M. Millerand. He declared that Socialist support for the new Cabinet would be conditional upon a demand for the President's resignation.

ARREST FATHER AND SON ON CONSPIRACY CHARGE

TORONTO, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)—L. B. Flater and Stanley Flater, his son, were arrested last night by Detectives Wickett and Stewart on warrants charging them with conspiracy.

Both men, detectives allege, are mining stock salesmen and it is alleged they obtained several thousand dollars from William A. Porter. They are held on bail of $25,000 each.

Synod Finds Dry Law Wrong Method

CAPE TOWN, May 20.—Prohibition is condemned as a wrong method for combating drunkenness by the Synod of the Dutch Reformed Church of South Africa, which holds that "wine is a gift of God which no one should desecrate."

The Synod says:

"The Scriptures allow the individual to abstain, as is seen in the case of the Rechabites and Romans XIV and First Corinthians VIII, but never mention prohibition as we now see it."

In so far as local option aims at prohibition, the Synod is against it, but declares that it does not fall within the scope of an ecclesiastical meeting to give any further opinion on a measure of a political character.

LIZARD'S SKINS DRESS FASHION

Grass Snakes, Fireflies, Butterflies Also Join the Menagerie of Women's Apparel As Novelties.

PARIS, May 20. — Lizards have been lifted from their lowly estate into an important accessory of feminine wear, and the frantic search of dressmakers for new materials is sending them as far ahead as the deserts.

Lizard skins have entirely dethroned last year's frog skins for women's evening shoes, while lizard hats, lizard gloves, and lizard dress trimmings are popular to such an extent that depopulation of the Sahara seems imminent.

Simultaneously other lowly creatures have invaded the fashion realm.

Not mentioning rabbits, which now furnish 90 per cent. of all fur used by the dressmakers, the ordinary domestic hen, which furnishes feathers for embroideries of modern capes, and goatskins which are now used widely for cloaks and hats, such exotic creatures as fireflies, grass snakes, and butterfies are also yielding their quota to the inexorable maw of the prevailing mode in dress.

With the season well launched, approximately 40,000 Americans are enjoying the traditional festivities between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m., which are the conventional hours now, except on race days.

GRAIN MOVING FROM MIDLAND

Briak Season Anticipated Bringing Satisfaction to Lindsay Train Crews.

LINDSAY, May 20.—C.N.R. employees are in high jinks as a result of the opening of the grain-hauling season. After weeks of uncertainty, the order came Saturday for the first big movement of grain from the Midland terminal. Up to Sunday night 150 cars had been lifted and fully one hundred more were expected to move east yesterday. Now that the movement has been inaugurated, a brisk season is anticipated.

R. E. Orr Promoted.

Mr. R. E. Orr, who has been local C.N.R. trainmaster for the past eight years, has been appointed to the position of assistant superintendent of this division. The appointment became effective yesterday.

Time-Table Changed.

As a result of the change in time-table which became effective yesterday, the Peterboro-Toronto flyer will save fifteen minutes on its run to the Queen City, reaching there at 10 o'clock.

Lindsay Team Shut Out.

Lindsay baseball club was again refused admission to the Tri-County League at a meeting of the executive on Friday night. The executive behind the local club yesterday handed back to the citizens the money secured in subscriptions. This means that Lindsay will have no senior baseball club this year.

WHITE ADVISES INSPECTION NOT AUDIT OF BANKS

The Former Minister of Finance Protests Against Villifying Epithets Uttered By Depositors' Counsel --Crerar Sold Home Bank Stock Escaping Double Liability.

END IN SIGHT.

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—Regular inspection of the head offices of Canadian banks by finance department officials was suggested by Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance, toward the conclusion of his argument before the Home Bank commission yesterday afternoon. Sir Thomas, in supporting his contention that the placing of out side auditors in a bank might be provocative of very serious results to the institution, declared that the difficulty was one of long standing.

Real Inspection

"Every Minister of Finance in the past thirteen years has felt himself in a very grave dilemma, when he received a complaint regarding the condition of a bank," he said. Ministers were without the means for taking action which would give them impartial information as to the condition of the bank without imperilling the position of the institution. Regular inspection by the officials of a specially established bureau of the finance department would prevent the perpetration of such gross frauds as in the case of the Home Bank. There must be real inspection and not a mere audit, however.

The former Finance Minister, who began his argument on Friday afternoon and continued it Monday morning, did not finish until the afternoon He was followed by R. A. Reid, who is appearing before the commission on behalf of a number of shareholders opposed to paymentof the double liability.

Government Should Know

Mr. Reid insisted that provision should be made in the Bank Act for bringing complaints as to the solvency or insolvency of a bank before the whole Government. A single Cabinet Minister should not be charged with the power of determining whether or not a bank required to be inspected. He contended that the Home Bank, which was an outgrowth of the Home Savings and Loan Society, had not been legally incorporated, and that the process of transforming the society into a bank was also illegal. Apparently some of those interested in the loan society "had seen the storm clouds gathering" had felt that there was some danger of the large loans not turning out well, and had decided to shift them over to a bank. As a result, Mr. Reid claimed, the bank, at its very inception was saddled with these large obligations.

Crerar Criticized

He criticized Hon. T. A. Crerar, a former shareholder and director of the bank, for not pressing the condition of the bank upon the attention of his colleagues when he entered the Union Government ,stating that both Mr. Crerar and the United Grain Growers had sold their stock and escaped the double liability.

Mr. Reid continues his argument to-day. He will be followed by Eugene Lafleur, K.C., and H. J. Symington, K.C., for the Government.

Lees' Vituperation

Sir Thomas dealt with the attacks made by Mr. Lee, counsel for depositors, one the three minister of finance, Mr. Fielding, Sir Henry Drayton and himself. These three had been spoken of as a "trinity of inaction". The epithets used by Mr. Lee had gone across the country because they made good head lines. Sir Thomas had been called "a lovely ornament," "a switchman who went asleep, "a mariner who navigated badly," "a fish caught by both gills." Sir Thomas said not since the days of Frankenstein had there been such a mixture of natures attributed to one man as had been attributed to him before the commission.

Verdict of Honesty

If Mr. Lee was a member of Parliament, he would be at perfect liberty to indulge in vituperation at the expense of Mr. Fielding, Sir Henry Drayton and himself. In that case the ministers would be present to defend themselves. If they were not, members of their party would. "Mr. Lee would find lions in his path," Sir Thomas said. An investigation of a minister's acts could deal only with questions of facts. He asked the commissioner for a finding of honesty and diligence on the part of the minister during his term of office. There was no man living who could see now with his eyes thea, said Sir Thomas.

Sir Thomas did not claim the war

Democratic Candidates

BUDGET ACCORDS WITH PRINCIPLES OF LAURIER PREMIER KING REPLIES

Expresses Surprise at Hon. Walter Mitchell's Resignation Following Closely Upon His Assurance of Supporting the Budget--Correspondence Tabled in Commons.

REASON FOR LOYALTY

OTTAWA, May 20 (Canadian Press). — The date of the bye-election in the St. Antoine Division of Montreal, formerly represented by the Hon. W. G. Mitchell, has not been decided.

Premier King made this statement in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when questioned by the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader.

Mr. Meighen asked specially for an answer in view of the fact that Mr. Mitchell's resignation was "designed to test public opinion."

The Premier said that an announcement would be made of the date as soon as a decision had been reached. He laid on the table of the house the correspondence between Mr. Mitchell and himself.

The Premier's Letter.

The Premier, in his reply to Mr. Mitchell's letter, announcing his resignation, wrote as follows:

Ottawa, May 10, 1924.

"My Dear Walter:

"I duly received your letter of the 14th instant, informing me of your intended resignation as a member of the house of commons.

"Recalling our conversation a few days ago, during which you assured me of your intention to support the government on the vote on the budget, you will not wonder that I was surprised to receive the intimation your letter contained. I am still more surprised, however, at the reason you assign for your resignation, namely, that there has been a departure from the Laurier-Fielding tariff policy in the government's proposals.

"The phrase, Laurier-Fielding tariff policy, can have no meaning other than a policy on tariff matters in accordance with the principles advocated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding. This, indeed, would appear to be your own view, as in your letter to me you say:

Election Platform.

"'In the general elections of 1921, when I accepted the nomination as standard bearer of the Liberal party for St. Antoine division, I adopted as my platform what I described as the Laurier-Fielding tariff as practised by the Liberal administration from 1896 to 1911,

Killed by Rifle Set For Thieves

SHEET HARBOUR, N.S., May 20 (Canadian Press). — George Harnish, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Harnish, of Sober Island, five miles southeast of here, was killed or Friday night about seven o'clock, when he caused the discharge of a 22-calibre rifle, the bullet from which penetrated his heart.

Harnish was endeavouring as a joke to discharge the gun, which was set by H. G. Verge, a merchant who had been suffering from petty thievery, to fire in the event of the store window being raised.

These facts were brought out at an inquest held at the home of the young man on Saturday afternoon.

WELCOME FOR BYNG NOT ON SCHEDULE

Quebec Town Took Advantage of Presence of the Governor - General to Show Respect.

BEARTHIER, Q., May 20.—Although not on the pre-arranged itinerary of the North Shore tour of His Excellency, the Governor-General, Berthier was honored Sunday by a short visit from Lord Byng,, whose special train was drawn up near here over Saturday night and Sunday morning. Dr. Theodore Gervais, M.P., mayor, conveyed to Lord Byng the civic welcome in the presence of a thousand people of the town and district gathered in the park. The band of the Joliette Regiment was in attendance.

At the convent of the Congregation of Notre Dame, Mother St. Emoud welcomed the Governor-General. The convent girls sang laudatory compositions, courtesied with old world grace, and presented several large bouquets. The park reception was a rather strenuous one for Lord Byng who shook hands with several hundred people who pressed forward to meet him.

FROST IN WEST AND SNOW FALL

Crops Undamaged Chiefly Because Not Above the Ground--Rain and Snow Increases the Moisture Storage.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 20 (Canadian Press). — Sharp frosts which were experienced throughout the three Prairie Provinces during Saturday and Sunday, have had no damaging effect on the crops, according to authoritative reports received here.

While seeding has progressed favourably during the past two weeks, only a small percentage of the crops are reported to be above ground.

The cold weather, however, caused some damage to garden stuff.

In the Edmonton district, where the thermometer registered fourteen degrees of frost on Sunday night, potatoes that had just begun to shoot above the ground were frosted black while many flowers and vines were destroyed.

Snow to the depth of four inches fell in the Calgary district on Sunday and elsewhere through the central and southern sections there was snow and rain.

The precipitation is regarded as of great value to the germination of seed recently put in the ground.

No frost was reported in Southern Alberta.

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—An innovation in long-distance electrical transportation out of Ottawa was witnessed Monday when an electric car commenced its first schedule trip over the Canadian National line to Norway Bay, Que., 50 miles distant. This is the first electric car to be operated on long runs out of Ottawa over rails formerly used solely by trains drawn by steam locomotives.

PROVINCES ARE NOT UNITED IN 8-HOUR DAY LAW

Federal Government Has No Jurisdiction Until the Provinces Have Ratified the Standard Working Day — Employees of the Government Have Seven-Day Week — Labor Estimates Before the House.

DINNER QUESTIONED.

OTTAWA, May 20 (Canadian Press). — Dominion jurisdiction on the eight-hour day, and a Labour conference which ended in a little dinner for sixty that cost $347.50, featured the discussion of Labour estimates in the House yesterday.

There was considerable questioning as to the position in regard to he eight-hour day convention to which the Dominion Government assented at the first international Labour conference held under the League of Nations.

J. G. Woodsworth, Labour member for Centre Winnipeg, complained that there had been too much playing with responsibility. If Canada could not enforce the eight-hour day, it should withdraw from the convention.

Wait on Provinces.

Mr. Murdock said that all concerned in the international conferences understood Cunada's position. When all the Provinces ratified the eighthour day, the Federal Parliament would be able to take the necessary steps to make it a Federal measure.

Mr. Woodsworth believed that if the Labour Department and the Government took up the question with the Provinces, a proper arrangement could be arrived at. Irritation was being provoked by this division of powers.

"If this Government has power to send troops to Nova Scotia to quell riots, it should claim the power to settle those problems."

Mr. Woodsworth then complained that certain employees of Federal Government blast furnaces were working twelve hours a day and seven days a week.

Mr. Murdock said the Civil Service Commission controlled such matters. The Commission had been asked to investigate this matter and was now working on it, he understood.

Policemen's Hours.

J. T. Shaw Independent, Calgary West) said that he had been surprised to find out that the Dominion Police, who patrolled the Parliament Buildings worked seven days a week. Surely the Dominion Government had power to make regulations to cover its own employees.

Mr. Murdock agreed with Mr. Shaw, and he had done all he could to get these matters righted. However, others had jurisdiction. If Mr. Shaw would go before the Civil Service Commission and state that this practice was "obsolete and absurd," it would assist the Minister of Labour.

The Dinner Account.

It was Harry Leader, Progressive, of Portage La Prairie, who brought up the expense account of the dinner—one that followed a conference of Dominion and Provincial representatives on labour questions in 1922.

Mr. Leader objected to the high

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer went down to 27 degrees last night, 5 degrees of frost, and 3 degrees colder than yesterday morning. Both ice and white frost were to be seen. It is hardly likely much damage was caused as vegetation is backward and the fruit blossoms have not as yet made their appearance.—W. P.

BAILED GAMEKEEPER IS RE-ARRESTED ON COUNT OF ATTEMPTING MURDER

No Application For Bail Will be Heard Until Outcome of Injuries to Two Men Are Known--Both in Serious Condition in Hospital.

COBOURG SHOOTING

COBOURG, May 20 (Canadian Press). — Gamekeeper William John Crossen, who was arrested on Sunday on a charge of wounding by shooting Edward Rowe, of Cobourg, and Byron A. McCordan of Toronto, and later was admitted to bail, was re-arrested yesterday afternoon on instructions from the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto.

He is now charged with attempting to commit murder.

He appeared before Magistrate Flood, and was remanded until 27th May.

No application for bail will be entertained until it is known definitely what the outcome of the injuries to the two men will be.

McCrordan is still in a very serious condition, and the doctors report that Mr. Rowe is doing as well as could be expected, although the wound in his leg may prove dangerous.

TORONTO, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Yesterday afternoon the doctors of Wellesley Hospital in attendance upon McCrodan, reported to the Attorney-General's Department that in their opinion McCrodan was in a serious condition, and if a statement from him was desired as to the shooting it would be well to take such a statement while he was able to make it.

Deputy-Attorney-General Bayly arranged with the Assistant Crown Attorney, James W. McFadden, and a stenographer to go to Wellesley Hospital and arrange for the taking of a statement. Messrs. McFadden and Breckell were met at the hospital by Inspector Hammond, of the Department of Criminal Investigation of the Ontario Police. Assistant Crown Attorney McFadden visited the man's bedside, but as the patient did not believe himself to be in immediate fear of death, as required by the law, his statement was deferred.

All evening Messrs. McFadden and Breckell and Inspector Hammond were in touch with the hospital, waiting for any emergency call to effect that McCrodan had suffered a relapse. Doctors in attendance upon the man fear that his life is in danger.

A Nightingale Sang a Song Last Night In a Moonlit Surrey Glade That Swept The Ears of a Listening Million Fans

LONDON, May 20.—(United Press). — A nightingale sang in a moonlit Surrey Thicket, last night and all England heard the song. More than a million radio fans in all parts of the country "listened in" as the clear notes of the feathered songster, entirely unaware of its share of the most remarkable radio concert ever held, were caught in a microphone and carried by land to London, whence they were broadcasted. It is planned to repeat the concert next week, if the nightingale will sing and it is hoped that radio fans of the United States may hear. The scene at Oxted, near which the experiment took place was remarkable. Several nightingales had been coaxed to a thicket where they were accustomed to nest. A police cordon was thrown about the thicket to keep back a curious crowd which gathered. A microphone had been concealed in a bush.

Tip toeing softly about the garden, near where the little songsters were nesting, Miss Beatrice Harrison played several soft notes on a cello.

Suddenly the nightingale's clear song burst on the moonlit air. The cello accompanied it for a few minutes then ceased and the nightingale sang on alone.

Jazz bands were stilled throughout the country and all other broadcasting stations ceased operations, while everyone tuned in to catch the the song.

MONTREAL NOTED FOR ITS MURDERS

Here Men Escape Punishment Provided by the Law With Wonderful Ease.

MONTREAL, May 20 (Canadian Press). — Pointing out that in England when a reprieve is granted in a murder case by a judge the appeal must be heard within eight days, and declaring that Montreal is getting a bad name in the matter of murders, having regard to the "wonderful ease with which men escape punishment provided by the law," a prominent lawyer of this city yesterday gave his opinion in the case of Joseph Freillier, convicted to hang last Friday for the murder of Mrs. Gergeron in January, 1922.

Frellier was saved from the gallows on the eve of execution when his counsel applied for a reprieve, which was granted to 23rd October next.

The lawyer comments that "this reprieve" is an ex-parte judgment.

"The Attorney-General of the Province and his representatives here were given no opportunity of being heard and of submitting the case for society to the Court before the application for a reprieve was granted."

He further points out that in the Frellier case it will not be for five months before the matter is heard by the Courts. There may then be an annulment, or an order for a new trial, which may mean another year, and in the meantime the witnesses may disappear or even die.

WANTS TO HELP OTHER WOMEN

Grateful for Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache and for weak and dreary feelings caused by my condition. Sometimes I felt so bad that I couldn't do my housework. My neighbor told me of your medicine and I read about it in the 'Toronto Telegram' and thought I would take it. I got very good results. It built me up and I have told several friends what it has done for me. You may use this testimonial as it may be of help to some one who has suffered as I have." —Mrs. J. LEE, 25 Harvie Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Lee is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from such troubles, and answer any questions they may like to ask.

Women suffering from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, pains, bearing-down feelings and weakness should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Not only is the worth of this splendid medicine shown by such cases as this, but for nearly fifty years letters like this have been received from thousands of women.

BRITAIN MAY SECURE NEW WEAPON OF WAR

Death Ray Will Blast Everything in Its Path --Inventor Has Gone to France.

LONDON, May 20. — (United Press.)—Grindell Matthews, inventor of the "death ray" has gone to Paris, where he is reported negotiating with a French syndicate capitalized at three million francs, to develop the invention. Meanwhile the British Admiral, Mark Kerr, in a speech here, declared Matthews "had given his word of honor not to divulge the secret of the ray until I confer with members of the British cabinet.

"The death ray" is believed by its invenor to be the most terrible weapon of war ever perfected, a death-dealing beam which will wither everything in its path.

HENRY FORD HAS PURCHASED MILL

This Has Been the Rumor That Has Startled the People of Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 20.—A rumor has been in circulation here for some days to the effect that the woollen mill has been purchased by Henry Ford, the famous auto manufacturer, some people being disposed to take the report seriously and to predict an industrial millenium for Campbellford.

It is needless to say that the management of the mill have no knowledge of any such transaction. It is likely that the rumor is based on the fact that Henry Ford has recently placed a large order with the Campbellford Cloth Company for cloth used in upholstering his cars. Several such orders have been received in the past, but the one just placed is larger than usual. No one, however, would be surprised if Henry Ford should purchase a plant to manufacture this line of goods, and in that case he would likely consider some of the factories with which he already has had dealings.

Cheese Brings 14 1-16c.

Seventy-three boxes of cheese were offered at the meeting of the Cheese Board Monday forenoon, the Woodland sending 33 and the Kimberley Factory 41. The buyers present were Cooke, Thompson and Ivey, the latter of Campbellford. The highest bid was 14 1-16 cents, an advance over the opening price two weeks ago, and Mr. Ivey took the entire lot at that figure.

This was to have been the annual meeting of the board, but owing to the small attendance, so many farmers being busy on the land, the election of officers was postponed until the next meeting, which will be held at 10.30 a.m. Monday, June 2nd.

Game Postponed.

The baseball game scheduled for Wednesday afternoon with Roseneath, and which would have marked the opening of the Northumberland League season, has been postponed for the present. Roseneath was billed as the visiting team, but as a number of the players are farmers, who are busy on the land owing to time lost on account of the recent wet weather, the managers yesterday asked that the game be called off. Manager Davidson consented to the arrangement.

Campbellford's first game this year will be an exhibition contest with Lakefield at the celebration to be held here on Friday afternoon.

Campbellford is scheduled to play at Colborne next Monday.

At the Regent.

"A Royal Divorce," the film story of the matrimonial tangle of Napoleon, who in prosperity forgot the devoted wife of his youth, will be the feature picture at the Regent Theatre for the first three nights of this week. Another episode of the serial "Speed," so popular with the patrons of the Regent, will be shown on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening.

This change in the dates for the serial usually presented on the last three nights of the week, is announced to make room for another special attraction which Captain Hyland has secured, the film of the Dempsey-Gibbons ring battle, which will be seen here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in advance of the moving picture theatres in the large cities. The regular picture on these nights will be the Scottish Comedy, "Stop Your Ticklin' Jock!"

cost of dinners, and proposed that the vote under discussion be reduced by the amount spent on the dinner.

Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labour, admitted that he was not himself enthusiastic over such functions. If he were told that it was not right, it would not occur again in his department while he was the minister, so Mr. Murdock informed the House.

The cost of dinner, however, did not come under the item discussed, and Mr. Leader withdrew his motion.

Fair Wages.

On an item of $5,000 for fair wages investigation officers there was considerable talk as to what constituted fair wages for farm workers. The Minister could not undertake to set a standard. So many factors entered into the question.

On the suggestion of the Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) the Minister of Labour agreed to provide the House with comparative statistics showing the rates of wages paid in Canada and in other countries, also the cost of living index figure. The item of $5,000 for fair wages investigation officers was then carried.

Employment Offices.

A vote to provide $50,000 for the administration of the employment administration of the Employment Offices Co-ordination Act was considered.

Mr. Murdock explained that this item was increased by $20,000 this year in order to provide for the absorption by the Department of the employment work which had been done in some of the larger cities by the Dominion Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

A suggestion from Mr. Woodsworth that some form of unemployment insurance should be instituted was promised consideration by the Minister.

E. J. Garland (Bow River) asked if the Department of Labour could not obtain better distribution of immigrants destined for farm labour. They were being brought out West at a time when there was actual unemployment there, and were kicking their heels round Winnipeg.

Mr. Murdock suggested that this be brought up on estimates of the Immigration Department.

Harvesters' Excursions.

T. W. Caldwell (Progressive, of Carleton) objected to harvesters' excursions. They took farm labour away from the Maritimes at a time when they were most needed.

Mr. Murdock said he always consulted the Provincial authorities before these excursions were announced. He would keep Mr. Caldwell's objection in mind.

A sharp encounter between Mr. Meighen and Hon. James Murdock, marked the discussion on old age pensions. The House had labor estimates under consideration. Mr. Meighen asked many questions, among them what action the Government had taken.

Mr. Murdock replied that Canada could not take on such a scheme without an understanding of just what wold be involved. He hoped something would be done before long.

Mr. Meighen wondered why it had entered the minister's head in 1921 that nothing would likely be done in regard to old age pensions. Mr. Murdock replied that Mr. Meighen could not produce a single word of what he had said in 1921 regarding this question.

It wasn't a question of what the minister had said, but what he should have said, said the former Premier. Mr. Murdock said the Government was considering the question in a very orderly manner, "with due regard to financial burden left upon the country by the late government." He expressed the opinion that Mr. Meighen "was trying to make a noise to convince the country that he was doing something."

To this Mr. Meighen replied that he had thought the minister had learned his lesson in days of earlier session that "spread eagle oratory" got him nowhere. Minister's "hackneyed phrases drawn from long experience in other spheres" did not produce much effect on the House.

FISH CREEK PRISONER WAS GIVEN REPRIEVE

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., May 20 (Canadian Press). — Official notice of the reprieve of Mrs. Catherine Tratch, the Fish Creek poisoner, who was to be hanged here to-day, reached Sheriff Heath at Prince Albert yesterday.

Mrs. Tratch received the news stolidly, maintaining the same spirit of indifference she has shown throughout the weary weeks of waiting.

She made no comment, a simple shrug of her shoulders being the only indication of what she was feeling.

She will probably be immediately moved to the Kingston Penitentiary.

REFLECTION ON SOVIETS WOULD AFFECT PARTY

Questions Respecting Political Propaganda Raise Protest From the Government Benches In British House — Russia Regarded As Friendly Power.

NO "MONKEY TRICKS"

LONDON, May. 19—(Canadian Press Cable) —Protests were made in the House of Commons against questions being asked that reflected upon the representatives of a friendly power at question time today when Sir Leonard Kyle, conservative member for Epping, Essex County, asked the premier whether his advisers were assured that no political propaganda was being carried on by the Russian representatives now in England.

Premier MacDonald replied that the Soviet delegates were here on a friendly mission and until there was definite evidence to the contrary it was to be presumed that they would abstain from actions which would only stultify the negotiations going on.

Sir W. E. Davison, conservative member for South Kensington, said the premier himself had anticipated that the delegation might be guilty of "monkey tricks."

There were cries of "Order," "Withdraw."

to allow such comments on the negotiations that were being carried on between the British government and a friendly power. The government of Russia, he said, had been recognized by home government and must be treated as any other foreign government should be.

Ministerial cheers greeted this ruling of the speaker.

Thereupon Sir Leonard Lyle asked, in view of recent disclosures in Canada and Germany with regard to similar delegations there, would Premier MacDonald make the most searching inquiries about the movements of the Russian delegation at present in England.

The speaker reiterated his pronouncement that the Russian delegation must be treated the same as a delegation from any other country.

DALY BUILDING COST MILLION

Sold to the Government In September, 1921--Lafleur's Counsel Fees $250 and Expenses in the Bank Enquiry.

OTTAWA, May 20. Canadian Press —The Daly building in Ottawa was purchased by the Dominion Government from the H. J. Daly Co., Ltd., for one million dollars, on September 19, 1921, was the reply of Hon. Dr. King, Minister of Public Works, to a question asked in the House yesterday by Mr. Baldwin of Stanstead. The purchase price was payable in ten annual instalments of $100,000. Three payments, totalling $402,000, have been made.

Mr. Baldwin asked if the H. J. Daly was the H. J. Daly, who was president of the Home Bank.

Dr. King—"Yes."

Lawyers' Fees.

Another question asked in the House to-day, touched on the fees paid to the Government counsel in the Home Bank inquiry. Eugene Lafleur, K.C., it was stated, was being paid $250 per day and expenses. The fees of H. J. Symington, K.C., the other government counsel, have not been stipulated.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM.

Tom Richardson, a former member of the British House of Commons who has just returned after three years in Canada, is quoted as severely attacking Canada's immigration policy.

He asserted before the National Council of the Independent Labour Party that in view of the unemployment in the cities and the conditions in regard to agriculture, it was an act of cruelty to encourage people to seek work in Canada.

Conditions may not be as bad as this observer declares, but, unfortunately, there is enough truth in his remarks to sting, and he is only voicing what many people in Canada have declared that a good deal of judgment should be exercised just at present in regard to immigration.

There is unemployment in the cities; there are bad conditions on the farms, and the wisdom of bringing large numbers of immigrants into Canada until these conditions have been corrected is questioned by many Canadians.

Yet the fact remains that more population is needed to develop Canada's resources and to help carry the burden of government.

It is a problem that should have greater attention.

ADVERTISING CANADA.

There used to be a popular adage years ago to the effect that "the camera never lies." Within limitations, it was about as accurate as most popular adages. But times have changed since it was popularized, and we do not employ it to the same extent or in the same connection as formerly. Nevertheless, there are cases in which its appropriate application is highly desirable, and the use of the film for Canadian propaganda purposes is one of them, says the Montreal Star.

The Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa has been running its own movie department for some years and with steadily increasing success. It devotes its energies to the presentation of the scenic beauties of the country and its natural and industrial resources. The films are exhibited throughout the United States, and also over the British Empire. In South Africa over one thousand picture houses show them nightly. This year five million people will see them each week in the United States, and the propaganda campaign will be extended to Belgium, Switzerland, China, Japan, the British West Indies and India under new contracts. It is a money-making business, for the department, finding that nobody wanted films they could get for nothing, conceived the bright little idea of making them commercial, and soon found that this scheme paid remarkably well.

FLY THE FLAG.

At yesterday's meeting of the Rotary Club the following suggestion was offered, and the Examiner passes it on to the people generally:

"The weather is not very seasonable, general conditions do not appear very good and the public generally seems to be in the dumps. The 24th of May is on Saturday next; Rotary could possibly put a little life into everyone by suggesting that they put out their flags on that day, which would tend to brighten things up and put a little colour into surroundings which now appear quite black."

This suggestion is in line with sentiments that have frequently been expressed in these columns without, it must be confessed, any very appreciable change in conditions.

For some reason or other, Peterborough people are strangely reluctant about flying the national flag on public holidays.

It is the exception rather than the rule to see the Union Jack flaunting its bright colours in the breeze.

Over across the border our cousins welcome any opportunity to raise the Star Spangled Banner to the top of the flag-pole—and when no usual occasion offers such an opportunity they create one.

In this respect we Canadians would do well, at least on such holidays as Victoria Day and Dominion Day, to follow their example.

We have a beautiful flag, it represents a wealth of glorious history and achievement, it stands for freedom and liberty and we should be glad to fly it on every possible occasion.

Victoria Day would be a fitting day to inaugurate a new era in this regard in Peterborough.

STREET SIGNS.

Commenting on the Council's action in granting $300 toward the cost of erecting signs on the Kingston road advertising Peterborough as the gateway to the Kawarthas, a citizen declares that before establishing signs 30 miles away from the city the Aldermen should see to it that something is done to have the local streets properly marked so that they can be located.

There is no logical reason why the two matters should be lumped together in this way, for the Examiner, while believing in the advertising scheme, also can see much in favour of the suggestion in regard to street signs.

Both are important.

The outside signs are needed to attract to Peterborough a fair share of the motor tourist traffic which is recognized as a trade developer of much significance, while it must be admitted that it is a difficult matter for visitors, and for many citizens as well, to locate some of the local streets.

The name-plates at street intersections have in some cases disappeared altogether, and some streets have never been marked in this way.

At other corners the name of the street is marked on the pavement, with the result that three or four months in the year it is invisible.

New street markers placed where they could be seen every month in the year are very badly needed, and although no funds are available for such an improvement this year, the whole matter should receive some attention from the Council with a view to action in the none too distant future.

THOSE GERMAN MARKS.

When a blue sky law for the protection of Ontario people against dubious stock promotion schemes and shaky investments is talked about there are always people to say that such a measure is unnecessary.

Yet when a couple of men can come on the local market square and sell German marks for good Canadian coin of the realm, it must be admitted that there is a large field always open to the high pressure stock salesmen to unload his valueless wares.

The surprising feature about such a transaction is that every man of ordinary intelligence must realize that the mark has gone forever, and that in the purchase of this junk there can be no chance of profit for the buyer.

It must be the gambling instinct that makes such sales possible.

People tell themselves that perhaps the financial experts are mistaken after all, and that by investing a dollar or two in such a venture they leave the door open to the possibility of some day or other, by some miracle or other, of having the German mark come back sufficiently to give them a return upon their investment.

Their intelligence tells them that they might just as well throw their money into the river and expect to make a profit—but the gambling instinct crowds their intelligence to one side with the advice, "Take a chance."

Otherwise it would not be possible to give the marks away.

THE SOURCE OF CAPITAL.

Some of the hindrances to national growth are due to merely casual thinking, or to no thinking at all. For example, we should all be seized of the conditions under which industries operate and increase in both number and productivity—particularly as to the basis on which they increase. When we have thought the matter out in a logical way, we come to three definite conclusions: First, that their multiplication is a matter of enterprise; second, that the incentive to enterprise is the hope of profit; and third, that capital is the essential foundation of the resulting industrial structure. If that structure is to grow, the pool from which capital is drawn must be constantly replenished. If, for any reason or combination of reasons, the inflow is checked, there is at once a slowing up of industrial activity.

There should be no room for false assumptions as to the chief source of capital, nor as to the nature of capital itself. No matter from what angle the matter is viewed, we are always brought to the conclusion that capital and savings are synonymous. The common people are the source, and the thing itself is the accumulated product of human labor and thrift. Some people have fallen into the loose habit of speaking of capital as something belonging to a class, and therefore a force arrayed in hostile attitude to another force which they define as labor. It suits them to talk that way, because it enables them to drawn certain deductions and build thereon a political fabric. But they are wrong, just as Karl Marx was wrong in both his premises and conclusions, as presented in "Das Kapital" nearly 60 years ago.

Everybody is concerned in the industrial life of the country, and therefore everybody should be interested in seeing an uninterrupted flow of capital into the reservoir from which it is drawn for productive purposes. There can be no growth in wealth without increased production, and there cannot be increased production without adequate capital. Therefore, if our industrial progress has been arrested, or if it is not going ahead as it should, we must look for the cause in hesitating enterprise, a loss of incentive, or an insufficiency of capital. We should probably find that incentive had been checked by the outlook as to profit, and that the volume of available capital had at the same time been reduced. So serious a situation should command our constructive attention.

Even a superficial glance at prevailing conditions should reveal to us the truth that growth in taxation and growth in capital cannot very well take place at the same time. At all events, no one could doubt that to the extent the savings of the people are drawn into the public treasury they are diverted from productive enterprises. Of that diversion there can be no question. In 1916-17 special war tax revenue had a total of $16,302,238. Last year the amount was $181,834,875. This was in addition to other Federal taxes aggregating $223,000,000, which had grown from $172,000,000 in 1916. No one can say with reason that the extraction of $225,000,000 more per annum from the pocketbooks of the people than was extracted eight years ago has not in precisely that measure reduced available capital.

Those who assume that this cut in available capital does not affect them are merely deceiving themselves. Everybody is affected, and unavoidably so. Let that be made clear by a single illustration. Last year the Dominion Government made a levy of $852,328 on in surance companies, which had the direct effect of reducing the principal out of which policies must ultimately be paid. That principal is the property of policy-holders, and there are very few people who today have not an insurance policy. There is, however, another effect of taxation which reaches out to the last man in the community, and that is the effect which this heavy draught on savings has on wages. It cuts off the supply, and, while it may not immediately lead to lower wages, it produces unemployment. This means that some people, for a longer or shorter period, do not receive any wages at all.

When all aspects of this matter have been examined, it will be seen that everybody is very deeply, and more or less directly, concerned in the diversion of popular capital from the channels of production. Not only is this diversion taking place into the Federal treasury, but in rapidly rising volume it is being turned into the coffers of the Province and the municipality. We must frankly face the situation thus produced, and as frankly acknowledge the imperative need of a strong and articulate public resistance to conditions so inimical to national expansion.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The United States papers talk so much about the Dawes report that most of their readers would be surprised to learn that there were others on the commission.

Sometimes this May weather makes us wonder whether Kipling, after all, may not have been right.

Mr. McMaster has again recrossed the House. He does his travelling on the tariff instead of on the C.N.R.

The Toronto Telegram points out that May rains are not only delaying seeding and putting radio on the rocks, but are causing the straw hat to blush unseen.

There is something in the assertion of a United States newspaper that spring makes everybody want to be somewhere else, even after they get there.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

A Thought

ALWAYS A WAY OUT.

How foolish to believe that your own trials and tribulations, the handicaps and hardships you suffer or have suffered, are the bitterest and the hardest in the world.

If you will look with seeing eyes and an understanding heart you will always find someone in more sore distress than you are.

Cold comfort, I hear you say; and it is unless you can forget your own troubles in trying to help the other fellow.

No jealousies, no petty strife, no cutting sarcasm, no mean suspicions can creep in where affection founded on respect and admiration exists between a man and a woman.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 19.—There was a heavy run of export steers in today and the buyers were open to take up to 1,500 head this week. The average good steers between 1,200 and 1,300 lbs. brought $8 a cwt. Export heifers were generally $7.50 a cwt. Export cattle were considered just about steady with last week.

Butchers ranged from $7 to $7.75 a cwt. Butchers' cows were not quite as light as last week and only a small number made over $6 a cwt. Good cows were mainly around $5.50 and medium cows $4.75 a cwt. Bulls were steady and an extra choice one sold at $6.75. Baby beeves sold from $7.25 to $9 a cwt. The only load of feeders dealt in cost $5.80 a cwt. These weighed 850 lbs. each. The exporters had only brought 300 head up till noon and the sales of butchers was light.

Bunches of ordinary good calves sold at 10 cents a pound and odd choice calves were a cent a pound higher.

Spring lambs around 50 lbs. each went at $12. Old lambs in small lots brought 14 and 15 cents and sheep 8½ and 9 cents for handyweights. One choice spring lamb sold at $15.

The light run in hogs indicated an advance of 25 cents a cwt. and packers did not expect to get them below $7.25 a cwt. f.o.b. today. One seller said he had made $7.50 a cwt. for his hogs but this did not seem to be general.

The total amount of grain handled locally from the opening of navigation to May 18 inclusive, was 12,839, 536 bushels as against 8,580,526 bushels during the corresponding period of last year.

There was nothing new in millfeed and demand for rolled oats showed no improvement. A fair business continues in the baled hay market. Business in eggs is fair. A firm feeling prevails in the potato market. Prices for butter were up 3-4 cent to 7-8 cent per lb. owing to the keen demand. The cheese market is unchanged.

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, May 19. —Cattle and calf receipts 2,250. Trading on the cattle market was virtually at a standstill owing to the restricted enquiry coupled with weaker outside markets. Buyers were holding off for higher prices in the butcher division and indications pointed to a considerable reduction before the close of the market to-day.

Says Haney Knew

Mr. Reid claimed that M. J. Haney who had been associated with the bank since its inception, knew that false statements in regard to the condition of the bank were being given out. The annual reports of the bank were "padded" for the purpose of misleading the public, and selling stock.

Surely Mr. Haney, even though under a doctor's care, could furnish the commission with a statement in regard to his association with the bank, said Mr. Reid. Not once had the former President, (Mr. Haney), come out into the open and given testimony.

Crerar's Escape

Mr. Crerar, while a minister of the crown, and a member of parliament, apparently had done nothing to impress upon his colleagues and associates, the gravity of the bank's condition. But he had done one thing, said Mr. Reid. In 1918, when Mr. Crerar had good reasons to suppose that disaster to the bank could not be long delayed, he had sold the large part of his stock. The Grain Growers Grain Company, of which Mr. Crerar was president, had also sold its stock. It was true that owing to the drop in the value of share the company had suffered a loss of $33,000 by the sale, but Mr. Reid declared that it had made a net gain on the whole transaction of $27,000, having drawn $60,000 in dividends while the stock was held. Both Mr. Crerar and the grain company had escaped the double liability.

JUDGMENT IN CAMPBELLFORD CASES

The appended judgment was handed down by His Honour Judge Huycke in the case of Walter Covert versus Samuel T. Covert. This case was heard a few days ago at Campbellford. Mr. D. J. Lynch appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. G. A. Payne for the defendant. The judgment follows:

"Walter Covert sues his brother Samuel making three claims against him, all of which claims are made by Walter as executor of the Estate of Alpheus Covert the deceased father of both parties.

The claim is three-fold. First on a promissory note for $200 and interest made by Samuel to Alpheus. This claim must be allowed and the amount now paid into court $227.19 would seem to be approximately correct, and judgment will be entered in this claim for that amount with costs.

The second claim is for the value of four hogs the property of the late Alpheus Covert, said to be converted by Samuel to his own use. The evidence as to this was very contradictory and not altogether satisfactory; I think on the whole, however, I must find these hogs had been given in his life time by Alpheus Covert to Rose Covert the wife of Samuel Covert for the reasons mentioned in the evidence. Apart from the evidence of the parties themselves, and other members of the family, that of Leonard Carr, given at the last sitting seems to me fairly conclusive, and this claim will therefore be dismissed.

The third item in the claim is for certain articles of clothing and personal property owned by the deceased said to have been retained and converted by Samuel to his own use. The first item mentioned is a Coon Skin Coat. There would seem to be no doubt that under the will this coon skin coat became the property of the plaintiff, Walter, and if Samuel had it, or retained it, in his own possession he would make himself liable to Walter for its value. The facts seem to be, however, that their brother George, who lives somewhere in New York, claimed that his father had given him this coat years ago and after the father's death George seems to have taken it away. Walter apparently did not know of this but Samuel did know. There is no evidence, however, that Samuel took it himself and delivered it to George, rather that George of his own motion took it away. As above stated the coat would appear to be the property of Walter, but Samuel did not get it; he cannot therefore be made liable for its loss. This claim must be dismissed.

Then comes what is called a Dress Coat, said really to be a Morning Coat. $15.00 is claimed for this. There has been no demand and refusal, and Samuel says that Walter can have it any time. I direct Samuel to give this coat to the Clerk of the Court, who will hand it over to Walter.

A $5.00 claim is made for some other clothing. It is not shown, however, that Samuel has or is retaining these clothes. It is shown that the father before his death told his daughters to take some of these clothes and make them up for the small children. It is regrettable that ligitation should ensue about these personal effects, but Samuel has not got these goods and cannot be made responsible for them as he did not deliver them to the sisters. It may or may not be that the gift to the daugthers was valid under the circumstances; but, if not, Walter must look to his sisters, not to Samuel, for their value.

The last part of this claim is $10 for a "diamond" (sic) ring. This ring has been brought into court by the defendant and is now in the hands of the Clerk, who will deliver it to the plaintiff.

A further amended claim is put in by the plaintiff to recover the bill of Mr. J. A. Frederick. This bill was against the deceased Alpheus Covert, and after his death was paid by the executor Walter. Walter now claims that Samuel should pay this bill on account of the provision made in the will of his mother, Sophronia Covert, directing him to provide her husband with food and good clothes, Samuel said he did this; but in any event I do not see that I can interfere or place any liability upon Samuel in connection with this item. The late Mr. Covert bought certain goods from Frederick in his own name without reference to Samuel, paying part of the debt in his life time, and by will directed Walter to pay his debts. This being a debt Walter paid it in accordance with the will. If the deceased, although assured of food and clothing from his son Samuel, chose to incur certain debts in addition, whether necessary or otherwise, these debts do not attach themselves as a liability to Samuel Covert. Walter, as executor under the direction of the will to pay debts, has properly paid this one and cannot be allowed to put off the liability upon any one else.

Then there is a set off and counterclaim: The first being two bills of costs amounting in all to $125.90 claimed by Samuel as against Walter as such executor. The circumstances apparently were that the deceased Alpheus brought an action to set aside the will of his ife Sophronia. This action was defended both by the executors and by Samuel personally. Samuel was the residuary beneficiary under his mother's will. The executors and Samuel were defended by different solicitors. After the action proceeded some little time it was discontinued and notice of discontinuance filed. The executors paid their bill and Samuel paid his, and it does not appear that the costs were ever taxed, or that any effort was made to enforce payment against Alpheus. The notice of discontinuance operated as a judgment so far as liability for costs was concerned, and I think in adjusting this matter, I should consider that as a legal claim, indeed as a judgment, I have examined both bills as rendered. They do not seem exorbitant in themselves, but there is a certain amount in each that is properly solicitor and clients costs charged to the respective clients, and cannot be taxed against Alpheus. I allow these bills together at the sum of $80.

The second item in his counterclaim is $105 funeral expenses of Alpheus, who died at Samuels' home. Samuel and some other members of the family arranged for the funeral and Samuel paid this out of his own pocket immediately after and long before the will was proved. The will directs payment of funeral expenses by Walter. Samuel having paid them Walker, as executor, is therefore liable to repay as was admitted and judgment must go for this $105 against Walter as such executor.

Another item claimed by counterclaim is for the use of a barn $30, which cannot be allowed. From the evidence I am satisfied it was just a friendly office or gift by Samuel to his father without any thought of reward or repayment, and the same thing applies to the $2 said to have been paid to Hay.

The Statute of Limitations is pleaded so far as these bills of costs are concerned, but I do not see why, the six years have not elapsed, and in any case the notice of discontinuance makes it a judgment against which the Statute does not operate as ordinarily.

The result is that I direct judgment for the plaintiff for $227.19 with costs on his claim—and I direct judgment for the defendant on his counterclaim for $185 and costs as above indicated. I allow the parties themselves to work out the balance and existing accounts. My reason for this is the suggestion that there might be difficulty in working out the administration of the estate and I leave the parties to find their own remedies in passing accounts in the Surrogate Court.

There is just one more matter that should be mentioned. It was not a part of the claim sued upon but it came out incidentally in evidence, that a short time before the death of Alpheus he sold some pigs, and his son Samuel received the purchase price $269.50 presumably as agent for his father. Samuel says he gave this money to his father while sick in bed, and that the father gave it over to Rose Covert, Samuel's wife, to keep for him. In any event this was the property of the deceased and Walter, the executor, is entitled to it. Application was made to add Rose Covert a party to this action and presumably to make this item a further claim in it; under the circumstances I declined to do so. I mentioned it specifically to indicate that I have not consideerd this claim at all in my judgment, and that the executor is therefore at liberty to bring action against Samuel Covert and Rose Covert, both or either of them, as he may be advised to recover these moneys belonging to the estate of the deceased father.

LATTA VS SKINKLE CASE

This is an cation for a small account in which judgment has formally been entered for the original claim $33.85. The defendant, Skinkle, however, as his crief, indeed only defence, put in a counterclaim, in which he alleges that Latta who operates a mill below Skinkle's property, has by such operation backed up the waters of a certain creek on Skinkle's farm, resulting in the material injury of certain parts of it and claims $100 damages for this injury.

Objection was at the outset made to the jurisdiction of this court under the Statute. I could not tell then before hearing the evidence from the papers filed whether the Statute would apply or not, and therefore heard the evidence which was lengthy, contradictory and unsatisfactory. It might be difficult to make a finding upon the evidence, but before being called upon so to do, I must consider the effect of the objection as to jurisdiction taken which was made not only at the opening of the case but renewed at the close of the evidence.

Skinkle the defendant, or rather the plaintiff by way of counterclaim, claims that a damage from this flooding has been long standing but specially increased in the year of 1919 by some alterations to the dam, which he says resulted in backing the water higher and making the flooding more extensive and more injurious and lasting for a longer time. Latta claims a prescriptive right to flood this land and pleads the Statute of Limitations in respect thereto. The evidence by implication, if not specifically, would seem to uphold this right to a limited extent indicating that the mill and dam for power in question have been operated there for a great number of years, probably 60. Skinkle claims for flooding, Latta sets up his prescriptive right as the defence. Skinkle then says that if the prescriptive rights exists in part that the damage has been increased by repairs and alterations a few years ago and within the limitation provided by Statute. Latta in reply to this says that his prescriptive right exists under the modern conditions and insists upon it as a defence to this action. He says in effect that although alterations were made in 1919 that the height of water was not increased, and is the same now as it has been during all the years during which his claim of prescription applies, i.e., a maximum head of 12 feet 6 inches.

After considering the matter very carefully I have concluded that the Division Court has not jurisdiction to consider this claim. I think it comes clearly within the provision of Division Courts Act, R.S.O. Cap. 63, Section 61 (a) which reads as follows:—

"The court shall not have jurisdiction in an action for the recovery of land, or an action in which the right or title to any corporeal or incorporeal hereditaments, or any toll, custom or franchise comes in question."

I think this alleged prescriptive right to the use of this dam and the waters of this creek is such an incorporeal hereditament or franchise as precludes the Division Court from adjudicating upon it. It is true that much of the evidence on both sides was not addressed to the question of the existence of such a right, but the effect generally throughout indicated a continual claim to this right and the existence of such an incorporeal franchise. This being so under the Statute I am precluded from making any finding in this Court.

If the parties desires it and consent in writing, I would make the best finding possible under the circumstances, and with the evidence already given. I doubt, however, if this will be satisfactory and without such consent the parties are of course at liberty to assert their rights in a court which has sufficient jurisdiction. In other words, the absence of any finding herein is equivalent to a non-suit, leaving the parties with their original rights.

DATED at Peterborough this 19th day of May, 1924.

Judge

MUST SWEAR TO TELL IF DOCTRINES CHANGE

SAN ANTONIO, May 19.—(Canadian Press).—Ministers, elders and deacons of the Presbyterian church in the United States, are to be asked to take a vow, that whenever they change their views regarding the fundamental doctrines of the church they will make known the change to their Presbytery according to action taken to-day at the sixty fourth general assembly of the church.

This is considered by the delegates to refer to the attitude of the assembly on the fundamentalist modernist controversy.

BOBCAYGEON MILL HAD AN ESCAPE FROM FIRE

LINDSAY, May 19.—Friday evening Becks' sawmill, near Cottage Point, Bobcaygeon, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire. The flames had gained considerable headway before being noticed, but the good work of a bucket brigade prevented its destruction. The mill will be able to resume operations in a few days.

BUDGET ACCORDS

during which period Canada enjoyed an area of prosperity unparalleled in our history,' etc.

"The tariff changes proposed in the present budget are completely in accord, in principle and otherwise, with the measures consistently and persistently advocated and practised by Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding while in office from 1896 to 1911, and as advocated by them both prior to and subsequent to that period.

Mitchell With Laurier.

As to what Sir Wilfrid Laurier's views and wishes were with respect to tariff revision in the event of the Liberal party being returned to power, there would appear to be, in your own case, no room for doubt, since you accompanied Sir Wilfrid through western Canada in his last appeal to the electors in the general elections of 1917, at which time reduction of duties on the implements of production and a revision of the tariff in the interest also of consumers were a part of Sir Wilfrid's manifesto in that campaign.

You are also familiar with the last address made in public by Sir Wilfrid and which was delivered to members of the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association as late as January 14, 1919, in which tariff revision in accordance with these very principles was proclaimed by Sir Wilfrid as the policy of the Liberal party in the future as in the past.

Loyalty Expected.

I am sure you will agree that to accord to Sir Wilfrid's memory, in tariff matters as in all else, a loyalty equal to that given him when he was in our midst is the least that can be expected of those of us who make an appeal to his name in seeking public approval of our position.

"I notice by this morning's papers that it was your intention that your letter to me should be regarded as a public communication. Members of parliament will no doubt wish to know what acknowledgment, if any, was made. Under the circumstances, I shall assume I have your assent to place on the table of the house of commons, a copy of your communiction to me and of this reply.

"With kind personal regards,
"Believe me,
"Yours sincerely,
(Signed) "W. L. Mackenzie King."

He explained that he'd had a temporary job, but had played out just before the wedding day.

"Why didn't you postpone the wedding until you could get another job?" he was asked.

"Well," he explained, "that didn't seem quite fair to the lady because, judging from present prospects, I doubt whether I'll ever find another job."

The guardians for poor relief said he'd better get one within two weeks —and provided funds to sustain the happy pair for that period.

Bartlett Seeks Secrets of the Polar Region.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(United Press).—Captain Robert A. Bartlett, famous Arctic explorer and companion of Peary on his trip to the North Pole, today is on his way back to the polar regions, this time for the National Geographic Society.

Bartlett is going on board the U.S. Coast Guard cutter "Bear", which will spend the summer months in its usual criuse in Alaskan and Siberian waters. The "Bear" this year is making what may be its last trip, for it is nearly half a century old.

Bartlett's purpose is to gather data in the far north in preparation for future aerial explorations of the Arctic regions. Thus, the famous "Bear" passing by scenes that have been familiar to it for years for the last time and may bring back information that will show the way to laying bare the secrets of the Pole forever.

LINDSAY, May 19.—Reeve John O'Reilly, a member of the Home Bank Depositors' Association, arrived home Saturday evening from New Orleans, where he investigated the operations of a street railway line running out of that city, and which was the property of the defunct bank. It is understood the utility would bring little comfort to the depositors if converted into cash.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, who has become entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—guest at the country home of

Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, from whom (unknown to all, save Prudence, who has been wrongly accused of one of her thefts) Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Performing an experiment in his laboratory, there is an explosion, and Peter is blinded. His nurse, Janet Mercer, takes Prudence to see the injured man.

Mrs. Vansittart urges Virginia, for decency sake, to go also.

CHAPTER LXXIV.

A New Happiness.

When Janet Mercer had thrust Prudence into the invalid's room and softly closed the door behind her, Peter had called out quickly:

"Who is there?"

All sorts of clever phrases, soothing little speeches had been improvised by Prudence on her many recent walks to and from Pear-Tree Cottage, to be brought forth at the psychological moment when Peter and she would meet again.

But, alas! they all fled from her now, when she most needed them.

She could only murmer:

"It's nobody but me—Prudence Page."

The invalid's lips twitched, but no sound came.

Was he angry with her? Did he resent her 'intrusion'?

"I—I—came to see how you were."

She could have bitten her tongue out for the indiscreet phrasing of the sentence, the moment she had uttered it.

"That's very kind of you. Won't you sit down?"

Was his voice purposely stiff? Had she offended him?

Or was it the natural sensitiveness of anyone in his condition?

"I'll sit here, if I may?" She drew a chair near the bed, stumbling a little as she did so, for her eyes were full of tears.

How white he looked under the confining bandages! That set look to the lips, too, betokened tension.

She mustn't stop to think that she was facing a man who had just received the agonizing sentence of eternal darkness! She must say something quickly.

"It's a perfectly lovely day, outside." The words slipped from her before she could stop them. She flushed with misery and shame to realize that this was nearly the worst thing she could have said, since the whole of nature's beauty must be closed to Peter now for ever.

"I can feel the breeze," said Peter quietly. And then he added: "D'you mind if I smoke?"

"Not in the very least." How calm he was! Prudence began to gain a little courage.

Running downwards from one of the bandages she could see a scar on his fine face. It was incredible to think that he would never see again!

But, for a time, she managed to keep up a banal conversation. She told him of the mild happenings of the village, of the farmers' gossip, of little incidents that might distract his mind.

She was startled when at last he said:

"It's going to be a little difficult to readjust myself to new ways of living Life has changed tremendously for me in the last week or two, as no doubt you know."

She was silent, trembling. He went on, trying to sound cheerful, but with a queer catch in his voice at times:

"Odd how a man's dreams can be smashed! But the only thing to do is to pick oneself up out of the ruins, and do what's possible. I'm going to get hold of J. M. Barrie's essay on 'Courage' again. I remember reading it and appreciating it quite some time ago. I little thought how desperately I'd need it myself one day!"

Prudence tried to speak, but instead she gave a stifled sob. Peter turned in bed, and held his hand out to her uncertainly, as though she were a distressed child like little Lucia, whom so many times he'd soothed and comforted.

"Don't, please, worry about me."

"I can't help it!—I—oh, it breaks my heart!" Prudence hid her face against that groping hand, and hot tears poured on it, uncontrollable tears of love and sympathy and pain. That warm flood wiped the hopelessness from Peter's heart. . . .

"Prudence! Don't cry for me! I'll soon be up and about again! S-Sh, sweetheart . . .!"

Unconscious of the endearing word, he leant over and, with his other hand, stroked the bowed head with its soft, childish curls.

"If only I could have given my—my eyes—my useless eyes—for you!" The overwhelming love and pity Prudence felt for him utterly submerged all reticence. "I'd have done it gladly, Peter! I'd do it now! There isn't anything I wouldn't do!" she sobbed.

He drew her nearer to him. The perfume of her hair was mingled with the scent of roses . . . she was a wild rose, sweet and fresh and natural—though nevermore could he refresh his soul with gazing at her unspoilt lovliness!

"Prudence!" The pain of the whole world was in his voice again—pain, and a hopeless longing. "I'm a broken crock—flotsam that the tide has flung up on a lonely shore—d'you understand?"

"I—I—there isn't anybody in the world like you," she was breathing incoherently. "I—I don't care—for myself, I mean, although it's terrible for you—I don't mind how much of a crock you are, or where the—the tide has flung you—if only it's somewhere near me—so's I can be allowed to come and see you——"

He drew her closer, all unconscious that he did so, holding on to her as a drowning man might hold.

"You care? You mean you care—a little bit—what happens to me?"

Care? What a weak, inadequate word to describe the tumult in her bosom! Broken—blinded, smashed—he loved him with the whole force of her unsullied heart!

"Peter, if you died, I couldn't go on living! I'd die too!" she whispered, brokenly.

Before there was time for him to answer, through the open window there came the sound of a woman's voice, raised high in angry argument.

"I won't see him! I tell you I won't! My nerves won't stand it!

"I won't see him! I tell you I You're a beast to try and force me!

The invalid and Prudence recognized the tones at once. Virginia Dale.

It seemed there was some protest from another person, for Virginia's voice took on a higher, more hysterical note.

"Even if I did promise to marry him before the—the accident, no sane person would expect me to go on with it now! What's that you say?

Duty? Faugh! Go and get a husband for yourself and stop preaching to me! I tell you I won't go near him! Yes, you can tell him so! I won't be tied for life to a blind man! I won't!"

On a shrill note of protest the voice died off, as though the speaker had either run away, or been dragged away.

Prudence held tight to Peter's hand, and her free left arm was round his shoulders, as though he were a little boy who must be shielded from every cruel wind that blew.

But had she dared to see it at that moment, on Peter's face there was a strange relief, a new tranquility, it had not known for many days!

THE SUMMER SCARF HOW TO WEAR IT

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 7 (United Press).—The scarf's the swanky thing this year,
In colors green or carrot,
And if we wouldn't make folks jeer,
We'd best learn how to wear it!

The ways of wearing the scarf are manifold. Every woman includes at least one scarf in her spring wardrobe, and each and every woman ties hers to suit herself. The simplest means of tying the large square of silk is to fold it until it is reduced to about six inches wide. This is then worn either with the ends hanging straight down or with the ends crossed and pinned together with a bar-pin to resemble the stock.

Many women tie the large square scarf of sheer material so that the two ends hang in the back, with the straight choker effect in front. To do this effectively one must have a scarf of sufficient length to cross in front and form ends in back which extend to the waistline. One end of the scarf should always be worn a little longer than other in this case.

Another way of wearing the scarf is to cross the ends on the left shoulder, with one end falling to the back and one to the front. Still again, the scarf may be pinned or buttoned together at one side, leaving one long end to cover the throat. This gives another variation of the choker effect. Many women like the stock effect and find the best way of obtaining this is to wrap the scarf once about the throat, placing it about the front of the neck first and bringing the ends about and tying them in a loop knot, which is held with a brilliant bar-pin.

Red, green, orange and yellow are scarf shades that are most prevalent. These are printed or batiked in colorful designs, embroidered in beadwork or untrimmed save for fringed ends.

A black and white scarf combination that is quite the rage is used on a summer frock of white silk crepe, the frock itself being entirely white, while the long attached scarf has a black border about a foot wide on the bottom. A black and white fringe finished the scarf end and there are huge white crepe roses appliqued on the black border.

Fashion Notes.

Many New York women are following the latest vogue set by Parisians: the wearing of yellow-toned hosiery. These are not extremely yellow in cast, but rather a yellowish-nude tone, and they are supplanting the pinkish nude shade. For sports wear or with the mannish tailleur, a silk and lisle mixture is preferred to real sheer silk hosiery. These are very fashionable in mottled effects, and when worn with the new lizard-skin or crocodile-skin shoes speak the latest word in sports attire.

* * *

Mannish shirts with soft turn-down collars are now being worn by the girls in New York. These shirts are exactly duplicates of the soif-collared sports shirts which are worn by men, and they are very attractive with the suit of boyish material and lines. The collar may be buttoned to the shirt in front or held together with a bar-pin. Ties of polka-dot design are usually worn with them.

* * *

Fox fur-pieces are much in vogue at present. Many times they are worn in addition to the bright-colored silk scarf with the tailored costume. Gray, taupe and nude are the favored fox shades. Flat stoles of gray squirrel or of sable, lined in bright green, are also popular neckpieces for the tailleur. A less expensive fur which follows the long scarf vogue is moufflon. This comes in various taupe and gray shades and is very soft and becoming to the wearer. Feather boas of large size are also being worn.

REDUCED BY TRAP.

Anyone With the Least Ingenuity and at Little Expense Can Build This Wave Trap.

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

While DX is the rage, the wave trap ought to be handy for fans troubled with local interference.

Especially is this simple contrivance helpful in elimination of nearby broadcasters and in reducing to a minimum reradiation from an oscillating receiving set.

Anyone with the least mechanical ingenuity and at little expense can build this wave trap. It consists of the following parts:

A 3-inch thin cylindrical form, four inches long, and composed of a good non-conducting material.

A few feet of No. 22 or 20 DCC wire.

A good 23-plate variable condenser not vernier.

A switch and five switch points.

Where great difficulty is encountered in tuning out a local station, because of its broadness in transmission, and its extreme proximity, and where there are more nearby broadcasters trying to force their programmes into your receiving set, the trap shown in diagram at right should be used.

Simpler Form.

But in the case of only a single violator in your district, the simpler hookup will do. This is constructed as follows:

Wind the 22 DCC wire around the tubing for about 35 turns and hook one end to the aerial lead-in and the other direct to the aerial binding post of the receiver. Shunt the condenser across the two terminals of the coil.

To operate this trap, set the dial of the tuner in your receiver a little off from the local station that you want eliminated and adjust the trap variable condenser until the local station's signal is as faint as you can possibly get it. Then tune in the distant station and again adjust the trap circuit.

This careful adjustment should be made without vernier attachment on the wave-trap condenser, so that you may know at exactly what point to set the condenser whenever you want to tune out the local station.

In case of more trouble than from just one local station, the more complicated wave trap should be used.

For More Violators.

On top of the 35 turns of wire, and in the same direction, wind 10 turns of the same wire, midway between the terminals. This is the primary and the larger coil the secondary of a separate inductance.

The primary of ten turns should be tapped every second turn, so that any station desired may be eliminated by variance not only of the condenser, but of the primary inductance.

In this case, the variable condenser is shunted across the secondary, but the aerial lead-in is brought direct to the primary coil of the wave trap and the switch connected to the aerial binding post of the receiver.

If the materials used in this device are efficient, the receiver should be very selective. Double silk or cotton-covered wire should be used, but never enameled or any other form of wire. The tubing must be thin and of hard rubber or other good dielectirc material.

Of all parts, the condenser must be best. It must have extremely low loss, designated so by the manufacturer, and must be efficiently built.

Be careful to keep this device about a foot away from the receiver, so as not to couple it too closely and affect reception rather than help it.

GREAT BRITAIN AND U.S. POWER IN EUROPE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 20—(United Press).—Great Britain and the United States can heal the ills of Europe by the use of commonsense, humor and fair play, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, declared here last night before the English-speaking Union and the Transatlantic Society of America.

The diplomat warned, however, against the acquisition of a feeling of superiority on the part of the English-speaking races.

MUNICIPAL CANADA.

The Pictorial Gazetteer of the Urban and Rural Life of Canada.

There is shortly being published a comprehensive volume entitled "Municipal Canada" which will list all of the four thousand municipalities in the country, and give particulars regarding each.

The ambition of the publishers of this work is to place before those who may be interested in Canada, a true picture of the opportunities which exist and the establishment of industries in our cities and towns. "Municipal Canada" is along distinctly different lines to anything which has been published heretofore, and will no doubt do a great service in advertising the country.

The completed volume will occupy something over two hundred pages, and apart from being a beautiful example of the publishers' art, will contain invaluable information. Each Province will be dealt with separately and will open with an individual title page of a suitable design, and throughout will be articles on the cities, towns and rural communities.

In addition, there will be a directory for each Province listing each community, small as well as large, describing opportunities, public utilities, banking facilities, educational opportunities, and in fact a complete picture of that place. In many cases there will be illustrations and articles of a somewhat greater length describing more fully the principal urban and rural communities in that Province.

The unusual nature of the undertaking has secured the interest of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, and of the railway companies, who are particularly interested in the colonization and development of Canada. In this respect Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific, has contributed a special signed article, and Col. J. S. Dennis, Chief of the Department of Colonization and Development of the same railway, has an article appearing on the work of his department in this connection.

The interest manifested by the Provincial Governments in the work is quite remarkable, and special introductory articles by each Premier will give an added interest to the work.

This work has apparently been underway for several months, and the first ten thousand copies are being pushed through so as to be placed at the British Empire Exhibition in June, to catch the summer rush. The copies will be freely distributed through the means of the various Governments and railway companies for the publishers.

Copies are also being mailed to the principal reading rooms and libraries, as well as to the leading newspapers throughout the British Isles.

The publishers of "Municipal Canada" are the Municipal Publishing Company of Montreal, who have been publishers of the "Municipal Review of Canada," and other municipal publications for the past twenty years. They are to be congratulated on this far-reaching effort which will no doubt accomplish a great deal of real good advertising for our municipalities, and induce settlers and money to come to Canada.

The work is one which will fill a great need and provide a reliable and comprehensive work of reference and one in which our municipalities will be directly interested.

Consumption of Cigarettes

Enormous development in the consumption of cigarettes in Canada is shown by the statement compiled for Canadian Grocer by the Department of Customs and Excise at Ottawa. Those figures show that for the eleven months ending February 29th, there were consumed throughout the Dominion as many as 2,255,642,631 cigarettes or equal to 246½ cigarettes for every man, woman and child in the country, on a basis of population of 9,150,000. Thes figures compare with a consumption of 1,163,655,470 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1914, showing that the increase in consumption has almost doubled in the ten-year period.

Consumption of package tobacco does not show much variation, the total consumed for the eleven months ending February 29, 1924, being 18,952,481 pounds, compared with 21,654,013 for the entire year ending March 31, 1914. Consumption of cigars for the eleven months total 184,766,179 compared with 288,219,892 for the entire year ending March 31, 1914.

There is shown a substantial increase in the amount of snuff used, the consumption for the eleven months of the current fiscal year being 709,384 pounds, compared with 594,747 for the 1914 period. For the same periods there were imported into Canada 14,373,861 pounds of raw leaf tobacco, compared with 18,775,803, and overweight cigarettes consumed for the same periods totalled 1,412,640, compared with 2,367,700.

That there is a considerable amount of raw leaf tobacco in store in Canada is shown by the fact that on March 1, 1924, there were in warehouse 12,358,039 cor pared with 9,685,040 pounds for the year ending March 31, 1914. For the eleven months ending February 29, this year, there were brought into this country 14,352,563 pounds of raw leaf, compared with 18,020,311 for the entire year ending March, 1914; exwarehoused for duty during the same periods 14,373,861 pounds compared with 18,775,803, and otherwise disposed of during the same periods 833,693 pounds, compared with 1,129,259.

Exports of tobacco for the eleven months ending February, 1924, show a large increase in the amount of unmanufactured tobacco sent out of the country, the total being 1,523,043 pounds compared with 196,524 for the year ending March, 1914, the total being almost quadrupled in the ten-year period.

The tremendous increase in the sale of tobacco, especially cigarettes, is of course due to ever-increasing demand, and this demand has resulted in new developments in the manner of merchandising, one of which is the greater interest taken in the sale of tobacco products by departmental stores, general stores, and grocery establishments. In Montreal for instance there is a growing tendency on the part of the grocers to handle more tobacco, not only for the purpose of profit, but as well to supply, insofar as they are able to do it, all the needs of their customers.

ENGLISH WAITERS GET ART AT HOME.

They Learn to Become Attentive and Most of All They Get Some Real Food Sense.

LONDON, May 19 — English waiters are beginning to imitate the pre-war custom of their continental colleagues in going abroad for a year or so to acquire the finesse of the profession. There they learn foreign languages, become attentive, and, most of all, they acquire the "food sense."

In old days waiters in high class continental establishments were required to put in a year each in England, France and Italy to learn not only the language but the eating peculiarities of the different countries.

English waiters now go abroad in droves every year, says the secretary of the London County Council School for Waiters. Every year the London hotel and restaurant proprietors are exacting more from their waiters, which is all against the Englishman, for the foreigner knows more about food and service than those who lack continental experience. In fact a survey shows that the whole art of the restaurant in the British metropolis is in the hands of Frenchmen and Italians.

The chief cause of the discontintent among English waiters, however, is the rank they are given when the pay envelope and the tips are in question. Foreign waiters in London earn from $10 to $20 a week exclusive of their tips, while the home-trained English waiter has to be content with about two-thirds of that amount.

The more patriotically inclined of the proprietors are advancing money to their employees to allow them to obtain continental experience, which places them at least on a parity with their rivals.

Startling Secrets Read by Science in a Single Hair

Race and Sex Can Be Traced by the Microscope, Which Discloses the Fact That a Hair Has More Individuality Than a Finger-Print

Coiffure of a Modern Beauty, Frizzed, Curled and Waved. Science, by Placing a Single Hair Under a Microscope, Could Determine Her Type.

HIGH-POWERED microscopic studies have just revealed to science a wealth of hitherto unknown, unsuspected and startling facts about human hair.

While some of these discoveries will prove of the highest value in the care, treatment and preservation of "woman's crowning glory," and of man's hirsute adornment, too, the most astonishing revelation of all is the fact that hairs, considered singly, have an even greater individuality than finger-prints!

Anybody can tell a straight hair from a curly one, or a blonde hair from that of a brunette. But under the modern microscope, the transverse section of a hair, cut straight through, as one would saw through the trunk of a tree, reveals concentric lines, layers and markings which differ with every head.

The system of crime detection which traces and identifies individuals by their finger-prints is one of the best ever devised by science. But in some ways the hair offers an even more effective method. As the result of these discoveries the great Bertillon himself drew up a classified and graduated table of hair—its color, texture and transverse structure—for use in identification and crime detection throughout the world.

"Henceforth, the burglar who already wears gloves when on the job for fear of leaving finger prints will have to keep his head shaved, too," says a French scientific writer in Le Temps, commenting on the results already achieved.

How hair can reveal more than finger-prints is interestingly explained in detail.

Suppose investigators have on the table before them, under the microscope, the finger-prints of two individuals, whom they do not know and whom they wish to identify. The only thing they can tell from the finger prints is that here are two individuals who leave different marks when they touch an object. They cannot form any picture of the individuals for whom they are looking. They cannot say, "This is a pale-faced, weakly man, of such-and-such coloration and appearance, while the other is a dark-skinned brute, probably very strong and a day-laborer." They cannot always say with certainty, "This person is old or young," or even "This person is a man, and that one a woman."

But suppose, on the other hand, that they have two hairs, and that these are both black, straight, of the same length, and nearly the same texture. After a complete microscopic study, particularly of the transverse cuts through the hair, which present an even greater diversity of rings, layers and structure than the trunk of a growing tree, they can say:

"This first hair is from the head of a woman of about thirty, of the Caucasian race, brunette, slender and physically weak, of a pallid coloration and uneven temperament."

They can say of the other:

"This second hair is that of a Hindu, a man; middle-aged, and probably terrific in strength, but light-skinned rather than dark-skinned for a person of his race."

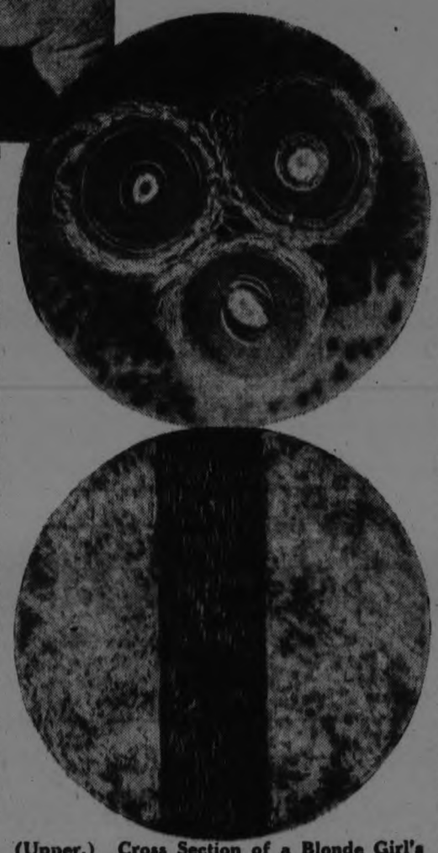
In other words, they can tell from a single hair the sex, complexion, general physique and physical appearance, and in many cases the precise race to which the individual belongs.

They probably could not tell an Englishman from an American, or a Spaniard from a Frenchman, but they can tell you whether he is Caucasian, Chinese, Hindu, or American Indian, for in these sharply differentiated racial types, they have found corresponding differentiations in the hair structure.

They have found out also what makes a red-headed girl's hair red—and they show in their microscopic pictures the difference between her pigment tubes and those of a girl with ordinary blonde hair. The former are larger and contain more coloring matter. Scientists have found why one girl has naturally straight hair, another wavy, while a third has hair that is naturally curly.

In the matter of the care, preservation and treatment of the hair, these newest discoveries have exploded a few old fallacies, but have confirmed the body of medical opinion on the subject, while adding many interesting fresh facts.

The hair has a life of its own, as completely separate from the life of the individual on whose head it grows as the life of a stalk of wheat is from that of the earth in which it grows. This is most simply shown by the fact that hair will remain alive and actually grow for several days on the head of a person who is dead



(Upper.) Cross Section of a Blonde Girl's Hair. Note the Concentric Rings Like Those of a Tree-Trunk.

(Lower.) Cross Section of an Athlete's Hair, Possessing a Strong, Dark Pigment Tube Which Gives the Key to His Manner of Life, Health and Activities.

Hair, for that matter, is infinitely stronger, tougher, more vital than wheat or grass or any of the other growing things which it resembles. If a woman gives her hair the same care that a farmer gives his wheat in the field, the proper air, nourishment and cultivation, she can then do things to it that almost no other living growth could stand without destruction—combing, dyeing, crimping, waving, curly, "skinning it" back tightly, training it in fantastic directions.

The reason why there are so many bald-headed men and so few bald-headed women is that while women inflict all these supposed "atrocities" on their hair, they also nourish and cultivate it, while many men do nothing to their hair, either good or bad—they just neglect it completely and let it "go to pot."

Then, when they are bald, they sometimes spend thousands of dollars, and employ many desperate expedients and futile inventions to get their hair back—all useless if they are really bald, for once a human "dome" becomes hard, smooth and shiny, no miracle has yet been discovered by science that will make the hair grow again.

One of the facts which these microscopic studies have confirmed is that too much soap and water are bad for any hair. Natural oil is one of its chief foods. Too much washing removes the oil and devitalizes the follicles. The hair should be thoroughly washed only once every two weeks, and then if there is any lack of natural oil, vaseline or some similar safe substance should be carefully massaged into the scalp around the roots.

Here are some newer facts discovered by the microscope: The "permanent waving," which has been roundly condemned by some people—the same sort of people who erroneously used to condemn cosmetics as injurious to the complexion until science proved them wrong — if properly and carefully performed, does little or no harm to the average hair. Only for the woman who has hair of extraordinarily fine and fragile texture is permanent waving seriously harmful, and at worst, the microscope shows, it is not as bad as the old-fashioned hot curling irons used at home.

In the matter of dyeing or coloring the hair, the microscope has revealed that some forms of this practice are extremely harmful, while others are almost wholly harmless. The woman who uses peroxide to turn her hair lighter is doing her hair the greatest possible injury, because peroxide is not a dye at all, but a powerful chemical bleach that permanently penetrates the entire structure of the hair, destroying natural coloring and vitality alike.

The woman, on the other hand, who resorts to henna, a simple and harmless vegetable dye, if she uses it properly, can do so without destroying the natural vitality of her hair.

And the woman whose hair is gray or turning gray can, with a clear conscience, have it dyed, by an expert, without fear that she will ruin its strength and growth. But it is difficult ever to restore it to the perfect white which is often equally beautiful.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Annual Meeting of Women's Institute -- Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, May 20. — The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. C. Thorndyke, the following officers being elected for 1924:

President, Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke.
Vice-President, Mrs. T. H. Aiken.
Secretary, Mrs. Wilbert Thorne.
Treasurer, Miss E. Grandy.

The new flag purchased by the Institute for the flagpole in front of the Town Hall to replace the one which has been in use for some years and is now worn out, has been received, and will be ready for use on the 24th of May.

The plants which the Institute is distributing this spring were on hand on Saturday, and were given out as the members or those purchasing by special order, called for them. Mrs. Thorndyke and Mrs. Aiken were were kept busy all afternoon attending to this matter, the store lately occupied by E. Mitchell's bakery in the Dominion block being utilised for the purpose.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $590.00, the disposal of this to the best advantage of the community having not yet been decided upon.

The next meeting of the Institute will be held on the second Saturday in June at the home of Mrs. Fred Smith.

The annual public meeting of the Institute will be held on Wednesday, 28th May, in the Presbyterian Sunday School Room at 8 p.m., the speaker being Miss Esther Slicter, of Kitchener.

Miss Slicter's subjects, of which choice will be made as to the most suitable for an audience here, are: "Winter Evenings on the Farm," "Saving Strength in the Household," "Co-operation Between Home and School," and "Food for the School Child." There is no admission, the object being educative only, and the general public is cordially invited.

Among the vocal pupils of Prof. George H. King, Peterborough, who took part in the recital which was given under his leadership last week were Miss Marie McBain and Daisy Murray, of the 12th Line, Cavan, and Miss Ilein McKim, a former Millbrook girl, all of whom acquitted themselves most creditably.

Died—In Millbrook, on Sunday, 18th May, Lovinia Burr Graham. The funeral (private) will take place from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. W. E. Russell, on Tuesday, 20th May, by motor to Queensville Cemetery. By special request of the deceased, friends are asked to kindly omit flowers.

Mrs. J. Hickson, of Janetville, her daughter Pauline, and her son Arnold, with her sister, Mrs. Deyell, were guests of Mrs. A. Widdess, of Fallis Line, on Sunday.

Two of the pupils of Miss Ina Allen, Miss Phyllis Richards, and Mr. F. N. Alcorn, took part in her recital held in Peterborough last week. Others from here who intended motoring in for the evening were prevented by the unfavourable weather.

Mrs. Hary Armstrong, of Toronto, is visiting her mother, Mrs. S. Eakins Sr., coming from the city on Saturday.

Mr. W. Bolton of Peterborough, a personal friend of Worshipful Brother W. G. Rowland, W.M., delivered a very fine address on the origin, development, and purposes of Masonry, following the regular business section of J. B. Hall Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 145, on Thursday evening. The attendance was large, and the social spirit encouraged by the excellent supper served before the gathering was finally brought to a close.

Mr. Bolton was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Rowland during his stay in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mitchell have moved to the house on Main street recently vacated by Mr. H. Blue nad family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armstrong, 8th Line, Cavan, were in Toronto last week, having to take their baby boy to the hospital for an operation. Mrs. F. Smith, Mrs. Armstrong's sister-in-law, and her little daughter, Bernice, stayed with the other children during their parents' absence.

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' church held its May meeting on Monday afternoon, May 19th, at the home of Mrs. John Dawson, an encouraging number of members being in attendance.

The report of the annual Diocesan meeting held last week in Toronto, given by the delegates, Mrs. (Rev.) M. Williams, was the main feature of the programme, proving both instructive and interesting.

The president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen completed the reading of the study book, "Japan in Transition," which has been taken up during the past year, and which has given the members a new insight into the problems affecting that Empire.

The usual correspondence and other business items received attention, and Mrs. Dawson served lunch before the guests left for home. This was the closing meeting until September.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Many men complete the arrangement for a purchase and say, "I'll mail you my check." The merchant is entirely satisfied with such a statement.

We hear so often and so much about graft and dishonesty that we sometimes overlook the fact that utter faith in men is the keynote of modern business.

How much actual cash do you use in your business each day? Probably very little. Checks largely take the place of money; paper money is much used and its existence implies faith in the Government. What a nuisance it would be to start off on a trip weighted down by gold and silver enough to finance the journey!

We write little slips of paper which can be quite safely and conveniently mailed and we receive similar slips from our debtors. To the clearing house is left the task of balancing the various accounts and settling up such little cash as must actually change hands.

Such faith is called credit and is the rock on which modern business is built.

"I have suffered for a whole year with my kidneys. After taking Dodd's Kidney Pills my trouble has gone, and I am now quite well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a family remedy because people have tried them and found them good, help Rheumatism, Lumbago, Diabetes, Lame Back, Heart Disease and Urinary troubles, because all of these are either Kidney Diseases or are caused by the kidneys failing to do their work.

PASSENGER STEAMER DESTROYED BY FIRE

CLEVELAND, May 20. — The passenger steamer State of Ohia, one of the oldest on the great lakes, was destroyed by fire at the municipal pier early to-day, with a loss of two hundred thousand dollars. John Lee, aged 70, a watchman, is believed to have lost his life on the steamer.

ON THE SILVER SCREEN

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, May 20.—Four high-power screen comedians, Ben Turpin, Charlie Murray, Kalla Pasha and Harry Langdon, foregathered on the Mack Sennett lot, were regaling themselves, as funsters will, with recollections of grief in their checkered careers.

"When slapstick events occur in real life they aren't so funny," groaned Ben, focusing his eyes on the tip of his nose. Charlie Murray's lip trembled. Pasha stroked his red beard. Langdon turned pale in retrospect.

"I'll tell mine first," continued Turpin. "When I was a young fellow I earned a living pulling taffy at country fairs. Used to throw strings of taffy over a big hook outside the candy booth. Used to pretend to throw it at someone in the crowd, then yank it back just in time.

"One day when I made a swipe at a fat man in the crowd he mistook which way I was going to swing it and dodged the wrong way. I laid a big collar of red-hot taffy around his neck. He let out a demoniacal yell.

"Someone whispered to me, 'Better beat it, kid—he's the chief of police!' He was—chief of police of Cincinnati.

"The next freight leaving town carried a badly scared taffy expert to far parts. I was never the same again. Fact, that's how I got into movies. Got a job in Chicago with the old Broncho Billy outfit."

Kalla Pasha, the terrible Turk, broke the melancholy spell:

"I used to hire out as a 'subject' for a hynotist," spake he. "My part was to allow the 'professor' to pretend to stick pins through my cheeks. One time we slipped up. An unfriendly sheriff came on the stage to see if we were faking. Instead of prtending, the 'professor' actually had to stick the pins in. The audience liked it immensely. Even called for encores. That was the only time I ever exercised restraint in my acting. I couldn't even groan."

"When I graduated from a medicine show to the stage in an act of my own I drew $25 per week," mournfully contributed Harry Langdon. "Then I got married. With my wife a member of the company, and a member of the act, we drew a total of only $30, whereas before our joint earnings had been at least $55. Arithmetic always did bother me!"

Charlie Murray saved Langdon from a complete emotional breakdown by rude interjection.

"At one time in my career," whimpered Charlie, "when I belonged to a troupe of traveling tumblers we hit a town where a 'Romeo and Juliet' repertory company was also scheduled for the same night. The other troupe didn't show up, and the manager begged and bribed us to put on their show.

"Al lany of us knew about 'Romeo and Juliet' was that there was a duel and a balcony scene. We finally decided to combine our tumbling act with the drama, in costume. We tumbled the duel scene, with swords on. Then a girl and I climbed the balcony scene. Each time I climbed I'd fall back on the stage with a couple of turns in the air. Then 'Juliet' leaped to my arms and we did a double cartwheel off stage. We expected to get the hook for slapsticking Shakespeare, and he probably turned in his grave, but the town hailed it the biggest hit that had ever come that way."

Sadly the cortege of comedians moved off to the business of being funny.

WHAT LOOKED LIKE A DYING FAD IS COMING BACK TO LIFE AGAIN

Bobbed Hair Fad Has Undergone a Gland Treatment — Everybody In Peterboro Is Doing It—One Girl Lugs a Pair of Scissors Around.

"To bob, or not to bob, that is the question" that occupies the mind of nearly every lady, young or old, who has reissted the call of the shears up to the present time. What looked like a dying fad has of recent months undergone a rejuvenation, ...undergone a gland treatment, as one might say, ...that has given it an entirely new lease of life. It is a revival that will double the tenure of existence of the fashion, or is it merely the desperate spasm of a declining style in hair-do? No one knows.

Everybody is doing it. The most staid of matrons is likely to confront her family and friends at any moment nowadays with a cropped poll, and the girl who asseverates with emphasis today her determination to retain her locks may meet you tomorrow with a triumphant gleam in her eye, and a shorn head. It's like an epidemic. No one knows where the germ will harbor next. The ones that are already bobbed spend a good deal of their spare time in trying to persuade their still unwavering sisters to succumb to the fatal virus. One girl has perfected herself in the tonsorial art so far that she has provided herscif with a pair of scissors, which she goes around, offering to do the job gratis for her friends.

An entirely exploded argument which is very popular with the bobbed legions, in their verbal attacks on the antis is the one that asserts the saving in time afforded by the bob. An earnest investigator has ascertained that the half hour saved in the morning by the shorn one, who contrives to give a mental picture to her family of a mere glance at the hair-brush as sufficeint for her matutinal coiffure, is wiped out entirely and a deficit in time substituted in its place by the inroads on the young lady's spare moments spent in the following activities; looking at her bob in the glass; shaking her head in the popular fashion to give it a fluffy appearance, if the brush type of cut is worn, or smoothing it down if a sleek head is preferred; describing to her companions the various merit of the many styles of bob, as applied to her own particular type of beauty, and last, but not least, the curling of the aforesaid head. Even with the swirl type of boyish cut in use now, many curl their locks. Also, whereas, with long hair, the young ladies used to spend hours at night doing them up in papers or kids, now they refuse to curl their own. They patronize a hairdresser every time.

The bobbed head is possibly the last stand of the female of species in her desire for emancipation from the galling chains of femininity, unless, in sooth, she adopts the suggestion of Ruth St. Denis and discards skirts altogether in favour of the bloomers which that sprightly lady advocated with such zest. The modern young woman clipped off her skirts at a rate that aroused the horror and alarm of wide-eyed moralists, she wore transparent hosiery and transparent blouses in quantities that threatened to cause apoplexy amongst protesting spectators, she cut off the tops of her shoes and the neck of her gowns and the sleeves of her dress, she trimmed her eyebrows and now she is doing away with her hair, at a rate that is estimated by plodding mathematicians to drive her to baldness somewhere about 1950 A.D. She is the despair of the hair-net manufacturers and a torment to milliners, who are forced to make the small hat a perpetual centerpiece in their displays. But when she gets tired of shaving her neck, possibly she will allow her hair to grow again.

And she isn't the first, by any means. If the movies are to be credited, the ladies of King Solomon's Court in all its glory were bobbed, in many instances. The Wise Man's queen favored a straight cut, with a vampish-looking type of uncurled ringlets and a bang, but Tamah, the Wise King's joy, liked the brush cut, and she allowed her locks to swirl and eddy about her shy countenance in a fashion that looked for all the world like a moulting scrubbing-brush. Eve, in the Garden of Eden, had long and abundant locks, which probably goes to show that the curse of changing styles and frantic desire to keep up with them was just one more of the many evils that befell womankind after the First Lady succumbed to curiosity and at the apple.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine power from any drug store — sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth — rub over the blackheads briskly — wash the parts and you will be surprised how the backheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

38 SNOW STORMS A YEAR

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., May 20. (United Press).—It is reported from the town of North Hudson in Essex County that there were more snow storms during April than in any of the winter months in that section of the Adirondacks. There was a total of thirty-eight snow storms in the township since last autumn.

SOUTH SEA WHALING PAYS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, May 20.—(Associated Press).—The Norweagian whaling expedition which has been working in the Ross Sea, has returned to Stewart Island with 221 blue whales and a number of finbacks. Seventeen thousand barrels of oil, including by-products, have been secured.

Imperialism Denounced By British Clergymen.

BIRMINGHAM, England, May 20.—(Associated Press).—Imperialism and its social structure find few advocates among the present-day leaders of Protestant churches in England who have been meeting here for the Conference on Christian Politics, Economics and Citizenship.

Several attacks upon imperialism had been made when the Rev. H. Hogarth rose to protest against imperialism being regarded as necessarily selfish.

"Are we wrong?" Dr. Hogarth asked, "when in singing 'Land of Hope and Glory' our hearts re-echo to the line 'God who made the mighty, make thee mightier still?"

"Yes!" cried the delegates.

"Then we must scrap the monuments to our national heroes in Westminster Abbey," retorted the speaker, to which the delegates loudly agreed.

"Was the campaign of Lord Kitchener in the Soudan wrong, and were Christian statesmen like Lord Salisbury wrong?" Mr. Hogarth continued.

The delegates gave the same response and the speaker gave up his questioning.

By an overwhelming majority the conference passed a resolution to ask the Government to abolish capital punishment. The motion was introduced by C. R. Simpson, a London Quaker.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterboro, May 19, 1924.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—All lovers of flowers should visit Court House Park and see the lovely display of 5,000 choice tulips.

It is some years since Peterboro had such a beautiful display as we have this year, and the city is very fortunate in having such a caretaker as we have this year.

Nothing is too much trouble for him to make the parks look the very best, and the city is getting one hundred per cent. value for services rendered.—Yours truly,

TAXPAYER.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Peterborough, 18th May, 1924.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—May I crave a little space in which to write a kind word for the League of Nations. Many worthy local societies which we support are necessarily circumscribed in their field of operations; but here is an organisation whose influence for good is world-wide.

While other good societies are dealing with individuals the League is dealing with nations. It is doing good work in a big way. What it has already done for Austria alone, in my humble opinion, justifies its existence. But I believe it to be a fact that it has saved the world from what would otherwise have resulted in five wars, and it has also done an immense amount of remedial and preventive work along social lines, which cannot even be mentioned in a short letter.

The League merits strong and widespread support not only for what it has already accomplished, but also because the logical conclusion therefrom is that great things may confidently be expected from it in the future.

It is hoped that there are a large number your readers who will show, by supporting the League, that they have the ability to appreciate what is really one of the most beneficent organisations in the world to-day.—Yours truly,

J. C. Smith.

SHIPS HELD FAST IN ICE

PHILADELPHIA, May 20. — (United Press).—Thirty-six ships were marooned for twenty days in a huge ice-field in the Baltic Sea, according to a tale of the sea brought here by the crew of the steamer Puget Sound.

A Detroit lad, Robert Eubank, a 19-year-old messboy, was drowned in the Atlantic on the Puget Sound's voyage to Europe when a huge wave swept him overboard during a storm. After leaving Copenhagen for Helsingfors the ship struck the worst winter experienced in the Baltic Sea in twenty years. It became frozen fast in the ice 50 miles from the Finnish port of Hango, Feb. 26. The ice field extended for 150 miles on either side of Hango and many miles out into the Baltic.

The ice which held the ship fast was 7 feet thick. Thirty-six cargo and passenger boats were caught in the huge field and were unable to move until the ice broke. At time the ice was piled up by the high winds against the side of the ship and threatened to smash her sides. The Finnish icebreaker Vorina came to the rescue and broke the way in the ice to Helsingfors.

A Little of Everything

FOUR-FLUSHERS

Most crimes are staged at night; evil loves darkness. Where there's secrecy, something's usually being hidden.

The purpose, in opening income tax returns to public inspection, would be mainly to expose people and corporations with large incomes who manage to conceal part of their earnings and get off with low taxes.

More entertaining to the public would be the exposure of four-flushers who make less than they claim. Many a $10,000-a-year front masks a $3,000-a-year income.

CRIME

A Chicago man, accused of a $30,000 swindle, is quoted as indignantly protesting to the court: "What, me take 30 grand! Not me, judge. I don't waste my time unless there's a hundred thousand bucks in it."

It is sometimes much safer to steal a million than $5, unfortunately, when it comes to the law and punishment. But the law doesn't make the distinction. It's just that the rich thief can afford an army of crafty lawyers able to find loopholes or delay the case. The small-time crook isn't able to hire such an array of "talent."

LOSERS

Cable from London reports that the British during the first four months this year imported about 400 million dollars worth of goods more than they exported. This puts them in the hole at the rate of 1200 million dollars a year.

And in this situation is the key of present British diplomacy. Above all, they want trade—customers. That's why they hand an olive branch to Russia and insist on a reparations settlement such that Germany can get back to normal production and buying power. The flag follows trade more than trade follows the flag.

WEATHER

Makers of auto tires have seven and a half million tires stored in their warehouses. This is almost as many as three years ago when hard times started.

The manufacturers blame the weather—backward spring, which has kept people indoors instead of motoring. That's probably why the auto industry recently slumped. It also explains sluggish retail sales in many cities. No wonder, people talk so much about the weather, which directly affects every one's pocketbook.

INDISPENSABLE

When Edison, a quarter of a century ago, saw the auto demonstrated as a practical device for widespread use, he was most impressed with the possibility of it becoming the means of getting the public to go camping outdoors.

Time proves he was right. But the auto, originally appealing to imagination as a pleasure vehicle, has become more of a business device. Its chief use is for saving time. Without it, street car transportation would have broken down long ago. What do you predict for airplanes, which eventually will be used by the millions?

PENALTY

Convicted of stealing $23 and a watch from a sailor named Kama, a man in Brooklyn, N.Y., is sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary. War profiteers, reading this, will realize how fortunate they are.

The fellow who robbed the sailor was handed about a year for every dollar of loot. If the same system were applied to the war-profiteering looters, a dollar a year, some of them would be in jail. . . Boy, fetch an adding machine.

OLDEST HORSE IN WORLD IS OVER 50.

Beavers Frequently Live 50 Years, Lions 60, Cats 18, But Is a Lucky Horse That Reaches 25 or 30.

Clover, claimed to be the oldest horse in the world, soon has his fifty-first birthday. He is well cared for in his old age by his owner, a retired clergyman. In a stable at Catawissa, Pa., Clover has a double blanket and insulated stall, the finest of bran mash and oats—in short, everything to make him the envy of less fortunate old horses. Jockey Club of New York pensions him.

The oldest horse in the world—only 51 years!

"Clover's a youngster," will say the elephant who usually lives to 150 or 200 years. Emphatic nods of approval from the parrot, eagle, tortoise, crocodile and raven—all of whom have a century as their life-span.

But Clover will be envied by the proud peacock, which lives only 24 years at most, about the same longevity as the toad.

Beavers frequently live 50 years, lions 60, cats 18. But it's a lucky horse that lasts 25 or 30 years, so Clover is a real exception. Scientists should examine him, try to find out what has made him live so long. He is like a man living 200 years.

Has Clover been a bred loafer or a hard worker? Interesting to know. It might teach us something about ourselves.

Nature makes decided contrasts in periods of life allotted to various livin things. Contrasted with the elephant's longevity of 200 years are insects which are born, mature, reproduce and die within 24 hours or less.

Some trees live for thousands of years.

There must be some definite purpose—some reason why all these various forms of life are included in nature's plans. But it is difficult to understand why the useless parrot lives four times as long as the horse and almost twice as long as man.

The average monkey, in his natural jungle state, lives 18 to 20 years. Man, his cousin, now lives an average of 56 years in our country. We are a healthy race, not far behind the New Zealanders. They are the longest-lived of all nations, rounding out 60 years on the average, before death intervenes.

In 1870, according to medical statisticians, Americans died at an average age of 41 compared with 56 now. Matured people, however, die at about the same age as in the past. The average of human life has been raise chiefly by cutting down the death rate among babies and children in early youth.

RUFFLES

Very full wide ruffles edge some of the new summer coats, and the ruffled sleeve is not at all unusual.

OH, FOR A CHAMP'S LIFE!

Major ..., [illegible], [illegible] Grand, the world champion draft horse, layed the cornerstone of Chicago's new million-dollar riding club. The major, who is 10 years old, works for Wilson & Company, packers, when his social engagements permit.

Lakefield Correspondence

LAKEFIELD, May 20.—There will be a vote taken on June 2nd on the by-law connected with the Lakefield Brass and Copper Co. This company propose to settle in the village, and ask a little assistance from the Municipality, viz., that the village guarantee their bonds to the extent of $20,000 and that they grant a fixed assessment on the land, building, and plant, and business assessment for the term of ten years at the sum of $3,000. In security for these concessions the village will hold a first mortgage on the land, building and plant.

The company, through their representative, W. C. Hunt of Toronto, have secured an option on a lot on Queen Street, north of the C.N.R. tracks, on which the factory will be built if the by-law carries. The building will be constructed of stone, brick or concrete, and will cost at least $10,000, and with the plant and machinery the total cost will be $33,000, and from 20 to 60 men will be employed.

A meeting, to discuss the proposition previous to the vote on the by-law, will be held in the Memorial Hall on Monday, May 26, to which all the ratepayers are asked to be present. This matter is one of great importance to the village and should be thoroughly understood. Mr. Hunt will address the meeting and will explain the situation.

The marriage took place in Toronto, on Tuesday, May 13, of Frieda Viola, eldest daughter of the late Joseph McIlmoyl and Mrs. McIlmoyl, formerly of Smith, now of Lakefield, to Wilbert Henry Burton, younger son of the late John Hull and Mrs. Hull, of Lakefield. Mrs. McIlmoyl gave her daughter away. The bride wore a navy suit with seal scarf and gold tissue hat and was unattended. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. T. Bartlett, of Toronto, formerly of Lakefield, who married the groom's parents.

The young couple left on the 5.30 train for Niagara Falls, N.Y., where they will reside. Mr. and Mrs. Hull, who are well known in the village, have the best wishes of hosts of friends.

Owing to the fact that the Easter beginners at the Public School number nearly forty little folks, the School Board have fitted up the ground floor room, formerly used as a play-room, and engaged Mrs. Gordon Northey as teacher for these wee ones who have just set foot on the road to knowledge. The school is taxed now almost to capacity, which indicates a decided growth in the population of the village and is encouraging.

Owing to the wet weather, the baseball club were not able to begin practice till Friday night, when a satisfactory practice was held. The team will open their season on Friday next at Campbellford when they will play an exhibition game.

On May 29th they play their first game in the East Peterborough League with Curve Lake at the latter place.

On Sunday morning next Rev. Walter Cox will preach in St. John's Church on "Citizens of No Mean Country," referring to Empire Day, which is Saturday next.

Mr. J. Roy Robinson has purchased the Conden property from Mr. George Nicholls of Smith, who recently bought it. This place was built by Mr. Richard Strickland, a son of the late Colonel Strickland. It afterwards was bought and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mellor. At their death, Mr. Sidney Hunter bought it and lived there some years. About sixteen years ago, Mr. John Condon purchased the property and resided there till his death. The property is situated on Chippewa Street and is one of the finest places in the village.

If Dame Rumor is correct, the village will lose one of its outstanding faults this spring. For years it has been customary to inform the clergymen who come to settle among us, no matter what their creed, that "Lakefield is a beautiful place, but there are so very few weddings." One clergyman who resided in the village for five years had not married one single couple from his own congregation, and another, soon after his arrival, found, on studying the church records, that there had been no weddings for nine years. Dame Rumor says that 1924 is going to be an exception to this rule, and that not one but a good many couples have fallen victims to Dan Cupid's darts, and that weddings will not be a novelty in Lakefield this year.

The Lakefield Citizens' Band have augmented their funds by the amount of $70, the proceeds of the band concert given by the Salvation Army Band.

The twenty-fourth of May, falling this year on Saturday, will mean a number of week-end visitors in the village. This holiday, though seldom celebrated by any large local demonstration, is always popular as the first of the holidays when one can use the fliver, which is always a popular summer rendezvous, especially for young people.

The fashion of bobbing the hair is even more popular than ever, and more and more young girls and women are following the lead. In most cases the effect is charming, as the "bob" is highly becoming.

CLAIMS INVENTION

Wm. A. O'Rourke, a deaf and dumb citizen of Peterboro', who resides at 476 Bolivar Street, has just perfected a device which he is having patented through the Ottawa office, and which he claims will revolutionize the present type of automobile license number plate. Mr. O'Rourke's device is a piece of celluloid, stamped with number, year and name of province, illuminated by means of an electrical appliance. The inventor claims that traffic ofienders may be more easily apprehended by this means and that it will be of great assistance to officers of the law.

COUGHED NUT INTO LUNG.

Died Before Cause of Illness Could be Diagnosed— Doctor Thought Asthma Trouble.

TORONTO, May 20.— As the result of coughing a peanut down into her lungs, June Estella Halsey, aged two years and seven months, only child of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Halsey, 1074 St. Clair avenue west, died at 3 o'clock Sunday morning before the doctors were able to diagnose the cause. Little June went out for a walk with her mother Friday evening, and kept begging for some peanuts which Mrs. Halsey had bought. Finally her mother gave her three. Immediately after eating them, the child was seized with a violent fit of coughing.

When she was taken to Dr. L. C. Palmer on Saturday, the little girl had all the symptoms of asthma—her chest was wheezing and her breath came with that peculiar asthmathic sound. Strangely enough, she had previously had several attacks of asthma, and, accordingly, the doctor treated her for this.

Peanut Caused Death.

She did not respond to treatment as patients usually do, and the doctor realized that something else must be causing the trouble. She died before the source of it was discovered, as her parents did not think of the peanuts until too late.

In auy case, nothing could have saved her life, as one lung was entirely collapsed. A post-mortem examination conducted by Dr. Palmer and Dr. Joseph Jordan showed that there was one whole peanut in the lungs and pieces of another.

NEW PADLOCKS HIT BROADWAY

U.S. Gets Temporary Injunctions Against Rendezvous, Hollywood, Silver Slipper.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Before summer is over Broadway will be known as The Great Dry Way.

This was the prediction at the United States Attorney's office following the second drive within a week on cafes, cabarets and restaurants where liquor violations are said to be "flagrant." Federal Agent Ralph Oyler, aided by four operatives, two men and two women, raided three more rendezvous of Manhattan noctambules early last week—the Silver Slipper, the Hollywood and the Picadilly.

The raids followed close on the spectacular closing of nine of the best known cafes in the bright light belt, known as the Salvin-Thompson string.

Places Not Closed

Prohibition agents do not claim that the drying up of Broadway is already accomplished, but three of the "other places" are now posted with notices of temporary injunctions, secured by Assistant Federal Attorney Lyman Ward.

The Rendezvous, the Hollywood and the Silver Slipper are not forced to close, but a sign was posted beside the doors stating that temporary injunctions have been issued against them, restraining them from further violating the prohibition laws.

If further evidence is secured against the management of the three places preemptory proceedings may be instituted to permanently close them. With the injunction posted on their premises proprietors who continue to violate the prohibition laws are subject to arrest for contempt of court and liable to a fine of $1,000 and a year in prison.

In speaking of the closing of the cafes and the issuing of temporary injunctions Assistant U. S. Attorney Ward said:

"The padlock cocktail is composed of equal parts of John Barleycorn plus real estate, situated in any part of the Southern District of New York plus one or more sales of liquor. It takes a year for the headache of this cocktail to wear off."

AN AWFUL ATTACK OF PIMPLES ALL OVER HIS FACE

Pimples breaking out on the face and other parts of the body is a sure sign that the blood is not in proper shape.

While the skin is the object of the attack the real seat of the disease is in the blood on account of the entire circulation being poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually banishes pimples and all other skin diseases as it goes right to the root of the trouble by cleansing and enriching the blood.

Mr. Conrad Anderson, Kelfield, Sask., writes:—"A year ago I had an awful attack of pimples. They broke out all over my face and I could not get rid of them in any way. One day a friend told me about your Burdock Blood Bitters and let me have a bottle he had to spare. After using it I noticed a change, so I bought three more bottles, and now I don't know there is such a thing as pimples."

FIND CHIROPRACTOR WITH BROKEN SKULL

Patient Sought by the Police Surrenders, but Denies He was the Assailant.

NEW YORK, May 20.—John O. Vollmer, sought by Newark police in an assault with a hammer which may cost the life of George A. Neilson, a chiropractor with whom Vollmer boarded as a patient, surrendered there last night. Vollmer disappeared after Neilson was found at home with his skull crushed.

Vollmer denied he was the assailant, saying he had given himself up as soon as he had read in the newspapers that a general alarm had been broadcast for his detention. He was held for questioning. He recently had suffered a nervous breakdown following financial reverses, police said.

James Boot, an expressman, went to Neilson's home, 140 Belleville Avenue, about noon yesterday. He failed to get a response after repeated ringing of the bell, and was about to leave when Neilson staggered to the door and collapsed in Booth's arms. Booth gave the alarm and Neilson was taken to City Hospital, where it was found he had a compound fracture at the base of the skull, which left the brain exposed.

Investigation by the police revealed a machinist's hammer beside Neilson's desk.

With her eight-months old baby, Mrs. Neilson, who had returned from her studies at the United States School of Naturopathy in Roosevelt Avenue, told the police that Vollmer, the patient, had been a deep in his room when she left for her classes. A general alarm was sent out when he could not be found.

Neilson's endurance under seemingly atal injuries was attributed to the practice of the physical culture principles of which he and his wife were advocates. Under their care their child had been developed into something of a physical prodigy. At ten weeks he was able to stand alone, and at three months he balanced himself upon his father's hand.

Vollmer, who was taken for treatment about three months ago, was steward for the South Orange Field Club a few years ago. Later he went into the real estate and loan business, where he prospered, but was reported to have lost $50,000 in a restaurant deal several months ago. He still was very nervous, Mrs. Neilson told the police.

Detectives at Neilson's bedside at the hospital said he once murmured "Vollmer" on regaining consciousness for a few minutes. When Vollmer walked into Newark Police Headquarters he showed no excitement and professed surprise that he had been wanted. He explained he had been taking a long walk. No charge was lodged against him. He is 55 years old.

WALES LIKES TO SNEAK OUT WITHOUT GUARDS AT HEELS

BY MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, May 20.—The Prince of Wales and I traveled together the other afternoon from the French harbor of Boulogne to the British port of Folkstone. So did about 1500 other Englishmen, Americans and Frenchmen.

The prince had a first-class ticket—just like mine. He had an ordinary cabin on the ship—just like the kind I could have had next door to him, had I wanted to spend 30 shillings for it.

He was on his way home from Le Touquet, wheer he had been having a little holiday.

Had he been the president of the United States or the big man of any other country outside of England, he would either have traveled in a ship given him alone or he would have had the entire portion of the boat reserved, roped off and guarded, so that the rest of us could not tread the sacred boards in front of the royal cabin.

Mingled With Passengers

But the prince, traveling as the Earl of Chester, chose to mingle with his fellow passengers. And I mean just exactly what I say. He strolled the deck when the breeze on the English channel freshened up, just like the rest of us. In fact, I almost bumped into him when the ship gave a lurch.

H ewas wearing a light tan overcoat that could be duplicated on Broadway for about $45 and pulled down tightly on his forehead was a cap of the same color. Like most of us, he was vigorously puffing away at a cigaret.

The only sign of protection I saw was a well-groomed, eagle-eyed man who scritinized those who walked past the prince. But there was no barrier, beause a young American girl tourist rushed up to him with a piece of paper and begged for his autograph.

When we arrived at Folkstone, the English train, entirely made up of Pullman chair cars, was waiting for us. The only difference between the prince and myself was that I found my car to myself, whereas a railway official escorted the prince to his. But he didn't have a private car. He had bought a compartment just like the rest of us.

There are lots of affairs where the prince had to dress up in gorgeous uniforms and speak and be spoken at. But when he has an evening without anything on his official calendar, then is the time he really enjoys himself.

He used to slip out of the palace without letting anybody know where he was going. But his royal mother worried over this and secured his promise to quit. So now he usually goes out with Lord Louis Mountbatten or his confidential adviser, Sir Lionel Halsey. If he goes alone, a Secret Service man is notified by him and goes as his shadow.

And the prince has the kind of fore he returns to that theater, adventres that tickle his sense of fun. Recently, at a big Piccadilly Circus theatre they weer showing an American wild west film. The prince went in alone, asked for a ticket for the stalls, was told there were none left and accordingly went out.

Doesn't Like Cards.

As the prince loves to dance, he spends many of his evenings at places where any well-dressed person who has the price may go. After about two hours of this, he will take a taxi to one of his favorite clubs—the Marlborough or the Guards or the Bachelor's—where he will sit down with a bunch of men that he knows, drink a whisky and soda, and listen to a lot of yarns.

He is rarely seen in a card game, differing in that respect from his grandfather, King Edward. He is not much on reading, either. He gets his information at first hand.

They say he is not keen on the prospect of succeeding to the throne. As prince, he can slip away and have a good time. As king, he couldn't do this.

And if there is one thing that makes him sore, it is for somebody to disregard the fact that he is knocking about as an ordinary human being. Not long ago he went to a theater, and the manager thought it was his duty to buzz around. The prince became furious.

WOMAN'S PLACE IS WITH FAMILY.

Rumanian Diplomat Can't Understand How American Women Interest Themselves In Politics.

(By Marian Hale.)

WASHINGTON, May 20. — The American woman's interest in politics is incomprehensible to Madame Rose de Covarrubias Nano, wife of the charge d'affaires and secretary of the Rumanian embassy at Washington.

"I can't see why a woman should interest herself in politics or be interested in a profession or in business unless it is really necessary for her to support herself," she told me.

"And I cant understand a woman going to what you call the "polls" and rubbing elbows with men and becoming entangled even in an impersonal way with things political. The European woman does not look at politics with the same eyes you American women do.

"I should never think of employing a woman doctor or woman lawyer," she went on candidly. "Somehow I cannot bring myself to imagine a woman becoming efficient in either profession. To me a womans place is in the home, and in society, in the general sense of the word. Perhaps it's just being old-fashioned."

Though she does not understand the attitude of the American woman toward public life, she really sees much about us to admire.

"The Americans are the most beautiful women in the world," she announced, without adding one qualification. And since she is the acknowledged "queen of beauty" in the capital city, we may well value her opinion.

"The costuming over here is excellent," she said. "Paris is regarded as the centre of fashion, of course, but since I have lived over here I have been wondering just how long it will be before this leadership in style is handed over to America and New York given preference over Paris."

Regarding beauty in general, she believes:

"Beauty of form is better than beauty of face, but a beautiful behavior is far better than a beautiful form—from this we reap more of an esthetic thrill than from statues or pictures. I should say beauty of behavior is the most glorious of all the fine arts."

She believes that beauty is merely the love of measure or proportion.

"In my companions,' she concluded "I imperatively demand homage to and perception of beauty. I could dine more at ease with a person who was immoral or unmoral than with one who was unpresentable. I do not believe for a moment that beauty is 'skin deep. The depth of real beauty goes far below the surface."

COLOR WILL TEND TO BRIGHTEN HOME

Without Color a Room Would Look Either Overbright or Dull and Drab.

The proper blending of color in the furnishing of a room is what furnishes life and vim to the surroundings.

Without color a room would look either over-bright or dull and drab. Color is what tones down the brightness of monotonous sunlight or brightens up the grey, heavy feeling of a dark room.

But color can easily be overworked. It needs an intelligent understanding of color and its possibilities to make a room look beautiful and inviting. Without that a person who naturally leans to one tone and doesn't understand its significance might overdress the house with that color.

Color properly originates in light. The bright sunlight is really a mixture of all the colors on earth. More properly, al lcolors are derived from the bright sunlight.

Therefore, in choosing a colorful piece of upholstery or curtain, you can tell its true tint only under bright sunlight, where it is in its natural element. The yellow electric light shows another but the true color.

Chief Pigments.

White sunlight may be divided into three primary colors—yellow, red and blue. From these, in proper proportions, come all other colors, tones, tints and shades, from the brightest to the gayest. White and black are not colors, but they mix with the colors or their derivatives to make further tones or pigments.

All colors or tones are divided into two classes—the warm or advancing colors, and the cool or retiring colors.

Yellow, orange, red and their derivatives are the warm, advancing colors. Blue and green and their derivatives are the cool colors. Violet is a neutral tone.

In Practice.

This must be remembered especially in furnishing a home properly. For example, a room that has large, wide windows and opens out to the south, from which it gets bright sunlight most of the day, expresses a bright, warm atmosphere without the use of color. What it needs to tone down the monotonous brightness of it is the use of the cooler, more retiring colors here and there.

On the other hand, a room with one small window, and facing into a court or to the north, needs the brighter, warmer colors to enliven it.

It is color that brightens up or conciliates with nature. Its proper use in a room produces an inviting atmosphere under any condition.

IN A RUN OF BAD LUCK

Did you ever try to do something that you simply could not accomplish, no matter how much effort you put into it?

We are not referring to impossible tasks, but to cases where a sort of invisible presence seems to frustrate us, as if we were on the wrong track and being warned away.

You've heard people say: "I've been trying to do that thing for months. But something always goes wrong whenever I get busy on it."

The element of luck or fate intervenes.

We know a man who is a star traveling salesman. It is quite plainly his intended work, but he dislikes it. Time after time, having saved up a "grubstake," he has quit salesmandhip and tried farming in various forms—from truck gardens to chicken ranches.

He puts his last ounce of effort into these excursions into farming. But somehow he is never able to make a go of it. Always he fails and is driven back to the selling game.

This salesman says: "I have decided that every one is put on earth for some definite purpose. We succeed if we do what we were intended to do in this life, even though it is not what we want to do. Nature endows us with certain gifts or abilities for doing what we were intended to do—our mission on earth. If we stick to our plain duty, we'll be reasonably prosperous."

You probably have read "Twenty Years of Hustling," the book that used to have such a big scale in auction rooms.

It is a history of its author's life. For 20 years he roamed, trying all sorts of schemes, mostly street selling. Every time he'd go broke, he'd get out an old formula he had, and mix up a batch of polish. It was fine polish, sold like hot-cakes, always pulled him out of the hole.

It took him 20 years to waken to the fact that his fortune was in this polish. Then he settled down, built a factory, manufactured polish on a big scale, became very successful.

Making and selling polish was what he was intended to do.

The thing we do best and most easily is the thing we are intended to do. Yes, even though it isn't what we want to do.

As the vaudeville booking agents say: "When they can sing they want to dance. And when they can dance, they want to sing."

Hems Important.

Hems this season are of great importance. Frequently they are of a different material and color from the dress proper.

Why Gum Dipping Increases Tire Life

A tire in use is being constantly bent backwards and forwards by road action. Such movement generates friction and heat that has a deteriorating effect unless the tire is built to withstand it.

Gum dipping puts a coating of new live rubber around each separate cord that keeps it from rubbing against the cords that lie next to it.

In the carcass of a Gum-Dipped Cord there is less friction to generate heat. It stays cooler and therefore lasts longer. Gum-Dipping, with air bag curing, rubber tempering and other special Firestone processes, produces a tire that is stronger, more resilient and easier riding.

Travel on Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords. They add to your enjoyment of motoring and their extra mileage without extra cost is the truest source of economy. Ask for Firestone Steam-welded Tubes. They help tires give more mileage because they are leak-proof.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Earton

SINBAD THE SAILOR

"You must carry me around all the rest of your life."

"Where would you like to go today?" asked Mister Muggs.

"Does Sinbad the Sailor live in Once-Upon-a-Time Land?" asked Nick.

"Yes, indeed, he certainly does," answered Mister Muggs. "He has by far the grandest palace in the whole place."

The Twins got into the magic automobile, and it rattled away past seven seas and seven lighthouses, and came at last to a country so gorgeous that they were almost blinded with its beauty. The roads were paved with amber, the fences were made of onyx, the very pebbles were moonstones, and the houses were made of gold.

The palace itself was built of a hundred kinds of gems which flashed and sparkled in the sunlight.

Sinbad the Sailor, now a rich prince, sent word for them to come in at once when they arrived.

So the three visitors sat down on a pile of silk cushions and tried to feel as much at home as they could

"I'm so glad you came," said Sinbad, hospitably. "I was just wondering to whom I was going to tell my adventures to-day. I've told my story to so many people there is hardly any one left who hasn't heart it. What would you like to hear about? The time the giant bird threw a rock on my ship and wrecked it, or the time I was left in the Valley of Serpents (each of them big enough to eat an elephant), or the time I got lost in the diamond valley and tied myself to an eagle, or the time I nearly starved on a desert island, or the time I——"

Mister Muggs looked at his watch, "If we listen to all your adventures, oh, most gracious prince, we wouldn't be home until time for the movies on Saturday night, much as we should enjoy staying."

"Well, then," laughed Sinbad, who was as good natured as he was rich. "I'll tell you about the Little Old Man of the Sea."

"Oh, yes, we'd love to hear that," cried the Twins, pulling their cushions up nearer.

"Well," said Sinbad, "I was lost on a desert island on one of my travels, when suddenly across a little stream I saw some trees hanging with delicious fruit. I was about to cross when a little old man appeared and begged me to carry him over.

"I picked him up and he sat on my shoulders, crossing his legs under my chin as though to choke me.

"Now," said he, "you must carry me around all the rest of your life."

"Oh, no, I'll not," said I, "nothing of the sort. I'm not in the taxicab business."

"But do you know, the more I struggled the tighter he held, and I couldn't shake him off.

"Some sailors happened to land on the island for drinking water, and the Old Man ran off, or I suppose I should be carrying him yet. They brought me safely home. The orchard belonged to a wizard, and he kept the Little Old Man there to protect his fruit.

"If you come back again I'll tell you another story."

"Thank you," said Nancy and Nick. "We'd like to come back tomorrow."

PARLIAMENT WAS A HORNETS NEST

Hon. T. A. Lowe Was Cause When He Rebelled Against Restrictions of Civil Service Commission.

OTTAWA, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. T. A. Lowe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stirred up a hornet's nest in Parliament last night when he mildly rebelled against the restrictions placed upon Ministerial prerogatives by the Civil Service Commission in respect of the selection of a Trade Commissioner for Canada.

Mr. Low's intimation that he found it difficult to secure most desirable men under the prevailing system was construed by both the Conservative and Progressive groups as an insinuation of the thin edge of the wedge of the plea for the return to patronage, and brought down upon him severe rebukes, notably from the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Joseph T. Shaw (Labor, Calgary), and L. A. Le Seuer (Conservative, Lambton West).

Mr. Meighen advised the Minister to "quit whining," and to produce in Parliament some alternative to the system operative under the Act. If the Ministry was dissatisfied, he said, let it bring forward something constructive.

The gist of Mr. Low's criticism was to the effect that the candidates for trade posts were now selected on the basis of academic test rather than with regard to their probable fitness for their duties as "glorified salesmen."

FIRST DRY COURT IN HISTORY AT HOLYROOD

EDINBURGH, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)— His Grace "Jamie" Brown and his guid wife, now Her Grace, performed their first public function last night, when, in the Throne room of the ancient Holyrood palace, the old miner, as representative of the King, received the keys of the city, presented in accordance with the time honored custom by Lord Provost.

All around stood a crowd of gorgeously uniformed men and beautifully gowned women, forming part of the new Lord High Commissioner's Court, Marchioness of Ailsa attending Mrs. Brown as lady in waiting and Marquis of Clydesdale standing by Brown as aide, while halberdiers carrying lochaber axes formed the guard of honor.

A state banquet followed, Mr. Brown escorting the Duchess of Athol, while Mrs. Brown was led to the table by Lord Provost. No intoxicants were served at the request of the High Commissioner. It was the first dry court ever held in the history of Holyrood.

LAKEFIELD I.O.O.F. ATTENDED CHURCH

Sermon at St. John's Church By Rev. Walter Cox--Peterboro Brethren Present.

LAKEFIELD, May 20.—The members of Lakefield Lodge No. 358, I.O.O.F., paraded on Sunday evening to St. John's Church. The local brethren were augmented by a number of members of the Peterboro' Lodge. Rev. Walter Cox, Past Grand Master of the I.O.O.F., preached the sermon. The text was taken from the epistle of St. Paul to the Galatians, chapter six: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ."

This year is the 105th anniversary of the establishment of Oddfellowship on this continent. In England there exists what is known as the Manchester Unit, and from this our lodge sprang. Five lonely Englishmen met in Baltimore in a room above a bar, one hundred and five years ago, and banded themselves together for the betterment of their fellowmen. An Oddfellow must be a believer in God, otherwise he could not join any lodge.

At present there are 3,000,000 Oddfellows in this continent and the order has always stood for the advancement of God's Kingdom, and for the betterment of their fellowmen. In the Great War no fraternal society gave more to the cause of liberty and justice than did the Oddfellows, and last year a memorial was unveiled in Toronto by the speaker to the memory of fifteen hundred Oddfellows whose bodies lie on the fields of France and Flanders.

After the sermon, the choir sang, 'God So Loved the World," from Stainer's Crucifixion.

Besides the Oddfellows, who numbered about 50, there was a large attendance at the service.

The marriage of Miss Carrie Pearson, youngest daughter of Mr. Francis Pearson, of Lakefield, to Mr. Carl W. Larden, of Tarentum, Penn., took place on April 24th. The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Blizter, of Milwaukee, Wis. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Larden will take up their residence in Buffalo, N.Y.

A number of people had plants and early vegetables nipped with the frost on Sunday night. The high northwest wind was penetrating and quite a number of citizens started their furnaces again. Spring is, apparently, loath to come.

HEART WAS SO BAD HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Mrs. O. E. Fitzgerald, 106 Ross St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes:—"In the Fall of 1921, I was taken ill with my heart, but I did not pay much attention to it. I kept on with my household duties, but seemed to become worse and worse, and finally had to call in a doctor. He said I was all run down and was a nervous wreck. I had a severe pain in my chest which would move over to my heart and it became so bad I could not lie down, as when I did I had such a smothering feeling I would have to sit up in bed till it passed away.

I tried several remedies, but with no good results. Finally, I was induced to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took 7 boxes, and I am now as well as I was 30 years ago, and I am now 65 years old."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FABLES ON HEALTH

"That child certainly does sleep," Mr. Mann would observe as he tiptoed into the room.

"Yes—thank goodness," Mrs. Mann would echo. "We don't have much trouble in that direction."

But there are many who do.

The active, playful child needs a great deal of sleep and rest—the more the better.

The minimum amount of sleep that statisticians allow for children from two to four years is 12 hours. And from four to six years 11 hours.

Sleep and rest insure a greater resistance when illness comes. Also it helps to retain weight and increase it. Children who get insufficient sleep are soon likely to show it through losses in weight, Fatigue is likely to follow, with loss of appetite, irritability and nervousness.

The child should have its own bed—in the open, if possible—or in a well ventilated room. A daytime nap should be insisted upon, and there should be great regularity in the time of this nap as well as in the child's bedtime.

MURRAY STREET CHURCH CONCERT

An interesting and somewhat unusual programme was given in the Murray Street Baptist Church last evening, when Herbert Piercy, entertainer and elocutionist, of Collingwood, held the attention of his audience for over two hours with his summary of "Les Miserables," Victor Hugo's immortal story of the convict, Jean Valjean.

The power of interpretation possessed by Mr. Piercy made his reading of the somewhat sombre story a very finished production. Without recourse to notes, he gave a brief version of the tale from beginning to end, his memory evidently being perfectly trained. Also, without extreme use of facial expression or dynamic elocution, he made the character of Jean stand out in relief against the unfolding tale of his adventurous existence.

Mr. Piercy, in the pauses of his presentation of "Les Miserables," which was given in four sections, interspersed the narrative with humorous selections, several of which were original compositions of his own. His style in elocution is just a little different to the majority of entertainers, and he possesses a well-modulated voice, used with skilful effect.

The full-robed choir of the church, led by Dr. S. J. Graham, rendered several pleasing selections during the evening, in excellent voice, including a Gloria, in English, from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, and a lovely setting of Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory." The singing by the choir, in unison with the entire audience, of "O Canada" was the third musical number. Miss Muriel Bridge presided at the organ.

To compress the voluminous book of "Les Miserables" into a reading that gave an intelligent summary of the story, bringing out the salient points, and presenting to his audience a well-etched delineation of the character of Jean Valjean, its hero, was an exacting task, adequately handled by Mr. Piercy.

The reading opened with the harbouring of the ex-convict by the good Bishop of Beauvais, whose influence and good counsel directed the steps and influenced the life of the desperado, sending him on a path that led by bitter ways to a noble goal. Touched by the abounding charity of the old priest, the hardened wretch became in time a philanthropist, doing good to all with whom he came in contact, succoring the helpless and oppressed, and giving aid to the unfortunate. The atmosphere of Hugo's book, a somewhat gloomy tone pervading the entire tale, was apparent, and the reader did not depart in any way from the text of the story. Hounded by his relentless enemy, Javert, Chief of Parisian Police, Jean evades him time and again, only to be drawn by his own will and the abiding power of the Bishop's influence, back into the galleys. When another unfortunate is about to suffer for petty thievery committed by him in days past, Jean, now the rich and influential Mayor, gives himself up to the law and returns once again to slavery. His rescue of a drowning sailor gives him a chance to escape, and, with Cosette, the child of an unfortunate woman whom he had befriended, he goes to Paris. The old happenings that throng in the book through Jean's Parisian days lives for some years in safety, venturing forth once more to reside in a Parisian mansion, and give Cosette a chance to see the world.

Then follow in swift succession his discovery by Javert, his part at the Barricades, when the Revolutionists fight for freedom, and his momentous escape through the Parisian sewers, with Marius, the lover of Cosette. And then the finale, with the reader simulating the dead Jean, after bidding farewell to the young lovers.

Intermission selections given by the entertainer were of a nature to provide an excellent contrast to the narrative, and included a rendition of a harrassed visitor striving to tell a small boy the story of George Washington and the cherry tree; a very funny pantomimic delineation of a bachelor sewing on a button; and two original numbers, one a sketch illustrated with song, of musical career of Maggie McNutt, and the other, an imitation of a little boy trying to say his "piece" for the first time, followed by a realistic mimicry of a lady doing up her hair, with hairpins and hot iron curler. These brought much appreciative applause.

The elocutionist was introduced by Rev. Mr. Rose, who also spoke briefly in warm, eluogistic terms of his performance, at the conclusion.

The choir and friends and Mr. Piercy were entertained later in the Ladies' Parlour by the Women's Association of the church.

FRIGHT RESTORES BABY'S FACULTIES

Silent, Motionless, Two Years, Child Talks and Walks as Truck Backfires.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., May 20.—Helpless for two years, without power to move or talk, "Dicky" Herman, three, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Herman, is to-day a laughing, active youngster, restored by sudden fright, instilled in "Dicky's" childish brain by the roar of a powerful motor truck engine.

The child, lying in his mother's arms and terrified by the unusual noise, moved. For the first time in two years the baby arms were clasped convulsively around his mother's neck, and "Dicky," silent since the accident of two years ago, when he fell downstairs, cried "Mamma!"

According to physicians, the cure is permanent. "It was a miracle," the mother said.

To-day "Dicky" is running around the yard at the Herman home, Altamont Avenue. His legs, inactive for so long, are still weak but are steadily gaining strength. His voice is strong.

"Dicky's" miraculous cure came about when the Hermans were moving from their former home, Bridge Street, this city. Mrs. Herman was seated in the front seat of the motor van carrying her furniture. She held "Dicky" in her arms.

The driver cranked the motor. There was a backfire — a terrific noise—and "Dicky" threw his arms around his mother's neck and cried "Mamma!"

TELL MILK VENDORS TO OBSERVE REQUIREMENTS OR SURRENDER PERMITS

Four Were Reported This Morning Under the Required Test For Butter-fat and One Was Dirty —If Not up to Standard License Will be Cancelled at Next Meeting.

BOARD OF HEALTH

At the regular meeting of the Board of Health this morning four milk vendors were warned that unless their milk is up to standard on the next report their licenses will be cancelled.

They were: A. Stalker, less than required butter fat; H. O'Neil, less than required butter fat; S. Huston, dirty, and less than required butter fat; and E. C. Harper, less than required butter fat.

The regulations require 3 per cent. butter fat in the milk.

The following is the report of Dr. A. Y. McNair, who makes the tests monthly. The third column shows the bacterial count:

Isolation Hospital

A report was read from W. R. Turner regarding the heating system in Queen Mary Hospital, in which he said the radiators in most rooms are too small and the feed system not sufficiant. He recommended the increasing of direct steam radiation and other improvements that would increase efficiency and reduce fuel expense and fuelling labor.

E. Mel. Turner, who was present at the meeting said, he thought 40 to 50 tons of coal would be the limit for a year whereas now the amount used is 75 tons. The fuel bill averages $2000 a year.

At present if an accident put the boiler out of commission there would be no relief and the hospital would be closed until repairs came from Buffalo.

Mayor Turner moved that W. R. Turner be authorized to make the necessary alterations to the heating system as reasonably as possible.

Mr. Lynch thought tenders should be asked for.

The chairman said several plumbers had approached him.

Mr. Lynch: "Mr. Turner would probably give us the best of service, but all citizens should be treated in a fair way and I would certainnly not vote for that resolution."

Mayor Turner withdrew his proposal and seconded a motion by Mr. Rogers that the Dunham Co., be asked to prepare plans and specifications for the heating system.

In discussion of the heating, Mr. Rogers mentioned the jacket heater used to provide the hospital with hot water. It was said that thirty or forty tons of coal are used a year to heat a 350 or 400 gallon tank, whereas with only the nurses and a few patients in the building a small 60 gallon heated would serve the purpose. The Utilities committee will be asked to quote on a heater of this class.

Repair Roof

Repairing of the roof on Queen Mary Hospital will cost $450 according to one estimate. Tenders will be asked for.

Sewage disposal was discussed at length and City Engineer Parsons reported that he is working on the plans for serving the Isolation Hospital and the low-lying houses on Smith street and in that district. He will report at a later date.

There were present this morning, Chairman G. H. Duncan, Mayor J. J. Turner; J. Lynch and Claude H. Rogers. Sanitary Inspector Charles S. Stapleton and Plumbing Inspector A .G. Metheral were also in attendance.

LINDSAY TO HOLD AN OLD HOME WEEK

The Programme Will Consist of Everything From Horse Races to Music and Refreshments.

The programme for Lindsay's Old Home Week, to take place from June 28th to July 5th, has been arranged in tentative fashion by the committee in charge of the arrangements, with James Boxall as president, and J. W. Deyell as secretary. Additional details remain to be worked out, but the programme as it appears at present, gives a fine idea of a very attractive week of entertainment for visitors. The preparations include all sorts of jolly events, with a varied programme, which ranges all the way from music to athletics, from an old-time school day, to horse races. On Tuesday, July 1st, "Toronto Day" will be celebrated, when all arrangements are in the hands of an energetic committee from the Queen City, who are already promising a series of surprises for their hosts.

An entire Musical Day has also been planned, with at least eight bands on parade, one of which will be the 57th Regimental Band from Peterborough.

A Picnic Day, a Baseball Day and a day of horse racing, are also on the programme. And one of the most interesting events will be the occasion when the Old Boys and Girls are asked to attend school, on the morning of Monday, June 30th. At the Millbrook Old Home Week last year, the attendance at an old school day, with every one exchanging school day reminiscences, and several of the former teachers present, was unanimously voted the most entertaining occasion of a jolly event. The only expression of regret connected with it was the briefness of the gathering, the Old Boys and Girls getting so much fun out of their sojourn in the old school house that they wished to lengthen their stay with old-time companions.

NO TROUBLE IN PAVING BY-LAWS

City Council in Special Session Last Night Decided the Question.

At a special meeting of the City Council last night the contracts for paving were awarded to the Warren Bituminous Paving Company of Toronto and John Carroll, of Peterboro, for bitulithic and concrete paving respectively. According to the plan at present in force, the following streets will be paved with bitulithic pavement: Water Street, from Brock to Dublin; McDonnel, from Aylmer to Reid; Argyle, from Water to Sunnyside, and Water, from Antrim to Smith. Concrete will be laid on George, from Romaine to Lansdowne, and on Water, from Smith to the Canadian National Railway.

On discussion of the paving project, Aldermen McIntyre and Crowe sponsored a resolution to give the concrete work connected with the bitulithic pavement to R. Sheahy and Sons, of Peterboro, but were without supporters.

It was decided to advertise the Council's decision to pave Murray Street, from Aylmer to east of St. Paul's Church, and Antrim, from George to Water. The latter is instead of paving Smith Street, from George to Water.

The problem of parking cars in the city was introduced by Alderman Jones and will be taken up in committee.

Alderman Crowe referred to the passing of the C.G.E. by-law by a large majority and to the assurance of the company that the contract for building would be let shortly after public approval was given it, and suggested that in view of conditions in the city it would be well for the company to make a statement as to when operations would start. There are many men idle in the city, he said, who are looking forward to the opportunity for employment the C. G. E. extension will give.

Mayor Turner explained the difficulties the company is working under, and said a change in plans whereby a much larger plant than had been planned would be erected had held up the work. He had been assured by Mr. E. G. Patterson that an announcement might be expected in a few days.

The renting of the city's road roller for road construction will be looked into with the object of obtaining satisfactory returns, on suggestion of Alderman Stocker. A report will be presented at the next meeting of Council.

Two money by-laws introduced by Alderman Phelan were read and passed, as were by-laws authorizing agreements with the paving companies, introduced by Alderman Morrison, and a by-law to fix the assessment of the C.G.E. Company introduced by Alderman McIntyre. By-law 2493 passed last year, providing for certain paving to be done in concrete was amended by a by-law last night to allow the work being done with bitulithic pavement.

ST. GEORGE'S HAD ANNUAL BANQUET

Rev. W. R. and Mrs. Courage Were the Guests of Honor.

Last evening the annual banquet of St. George's A.Y.P.A. was held in the Parish Hall. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Courage were the guests of honour. The banquet, though the most successful since the inauguration of the A.Y.P.A. was tinged with regret, in the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Courage will shortly leave for theUnited States.

The toast to the A.Y.P.A. was proposed by the president, Mr. L. J. Fields, who spoke of the pleasure it gave him to be the president of such an organization.

The toast to Mr. and Mrs. Courage was proposed by Mr. Robert Brawn, who on behalf of the A.Y. P.A., expressed the regret of the members in the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Courage. He spoke of the interest which they had always shown in the A.Y.P.A., and their wiliingness to assist in any way possible.

Mr. Courage on behalf of Mrs. Courage and himself, thanked the members for their kindness and expressed the desire that they would have the pleasure of meeting the members of the A.Y.P.A. at some future date when they might visit Peterborough again.

After the banquet, the installation of the officers for the following year then took place. The officers are:

President—Mr. L. J. Field.
Vice-President—Miss M. Huxley.
Secretary—Miss I. Parks.
Treasurer—Mr. F. Dorrell.

The balance of the evening was spent in games and music, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

PUTTERING AROUND

The family gets set for an afternoon out. The auto is oiled up and gassed.

The kids clamour in with a whoop and a shout and everything's ready at last.

Then dad takes the crank and he gives it a spin. He's greeted with rattling and clatter. The engine is stubborn, it just won't begin, and gosh only knows what's the matter.

So mother just sits while the youngsters throw fits and dad takes the tools from the rack. There's plenty of frettin' while father is gettin' right down to what's holding them back.

It's tinker with this and it's tinker with that, perhaps till the day's mostly done. The engine is fixed—then a tire goes flat when the auto is ready to run.

The family was set for an afternoon grand to go a put-puttering 'round. But dad did his puttering, not as he planned ,but with both of his feet on the ground.

HONKERS.

More than a million passenger cars and motor trucks were turned out by American factories the first three months this year. Some bankers and auto industry leaders are beginning to fear over-production. They fear it because it would result in price-cutting wars.

The auto business is freer of monopoly than any other basic industry. Monopoly is to prices what gas is to a balloon. How long until gigantic "mergers" will begin among auto makers?

TRINITY CHURCH IS FREE OF DEBT

Community Gathering Was Preceded by a Banquet.

Last evening, in connection with the special services commenced at Trinity Methodist Church on Sunday, to render thanks for the freeing of the church from debt, a community gathering was held in the form of a social evening, preceded by a banquet. Guests of honor were two former pastors of the church, Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, of Napanee, who was the minister when Trinity Church was founded, some eight years ago, and Rev. Dr. F. E Malott, of Belleville, who furthered the work during his pastorate, which preceded that of the present incumbent, Rev. A. J. Langforn.

The musical programme which followed the service of the banquet was much enjoyed, especially the choral selections. The choir, augmented by about forty voices, did some splendid work with an echo effect in the east gallery, during the preceding Sunday evening services, showing the result of skilful training.

Last evening, in the basement of the church, a sumptuous banquet was prepared, to which about 500 sat down in two companies. For the occasion the basement had been tastefully decorated with bunting and flowers, the effect being a very pleasing one.

Following the banquet the gathering made their way to the church auditorium, where a meeting was held. Rev. A. J. Langford, the pastor, occupied the chair.

Mr. George Morrow, the trustee-treasurer, gave his report, showing how well everything had gone on since the foundation stone of Trinity had been laid up to to-day, when they were rejoicing because the church's indebtedness had been entirely wiped out.

The following gentlemen also spoke briefly, congratulating the people of Trinity on the splendid work accomplished by them during the brief time of eight years in which the debt had been cleared off: Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D.; Rev. F. E. Malott, D.D.; Rev. W. H. Young, His Honor Judge Huycke and the Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., B.D.

Following the above speakers the chairman announced he had received telegrams from G. N. Gordon, Esq., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, and the Rev. Dr. Wallace, first pastor of old Charlotte Street Church, congratulating the people of Trinity and expressing regret at not being able to be present on such an auspicious occasion and wishing them continued success and prosperity in their work and labor of love. The chairman, in his remarks, touched on the fact that although they had come to the climax of a portion of a great undertaking for which they were devoutly thankful, yet it was only the first part of a great undertaking they had in mind, and which he felt sure the people who had done so nobly and well during the last eight years would still continue their good work in the second part of the undertaking, which was the building of a new Sunday school on the south-east corner of the lot on which the church stands, the chairman thereby emphasizing what the treasurer had briefly touched upon in his report.

During the evening selections were rendered by the choir, with vocal solos by Mrs. George H. King and Miss Isabelle Black; a vocal duet by the Misses McBain and Murray, and a violin solo by Mrs. Foster. Hearty thanks were tendered the ladies for the magnificent way in which they had made the banquet the success it was, also to all who had in any way contributed to the success of the whole great occasion.

A very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem and the Doxology.

AMERICA'S DRINKING-STRAW HABIT RUNS OUTPUT UP TO 4,000,000,000 A YEAR

New York, May 20. — Arrival of the open season for ice cream sodas draws attention to a fact that America dominates the world's market for artificial drinking straws.

Due to a "Yankee mania for sanitation" and the adoption of quantity methods of manufacture, the American output of artificial straws has increased from 165,000,000 in 1901, to 4,000,000,000 a year at the present time.

A manufacturer pointed out yesterday that laid end to end these straws would build an ant's subway sixteen times around the world at the equator.

SOME FAMOUS VIOLINS

Three specially fine sample Violins by the great French maker DELIVET are now being shown by The J. M. Greene Music Co., Ltd., Charlotte Street.

Delivet Violins are similar in general characteristic to the Vuilleume instruments, which during the life of that maker sold at about the same prices as Delivet instruments are now being sold, but which to-day are worth from $1,000 to $2,000.

Delivet instruments will possibly be even more famous and valuable because of several characteristics peculiar to Delivet, both in construction and varnish.

Auguste Delivet was born in Hirecourt in 1861, and served apprenticeship with his grand-nephew, Victor Rambeaux, the well-known Violin maker, later following through in several well-known establishments, until establishing for himself and becoming the outstanding maker of his day.

He took part in the Exposition Universelle in Liege in 1905, where the jury awarded him the Grand Prix.

The instruments are works of art in models and workmanship and particularly their varnish and tone, and teachers, students, and all interested in this art will be delighted to see these splendid examples of Mr. Delivet's work.

CEREMONIES PLANNED FOR HOLIDAY OPENING

Kingston Ponies Will Be Peterboro's First Opponents At Riverside This Year on May 24—Ponies' Praisies Loudly Sung In "Winter League."

Arrangements are being made for an appropriate opening of the Central Ontario League season at Riverside Park on Saturday (Victoria Day), when the Kingston Ponies will clash with the Petes in a game that should be full of fireworks.

The press agent of the Kingston crew has boosted his outfit so strongly that he has aroused the ire not only of the Peterborough crew, but of the fans as well, and there will be a record crowd out to see if the Ponies are as good as the Kingston Standard has claimed.

The Limestone outfit have a new battery in Kelly, a sturdy left-hander, and Rickman, a hard-hitting catcher, and with all of last year's team, including Harry Batstone, in line, the visitors will undoubtedly make a big effort to do something they failed to do last season—beat the Petes at Riverside Park.

It is expected that Messrs. G. N. Gordon, M.P., and W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., will take part in the opening doings.

There has been a re-arrangement of the admission prices this season, bringing the charges here to a level with those charged around the circuit. The general admission will be 50 cents, and for the better accommodation of the fans there will be no charge for the river stand—for which 10 cents' admission was charged last year.

The main stand charge will be 15 cents for gentlemen, as against 25 cents last year, while ladies will be admitted to the stand free as usual.

Two Indians Won Fortune on Race

TULSA, Okla., May 20.—Two Cherokee Indians, Bill Fleetwood and Frank Touchstone, are $250,000 richer as a result of the victory on Saturday of Black Gold in the Kentucky Derby.

Black Gold, it will be recalled, was bred in Oklahoma and was trained by R. M. Hoots, an Indian.

The two Cherokees, playing a hunch, bought up tickets in the winter books, placing $1,000 at 40 to 1 in New Orleans, $2,000 in the West at 20 to 1, and $3,000 in Chicago at 20 to 1, besides all the other good bets they heard of.

To-day they love Black Gold better than oil.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. Is it possible to make a substitution for a base runner, and still have the original player remain in the game?

2. In case of rain or muddy field, who is the sole judge as to whether or not the game should be started?

3. In case a game is stopped by the umpire, because of rain, is there any time limit as to when the game can be resumed?

ANSWERS

1. Only by consent of the captain of the other team.

2. The manager or captain of the home team is the sole judge as to the fitness of the field for starting play. After play once starts, it is entirely up to umpire during the rest of the game.

3. The time limit for many years was 30 minutes. Now under the new ruling the umpire can wait as long as he sees fit.

GIBBON'S FIGHT UNDER PROTEST

American Legion Interested in Carpentier-Tunney Match and Approach the Governor of Indiana to Interfere.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 20.—Governor Emmett F. Branch is pondering the question.

"What is a prize fight in Indiana?"

The Governor let it be known that if he is convinced between now and May 31, that the Gibbons-Carpentier match scheduled at Michigan City,, Ind., is a prize fight, he will order it stopped. To date, he indicated, he has not been convinced.

The Indiana law prohibits prize fights and permits boxing matches, but does not distinguish between the two.

Edward E. Spafford, commander of the New York Department of the American Legion, accompanied by local Legation officials, called on the Governor yesterday and Spafford protested holding of the match in Indiana. He told the Governor Carpentier's manager had made representations that the contest was to be a prize fight. It was also brought out that the New York Department of the Legion stood to lose a large sum of money if the Indiana fight is not cancelled as the New York Legion had been promised a percentage of the receipts of the proposed Carpentier-Tunney match to be held in New York in August.

Billy Evans Says

There seem to be no limit to the disputes that can arise on the ball field.

No sport produces anywhere near the number of unusual situations that happen in the national pastime.

Not a season passes in the major leagues but what one or more freak happenings arise to test the sound judgment of some rule that has been in the books for years.

* * *

No matter where the game is played, situations come up that test the mettle of the umpire and the temper of the crowd.

Recently I received the following communication from Harry Dockery, Balboa, Panama Canal Zone. A perusal of his letter will immediately convince you that his position in the game in question was far from an enviable one.

* * *

Strangely enough, the play that caused the argument in the Canal Zone game once came up in a world series. It was in 1911, when the Athletics played the Giants. Bill Klem was the umpire.

* * *

"During the recent visit of the Pacific fleet to the Canal Zone in April, a series of three games were arranged to decide the championship of the United States navy," writes Dockery.

"The Battle Fleet picked a team to represent the visitors, while Coco Solo, which is a submarine base here, was cho en to defend the division. I have been an umpire in the local baseball league for ten years and was selected to work the series.

"The Battle Fleet won the first game, 3 to 2, Coco Solo taking the second, 6 to 3. We arrived at the third game without any difficulty other than the usual kicks that happen in any ball game.

* * *

"The gobs on both sides had bet everything down to their shoe-laces, and nerves had about reached the breaking point when the third game started.

* * *

"At the end of the ninth innings the score stood a tie at 1 to 1, and tension ran high.

"In the last of the eleventh, with a runner on second and none out for the Battle Fleet, a pinch hitter came through with a single to centre.

"The runner from second preferred to try to score standing up. The ball arrived at the plate at almost the same time as the runner, but a trifle to one side.

"The catcher swung around to touch the runner, who pulled away just enough to miss the touch. In so doing, the runner missed home plate.

* * *

"I made no decision on the play, except to shake my head and say 'No!' when the catcher turned to me and said 'I tagged him!' I waited momentarily to see if anyone had noticed the missing of the plate. No further play was made. I walked to my dressing room. Did I handle the play correctly?"

* * *

You certainly did. It was a ticklish situation, requiring much courage. The missing of the plate with the winning run going over is a tough spot for the umpire.

Just how long he should tarry around the plate is a question. The umpire must not make the play, and by waiting around too long, place himself in the position of tipping off the mistake.

Larry Doyle once won a world series game by a great slide for the Giants from the Athletics, and Umpire Bill Klem, in this most trying spot, did just as you did. Had an appeal been made and the plate touched, he would have called the runner out.

SIR GALLAHAD DEFEATS IDOL OF FRENCH TURF

Wertheimer's "Epinard" Conquered In Gruelling Race At St. Cloud In Which British Horse Was Skilfully Handled.

PARIS, May 20.—Epinard, the great French four-year-old , is just another idol shattered. Sir Gallahad III., owned by Captain Jefferson Davis Cohn, yesterday defeated the pride of the French turf in a hard-ridden contest at St. Cloud over a distance of 1,300 meters (1420.90 yards), in which Jockeys Everett Haynes and Frank O'Neil were pitted against each other for supremacy.

Epinard was the public choice at one to three. Both horses ran true to form; the American-trained, American-ridden Epinard lost to the British-trained, but American-ridden Sir Gallahad. It was Frank O'Neill's superb riding that carried his mount under the wire by a short neck in the lead.

Record-Breaking Crowd

The great match brought to the St. Cloud track the largest crowd that ever attended a racing event in France. There were two well-defined camps, the Americans favoring Epinard, and the British, Sir Gallahad. When the son of Badajos, ridden by Haynes, entered the track he was greeted with as rousing cheers as ever welcomed a conquering hero of France.

Epinard's training camp sits in sorrow to-night, while Chantilly, Sir Gallahad's Bailiwick, exults. The supremacy of the European turf, according to the racing experts, remains unsettled, notwithstanding Sir Gallahad's victory. It is felt that Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, made a mistake in giving Sir Gallahad eleven pounds, when it is contended, the horses should run at weight for age.

Conceded Too Much

M. Wertheimer himself said: "I think I made a mistake; I don't think Epinard can give Sir Gallahad eleven pounds."

"Are you satisfied with the race," he was asked.

"I have no complaint to make against Haynes, and would give him the mount to-morrow under similar circumstances. Haynes will ride my horse in England and the United States the coing summer.

"The defeat of Epinard does not change my plans for the American trip as arranged. There is no condition attached to my contract. Epinard will refrain from racing in Europe just previous to sailing."

Timely Tips To Amateurs

SAYS ADOLF LUQUE
Pitcher, Cincinnati Reds

A good curve ball, to my way of thinking, is a pitcher's greatest asset.

I am working on the theory that said pitcher has control, because without control, pitching is a hopeless job.

A curve ball that obeys the desires of a pitcher is a most deceptive weapon. I never heard of a batter who preferred the curve to the fast ball.

Once a pitcher acquires a good curve, it is possible for him to develop variations of same. With slight changes in his delivery it is possible to make the ball behave a trifle differently.

Variety in pitching is most essential. Unless a pitcher mixes them up, the opposition will sooner or later adapt itself to his repertoire.

No pitcher should overlook the great value of a curve ball.

Robber Committed For $162,000 Bond Theft.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 20.—Following preliminary hearing before Magistrate H. O. Alexander Monday, "Smiling" Johnny Reid, was committed for trial on a charge of robbing the Ladner Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, on March 28, 1922, of $162,000 worth of bonds, almost entirely Canadian Victory Bonds.

Formal evidence proving the robbery occupied a few minutes.

Reid had previously admitted participating in robbries of banks throughout Canada in which money and bonds aggregating $900,000 were stolen. Since his arrest he has assisted the police in the recovery of much of the loot.

Bowling

HIGH ROLLERS TOOK THREE FROM DE LAVAL

Last night at Solomon's Alleys, in one of the best games of the City Ten Pin League the High Rollers took three straight from the De Laval. By so doing the High Rollers won third place in the league while the Lawn Bowlers took second. It was a great battle and was witnessed by a large crowd of fans.

The High Rollers owe their three wins to Solomon's good bowling. He rolled the highest score evet rolled in the City Ten Pin League when he crashed the old pins for a total of 650. He was not only high man of the evening, but also got the high three games of the league. He spread his scores out well, showing real consistency rolling 216 for his first game, 216 for his second and 218 for his third. He rolled just two pins more in the third game than he did in the first two. This is some rolling and the High Rollers have their captain to thank for their three wins and the winning of third prize money.

Other good scores were rolled McIlmoyle rolling 541, Barrette 535, Garrow 524 and Miller 509.

The High Rollers rolled a total of 2639 having over 900 in two games. This was the High Rollers best effort for the season and it came just at the time when it was most needed. Or if you were working on Billy Evans' theory he would say the High Rollers had the form, for they delivered in the pinch.

No credit should be taken from the De Laval for they rolled good enough to beat any team in the league, but the High Rollers were just a little better than usual and came through with three of the nicest games rolled in the league this season.

Following are the scores:

De Laval—
Murray	158	161	129—448
Barrette	168	202	165—535
McGee	167	163	150—480
French	118	138	155—411
Garrow	169	198	157—524
	780	862	756 2398
High Rollers—
Miller	181	188	140—509
Kearns	169	166	159—494
Roberts	143	165	137—445
McIlmoyl	201	190	150—541
Solomon	216	216	218—650
	910	925	804—2639

STANDINGS OF TEN PIN LEAGUE WILL BE PUBLISHED SHORTLY

The standings of the City Ten Pin League will be published later along with the individual winners of the prizes.

GREAT BOWLING RIGHT NOW

The alleys will keep open for a while yet and even without any leagues running now, lots of bowlers are taking advantage of the cool weather to take their usual exercise of bowling. Quite a number of ladies have been bowling lately, both in the afternoon and evening. With no leagues now the ladies are afforded a good opportunity to bowl without having to wait for an alley. The ladies should take advantage of the slack season and get in a few games and get more accustomed to bowling as next season a number of ladies' leagues will be formed. As is the case in the larger cities the ladies are becoming quite adept at bowling and Mr. Solomon contemplates running ladies' leagues next year, so this would be a great chance for some of the ladies to get in some good practice, as the alleys are not very crowded just as present, and the weather is ideal bowling weather.

Plan Winter Sports At Maisonneuve Park.

16,000,000 AUTOS

From 1895 to 1923, American manufacturers produced more than 16,000,000 motor vehicles. Of these 80 per cent. were produced in the last seven years, 60 per cent in the last five years, and 16 per cent. last year.

SOCCER NOTES.

On Thursday evening, the G.W.V.A. versus Quakers on the Oval. Kick-off at 6 o'clock. Referee J. C. Russell.

Canadian Woollens will play the Thistles on Saturday afternoon at the Oval. Kick off at 3 o'clock. Referee, Mr. Mitchell.

An excellent practice game was put in last evening at King Edward Park by the Nomads team, who play first game on Friday evening, at King Edward Park.

The Woollens and Vets will play on Tuesday evening, May 27, at the Oval. Kick-off at 6 o'clock. Mr. Mitchell referee.

Senior Toronto teams are busy amongst the local soccer players trying to gain their signatures for the inter-city league. Perhaps there may be deevlopments within the next few weeks.

The Nomads have signed the following players: Robert Young, E. G. Abraham, William Gatfield, E. G. Hardie, Edward Batley, J. R. Hosker. They have been registered with the Association.

The smart inside right, Jones, of the Quakers, has left the city for a new destination; as has also McFadden, inside left of the Vets, who has gone to Montreal.

George Logan did not play for the Quakers on Saturday owing to ill-health. Rumour had it that the versatile player would transfer to another senior team. He stated that he had been approached, but decided that he would always play with the Quaker Oats.

In the interests of football the Senior organization will ask the Junior association to meet them next Monday evening, in the Chamber of Commerce, at eight o'clock.

After the explanation given by Mr. Sidney Whatley, in regards to Blowers, Vets, leaving the field of play, the executive decided that the player be exonerated from all blame, on the motion of Alex. Dick and R. Gilmour.

The executive have done all they could to get players to go to Campbellford on Friday, May 23rd, but they find it a hard day to get away from business.

First round of the Phelan Charity Cup resulted as follows:

On June 7th: Quakers vs. Woollens, Referee J. C. Russell. Kick-off at 2 o'clock.

Nomads vs. Campbellford. Referee A. Mitchell. Kick-off at 3.45 p.m.

Vets and Thistle a bye.

All games to be played on Nicholls Ovals and proceeds to go to charity.

The Nomads challenged the executive to a game of football which was accepted, and will take place on Friday evening, May 23rd, at King Edward Park. Kick-off at 6:30 o'clock. Messrs. Whatley (Capt.) Wyllie, Gilmour, Mitchell, O. White, S. Stewart, A. Dick, Russell, Howarth, Anderson, Cridland, Niven, Sutcliffe, T. McArthur, and a few more. Referee, William Cooke. They will play for 60 minutes.

Before the Senior game at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon Mr. Alex. Dick, of the Dick and Carew Lumber Company, replaced the broken cross bar on the east end goal with one of his first-class wood cross-bars, and made a splendid job to the uprights. Alex. is always willing to help any worthy cause.

Darling and Payne who played for Dummer juniors in a game against Masseys on Saturday, played with with the Machine Gunners five years ago. Jory at left half played for the C.P.C. seniors last year. It was Payne at outside right who defeated the C.G.E. in the crucial game for League championship. His two beautiful goals in the early stages of the game gave the Gunners lots of pep.

Goal-scorers up to date in the soccer league are as follows:

Wylie, Woollens	5 goals
Richmond, Thistle	4 "
Mitchell, Woollens	3 "
Chambers, Woollens....	3 "
Burgess, Thistle	2 "
Melville, Thistle	2 "
A. Williams, Thistle	2 "

Mayette, Quakers	1 "
J. Wade, Vets.....	1 "
Burrows, Vets.....	1 "
McFadden, Vets	1 "
Sharman, Vets.....	1 "
T. Williams, Thistle	1 "

Twenty-eight goals have been scored since the season opened.

The executive's team for Friday evening will be: Whatley (Capt.) goal; McArthur and Dick, backs; Howarth, Stewart and Mitchell half backs; Gilmour, Anderson, Cridland, Sutcliffe and Russell forwards. Reserves, White and Wylie, and a few more. Referee, William Cook.

Expansion of organized engineering in the field of public service will be stressed at several sessions by speakers representing the industries, the Army and the research laboratories of the nation.

More than 1,500 engineers, economists, educators, industrialists and officials of State and Federal services, will cover practically every phase of activity of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Army officers will take a leading part in a session of the Aeronautic and Ordnance divisions on Wednesday. Major A. H. Hobley and H. B. Inglish of the U. S. Air Service, McCook Field, Dayton, will describe "Aerial Bombing." A. E. White, professor of metallurgical engineering at the University of Michigan, will address the engineers on "The War's Impress on the Steel Industry," and Capt. E. A. MacMorland, U. S. British Women Are to Contrast the Old Days.

LONDON, May 20.—(Associated Press).—The National Council of Women has chosen the title of "The good old days and now, 1851 and 1924" for the series of lectures to be given during its own particular week at Wembley, June 16 to 20.

Fisher on "Laws Concerning Women"; Professor Winifred Cullis on "How Women Earned Their Living"; Miss Pennethorne on "Literature"; Miss Lillian Barker on "Crushing and Training, the Stern Age and the New"; Dr. Jane Walker on "Waists and No Waists." The lectures, while imparting instruction, will be kept light in form in order to attract many Exhibition visitors.

Band of Russians Seek Haven in U. S.

MANILA, May 20.—The 250 Russian refugees who came to the Philippines from Vladistok year ago are looking toward America, and hoping they may be able this summer to join their 600 countrymen who were sent to the States by the American government last June.

This group is a remnant of the exodus under Admiral Stark. Being adherents of the old Russian monarchical government, they were compelled to leave Siberia by the new regime. Since their arrival here these wanderers in search of homes have led a precarious existence. The Red Cross has contributed toward their maintenance, and they have raised some money by selling four of the vessels in which they came to the islands.

Canada Gives $15,000 to Olympic Athletes.

OTTAWA, May 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Canada's Olympic games committee received a grant of $15,000 from the Government this year. The Acting Minister of Finance said the Government had no information as to how the money was spent. The money was voted as a grant and not as an accountable expenditure of the Government.

Quebec Towns Lay Out Motor Tourists' Camps.

MONTREAL, May 20.— With Montreal and Quebec setting the example, several neighboring municipalities are following suit by providing parking camps for motor tourists. St. Lambert and Verdun have already taken steps in this direction, and now La Prairie and St. Adale have signified their intention of co-operating with the Province of Quebec Tourists Association.

Missouri River Is Finding New Course.

GLASGOW, Mo., May 20.—The Missouri River is running away.

Tired of its old course, it is seeking new fields to conquer.

And unless the waters are checked soon, this is what will happen:

Thousands of acres of rich farm land will be inundated.

The Chicago and Alton Railroad will have to find a new right-of-way along the river front.

Two new bridges—one erected by the State, the other by the railroad—will be left standing "high and dry."

And acre after acre would be transferred from one county to another—for the river is a boundary line—with bewildering losses and litigation.

Trains of old box cars are being dumped into the river in an effort to divert its course. Brush is being cut down and piled against the river bank. Stones and every available obstacle are being rolled into the water where it is eating its way through on a new channel.

And central Missouri towns are aking turns "closing up shop" so that merchants, professional men and clerks may be released for service at "the front." Hundreds of men daily are on the job.

Weeks—even months—may pass before the fight is won. Meanwhile, hundreds of farms face the possibility of seeing their lands become a part of the new river bed.

THE BELLEVILLE GAME IS OFF

Grounds Too ...y and League Opening To-morrow is Postponed.

So far as Belleville and the Petes are concerned the Central Ontario League season will not open until Saturday, the game scheduled for to-morrow having been called off at noon to-day by the Belleville club, who informed the Peterborough management that the grounds are too soggy. With no rain since Sunday and a high wind and bright sun at work, it is surprising to find that the Belleville park will not be fit for use to-morrow, and as Belleville have asked for the game to be played next Monday, which is being celebrated in the Quinte city as Victoria Day, there is a shrewd suspicion that the Trunks management would prefer to open on a holiday.

The Petes declined to play on Monday, pointing out that it would mean four games in a week, too great a task in view of the fact that the players are not in shape. The game will have to be played later on in the first half, and the Petes will have their first test at home instead of on the road, playing Kingston here on Saturday.

COBOURG TEAM AT ROSENEATH

Dye Works Won Exhibition Game By 4-2.

ROSENEATH, May 20.—The opening game of baseball took place on the local diamond on Saturday when an exhibition game was played between Cobourg Dye Works, Midland League team, and the local Northumberland County League team, resulting in a win for the visitors by four to two. Those fans who turned out, in spite of the cold wind, saw a game that will not be beaten this summer.

The local team started Dunnett in the box with Thackeray catching, and he held the Cobourg team to one run for five innings, when he retired for Baker. This run was the result of an overthrow, due to a high wind which made the playing very difficult during the game. He really should have been credited with a shutout for the five innings, as in three innings not a visitor reached first.

Baker then stepped into the box and after his first inning, when he walked two men, resulting in two runs, he recovered his control and pitched well for the balance of the game. Dunnett struck out three men and hit one, and Baker struck out one and passed three.

Campbell, who pitched for Cobourg, was hit fairly well, but kept the hits well scattered, striking out nine men.

The following was the lineup:

Cobourg.—Johns, Irvine, Gordon, W. Campbell, Drope, Butler, McMann, Woods, G. Campbell.

Roseneath.—Davey, Baker, Moore-B. Thackeray, Armstrong, R. Thacke, ray, Varcoe, Turner, Dunnett.

Umpires. — Macklin, Roseneath ; Walsh, Cobourg. Both proved perfectly satisfactory.

DEMPSEY ROUGH IN THE MOVIES

Although He Oiled His Hair and Powdered His Nose He Was Still As Rough As Ever.

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif., May 20. —William Harrison Dempsey, that sterling fighter and eminent movie actor, powdered his nose meticulously before he crawled through the ropes.

There was a session of wild swings with Ed Kennedy, also not without fistic repute, and presently the world's heavyweight champion lay floundering on the canvas while the referee toiled with his hand.

Cameras recorded the man mauler's discomfiture while an assortment of ringsiders made the welkin shiver.

It was Jack Dempsey's film debut in a series of ten two-reelers being done for Universal under a million-dollar contract; a series exploiting the human interest and romantic angles of a battler's life rather than his punching prowess.

At the moment Dempsey was having a tough time "Winning His Way," as the first production is titled. Those sure sinews and swelling muscles had to appear clumsy. The champ was enacting a script prepared by Gerald Beaumont and directed by Eric C. Kenton. That meant being roundly walloped for two rounds.

But if the spirit resented even the simulated ignominy, the flesh gave no sign—for Jack is an actor; promises to become a good one.

Already he performs like a cinema veteran. Poise and sense of time, so highly developed in the fighter, have proved invaluable. Stage fright his many public appearnaces long since eliminated. Even grease paint and powder are applied in the presence of grinning old ringsiders without self-conscious flinch.

Half-a-dozen times Dempsey dropped to the mat. This first picture poses him as a fight novice, discovered in an iron factory, and romantically wrangled over by a girl who bids for his money and another who plays for his heart.

His feigned awkwardness—with his 'dukes,' not with the girls!—fairly made old-timers, gathered to watch the picture, rock with an agony of mirth. Look at him — wide open! "Now take it!" yells the director. And Jack takes it—smack on the chin. The bell saves him. Ain't that a wow!

The fighting style of both battlers in "Winning His Way" was decidedly cramped. Jack had to look handsome for the movies. And the producer's idea of making him the romantic hero included filling a dent in his nose with putty. That putty must not be dislodged under any circumstances. Hence when Kenedy swung at Jack he was not to hit his upper face. And when Jack swung at his adversary he had to be careful not to dislodge the latter's toupee!

They used a gun to indicate rounds instead of the bell. Dempsey paid no attention to the gun. "Get a gong," yelled a guy with a prize cauliflower ear, "that baby don't know nothin' about guns!" So they got a gong.

After two rounds Jack complained to the director that he wasn't being hit hard enough. Someone kept hopping through the ropes to black his eyes—with mascara—and to throw cold water over his magnificent torso to fool the camera into recording sweat. Shades of Shelby and Boyle's Thirty Acres!

However, Dempsey is devoting himself with enthusiasm and good grace to his part of the million-dollar movie deal, and Hollywood has made him one of its precious own.

BASEBALL MEETING

The City League Baseball Association will hold a meeting to-morrow night at 8 o'clock in the Holy Name Rooms on Simcoe street. All teams are requested to have a representative present. Hours for practices and games at the exhibition grounds will be allotted to each team that wishes to use the grounds.

Thaw, who has spent the greater part of the last seventeen years in jails and asylum, plans his counsel said, to go to New York at once to face the last charge against him, an eliged assault on Frederick Gump, Jr., in 1917. A civil suit growing out of this charge has been settled out of court and a motion will be made to squash the criminal indictment.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Many Social Events in the Town- -Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 20. — The rummage sale held on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ church, was quite a success.

The Boy Scouts, who hold their meetings every week in the Parish Hall, are having a large number of boys attending and the meetings are very enthusiastic, planning their work for the coming months.

The annual meeting of the Seymour West Woman's Institute, was held at the home of Mrs. George Longmuir on Thursday afternoon, May 15th, 1924, at half past two. The president presided. The song, Maple Leaf, was used for the opening, followed by the Lord's Prayer. After the secretary's minutes were read and adopted, the business was taken up.

It was decided that the Institute go to Norwood for June 13th for a special day and that the regular June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. James Watters.

On motion the secretary was asked to write to Norwood's Institute to see if they could be of any assistance in their programme or with the lunch. A vote of thanks was tendered the president and secretary for their work during the past years. A Heavy Frost.

Jack Frost made us a visit on Sunday night and formed quite a crust on the ground and made some of the early blossoms and plants wither. Many of the gardens are still unploughed as the ground is so wet and cold. This will make the early vegetables expensive for those who have to buy.

Salt Beds of Utah Make Auto Speedway.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20—The opening of the Victory Highway, the shortest transcontinental route from New York to San Francisco, this year, will make available for motorists what is considered a perfect speedway, the great salt beds along the Wendover Cutoff in Utah. The salt beds are level and absolutely "non-skid." They were formed by the same process as the Great Sale Lake.

During the rainy season a foot or more of water covers the beds, but in summer the water evaporates, leaving an area of many square miles on which tourists can test out the racing qualities of their machines. The salt is several feet thick and comparatively pure.

The inaccessibility of the salt beds heretofore prevented their use for racing. Some years ago, however, Tedd Tetzlaff set a record of 120 miles an hour on them. Racing men here say there is practically no limit to the speed that might be made on the salt beds. They predict that the opening of the Wendover Cuoff will make them great proving grounds for racing cars.

From the highway approaches will lead to the beds at frequent intervals.

Each Nation Has Routed Its Flyers For the Lap Between Asia and Europe On the Old Caravan Trail

TOKIO, May 20—To knit Japanese Saghalien more closely to the rest of the empire, the cabinet has decided to put into force there several laws which heretofore have not applied to this northern possession. These include the conscription law, which will make inhabitants of Saghalien liable to service in the army, the nationality law and the census registration law all calculated to increase the control of the central government.

The southern half of Saghalien, which became a Japanese possession as a result of the Russo-Japanese War, has made remarkable progress in the development of administrative organs and community life, according to Tokio officials, and the time is considered ripe to administer that territory as an integral part of the empire.

BAILIEBORO CORRESPONDENCE

BAILIEBORO, May 20. — The farmers of this district have for the last few weeks been anxious about the question of feed for their stock. On account of the long backward spring, the grass and pasture have made very slow progress, and the feed in the barns has been rapidly decreasing.

The majority of the farmers have turned their young cattle out to pasture on what little grass that has grown, but the weather has been too cold and damp to put the horses and milch cows out.

A number have turned their milch cows on the side roads in the daytime, but even there where the sides are well sheltered, and the first grass is generally obtained, the pasture is so far very scarce.

During the past two weeks there has been very little work accomplished on the land. The farmers have been doing odd chores around the farm, so that when the fine weather does come they will be able to go ahead without anything to hinder them. Many are engaged spreading the manure that was drawn onto the land during the winter, while others are busy erecting fences, drawing gravel for road work, etc.

A New Boat-House.

W. D. Hibbard has torn down his boat-house at Barnardo Landing and erected a much larger one, measuring about thirty-five feet in length, by twenty feet in width. The Lang brothers of Bailieboro were the chief carpenters for the erection. Mr. Hibbard has also purchased a number of fine new skiffs, as he intends to run a boat livery on a larger scale than he has in previous years.

Still Fishing.

A number are daily taking advantage of the still fishing on Rice Lake, although there are no reports of any large catches as yet, still the pickerel and mud-cats are biting fairly good.

Reproduce Play.

The members of the Guild of the Anglican Church are planning to reproduce their play, entitled "Lodgers Taken In," in the basement of the church on May 23rd. They first staged this play in February last, and although the roads were extremely bad at that time, still they had a packed house, and the play, which is full of fun, is well worth presenting again for the benefit of those who may not have heard it before.

Misses Lettie and Viola White, of Lindsay, spent the week-end the guest of their parents.

OLD AGE PENSIONS BROUGHT UP AGAIN

Tom Moore Presented the Memorandum in the House of Commons To-day.

OTTAWA, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, presented a memorandum to the House of Commons committee on old age pensions to-day. There was an imperative need in Canada, said Moore for old age pensions. It would not, he believed, destroy the habits of thrift. Emphasis in Canada was placed upon young men with the result that aged worker frequently found himself in a difficult position.

DR. E. BIDWELL URGED ABSOLUTE RECTITUDE

He Made His Eleventh Annual Charge to the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of Ontario Yesterday.

KINGSTON, May 20.— (Canadian Press.)— In his eleventh annual charge to the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of Ontario, delivered this afternoon, Right Rev. Dr. E. J. Bidwell urged "absolute rectitude" in dealing with the public revenues.

"It must not be forgotten," he said, "that there are certain reasons for misgiving in our national life, it would not be right to pronounce upon matters which are still subjudice, but it is possible to say this, prime requisition that we make of our public men is that they should be above suspicion in the matter of their personal honor. We are ready to condone mistakes of judgment in the policy, but we do demand inflexible uprightness in their dealing with the public trusts committed to them. We must get rid once and for all of the idea that there is any difference between sharp practice with government with one's fellow citizens."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"AFTER SIX DAYS."

The Grand is offering its patrons, something new in motion picture productions in "After Six Days," the mammoth screen visualization of the story of the Old Testament from the Creation to the Songs of Solomon. Nothing quite like it has been seen here. This huge production, which lives up to the claims made for it as to its size and expense, follows the Bible story with realism and impressiveness, that are most effective

Thousands of people, hundreds of animals, massive buildings, sets that must have cost a small fortune, are employed in "After Six Days," and the picture is produced with such an evident prodigality in the matter of cost, and with such faithful attention to detail, that those who see it are impressed with the fact that it is probably the most unusual picture play ever made. The big scenes of "Intolerance," wonderfully planned and executed as they were, are surpassed by many of the episodes pictured in "After Six Days," and it can easily be believed that the picture took five years to make, and involved an expenditure of over three million dollars.

The acting of the large cast is superb. The characters of the Old Testament are brought to life by the historical ability of the players chosen for the principal roles and particularly noteworthy in the presentation given of Noah and of Joseph, the actors in these respective roles being particularly worthy of the responsibility entrusted to them. Scenes in the Garden of Eden, the murder of Abel, the great flood, Noahs ark, the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah ,the adventures of Joseph, Moses and the Ten Commandments, the exodus from Egypt, the division of the Red Sea for the passage of the Israelites, the wilderness experience of the latter, and other features of the Old Testament, are pictured with wonderful realism. It is a screen masterpiece that should appeal to every one because of its dramatic and historical value.

"After Six Days" will be seen again at the Grand to-night and to-morrow night.

The Grand's Orchestra adds to the effect by a splendid rendition of a special score.

AT THE CAPITOL

A screen dramatization of one of Mary Roberts Rinehart's popular mystery melodramas is the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre just now, in "The Breaking Point," a dramatic story that visualizes the dilemma confronting a victim of the strange disease, amnesia, that wipes out memory and changes its plaything into an entirely different being. Matt Moore has an exacting dual role in this production, which shows him in turn as the reckless millionaire, Judson Clark, in love with the popular actress, Beverly Carlysle, a part suited to its portrayer, Nita Naldi, and as Dr. Dick Livingstone, the successful, quiet young physician, engaged to the demure little Elizabeth Wheeler (Patsy Ruth Miller). There is plenty of action in this picture, which has several changes in atmosphere. A whirlwind, tempestuous romance opens the presentation, with Clark quarreling with Beverly's husband, then fleeing in the storm from the realization that he has murdered him. Later, Dr. Dick Livingstone takes the centre of the stage, making love in peaceful fashion to the pretty Elizabeth, and again he encounters Beverly in the dressing-room of a theatre. The star reporter of a big daily has a good part in the story, hounding the actress and Livingstone until their disgrace is imminent, then relenting and helping them, finally unearthing the real villain of the piece. Good characterizations of the various actors are outstanding in this picture.

The comedy is a Neal Burns' mix-up, with the genial comedian in the stellar role of "Dandy Lions," an episode in which he essays to appear very courageous, in his efforts to win his lady love.

The vaudeville act is a mixed duo, with Vincent and Davey presenting "Remembered?" an interlude of excellent comedy and singing. The lady's solos include a pretty rendition of "Alice Blue Gown," and the man does some good work in his vocal numbers. The pair have a line of quickfire dialogue that makes their act entertaining and pleasant.

AT THE REGENT

SIDELIGHTS ON REAL SHEIK ARE GIVEN BY ACTRESS.

Wanda Hawley Tells Her Impression of Those She Met in Egypt.

Interesting sidelights on real sheiks are supplied by Wanda Hawley, who recently returned to Hollywood after spending six months in Egypt, and who will be seen here at the Regent Theatre to-day in "The Man From Brodney's," a Vitagraph special production based upon the famous novel of the same name by George Barr McCutcheon.

Upon her return to this country, Miss Hawley expressed her delight in getting away from the "sheiks" who have become standard-bearers in literature and drama of to-day.

Miss Hawley takes exception to the general conception of what a sheik really is. She reports that the spelling of sheik is wrong. In Egypt the spelling is "sheykh." Even the pronunciation is wrong, according to the actress. It is pronounced "shake."

Miss Hawley says the average sheik is 50 years old. He is dignified to the extreme. If he is Bedouin he respects white women like angels. If he is an Egyptian, no white woman will have anything to do with him, she reports.

"And regardless what his race," Miss Hawley adds proudly, "he doesn't come one-two-three in a race for love-making honors with our own American lads. And for riding, the sheik has been overplayed. He can't even do as well as our own cowboys.

In "The Man From Brodney's" Miss Hawleys appears as the flirtatious Lady Deppingham, one of the heirs to the rich island of Japat, in the South Seas. J. Warren Kerrigan plays the title role. In the all-star cast besides Mr. Kerrigan and Miss Hawley are Alice Calhoun, Miss DuPont, Pat O'Malley and Kathleen Key.

AT THE ROYAL

FINE DRAMATIC STORY OF A GIRL'S STRUGGLE CAPITALLY STAGED AND DIRECTED

Once in a while a picture comes along which bears such a close resemblance to life that the spectator sits up in his seat and follows its surging story with the deepest interest. Such a picture is "East Side, West Side," adapted from the successful play of the same name by Leighton Osmun and Henry Hull. New York City, that fertile field for rich dramatic stories, furnishes the background. All of us know that the East Side is that crowded section of the city wherein dwell the poor, strugglers, while over on the West Side, not so many blocks away, dwell the more fortunate. Around these two sections palpitates a drama which is ever so human and charming, and romantic to boot.

It brings out accurately that a girl does not necessarily have to live on the East Side if she is determined to better herself. But it also brings forth that she does not have to pay the price of the tempter, to be taken away from such a sordid environment. Little Lory James had unbounded faith in herself. She would not follow the primrose path even though it meant living in squalor and working her fingers to the bone. But through a friendly physician she was carried out of her environment and placed in a rich home on the West Side, where she occupied herself in doing secretarial work for a young man, who needed relaxation to relieve his mind.

The girl was like a ray of sunshine. She took him out of himself, and it wasn't long before they found themselves in love. The girl was immensely happy. She had proved to herself and her friends that the virtuous path paid after all. But the conflict came back into her life with double measure —since she was in the throes of deep love. The young man's mother, upon whom he was dependent, threatened to disinherit him if he did not give up his attention to the pretty secretary. The latter, defiant, yet humble, promptly packed up her belongings and left, rather than suffer herself or her fiance to be humiliated. She did not want to stand in the young man's way. But the boy proved that he had a mind of his own, for he also threatened to go out of his mother's life and never see her again unless she begged his sweetheart's forgiveness. Thus he won his point. Yet there was an obstacle to erase, for the girl had inherited a fortune of her own. And unless his fortune was coming to him he could never marry her. The mother's forgiving nature solved the puzzling question and happiness was the reward for all concerned.

The picture teems with local color and atmosphere, and shows a vivid and true cross-section of life in New York City—the town that O. Henry called Bagdad on the Subway, because of its rich glamour or romance, its color and sweep. "East Side, West Side" is one of the most human pictures which have ever played the Royal. It will bring tears to the eyes and smiles will follow the tears. It surges with fine dramatic force, leading straight to a powerful climax which carries deep suspense.

CANADIAN METROPOLIS FIGURES IN PICTURE

A number of scenes in the Allen Holubar production, "Slander the Woman," showing at the Royal Theatre, Thursday, are laid in Montreal, the gay and cosmopolitan metropolis of the Dominion of Canada. Here each winter, gather the elite from various sections of Canada and the United States to participate in the winter sports and social activities.

With a large French-Canadian population, Montreal is undoubtedly one of the most picturesque cities in North America, and annually thousands of tourists visit this historic metropolis where Volstead amendments are unknown.

In "Slander the Woman," starring Dorothy Phillips, the city of Montreal is shown. And despite the fact that the locale of the production is Canada, not one Royal Northwestern Mounted Policeman is employed in any of the scenes.

GEORGE OF ENGLAND LIKES A JOKE

LONDON, May 20 — "Well, Mr. Morrison, have you brought your fireman's helmet with you?" said King George with a twinkle in his eye to R. C. Morrison, Labor M. P. for North Tottenham, when he attended a court function recently.

Morrison tells this story against himself and also the reason for the king's jocular remark. It appears Morrison in a recent speech said that if he had known what gorgeous dresses and uniforms were to be worn at the Speaker's levee, he would have borrowed a fireman's helmet.

THE BOYS BAND GAVE A CONCERT

Special Features by the Young Musicians--From Father to Son.

In the Salvation Army Temple last evening a very successful concert was given by the Boys' Band, with a good attendance. The band, which has a personnel of about 40 players, is composed of youthful musicians, whose tuition at the hands of Adjutant Smith, has been a matter of painstaking, careful attention to good music, with the result that this group of junior Salvationists rendered a programme last evening of which any organization might be proud. The band gave five selections, four led by Adjt. Smith, the fifth by the small bandmaster, Willie Brooks, who was presented last evening with a kettledrum.
Special features of the evening's programme were a violin solo by Bernard Smith, a cornet solo by Bramwell Smith, a euphonium solo by William Perryer, and an instrumental quartette by Ronald Routly, Garth Braund, Gordon Braund, and Clifford Pearcy; also a vocal duet by Mrs. Mendell Braund and Mrs. M. Shadgett. Mr. R. C. Braund acted as chairman.
During the evening a collection was taken up to defray the expenses of the new kettledrum presented to the small bandmaster, the proceeds totalling fourteen dollars.
One of the instruments played in the band last evening was a cornet which has an exclusive "Braund" stamp. Mr. R. C. Braund used this instrument thirty-two years ago, when captain of the Army band in Hamilton, and it was played in succession later by his wife, who played it for about seven years, then by his three sons, Mendall, Grant and Gorth

FIVE MILLON DOLLAR ACTION

Against Nine Former Directors of the Home Bank.

TORONTO, May 20 (Canadian Press). — Suit for $5,000,000 has been launched by the liquidators of the Home Bank of Canada against nine of the former directors of the institution, seven of whom are facing criminal charges, M. J. Haney, former president of the bank, and J. Ambrose O'Brien, of Renfrew and Ottawa, who was a director in 1919-1920.
Damages are sought "for losses sustained by the bank, its creditors and shareholders, by reason of the misconduct, misfeasance, malfeasance and negligence of the defendants."
The claim is made by G. T. Clarkson and I. E. Weldon, liquidators, against Herbert J. Daly, R. P. Gough, S. Casey Wood, F. J. B. Russell, J. F. M. Stewart, M. J. Haney, C. A. Barnard, Clarence F. Smith, and J. Ambrose O'Brien.

FORCED TO MARRY AT THE POINT OF A GUN

TORONTO, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)— That he was lured into the country for a motor ride and on the roadside forced at the point of a revolver to marry a young woman, was the story told to the police and to Fred Williamson, of the Central Marriage Bureau, by John O'Neil, of Toronto, this morning.
O'Neil alleged that he went motoring with his bride, her two brothers and a stranger. Out in the country they drove up a side road and the marriage ceremony was performed by a stranger who was attired in cassock and surplice. The brothers, he said, presented revolvers and made some remark about going to secure justice.
The police are investigating.

NATIONAL BANK MAN BEFORE HOUSE TO-DAY

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—State systems of Bank Inspection in United States are "some what loose" and therefore there are proportionately more failures of state Banks than of National Banks, said John W. Pole, Chief National Banker Examiner of Treasury Department, Washington, before Banking and Commerce Committee of House of Commons this morning. Mr. Pole gave statement in support of methods of examination or inspection of National Banks and was questioned freely by members of committee as to differences between Canadian and American Banking Systems.

IN LOVING MEMORY
Of Sarah Ann Wilson, Beloved Wife of William Robison, North Monaghan, who died April 26th, 1924:
Friend of my childhood's sunny hours,
How oft we've roamed the woodland bowers,
Culling the wild, sweet scented flowers,
By Brayley's stream that grew,
In early youth's unclouded day,
To school we ever took our way,
Together, when our spirits gay,
Nor care, nor trouble, knew.

And time, in firm affection's bond,
But bound our hearts, in friendship fond,
The power of time, and change, beyond,
More close, from year to year.
For friendship knows no dull decay,
Though dimmmed awhile its glorious ray,
'Twill our brief parting yet repay
In a far brighter sphere.

Alas, at life's meridian height,
Fell suddenly that withering blight,
And health and ease their lasting flight,
From her frail form had ta-en;
Direful disease, by Heaven's decree,
Her constant guest, till pityingly,
Death from her suffering set her free
From languishing and pain.

Seventeen long years, she bravely bare,
Her weary trial, murmuring ne'er,
With strength and patience, born of prayer,
Sufficient day by day.
Nobly she bore that heavy cross,
Suffered of every joy the loss,
And counted all earth's gain but dross,
Now wears a crown for aye.

CRERAR CENTRE OF NEW ATTACK

Home Bank Enquiry Continues at Ottawa With Directors Under Fire.

OTTAWA, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)— An attack on Hon. T. A. Crerar, former leader of the Progressive party and director of the Home Bank from 1910 to 1918, featured this morning's sitting of the Home Bank Commission. R. A. Reid, counsel for shareholders, named Mr. Crerar as one of the "conspirators" in the history of the Home Bank, charged him with being a party to the issuance of false and fraudulent returns and claimed that, when Mr. Crerar found, from inside information, that the bank was in serious danger, he had sold his stock and got out "when the getting was good."
"I think this was a cold, callous, heartless thing to do," Mr. Reid insisted, "and I think Western Canada will deal with Mr. Crerar when the time comes. An agriculturist is a man who work a farm. Mr. Crerar is one in the true sense of the word because he certainly set out to work the farmer."

Mr. Reid, referring to the letter written by Mr. Crerar to M. J. Haney on April 8, 1916, in which reduction of capital and reserve of the bank was suggested, charged that a "frame up" was under way between the two men.
At the outset of his argument on behalf of the government, Eugene Lafleure, K.C., stated that he "wished to disassociate himself from the very savage attack on Mr. Crerar."
"If it is true that Messrs. Crerar and Haney conspired to wreck this bank, what becomes of the claim of depositors?" he asked. "Where does responsibility of the Minister come in?"
Mr. Lafleur also objected to the "ferocious attack" made by counsel for depositors on Finance Ministers holding office since 1914 to the time the bank failed. Messrs. Fielding and Drayton had not been represented at the hearings.
Mr. Lafleur dealt with the constitutional point raised by Sir Thomas White as to competence of the Commission to pass upon decisions of Minister of Finance. He thought that Sir Thomas was in error as to the scope of the orderin-council constituting the commission. All that the commissioner was required to do was to determine whether or not state of facts existed which should have caused the Minister to exercise discretionary powers vested in him by the Bank Act.
"Depositors of Home Bank have no legal claim against crown. It is for Parliament to decided if they have any claim on moral grounds," was conclusion of Eugene Lafleur, K.C., Government Counsel in arguing his case before Home Bank Commission to-day. He referred to fact that House of Commons had passed bill indemnifying depositors of Farmers' Bank, which had been refused by Senate.

SIR EDWARD GOSCHEN PASSED AWAY TO-DAY

LONDON, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Sir Edward Goschen, the man to whom Chancellor Von Bethmann Holweg is reputed to have characterized in Belgian neutrality treaty as "a scrap of paper," died as his home here to-day.
Sir Edward was a veteran of the British Diplomatic Service, which he entered in 1869 and at the outbreak of the war was British Ambasasdor at Berlin.
It was his final interview with Sir Edward that the Chancellor's famous remark went into the British diplomatic records.

WILLIAM SOUTHAM IS STILL GROWING WEAK

OSHAWA, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)— The condition of Lieut. William Southam, who was injured in a motor accident at Dunbarton, is very low and steadily growing worse. The hospital authorities this morning said he was weaker, and Dr. Macdonald declared that there was no hope for his recovery.

C.N. BILLS READ THIRD TIME AND SENT TO SENATE

Opposition Had Facilitated Their Advancement In Commons, Sir Henry Drayton Pointed Out — Doubted the Construction of All of Them — Might Advertise Contracts.

ELECTION MATERIAL.

OTTAWA, May 21.—(By Canadian Press).—Of fourteen remaining Canadian National branch line bills, thirteen received third reading in the House yesterday and went to the Senate. For the greater part the bills passed with little discussion. There was considerable Conservative criticism of the proposed line from Kings clear, N.B., to the St. Croix River, Sir Henry Drayton taking the ground that the line could not be justified as a matter of business. He thought the building of the line should be referred to the railway commission a proposal with which the Minister of Railways did not agree.

One bill —for a line from Lloydminster, Sask., northwesterly for 45 miles—went through committee but was held for third reading.

The line between Kingsclear, N.B., and the St. Croix River, was first called up. After a preliminary explanation by Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways, a resolution in favor of the construction of the line passed by the Fredericton board of trade, was read by R. B. Hanson, (Conservative, York- Sunbury).

Drayton's Contention

Sir Henry Drayton said the minister would be well advised to drop the bill. The line could not be justified as a matter of business. Information given to the house stated that the gross revenue to accrue to the Canadian National from freight now handed over to the C.P.R. for transmission to United States lines would not be more than $246,000. The operating ratio on the Atlantic section of the Canadian National was 123.20 and this ratio would not be altered much by the addition of the revenue mentioned. Therefore it was clear that the addition of the traffic mentioned would merely mean a further loss to the railway.

Means Small Economy

Mr. Graham outlined the difficulties attending the establishment of running rights and of governing traffic under those conditions. He urged that the small economy which would be effected by building this road, would be just one more of the collection of small economies by means of which the Canadian National Railways board hoped to make the system pay.

Sir Henry Drayton asked if the increased mileage would not mean an increased operating ratio? Mr. Graham said that Sir Henry talked only of ratios and technicalities.

R. H. Hanson (Conservative York-Sunbury), and Dr. Murray McLaren (Conservative, St. John-Albert), asked a series of questions as to what constituted "operating ratios" and why empties could not be handled so well under a running rights system as with a separate branch line.

Mr. Graham "as a layman" was not so sure about ratios but he said that "you can't buy anything with an operating ratio." Whereupon Sir Henry remarked "not if it is on the wrong side."

Opposition Assisting

Sir Henry Drayton said that there had been criticism in some quarters to the effect that the opposition had been obstructing the branch lines bills. Twelve had been given third readings within an hour a few nights ago. It was against the rules of the House to advance a bill more than step at a time without the unanimous consent of the House. The Opposition had waived its rights in order to facilitate and in two and a half hours guarantees amounting to over $10,000,000 had been put through the House. Sir Henry doubted if work on all the branch lines would be gone ahead with anyway. The contracts would probably be advertised about election time.

Not Political Line

Hon. E. M. MacDonald, Minister of National Defense, reviewed the history of the proposed line between Sunnybrae and Guysborough in Nova Scotia. He was surprised and disappointed that Sir Henry Drayton had insisted in committee that this was a political line.

THE WEATHER.

The temperature was down to 25 degrees last night. This is seven degrees of frost, and the lowest of the week. The old pioneers of this section, of whom there are now but few remaining, were wont to tell of the prevalence of "June frosts," and the dread in which they were held by the early settlers, but since the country has been brought under cultivation these "June frosts" have ceased to trouble.—W.P.

BANKS LIBERAL IN FARM LOANS

J. W. Hamilton, General Manager of Union Bank, Estimates Total Loans In Three Provinces 130 Millions.

WINNIPEG, May 21 (Canadian Press). — "Price levels during the past two years have been more stable in Canada than in any other country in the world," said J. W. Hamilton, general manager of the Union Bank of Canada, in the course of an address before the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association convention here yesterday.

Owing to the country's dependence upon an export trade, however, the full benefits of this condition, he said, had not been realised.

Mr. Hamilton advanced the belief that the source of farm profits in the West had been too narrow, and that there had been insufficient appreciation of the entirely business character of agricultural operations. "It is quite impossible to raise the price of farm produce by mere expansion of credit to farmers. The need is for curtailment, not enlargement of credit action," he said.

Continuing, Mr. Hamilton asserted that the total loans of the banks to farmers and ranchers in the three Prairie Provinces at the present time amounted to approximately $130,000,000. Placing the number of farmers in the West at 200,000, he believed that the agricultural loaning policy of the banks had been liberal.

Professor J. M. Brown, of the Manitoba Agricultural College, sounded a note of warning against the too fast development of the mixed farming idea, urging gradual expansion instead of suddenly entering upon a responsible and expensive undertaking.

Live stock ,when properly understood, will inevitably become the salvation of Western Canada, declared John Strachan, travelling inspector of the Manitoba Cattle Loan Company. Mortgage and loan men, he believed, could make themselves one of the main factors in the redemption of the West.

Sentence Suspended For Bandit Who Assisted In Recovering Bank Wealth

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 21 (Canadian Press). — "Smiling" Johnny Reid, bank bandit, who earlier in the day had been sent up for trial by Magistrate Alexander, pleaded guilty to complicity in the robbery of the Royal Bank branch at Ladner, B.C., when $128,000 in bonds and cash were stolen, and was given two years' suspended sentence by Judge Cayley on Monday afternoon.

Reid elected for speedy trial.

The robbery of the bank occurred on 28th March, 1922.

Reid was given a similar sentence in Lethbridge, Alta., recently for being implicated in a bank robbery in that Province.

He has been responsible for the return of approximately $900,000 in currency and bonds that were cached by bandit gangs of which he was a member, and which worked in the Canadian Provinces and border states.

FOUR DROWNED SUNDAY IN STORM ON SUPERIOR

Fifteen Survivors of the Steamer "Orinoco" Gained Shore and Were Picked Up Tuesday By Tug That Saw Their Fires.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 21 (Canadian Press). — In the meagre reports through the wireless comes advice of the loss of the steamer Orinoco, with four lives, in the storm which raged on Lake Superior on Sunday.

The wireless was from the tug Garguantus, of the Lake Superior Paper Company, which ran through wreckage off Point Auxmines, on the northern shores of Lake Superior, yesterday morning.

While searching the wreckage the crew of the Garguantua noticed fires on the shore, and immediately put their tug in where fifteen survivors of the illfated ship had effected a landing.

No details of the loss of the ship have been received here yet.

The Garguantua picked up the men and also two bodies, and were fishing for the bodies of two others at the time the wireless message was sent.

It was not stated how the four came to their death.

The Orinoco, with her tow, the Chieftain, was up-bound light for pulpwood to be picked up on the north shore.

She locked up at the Soo on Sunday, and in the teeth of a strong north-west wind proceeded up the lake.

In the height of the storm the Chieftain was cut loose and drifted safely behind Montreal Island, where it was found this morning by the Gargruntua on her regular trip to the paper company's camps.

The Chieftain's crew is waiting instructions from the Paper Company officials, and will likely bring the rescued crew with the bodies, and also the Chieftain, to the Soo.

The Orinoco and Chieftain are owned by James Davidson, of Bay City, Michigan.

Lake Superior Paper Company tug Gargantua arrived in the Sault early this morning, bearing the remains of two of the five victims. The two bodies brought back were those of William Ostrender and Clarence Carlson, who died of exposure and exhaustion in lifeboats, in the harrowing passage from the boat to the mainland. The dead are: Capt. Anthony Lawrence, aged 42, Cleveland, Ohio; Joseph Wutrz, chief engineer, Saginaw, Mich.; Hugh Gordon, 34, wheelsman, Bay City, Mich.; William Ostrender, 25, watchman, Bay City, Mich.; Clarence Carlson, 24, fireman, Bay City, Mich.; Lawrence, Gordon and Wurtz went down with the ship.

The first news of the wreck was received by wireless to the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Company from Captain D. A. Williams, of the tug Gargantua yesterday afternoon. Captain Williams stated this morning that he had discovered the stranded barge Chieftain, which had broken from in tow of the Orinoco behind Montreal Island. Learning from those on the barge that the Orinoco was in difficulty, he set out in search.

He picked up the survivors, 21 men and one woman, all belonging to the United States, where they were stranded at Micabay and then returned and towed the barge to Batchwana.

It is stated that when Captain Lawrence said the overloaded condition of the lifeboats which were being lowered over the side of the sinking vessel he refused to leave his post and drowned when his boat submerged. Wheelsman Gordon and Chief Engineer Wutrz followed the lead of their captain and also refused to abandon the ship and jeopardize the lives of those on the already overburdened lifeboats.

Orders were received by Captain Williams as he passed through the local ship canal this morning that none of the survivors was to be allowed to leave the ship until an inquest had been held.

It took one of the lifeboats twelve hours to reach the shore and the other one twenty-one hours.

Relating his story of the wreck Earl Gonyan, first mate of the Orinocco, stated that the vessel was heading for Port Arthur to obtain pulpwood and when near Lamb Island, twenty miles north-west of Caribou Islnad, Sunday afternoon, a terrific storm sprang up. It was decided to return to Whitefish, about seventy miles south, but when about twenty miles in that direction the deck of the Orinocco opened up and the crew got the lifeboats ready. Soon afterwards the boat cracked in two with an awful crash. The boat held together in a hinge-like manner for about two hours and the ninetten members of the crew entered the lifeboats, which were lowered to the water. Capt. Lawrence, Gordon and Wurtz refused to leave the ship as the lifeboats were already overcrowded. About nine o'clock at night two lifeboats set out for shore.

Carlson and Ostrenber perished from exposure before the lifeboats reached the shore, and the other members of the crew were severely frost bitten. "We landed, I should judge, about supper time Monday," said Gonyan, "one of the crew killed a porcupine with a club and it was enough to give each of us a bite to eat. We stayed on the beach until the Gargantua came along on Tuesday. We were too helpless at that stage to help ourselves and had practically given up hope of being rescued. We had to remain around the fire and trust to fate. There was lots of dry wood around and we had no trouble in setting fire." Gonyan stated that the tow rope of the Chifetain broke about 4.30 Sunady afternoon.

LIBERALS DENY BOLTING PARTY

Marcil and Fournier Mentioned In Ottawa Newspaper As Included In Liberal Revolt--Explained Absence At Budget Division.

OTTAWA, May 21 (Canadian Press). — Protest against their inclusion in the columns of a local newspaper in the "Liberal revolt" against the Budget were voiced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Hon. Charles Marcil (Liberal, Bonaventure) and G. A. Fournier (Liberal, Bellechasse).

The newspaper editorial enumerated half a dozen Liberals who did not vote in support of the Budget, and included these two gentlemen in the list.

Mr. Fournier read the newspaper editorial and added his protest to Mr. Marcil's. An urgent engagement compelled hm to leave Ottawa at 6.55 a.m. on Friday. The vote did not come until after this. He remained in the House until his train left. "Had it not been for some of the Hon. friends, and especially the member for Bow River," he added, "I should have been able to vote for the Budget."

There was much laughter at this sally. The member for Bow River (E. J. Garland, Progressive) was speaking towards the end of the all-night sitting when Mr. Fournier implored him to "have a heart"—and then went out to catch his train.

APRIL BUILDING PERMITS LOWER

Aggregate For 56 Cities Surpassed Total For March But Fell Below April of Last Year.

OTTAWA, May 21 (Canadian Press). — The value of the building permits issued in 56 cities showed a large increase during April as compared with March, 1924, but there was a decrease as compared with April of last year.

Statements received by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed that the reporting cities authorised building to the value of $13,452,359, as compared with $9,162,763 in the preceding month and with $19,207,171 in the corresponding month of 1923.

There was, therefore, an increase of $4,289,597, or 46.8 per cent., in the first comparison and a decline of $5,754,812, or 30 per cent., as compared with April, 1923.

Detailed reports were furnished by 47 cities, showing that they had isued some 1,600 permits for dwellings at an estimated cost of approximately $7,000,000, and for nearly 3,400 other buildings at a proposed cost of $6,000,000.

Since the construction of several buildings is frequently authorised by a single permit, the number of buildings to be erected is usually greater than the number of permits.

DEPOSITORS OF HOME BANK END PLEA TO CROWN

Have No Legal Claim For Indemnity By Government But Ask For Justice — White Burdened By War Responsibilities Forgot Home Bank, Says Counsel.

U.S. EXPERT HEARD.

OTTAWA, May 21 (Canadian Press). — Expert evidence upon two main proposals now before the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons was given before that body yesterday by J. W. Pole, chief national bank examiner of the United States.

Mr. Pole expressed approval of the proposal to set up a board of supervision to examine the reports made by the independent auditors of the banks.

He considered that it would be impracticable for Canada to set up a special Government inspection system of sufficient magnitude to investigate loans and their collateral in all the branch banks throughout the Dominion. In the United States, he pointed out, this is possible because each bank is either a unit or has only a small number of branches.

Guaranteeing Deposits.

Mr. Pole was not ready to express a definite opinion upon the proposal of L. J. Ladner, Conservative, South Vancouver, for the guarantee of savings deposits up to $3,000. Mr. Ladner explained that it was proposed to guarantee only deposits in specially indicated accounts upon which a lower rate of interest than the normal deposit rate would be paid. Mr. Pole agreed that this differed from the system of guarantee of deposits which had failed in the United States, and was not prepared to say that Mr. Ladner's system would not work. However, neither was he able to express an opinion that it was practicable.

Repay Dividends.

Mr. Pole was examined by members of the committee upon a great variety of questions, bearing upon the difference in the banking systems of Canada and the United States. He stated that under the American system the Comptroller of the Currency had a right to order the re-payment of dividends which had been earned. He expressed the view that it would be wise to retain double liability for bank shares, and was further of the opinion that the federal reserve system in the United States had increased indirectly the safety of depositors.

Compassionate Plea.

Argument yesterday not only brought out the declaration by Government counsel that the depositors have no legal claim against the Government, but it was also productive of the statement by depositors' counsel that no such claim is being made. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., counsel for the depositors, informed the Commissioner that there was no legal claim but under ordinary principles of justice the depositors had a moral, equitable right. The petition of the depositors was based on the view that the Crown was necessarily just and that the presentation of a fair,, equitable claim would meet with justice.

H. J. Symintgon, K.C., one of the Government counsel took the ground that a compassionate plan was not a matter on which the Commissioner should make a finding. It was essentially a matter for Parliament to decide. He thought the Commissioner might indicate that "the cause of failure was the reckless management of the bank."

Serious in 1916.

H. J. Symington said that from evidence it would seem that if there had been a proper audit in 1916, a situtaion would have been revealed more serious than the minister of finance was aware of, He pointed out that Mr. Clarkson, the liquidator, and Mr. Edwards, differed regarding the actual losses.

The figures showed that an outside audit in 1918 would have produced some action. Charges had been made which, if they had been investigtaed,, would have proven true.

Mr. Symington said he thought the evidence showed that if the Miners' Strike In Ruhr Shuts Essen Factories; Cities Supplying Food

ESSEN, Germany, May 21 (Canadian Press). — The situation brought about by the miners' conflict is rapidly approaching a social catastrophe.

Besides 600,000 locked-out miners, about 400,000 metal workers are without work, owing to the closing of the plants.

The City and Communal Administrations in many cases have been compelled to supply the wives and children of the unemployed with the necessities of life.

The Government is being implored to bring the opposing parties together as quickly as possible, as food supplies will soon be exhausted.

CONCESSION TO RISH WHY NOT THE DOMINIONS

Correspondent of London Daily Telegraph Says Canada Wants Advantage of Minister at Washington, As Accorded to Irish Free State.

EMPIRE PROBLEMS.

LONDON, May 21 (Canadian Press Cable). — A correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says the concession granted to the Irish Free State in the matter of having an independent Minister at Washington already has had an important result in that the Canadian Government has decided that it must obtain equal advantages.

The Telegraph's correspondent proceeds to state that this concession to the Irish Free State is bound inevitably to have far-reaching consequences as the Imperial representation in foreign countries will be undermined and a constitutional problem of considerable gravity must be solved. If there is an Irish Minister to Washington, he says, why not a Canadian Minister in Paris or an Australian Minister in Tokio?

The control of the Imperial foreign relations will become an impossible task.

Premier Smuts of South Africa, says the Daily Telegraph's correspondent, may prove to have been right when he explained in a speech in the South African Legislative Assembly that since the Dominions were admitted to the League of Nations as independent members there could no longer be any interference whatsoever with South Africa's affairs on the part of the British Government or British Parliament except when British intervention was specially requested by the Union of South Africa itself.

JEWS ESCAPED ANATOMY CLASS

Hungarian Students Demanded Bodies of Four Jewish Classmates For Dissection—Only Bodies of Christians Supplied.

BUDAPEST, May 26.—Jew-baiting, which for some time had ceased, was revived yesterday at Budapest University under extraordinary circumstances. While Professor Bugarszky was lecturing on general anatomy some of the students rose and demanded that four of his Jewish auditors be killed on the spot in order to furnish material for dissection, "so rarely have we Jewish corpses."

The students declared that only the bodies of Christians were submitted for anatomical study, as the Jews buried their poor dead. They asserted that it was unjust to them that Jews should profit through study on the bodies of Christian dead.

Professor Bugarszky protested energetically against the interruption. He called for the assistance of attendants, who succeeded in helping four Jewish students to make their escape from the classroom after they had suffered minor bruises from students who attacked them. It was understood the university senate intends to expel the unruly students.

POLICE RIDDLE ROBBER STOLEN AUTO WRECKED BANK LOOT RECOVERED

Spectacular Chase Followed Holdup of Winnipeg Bank—Customer Escaped and Called Police — Bandit Lost Time Trying to Start Car at Curb—Wild Flight Ended By Fusilade of Bullets and Telephone Post.

MONEY FOUND IN POCKETS.

WINNIPEG, May 21 (Canadian Press). — A volley of bullets from the automatics of a pursuing force of detectives, ended the career of Frank Martin, of 516 Langside Street, Winnipeg, who a few minutes previously had carried out a daring noon-hour hold-up of the Goulding and Portage Avenue branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The entire booty of approximately $4,000 in bank notes which he had secreted in his clothing was recovered.

Martin, who is said to have been a drug addict and with a police record, was brought down after a spectacular chase, the bandit driving at a high rate of speed in a stolen automobile, closely followed by a force of city detectives and members of the motorcycle police squad, keeping up a running gun fight, which ended when a bullet struck the fleeing bandit in the head and chest.

The man dropped over the wheel, while the stolen car dashed up on a sidewalk, careened into a telephone pole, and with both wheels smashed, came to a halt.

Chose Lunch Hour.

It was 12.20 o'clock in the afternoon when Martin, unmasked but with a cap drawn over his eyes, walked into the Montreal Bank branch.

G. A. Geddes, manager of the branch, was at his desk in the front office. In the teller's cage was P. N. Evans.

The remainder of the employees were at lunch, the bandit evidently having chosen well his time.

"Put your hands up and do what I tell you,' the robber commanded, pointing two guns in the manager's face.

He then ordered the two men to "make themselves scarce" in a nearby cage.

Keeping both covered, the hold-up man began stuffing bills and coin into his pockets.

Customer Escaped.

At this point a customer of the bank entered through the front door. "Stay where you are," Martin ordered.

Sizing upthe situation, the customer rushed outside before the bandit had a chance to fire. The former immediately notified the police. Dashing out of the bank Martin jumped into a car parked alongside the curb, but it would not start. He ran a short distance down the street, where he tried to start another car. Once more he failed. Fleeing across the street he commandeered the third car and this time got away. In his wild dash, the bandit dropped several five and ten dollar bills which were recovered by children on their way to school.

Running Pistol Duel.

The police who were speedily on the scene gave chase. For several blocks the bandit car and the pursuing car raced along the rough mud road at a terrific speed. The police auto finally drew level with the bandit. Desperate, Martin threw open the door and fired point-blank at the detectives. His shot went wide. A volley of bullets issued from the police car ending the chase.

Martin, who leaves a widow and two children, is believed to have een formerly employed as chauffeur for the Merchants' Bank, and following the absorption of the bank by the Bank of Montreal, he is said to have remained for a time in the employ of the latter institution.

A little over a year ago, a package containing some $3,000 in currency, despatched from the Morley avenue branch of the bank disappeared. Martin, it is alleged, was the driver of the car from which the money disappeared. Since leaving the employ of the bank he had been located at Saskatoon and Vancouver.

Killing of bank bandit yesterday, police department created criminal apprehension record. First call for police assistance was received at the central station at 12.20 p.m. and at 12.32 p.m. the man was dead, lying in the street with a blanket over him awaiting the arrival of the coroner.

When the call was received detectives and constables commandeered three private automobiles and raced through the business streets of the city at 45 miles an hour.

The amount of money secured by Martin totalled $4,000 bank officials state. The money has been accounted for.

RUSSIANS WOULD PAY WITH BRITISH MONEY

Bolshevist Delegates Broach a Scheme For Settling Pre-War Debts to British Subjects — Need Capital From 'Bourgeois' Britains and Would Buy Machinery in England With the Funds.

LONDON, May 21. — An offer to set aside a lump sum to cover the pre-war debts of the Russian government to British subjects if a long-term lease could be arranged with the assistance of the British government, was made by the Russian delegates at Tuesday's session of the Anglo-Russian conference. The Russians said that they would only consider the claims of those who held Russian bonds before March 12, 1917.

The British delegation replied that the British government would not undertake to guarantee such a loan but would take a sympathetic attitude toward the efforts of the Russians to raise the loan privately.

Buy British Machinery.

In addition, the Russians stated that no claims would be admitted of those who after March 12, 1917, had taken an active part against the Soviet government. They would give the smaller claims priority. The greater part of the loan would be spent in Great Britain in the purchase of machinery and other commodities.

The British delegation undertook to examine the Russian proposals closely but made it clear that any assistance of Great Britain towards floating a loan would necessarily be very limited, and there would be no question of any government guarantees.

Reduce War Debts.

Asked whether the Soviets would admit their liability for principal and back interest of the debt and would resume interest payments, the Russians replied that they were not prepared to pay back the pre-war debt at full pre-war value and that the principal should be reduced and the back interest written off. The Russians pointed out that their assets had been reduced by the war and subsequent fighting on Russian territory, but that they considered limited payments to the British bondholders should be made as soon as a settlement was reached.

State Bank Security.

Urging the British government to do what it could towards helping a loan which would enable the Soviets to settle their pre-war debts, they pointed out that the Russian State Bank would give solid security for a loan. The British delegation however was adamant on the point of a guarantee. The British hoped that Russia would find no difficulty in raising the money privately, and the British government would be prepared as far as possible to take a sympathetic attitude towards the Russian efforts to that end.

The Russians claimed that they would only raise this point again if the negotiations for a private loan failed.

Regarding the personal injury claims on both sides, the Russians express general agreement with the British proposals made several days ago that arbitral machinery should be created in a general treaty to assess and adjudicate such claims, but suggested that there was no need of arbitration except in the case of failure to agree by direct negotiations between the parties.

The conference adjourned until May 26th.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. on May 27th, is looked forward to with keen interest. Kato San, General Secretary of the Tokio Association, will bt the speaker.

THE GUMPS—SAFE AT THE HOME PLATE

FIRM BELIEVER IN THE FRUIT TREATMENT

MRS. LAURA ALFORD

Thousands of people owe the splendid Fruit Medicine—"Fruit-a-tives"—a lasting debt of gratitude, which they gladly pay by testifying to its merits.

Mrs. Laura Alford of 28 Florence St., Ottawa, says: For years, I was a martyr to Constipation and Dyspepsia. I have tried cathartics, salts and so-called vegetable laxatives but all were unpleasant and gave no permanent relief. Finally, I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using "Fruit-a-tives" now for seven years; never have Constipation or Stomach Trouble; and have been in the best of health ever since. CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Getting Ready to Open Summer Resort -- The Firemen Had a Run.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—J. H. Boyce, proprietor of Percy Boon the popular summer resort on the bank of the Trent River about a mile below Meyersburg, with his wife and two daughters, have moved from Warkworth, where they spent the winter, to their cottage at the resort and are busy perparing for the reception of the large number of visitors expected during the summer months. As the resort is situated in one of the best fishing sections of the river a number of well-known local anglers visit it daily in pursuit of their favorite pastime.

Lumbering Carried On

Percy Boon was not entirely a deserted community during the winter although all the cottages, including that of the owner, were closed. Over 100,000 feet of elm logs designed for the cooperage factory at Trenton, were banked on the river side, these logs having been purchased on the stump by the barrel makers from farmers in the vicinity of Warkworth the farmers themselves doing the cutting and delivering themselves. Some of the timber was hauled a distance of nearly 10 miles, and it was the fancy price paid last winter that revived the lumbering industry.

Forty years ago the place was the centre of a thriving lumber trade, the business being carried on by a number of men who lived in Wark worth, wihch at that time was known as Percy. A boom extended from one side of the river to the other, hence the name by which the resort is now known.

George Boyce, First Owner

George Boyce, father of the present owner, acquired the property about 40 years ago, including Boyce's island, a beautiful wooded trail about 100 acres in extent which rises out of the river like a mountain, a shore distance below the resort proper. This island has always been a favorite place for campers..

About 25 years ago, when the lumber industry varied, the late George Boyce built some summer cottages and from the beginning Percy Boom owing to the location and scenic beauty because a favorite resort for tourists from Toronto, Peterborough Rochester and other American cities as well as for residents of Campbellford. It is to-day the recognized point for the holding of picnic parties from this town.

J. H. Boyce the persent proprietor, has conducted the resort for the past 15 years and in that time his patronage has increased every season. He has extended his resources until now there are nine well appointed summer cottages besides his own residence. These cottages, almost completely furnished, are leased to tourists who do their own housekeeping. As there is no boarding place on the premises, Mr. Boyce sells milk and canned goods and provision dealers from Campbellford during the season make regular trips to the resort. All in all with its boating and bathing facilities it is an ideal spot for the tired business man or woman to spend a vacation. About 50 people can be comfortably housed while the camping facilities on the spacious surrounding grounds are practically unlimited. Last year, however, Mr. Boyce was unable to furnish summer homes for all who applied for them and already this season a number of his former guests have sent in applications for cottages.

The resort is only a short distance below Dam 8, where the Hydro Commission is putting up a new power house. The chance to visit this scene of activity to witness operations on a large scale is likely to prove another attraction for guests of Percy Boom.

Road Needs Repairing.

There is only one drawback in connection with this resort. The road from Meyersburg to Percy Brown's, about a mile in length, is in a wretched state of repair, and in yet weather is often almost impassable. In Seymour Township statute labour is commuted. The amount paid by the residents along this road into the highway fund of the township is about $90.00 a year, and if this sum was spent on the road in question the residents would be satisfied. They assert, however, that while Seymour Council laid out about $80.00 on this road in 1922, last year it was neglected entirely. A deputation will wait on the Council to ask that the district be not overlooked in the 1924 programme for highway repairs.

Vacant House Burned.

The firemen were called about 9.40 last night to quench a blaze in a vacant house on Rear Street near the skating rink, a small brick structure belonging to the Mulhearn estate.

This same house was badly gutted by fire several years ago, and has stood unrepaired and vacant ever since. There was still sufficient woodwork left in the interior to provide fuel for another fire, which would have been dangerous to the surrounding property, most of which consists of frame buildings, had there been any wind blowing. As it was, the firemen had the blaze out in short order, but there is enough of the woodwork and room remaining for another outbreak.

No one knows how the fire last night started.

Two men wanted by the Campbellford police were spotted on the street this morning, and one of them placed under arrest. The second man got away, and at the time of going to press Chief of Police Duncalfe was pursuing him in an automobile. The Indian member of the pair was placed in the cells and will appear before the Magistrate. They left Campbellford for Lindsay some time ago.

CAMPBELLFORD HOLDS CELEBRATION FRIDAY

Program of Sports Under Auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society Is Complete--Lacrosse, Football and Baseball Games

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—The various committees at a final meeting concluded arrangements for the celebration which will be held here on Friday afternoon under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society and no pains will be spared to provide a good programme of sports and for the safety and comfort of the visitors. Police protection will be furnished and a good musical programme will be rendered by the Northumberland Regimental Band.

At the meeting delegations were present from the lacrosse and football clubs.

Percy Sanders, on behalf of the former reported that the Trenton juniors will be here and this game will begin at 1 o'clock sharp.

Peterborough football team finds it impossible to come here on Friday for a game with the Christ church team, but the place of the absentees will be taken by the boys from St. Mary's church and as these clubs are evenly matched the contest should be close and interesting.

Manager Davidson of the Northumberland League team sent word that a game with Lakefield was assured.

Dr. S. L. O'Hara, W. J. Abernethy, Mr. Hume and Percy Locke were appointed outside, and Alex. Hume, George Van Volkenburg, inside ticket sellers. Garnet Curle and Wm. Stephens will act as gatekeeper, Henry Watters will have charge of the parking of cars and the locating of the various booths.

The judges and timekeepers for the three horse races will be announced later.

Judging from the comment that it is exciting, the tug of war between a team from Percy township champions and the Burnbrae champions will be the star attraction on the programme. The champions insist that the contest shall be decided by two victories out of three trials and it is likely that the Percy men will consent to this condition.

Henry Watters, who is a resident of Percy, although a member of the board of directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society, will act as general manager of the ten men who will face the champions.

Mayor Meyers has declared Friday a public holiday in Campbellford so that for once at least the merchants will forget their differences over the closing question. All that is required now to assure a successful holiday is favorable weather.

Residence Sold.

James Moore, formerly of Trent River, has purchased the residence of F. A. Hendricks, near the depot, and will make his home in Campbellford.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wood, of Booth street, a daughter.

CONVENTION HAS BEEN POSTPONED

The U. F. O. Will Not Meet Until October Next

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Notices of postponement of U.F.O. summer convention were sent out to all ridings yesterday by R. H. Halbert, M.P., chairman of the convention organization committee. Reason for postponement is given in notice as to the continued sitting of the Federal Parliament, which would make it impossible for Federal Progressives to attend.

New dates set in notice are October 2 and 3, and old dates, tentatively set when Hon. Manning Doherty was chosen as sessional leader of the U.F.O. group in the Legislature, were June 5 and 6.

"I don't think that has anything to do with it," declared Hon. Manning Doherty last night, when asked if the Treasury Department scandals had anything to do with the change of dates. It was simply owing to the sitting of the Federal House.

"If the U.F.O. going to carry on in politics?"

"Yes."

Laviolette at Valleyfield, Que., last September, following a dispute over a dog. He was granted a stay of execution until July 12.

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Following the complaint of John O'Neil, aged 20, of Enderby Road, that he had been lured into a motor car on Monday night and married against his will to Miss Marian Miller, Jones Avenue, David Miller, brother of the girl, of the above address, was taken into custody by Detectives Clarke and Winters on a charge of vagrancy. This charge will stand against him until he appears in Police Court to-day. The girl is in a delicate condition.

DUMPING DUTY TOTAL.

OTTAWA, May 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Appliction of the Dumping Duty netted Canada only $131,960 last year, it was stated in the House to-day in answer to a question. In 1923, the dumping clause was enforced on 2,377 entries and resulted in the collection of that extra sum in customs duties.

THIRD ESTIMATES TO PASS CRITICS

Labor Estimates Given Further Consideration in House.

OTTAWA, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—Further consideration of the Labor estimates in the House of Commons last night gave the discussion both the British harvesters brought to Canada last year and of the harvesters' excursions. T. L. Church, of North Toronto, criticized what he claimed to be lack of system in the way harvesters were brought out, left without employment and at the mercy of charity in Canada. There were some protests, too, against harvesters' excursions on the ground that they took labor away from eastern farms when it was most needed.

When a vote of five thousand dollars for industrial councils was brought before the House Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, said that little had been done lately in Canada in the way of establishing Whitley councils, but the Government hoped that the time was not far distant when it could be more insistent on the desirability of such councils.

Passing all the stages of the House just before midnight, the bill to grant the Government further one-sixth of the main estimates, the sum of forty millions odd, was adopted before adjournment. There was no discussion, it having been agreed by all parties that the grant should be made to enable the Government to carry on public services.

This makes one-third of the total estimates to pass the House.

NORTHUMBERLAND LEAGUE OPENING

The Stage is All Set for a Big Season -- Hastings and Brighton.

BRIGHTON, May 21.—The stage is set for the 1924 opening of the Northumberland County League today, and it only remains for the weatherman to show himself a good sport and not spoil the fun.

Hastings will be the attraction here against the local team, and a good game, as well as a good crowd, is expected. Little has been heard about the northerners' line-up, but it is known that they have an experienced manager in William Wellman, who led the Keene team to three pennants in the East Peterboro League. Their battery is likely to be Herrington and Scriver.

Manager Halliday of the Brighton team has a difficult task in selecting his twirler, because Shannon, Kay, Roblin and McCulloch are all ready and anxious to start. The best bet, however, is that the battery will be Roblin and Frise. The remainder of the line-up is uncertain, although Phillips is down for first, McKee for short and Halliday for second.

At Orland a warm reception is being prepared for Colborne, and the home team is quite confident of opening with a win. The batteries are likely to be Ives and Mayhew for Colborne; Way and Wilson for Orland. The Bantams will trot out an all-star infield, with Zufelt at first, Houlihan at second, Mulhall at third and Belford at short.

The third game is at Campbellford, the Roseneath team being the invaders. Roseneath has signed the pick of last year's Harwood team and has a sweet bunch of players to select a team from. Leach and Dunnett are their leading pitchers, and any team that beats this pair will deserve a victory.

The holiday games scheduled for Monday, May 26, are attracting considerable attention also. Orland goes to Hastings, Campbellford to Colborne and Brighton to Roseneath.

STRICKEN SUDDENLY.

STRATFORD, May 21.—(Canadian Press.)— Stricken while on his way to see the doctor, Joseph Cox, 67, died before medical aid reached him. Death was due to heart trouble.

ALBERTA COAL MAY BE MINED

OTTAWA, May 21.—(Canadian Press.)—To develop scientifically the immense coal resources of the Province of Alberta with the ultimate aim of supplying the fuel needs of Eastern Canada and other parts of the country is a project which is now occupying the attention of a group of great Welsh mine-owners. Representatives of this syndicate, Major S. J. Robins and Captain Henry Davies, O.B.E., both of Cardiff, Wales, are now in Ottawa en route to England after some months of extensive travel and inspection of the mining properties of the west.

Thoroughly convinced of the feasibility of supplying both Quebec and Ontario with western coal, saving these provinces the $100,000,000 which is now sent yearly to the United States in coal trade, Major Robins and Captain Davies have obtained for the British syndicate large coal areas in Alberta held by individuals and small companies, who have not sufficient capital to carry on development.

MATTI OKSANEN WANTED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., May 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Matti Oksanen, wanted in connection with the murder of Antti Kilpela at Mabella on the night of Wednesday, May 14, following a quarrel at a country dance, has done either one of two things. He has made good use of his twelve hours' start on the authorities and boarded a passing train for the west, or he has found refuge with friends in the district surrounding the place where the murder was committed, is the opinion of Inspector Lougheed, of the provincial police who returned to the city after investigating a report that the wanted man had been seen in the vicinity of Kaministiquia.

STILL SEARCHING FOR BOND SCANDAL PAPERS

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press). — Somewhat of a stir was created in Toronto banking circles yesterday when Inspectors Hammond and Stringer of the Department of Criminal Investigation, Ontario Police, arrived at two of the larger banks with search warrants empowering them to inspect and take charge of any documents or papers relating to the bank accounts of Hon. Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, who, with Aemilius Jarvis, Sr.; Aemilius Jarvis, Jr., and Harry G. Pepall, goes to trial in the Police Court tomorrow afternoon on a charge of conspiracy.

This unlooked for development, surrounded as it was with elaborate precautions to ensure secrecy, lent fresh interest to the Provincial Government bond deal scandals. With the officers were expert accountants of the firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, who are acting for the Attorney-General in connection with the revelations.

LEGISLATION NEEDED.

Several fatalities in Ontario recently have resulted in recommendations from coroners' juries that all vehicles on any street or highway of the Province should be compelled to carry lights at night.

There was a feeling that this matter would receive some attention during the recent session of the Legislature, but it was not introduced.

The late administration, or at least the majority of the Farmer members, were so much opposed to any suggestion along this line that it was impossible during the Drury regime to secure the necessary legislation.

The present Government, however, has a majority large enough to pass a measure of this kind, which, in view of the increasing number of accidents, would seem to be a necessity.

The unlighted vehicle is a menace to the public safety.

The man who rides in such a vehicle under the present traffic conditions is unnecessarily exposing himself to the chances of a fatal accident, yet, strange to say, the chief opposition has come from people who would receive the most protection from an act requiring all vehicles to be illuminated.

The problem is all the time becoming more serious, and the time has come for definite action that will improve the conditions.

THE PICKEREL SEASON.

The announcement that the Fish and Game Protective Association had deposited this week some 100,000 pickerel fry in the waters of this district will be welcome to many anglers.

The pickerel, new to this immediate district until a few years ago, is a good pan fish, preferred by many to the better known denizens of the local waters so far as eating goes, although it lacks the fighting qualities of the game black bass or of the maskinonge.

There is apparently no truth in the oft-heard assertion that the presence of pickerel has a detrimental effect upon the resources of game fish.

Owing, however, to the present regulations, the pickerel, indirectly, is the cause of some damage to the bass and maskinonge, and many authorities who have given some thought to the subject believe that it is a mistake to allow the open season for pickerel to commence on May 1st.

With pickerel fishing permitted during a portion of the time when the season is closed for angling for the game fish, it is difficult for the fishery authorities to protect the bass and maskinonge, and it is undoubtedly the case that large numbers of these fish are caught out of season by fishermen who are trying for pickerel.

For this reason there is a strong feeling among many anglers that the closed season for pickerel, instead of being for the month of April only, should extend through until June 15th, so that something like proper protection may be accorded by the fishery authorities.

A NEW SPEEDWAY.

It might be as well if the police were to remind a large number of motorists that the Hunter Street Bridge was not erected as a speedway—even although the cost of the structure would have gone a long way toward building a racing track for automobiles.

Many cars are crossing the bridge these days at a speed much beyond the limit—in fact, there seems to be a temptation about the bridge that causes the average driver to "step on the gas" when he draws near the famous engineering work.

The result has been some very narrow escapes from serious accidents—and the inevitable consequences will eventually be a smash-up in which lives may be lost if the tendency to speed over the bridge is not checked.

At the east end of the structure there is a bad turn, and two cars racing side by side toward Ashburnham, as frequently the case, might easily meet with disaster were another pair of speeding motorists to swing round the curve headed in the opposite direction.

This possibility always exists, and the fact that it does should be sufficient curb upon the speed enthusiasts to cause them to be careful at this point.

Apparently, however, very few motorists seem to worry about the element of danger in fast driving over the bridge, and it would seem to be necessary for the police to give point to the warning by seeing that a few of the worst offenders are given an opportunity of explaining to the Magistrate why they consider a speed of 35 miles an hour justifiable on this stretch of roadway when the limit within the city is 20 miles.

THE TRUE DEMOCRACY.

In following the advice of Premier MacDonald and appointing James Brown, M.P., an Ayrshire miner, to represent him at the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, King George has done a tactful and gracious thing, says the Montreal Star. Mr. Brown is a prominent member of the Labor Party, a man of sound judgment and sober thought, prominent in Presbyterian councils, and essentially a man of the people. He represents what is best in the Labor world. What more appropriate therefore, than that with the advent of the first Labor Government to temporary power, such a man should be called upon to fill an office hitherto held only by Scottish noblemen?

Is it not in every way fitting that the land which gave birth to the greatest champion of true democracy in Robert Burns should also give the world such emphatic proof of the soundness and breadth of the democratic spirit in British Government? It is just possible that in the passion for trivial detail this all-important element in the situation may be overlooked by many who are apt rather to shout over the externals of democracy and miss the inner spirit. But if there is one man who will not misunderstand the significance of the appointment, it is James Brown himself. This he has shown by his demeanor since his nomination for the high office. He may be relied upon to fill it with sturdy dignity, and the duchess and the marchioness who will act as ladies-in-waiting to the wife of the King's representative will do themselves and their Order honor in that service—a fact they have already shown they clearly appreciate. Labor does itself honor in thus executing the King's mandate and being for a brief space his personal representative.

THE MOVIE INDUSTRY.

There's more to the movies than glitter, entertainment and fabulous salaries for stars. The moving picture "game" is as much a business proposition as selling sausages or flivvers.

In 20 years it has moved up until it now ranks eighth among the leading industries on this Continent. Never before in history have art and commercialism banded together on such a gigantic scale.

Across the line fifty million people pay admission to see movies every week. There are 9,000 movie theatres open to the public six or seven days a week, and 6,000 other theatres running from one to five days a week.

Going to the movies costs the people of the United States 10 million dollars a week. The average admission is 20 cents.

Young ladies, who day-dream about going to Hollywood and becoming stars, will be interested in the information that 300,000 people are permanently employed in all branches of the movies.

Actors total into the tens of thousands, counting the habituals who never get further than appearing in the mob. But all of these have hopes. Terrific competition for newcomers.

An odd feature of this industry is that attendance at movies has become one of the most accurate of business barometers. It shows the drift of the "trade winds," quite as accurately as pig iron production, coal output, commercial fires and business failures.

When factories begin to run part-time, movie attendance increases.

The idle want diversion.

But if times continue to be quiet and depression spreads, the public begins to watch its pennies.

Movie managers, counting their receipts, find that attendance falls off, increasingly so as hard times develop.

The moving picture business has had a lot of rocks thrown at it—in many cases, deservedly so. But when we watch a modern high-grade feature film, such as "After Six Days," a visualization of the Old Testament, which is being shown here just now, and compare it with the crude pictures of 15 and more years ago, we can't help but wonder if the movies haven't advanced more in 20 years than the so-called legitimate stage advanced in 20 centuries.

The progress has been phenomenal, both mechanically and artistically.

The wonder is, that movies average as good as they do, rather than that they aren't better.

LOGIC AND THE WAR.

The question of fixing responsibility for the World War is again stirring the academic groves like a summer gust of wind, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. It makes no difference to the academicians that the world outside has reached its decision; they must still have their statistics, their logic and their arguments.

The arguments have a certain interest, of course. Men—and even women—will argue about almost anything; and the very fact that they do so may prove that wordy conflicts of this kind have their use in the cosmic scheme despite the fact that they seldom lead anywhere.

Even statistics have a certain value, though in most cases they can be adducted and juggled to "prove" almost anything. But to apply logic to the events leading up to the World War, all of which are replete in their illogicality, is so confounding as to threaten the alleged supremacy of mind over matter. It is illogical that Germany should have committed herself unreservedly to support Austria against Serbia, no matter what madness was contemplated. It is illogical that the military plans of the Great Powers of Europe should have been so drawn that any move by any one of them made inevitable the full mobilization of the whole continent. It is particularly illogical that the only military plan Germany could put into effect against Russia called for an invasion of France through Belgium.

And if the comparatively simple military conditions seem illogical, what can be said of the broader and more intricate political conflicts, the deeper and more complex of racial antagonisms? It seems futile even to point out the illogicality involved.

It is almost as futile as to try to make head or tail out of the fact that the victors are paying more heavily for the war than the vanquished and that the United States, the innocent bystander in the events that led up to it, should be expected to finance both victors and vanquished.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One good thing about a backward spring is that when a real cold snap comes the growth is not sufficiently advanced to let the frost do much damage.

Sir Thomas White, with his "Retrospective Imagination" and "Exploration Incision," takes his place with the phrase-makers.

Parks, parks everywhere, and not a place to park, is the lament of the motorist.

A THOUGHT

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

"It is doing your job the best you can
And being just to your fellow man;
It is making money, but holding friends,
And staying true to your aims and ends;
It is figuring how and learning why
And looking forward and thinking high,
And dreaming a little and doing much,
It is keeping always in closest touch
With what is finest in word and deed;
It is being thorough, yet making speed,
It is daring blithely the field of chance
While making labour a brave romance;
It is going onward despite defeat
And fighting staunchly, but keeping sweet
It is being clean, it is playing fair
It is laughing lightly at Dame Despair,
It is looking up at the stars above,
It is practising daily brotherly love,
It is struggling on with the will to win;
But taking loss with a cheerful grin;
It is sharing sorrow and work and mirth,
And making better this good old earth;
It is serving, striving through strain and stress,
It is doing your noblest—that's success."

—Mr. Hulatt, in Office Optimism.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Have a talk with a man at the top and you will find he is at the bottom of a lot of things.

Many relatives become distant relatives when you try to visit them.

The older a man becomes the younger everyone else seems.

Two heads are better than one in a porch swing at night.

Maybe love went blind reading love letters.

Any girl who goes through college without having her heart broken twice will make a fine school teacher.

Next to loafing the one thing that takes up more time than anything else in the world is work.

Some men seem to stay at home when they don't need a shave.

Politicians seem to think that to turn about is fair play.

Only a few more shopping months before overcoats.

HOW TO MARRY.

Quickest way to marry a man is take a trip and let him write to you. Longer he writes the more he will think he misses you.

BROTHER TOM'S KITCHEN.

Chicken hash sounds much better if placed between large biscuits and called chicken shortcake.

MUSIC NOTES.

Be a drummer in a big brass band. Practice your singing while the band is playing and nobody will hear you.

VACATION TIPS.

Quit looking at bathing girl pictures and give your eyes a vacation.

DIVORCE.

Any man can make his wife want a divorce from him by going over to a neighbour's house and telling how much money they owe.

TO STAY SINGLE.

Carry a bicycle with you. If a girl looks at you twice hop on the bicycle and ride away. Foolish but safe.

DICTIONARY.

Straw Hat. A straw hat is a round object which you put in a chair and somebody sits on the darn thing.

CLEAN NEWS.

While helping your wife spring clean be careful about throwing away old baskets. They may be her hats.

ETIQUETTE.

Cussing central with the receiver in your hand is not polite. It is also ill-bred and bad luck to cuss the boss where he can hear you.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 20.—Monday's trade showed no practical change in the good and choice butchers' cattle, cows or bulls, but in the export class prices for steers were 10 to 25 cents a cwt. lower. Heavy horses, half fat steers were also off 25 cents a cwt. and the slowest sale in the market.

Steers cost $7.50 to $8.75 a cwt. and heifers $7.25 to $7.75. Except in the steers, prices were about unchanged. Some purchases for export were made again today at Monday's quotation. One load of steers cost $7.50 a cwt. and heifers $7.50. Good handyweight butchers were priced this morning at $7.25 a cwt., and medium butchers at $6.50 to $6.75.

Stockers and feeders are going much more freely. One buyer paid $7.00 for a load of feeders averaging 1,300 lbs. each and two loads of light stockers cost $5.50 and $5.75 a cwt. There was a scarcity of good common handyweight butchers this morinng for which tch buyers were prepared to pay up to $6 a cwt.

A few choice medium weight butchers brought $7.50 and $7.75 a cwt. Cows were steady with one choice top at $6.50 a cwt. and a prime butcher's bull made $6 a cwt. Export heifers sold at $7.25 and $7.50. Trade was not too keen today, but prices had a generally steady undertone.

Good calves made 10½ cents and extra good ones 11 cents. Large bunches of the better common calves brought 6½ and 6½ cents.

Sales of good spring lambs were reported $15 each. Yearling sheep sold at 12½ cents a pound.

The supply of hogs is falling off and the complete run today was below 2,500. Monday's jump of a full 25 cents a cwt. is held and the trading is now from $7.25 to $7.50 a cwt. f.o.b.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 20. - Wheat scored upturns in price here to-day, largely as a result of improvement in the Winnipeg market where export buying appears to be active.

The wheat closing here was unsettled 1-8c to 3-8c and ½c net higher; July $1.06 1-2 to $1.05 5-8 and September $1.07 ½ to $1.07 1-2 and 5-8c.

Corn finished at 2c decline to 1-8 and 1-4c gain; oats at 3-8c off to a shade advance, and provisions varying from 5c back to a rise of 2c.

Except for a slight depression at the start the wheat market showed a decided upward tendency until the final trading when sympathy with the late weakness of corn had some bearish effect. The initial hesitancy of the Chicago wheat market was ascribed to low prices of securities at New York, but wheat buying here seemingly was against sales at Winnipeg, led soon to a material advance in wheat. In connection with the Winnipeg strength, it was said estimates pointed to a much smaller world's cro p than last year. Furthermore, estimates of European buying of wheat to-day totalled as high as 800,000 bushels, mostly Canadian, but including some from the United States via the Gulf of Mexico.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK

WINNIPEG, May 20. — Arrivals 950 cattle and calves, and 500 hogs.

With the demand generally restricted trading on the cattle market was mostly dull and inactive.

The better grades of stockers and feeders were the only offerings to maintain a steady price, while most classes in the butcher division sold from 25c to 30c lower in comparison to last week's close.

The hog market remained unchanged with thick smooths at $6.85 and select bacons at $7.53¼.

Due to the lack of receipts there was no trading on the sheep and lamb market.

There was no change in the rolled oats market. The tone of the baled hay market remains firm. Prices for all grades of eggs were advanced 1c to 2c per dozen. The demand for potatoes continues fairly good. A fair trade is passing in butter. The volume of business in cheese was small.

OMAHA CELEBRATES WILD WEST WEEK

OMAHA, Neb., May 21.—(United Press).—Cowboys reigned here this week as in years gone by, before the "iron trail" was spiked.

From all of the western states premier riders and ropers gathered for the Omaha American Legion Rodoe, that lasts from Tuesday to Monday, May 26.

Once again the trails to this city led over roads and prairie as the riders jogged their horses on.

Omaha, leading cattle town west of the Mississippi, once more was the host to the cowboys and cowgirls of the west.

Prize winners from the famous Cheyenne Frontier days were here for the event.

Daily prizes offered drew scores of expert "buster" riders from Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa and Kansas, as well as from outlying states.

Hugh and Mabel Strickland, Chester Byers, Bobby Calem, Ruth Roach Tommy Kirnan and Yakima Canut, leaders in rodoes and roundups at Cheyenne, Pendleton and New York City, were entered in feature events.

CHILD PLAYING WITH AXE SEVERED LITTLE FINGER

Alice Johnston, Four Years Old, of Apsley, Suffered Painful Accident.

APSLEY, May 21.—Alice Johnston, the four-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. W. Johnston, of Chandos Postoffice, met with a distressing and painful accident on Thursday last. She was evidently playing with an axe in the swamp near the house, and in some unaccountable manner, cut off her little finger below the joint, the member being completely severed. The little tot was rushed to Apsley and Dr. Shepherd dressed the injury.

On Sunday afternoon a heavy thunderstorm occurred which was followed by a severe frost during the night. Ice nearly half an inch thick covered standing water on Monday morning, although the thermometer only registered two degrees below freezing point.

Mr. Lees, Public School Inspector, is making his periodical visit to the local schools.

OBITUARY.

KATHERINE ENGLISH

OMEMEE, May 20.—News of the death of Miss Katherine English reached Omemee on Saturday morning. Miss English passed away on Friday night, following a brief illness at the home of her niece, Mrs. (Rev.) R. F. Stillman, of Cobourg. The deceased lady had reached the good old age of eighty years, and has been a life-long resident of Omemee until last year when she went to Cobourg to make her home with Mrs. Stillman. Deceased was one of eight children of the late Andrew and Margaret English, all of whom, with the exception of one brother, Edward, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, predeceased her some years ago.

The funeral service was held on Monday morning at eleven o'clock in the parsonage at Cobourg, the Rev. Mr. Brennen, of the Presbyterian Church, being in charge, after which the funeral procession proceeded by motor to Omemee Cemetery, where a great many old friends and relatives of the family had gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to one of their pioneer residents.

The casket was opened at the cemetery to allow the friends to view the remains. Rev. E. W. Rowland conducted the burial service.

Many beautiful floral tributes bore mute evidence of the love and esteem in which Miss English was held. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. R. J. Grandy, T. J. Parsons, G. Balfour, A. Laidley, G. English, and Charles Ivory.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving sister is one brother, Mr. Edward English, of Grand Rapids, also many nieces and nephews, three of whom accompanied the remains to Omemee, Mrs. Stillman of Cobourg, Mrs. George Hart and Miss Blanche Elliot of Toronto.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mr. George Hart, Toronto; Rev. R. F. Stillman, Cobourg; Mrs. Smithson, Keene; Mrs. Mulligan and Miss MaCrea, of Lindsay, and Messrs. Hopper, Kerr, Gillett, and Harris, of Cobourg.

SOVIET EXPERIMENT COLLAPSES AMONG PORTUGUESE PEASANTS

LIBSON, May 21.—(Associated Press).—A curious story of the peaceful establishment and equally peaceful death of a kind of Soviet republic, in the San Gregorio parish of Portugal, is told by the newspaper Seculo.

San Gregorio is a wine growing district and is most intensively cultivated. Nearly all the laborers also are small landowners and cultivators, but notwithstanding their general well-being their exactions in wages, hours of labor and extra privileges grew so onerous that the big land owners finally agreed to put thoroughgoing communism into effect. The land was turned over to the whole population with the condition that the proceeds were to be divided between labor and owner.

As a result offers for allotments of land poured in and now the new landlords are trying to regain their old status of laborers sure of day wages. The new tenants invoked the high cost of labor and living, and all the old complaints, to excuse offers of about one-third less than the land is really worth, and the scheme has collapsed.

TEACH AMERICANS TO PLAY IN OPEN

More Than 125 National Organizations Will Attend Conference of Outdoor Recreation To-Morrow.

WASHINGTON, May 21 (United Press).—President Coolidge will open the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation here tomorrow. The meeting will last through Friday and Saturday.

The conference, called by the president himself, records something new in the annals of nations—government recognition of the part that clean sport plays in promoting patriotism.

More than 125 national organizations have been invited to the conference, which hold sessions in the splendid new National Museum.

They will be asked to establish an official American policy of outdoor recreation; a definite programme which will guide both congress and the president in future legislation.

Properly enough, the chairman of the conference is the son of America's most prominent exponent of the "strenuous life," Theodore Roosevelt. Col. Roosevelt, who as assistant secretary of the navy developed the details of the meeting, has provided an inspiring list of speakers.

The other members of the president's committee are Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Secretary of Interior Work, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Labor Davis.

The work of the conference will be done by eighteen committees, their the best known authorities on wild life, forestry, public parks, playgrounds, public health and other forms of outdoor recreation.

They will endeavor to coordinate all their activities and work to the ultimate object, as expressed by President Coolidge, of endeavoring:

"To make available to the average American outdoor recreation, with all that it implies, and to preserve our facilities for outdoor recreation for our children and for our children's children."

In carrying out that purpose the conference will consider formulation of an educational programme, promotion of game preservation, correlation of private and federal agencies, and formation of advisory councils.

KING'S WHARF AND DOWNEYVILLE

KING'S WHARF, May 20.—Mr. Neil Powers is buying cattle through here for his ranch, but prices are very low and as prospects for good grass looks favorable the farmers have decided to keep their cattle until later on.

The U.F.O. got a carload of feed oats shipped in last week. The price was 55 cents per bushel off the car.

Mr. Maurice Doigan sold a horse last week to Mr. W. Collin of Peterboro', the price being $125, a good price at the way they are selling.

The King's Wharf baseball team have begun to make preparations for the season, and are organizing a team. The season has been so wet they were held up.

Mr. Wm. Curtin had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse last week. It received a kick and blood poisoning set in. The veterinary surgeon was called but could do nothing to save it.

Mr. Thos. Lucas, telephone lineman, was through here to-day. The telephone has been out of order and is a great inconvenience when not working.

The meadows and pastures are looking splendid. It looks like a bountiful crop of hay and good pasture.

The heavy rains have been a big disappointment to most farmers in this locality as the land is low and they have had to quit, and it will be a few days before they will be able to work on the land again. There are a few farmers here who never went on the land to work at all yet for it was so wet they could not work. There will be hundreds of bushels of buckwheat sown this year as it is getting late and so wet.

Messrs. John O'Neill and Ambrose Herlihey have purchased two new cars.

Mrs. Garret Guiry, of Lindsay, is spending a few days, the guest of her son, Joseph.

Downeyville News

On Friday evening the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Clancy gathered at their home and presented them with an address and purse of money before their departure for Peterboro' where they intend to reside. Mr. Edward Costello read the address and the presentation was made by Henry Carroll. The address follows:

Dear Friends:

We have learned with regret that you are soon to remove from our neighborhood to Peterboro' and we can scarcely hope to see you so often. Before you sever your connection with this community, however, we would like to express in some way our deep appreciation of the many virtues you both possess. You have been associated with us for a long time and have proved yourselves general favorites.

As citizens you have taken an active part in the welfare of the neighborhood, always willing to give of your time and means to its advancement, and by your cheerful disposition, always looking on the bright side, you have endeared yourselves to the hearts of all. We appreciate the interest Mrs. Clancy has taken in the Catholic Woman's League, and feel sure that the same Catholic Society will profit by her membership elsewhere. Our best wishes for success and happiness are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Clancy and family in their new home and in memory of other days and old friends we ask you to accept this purse as a mark of the esteem in which you have been held by us.

Signed on behalf of the neighborhood,
Henry Carroll,
Edward Costello,
Dee Duffy.

Mr. Clancy was taken by surprise and thanked the people for their kindness to himself and family. Rev. Father Galvin, Wm. O'Brien and Edward Costello said a few words in which they expressed regret at losing another family from the parish. Afterwards, refreshments were served and the evening spent quietly owing to a recent bereavement in the family.

Gave Supper Party

On Wednesday evening, after the convocation ceremonies at Queen's University, Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. O'Connor and Miss Madeline gave a supper party in honor of Miss Mary Costello, who received her degree as Bachelor of Arts. The table was decorated with Queen's colors and place cards. Miss Costello received congratulations from a host of friends. Among the guests present were: Rev. Father Galvin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Costello, Downeyville, parents of Miss Costello; Miss Nellie Kirke, Gananoque; Mr. Geo. Carlin, Watertown; Dr. and Mrs. Fergus O'Connor, Miss D. Flood and Mr. Percy Flood.

Miss Costello left for her home in Downeyville the next day, accompanied by the best wishes of a host of friends in Kingston.

Messrs. Bernard Murray and John Fox are working on the road west of the cheese factory, cutting bushes and repairing the road.

Scarlet fever has again broken out in the parish. The family of Michael H. Harrington are under quarantine. The youngest son is ill with it. Dr. Earl, M.H.O., for Omemee, was in and put the card on.

Mr. Albert Meehan returned to Detroit, Mich., Friday afternoon, after spending a few days, the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Meehan, here.

Mrs. David Morrissey and daughter, Miss Amelia, of Lindsay, spent Sunday the guest of friends here.

C.N.R. BILLS READ THIRD TIME AND SENT TO SENATE

The bill respecting the construction of this line was given a third reading.

Passed Without Debate

Two more bills went through practically without debate except for the formality of introducing Sir Henry Drayton's amendment proposing that the money should be voted in estimates instead. The amendment was automatically declared lost and the bills given third reading. The rule of the House was suspended, with the consent of the Opposition, to permit third reading being given immediately after the committee stage.

The two bills passed authorized a branch from Lockport station to the town of Locksport, Nova Scotia, and one from the end of the China clay branch to St. Remi d'Amherst, Quebec.

Six in the West

The following six bills were passed without opposition: For the line to Cowichan Bay on Vancouver Island, to Mile 100 on Vancouver Island between Hanna and Warden in the Province of Alberta from Leverna westerly in Alberta, to Pine Falls in Manitoba, and between Dunblanc and Mower or a point west thereof in Saskatchewan.

The House than gave third reading to a bill respecting the construction of the line "from or near Radville, Bengough, or Ritchie, Saskatchewan", and to that respecting the line between Rousseau and Laurent, Quebec. The bill providing for construction of the line from Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, northwesterly for forty-five miles was put through committee but held for third reading as absent members wished to speak on it.

The bill for the constructing of a line to Mile 41 of the Melfort branch near Nipawin, Sask., also passed.

DEPOSITORS OF

bank had been takenover in 1916 there would have been no loss, certainly for persons who became depositors subsequent to that time, and possibly for those who were depositors previous to 1916. He submitted that the government by inspection through its own officials or officials of the Canadian Bankers' Association could have ascertained the conditions of the bank. The bank could have been wound up with no loss to some of the depositors and with smaller loss to others. An amalgamation with another bank might have been arranged with no loss to the depositors, but it was impossible to determine whether or not another bank would have agreed to amalgamate.

There was no precedent in England for the payment of depositors of a failed bank, Mr. Symington said.

Depositors' Petition.

R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., made it clear that counsel for the depositors were not making a legal claim for indemnity. There was no legal claim, but the circumstances were such that under ordinary principles of justice the depositors had a moral equitable right. The petition was based on the view that the crown was just and that the presentation of a just claim to the crown would meet with justice. Sir Thomas White had asked if he should have killed the bank because of the representations made to him. Mr. McLaughlin replied that if the minister found a bank in the condition of the Home Bank, if he knew that the people would not deposit their money in it, if the facts were known, it was his duty to kill it. That was what the Canadian people trusted him for.

White Overlooked.

Sir Thomas in agreeing to "stay his hand for the present," had made a great mistake, Mr. McLaughlin said. He believed that Sir Thomas had been so over-loaded and engrossed with war work "that he forgot about the Home Bank." He emphasized thae fact that he had made no reflections on Sir Thomas personally, but he believed Sir Thomas had been overworked.

Precedent in England.

Mr. McLaughlin submitted that there was one precedent in England for reimbursement by the Government of depositors of a failed bank. This was the case of McGregor's bank, in which depositors were paid fifty cents on the dollar.

Mr. Symington interjected that in this case payment had been made only to army officers and their wives who lost by the failure. Depositors generally had not been paid.

W. T. J. Lee,, another of the depositors' counsel, referred to the enlargement of the scope of the investigation. He submitted that under the second order in council he was perfectly within his rights in bringing Sir Henry Drayton and Mr. Fielding into his argument. He had made no comments on these gentlemen personally. The criticisms were aimed at them as departmental heads.

This concluded argument in the first phase of the investigation. The commission adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

OBSCENE BOOK TRAFFIC TREATY RATIFIED BY TWO MORE STATES

GENEVA, May 21. — The Irish Free State, which was elected a member of the League of Nations last September, has just ratified its first league convention. Michael McWhite, the permanent Irish representative here, has informed the secretariat that the Dublin government has officially approved the treaty for the suppression of the traffic in obscene publications.

Ruchdi Bey, the Turkish minitser at Berne, also has notified the league that he has been authorized to sign this convention in behalf of Turkey. Turkey is expected to apply for league membership as soon as the great powers have completed their ratification of the Lausanne treaty.

How Lang's Mineral Wonder Restores Health and Strength

REMARKABLE RECORD OF SUCCESS

To those who do not know the secret of its great healing power, the benefits from Lang's Mineral Wonder appear almost miraculous. Rheumatism, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Eczema, Blood Disorders, Piles and many Internal Ailments yield quickly to the wonderful action of this genuine Nature product.

The reason is that Lang's Mineral Wonder is a pure product of Nature. Positively no drugs or narcotics of any kind. It contains a strong percentage of Iron and Sulphur, the two greatest blood builders known to Medical Science, and combines all the great mineral elements with which the blood must be supplied to keep the body free from disease. There is absolutely nothing like Lang's Mineral Wonder on the market. No chemically prepared product can begin to produce such remarkable results. Drugs cannot cure — they only deaden pain temporarily, and do not supply any lacking elements in the blood.

Lang's Mineral Wonder removes the trouble by getting right at the root of it through the circulation of the blood. Even the most stubborn cases of years' standing yield to its remarkable healing action. It is literally a Wonder—and its name is no exaggeration.

You Can Be Well Again

In Lang's Mineral Wonder, Nature herself has combined as only Nature can, the great vital elements which your blood and body need. Its effect is not merely a stimulant. It gives new life and vitality to every organ, nerve and tissue of the human system, because it creates new, red, rich blood. There is no medical preparation that you can buy like it. The action of Lang's Mineral Wonder being entirely through the blood, it is imperative that it should be taken for a reasonable length of time to do its good work thoroughly. Single treatment $1.25 lasts two weeks, or four for $4.00. The two months' treatment will just cost you six cents a day. Then why continue to suffer from ill health? If your druggist cannot supply you with Lang's Mineral Wonder, write at once to Lang's Mineral Remedies, Ltd., 33 Richmond Street West, Toronto, Ontario.

WHAT EVERY STUDENT OF MEDICINE WILL TELL YOU

—that the health of the body depends upon the blood being supplied regularly with the vital mineral-salts, Iron, Sulphur, Phosphates, Alkalies, etc., which are embodied in Lang's Mineral Wonder. All the constituents of this remarkable remedy are health-giving, natural minerals which the blood and body must have. Beneficial to the whole system.

Half a Bottle Put Her On Her Feet Again!

Lang's Mineral Wonder has surely proved to be one great remedy for rheumatism. I have suffered for three months with it. I was in bed for two weeks. I could not move either arms or feet. I tried everything, besides having medicine from my doctor, also pills, but nothing seemed to do much good until I started taking Lang's Mineral Wonder. I only took half the bottle when I could get up and around. I have been up ever since and do my own housework now, which I have not done for three months. I am sending for another treatment of this mineral. It is a wonderful remedy.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 20.—When Constable Cousans went out to Hastings last week to serve a warrant in connection with the finding of mash, moonshine and part of an alleged still, upon the premises of Henry Griffith, he found that the parties he was looking for had disappeared. Samples of the moonshine had been sent away for analysis, and parts of what is supposed to have been a still are in Inspector Goodrich's charge, to be eventually turned over to the Inland Revenue Department.

Had Good Year.

The Quarterly Board of Camborne Circuit met at Plainville, and reports showed that the year had been a very prosperous one. The missionary givings amounted to $1,120, an increase of about $113, and there was a general increase in givings for the circuit of about $1,000, amounting in all to about $6,000.

The pastor, Rev. F. J. Horwood, was granted an increase of salary, making the stipend $1,700 with a month's holidays, and is also freed from all pastoral responsibility for the month of April in order to carry on his musical work.

An Enjoyable Gathering.

The two winning groups of the Baptist Young People's Union were entertained last Friday evening by the two losing groups, who put on a most delightful banquet at the close of the regular meeting. There were between ninety and a hundred present to enjoy the happy event.

Retail Grocers Coming.

The Retail Grocers' Association of Toronto, will again hold their annual picnic in Cobourg. They are coming here by boat on June 11, and will make their headquarters at Victoria Park. This will be one of the first picnics of the summer season here. The Canadian General Electric picnic will be held here also in June.

Reserve Power Depends on Nerves

TOO many men and women are working below normal. They haven't the reserve power, the stamina necessary to keep their brains clear and active—their bodies fit and unwearied throughout the stress of business, home and social duties. Often the poisons, Caffeine and Tannin, in tea and coffee, through constant irritation of the nerves, are sapping their strength.

"A Good Provider"

is a life insurance policy.

When it is known that life insurance exists, the Widow finds her credit is "satisfactory"; the home continues; the estate can be administered without loss; just debts are paid promptly, and the Will has a chance to do what was intended.

But a vastly different story is told where there is no life insurance; and far more tragic than "a home without a Mother" is the Mother without a home.

Life insurance may be so readily secured that the world thinks little of those who fail to protect their dependents in this way.

CHEMONG PARK BIRD SENT TO RIVERDALE

Charlie Suffered From the Wear and Tear on His Nervous System--Had Wakeful Nights.

A familiar figure that constituted a somewhat silent reception committee at Chemong Park last year will be absent this summer. There was nothing very warm about the welcome that Charlie extended to visitors at the Park and the Rendezvous Pavilion last year, but it was general, at any rate. Some people rather objected to the glassy-eyed stare of the lonely gentleman who kept watch and ward over the incoming and outgoing traffic at the popular summer resort. He had a special aversion to the cheerful toot of the big tally-ho 'bus that made several trips daily to the Park, and regarded it with a particularly baleful stare at all times.

It is thought that the wear and tear on his nervous system, caused by the constant social duties which kept him busy all day, and the music at the Pavilion which combined with the bright lights of motor cars to give him wakeful nights, had something to do with souring his disposition. His residence on the big tree will be empty this summer.

Charlie was the great-horned owl that lived outside of the Chemong Park Pavilion last summer. He is listed among the valuable gifts to the Toronto Riverdale Park Zoo, and priced at ten dollars. His owner, Peter Gettas, has donated Charlie to the big Toronto Park, where he will doubtless be a source of edification and wonderment to numerous small children for some time to come.

MANY PRICES FOR STAFF LIFE HERE

Sixteen to Twenty Cents for Large Loaf in Peterborough.

In Peterboro, prices for the "staff of life" fluctuate considerably. A large loaf of bread may be purchased at prices all the way from 16 to 20 cents per large loaf. The majority of the bakers sell bread at 20 cents for the large loaf, or at 18 cents, if a dollars' worth of tickets is purchased, and one manufacturer sells at 18 cents a large loaf straight. One retail grocer sells bread, brought all the way from Toronto, at 16 cents a large loaf, and a "cash and carry" establishment has bread at this price, made at a local bakery. The price off the cart for the same bread, however, is similar to the other quotations: 20 cents for a large loaf. The baker evidently allows a spread of 4 cents on the loaf to cover delivery charges.

The profit to the retailer on bread is about one or one and one-half cents on the small loaf. The quantity that he sells for a dime, he purchases for 8½ or 9 cents.

And the varieties of bread increase daily. White bread is not as popular as of yore. The discovery of the vitamin qualities said to be involved in the coarser grains has made for their increasing use. Bran breads and Graham loaves and wheat mixtures have a much more prominent place on the table than in years gone by. A recent popular make, however, is the white loaf, "baked on the stone."

DAVID C. MILLER REMANDED TODAY

Appeared in Court This Morning on Charge of Intimidation.

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—David Craig Miller, of Toronto, was remanded for a week on his own bail when he appeared in Police Court this morning to answer a charge of intimidation preferred against him in connection with the marriage of his sister Marian to John O'Neil last Sunday.

The proceedings were very brief and followed complaints laid by O'Neil and his father that the young man had been forced at the point of a pistol to go through a ceremony of marriage at the home of an Anglican clergyman in Birchcliffe, a suburb of the city. O'Neil, in statements made to detectives, alleged that the accused, with a brother William, of Niagara Falls, had, by subterfuge, got him to go for a motor car ride and then forced him to go through a marriage ceremony.

MRS. (ADJT.) SMITH ADDRESSES W. M. S. OF ST. ANDREW'S

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Ladies' Parlor of the Sunday school. The very large attendance filling the room and overflowing into the halls.

After the usual business of the meeting was concluded, Mrs. A. J. Smith gave one of the most interesting talks the ladies have ever had the pleasure of hearing. Mrs. Smith spoke of the work which she finds to do as police matron of Peterborough. Her work is truly the work of a missionary, and few, if any of the ladies present, had realized the great wickedness of Peterborough night life. She thinks that the greatest menace to our young girlhood is the automobile and the respectable (?) older married man.

Mrs. Wm. Zeihr gave the second part of the report of the convention recently held in Hamilton. Her report was very complete in detail.

Mrs. Hazel Davidson-McClelland was very pleasing in "I Gave Myself to Thee," rendered in her usual charming style.

The meeting closed in prayer.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Sarah Ann Wilson, beloved wife of William Robison, North Monaghan, who died April 26th, 1924:

Friend of my ..childhood's ..sunny hours,
How oft we roamed the woodland bowers,
Culling the wild, sweet scented flowers
By Brayley's stream that grew,
In early youth's unclouded day,
To school we ever took our way
Together, when our spirits gay,
Nor care, nor trouble, knew.

And time, in firm affection's bond,
But bound our hearts, in friendship fond,
The power of time and change beyond,
More close from year to year;
For friendship knows no dull decay,
Though dimmed awhile its glorious ray,
'Twill our brief parting yet repay
In a far brighter sphere.

Alas, at life's meridian height,
Fell suddenly that withering blight,
And health and ease their lasting flight
From her frail form had ta'en;
Direful disease, by Heaven's decree,
Her constant guest, till pityingly
Death from her suffering set her free,
From languishing and pain.

Seventeen long years she bravely bare
Her weary trial, murmuring ne'er,
With strength and patience, born of prayer,
Sufficient day by day;
Nobly she bore that heavy cross,
Suffered of every joy the loss,
And counted all earth's gain but dross,
Now wears a crown for aye.

Even in her darkest sorrows here,
Was ever one bright ray to cheer,
One balm for every sore severe,
One solace still she knew.
For by filial love and duty led,
A daughter's dear around her bed,
The sunshine of her presence shed,
Unselfish, fond and true.

Heaven's blessing on her husband kind,
Her son and daughter, left behind,
Who every tender art combined,
To smooth her hapless lot;
Upon them every good bestow,
Of Heaven above and Earth bleow,
And life for them serenly flow,
With every blessing fraught.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

RADICALS MAY FORM CABINET

Negotiations Now Under Way in French Capital --Herriot as Leader.

PARIS, May. 21. (By Webb Miller, United Press.) — The first step towards the formation of a Cabinet to succeed that of Premier Poincare was taken at the Elysee Palace, at noon to-day.

President Millerand informed Edouard Herriot, concerning the engagements France made to J. P. Morgan in exchange for the loan that saved the franc from collapse a few months ago.

Before Herriott, the leader of the Radical Socialists, is formally invited to form a Cabinet, Millerand desires to know the attitude of his party toward the agreement with Morgan. It is also necessary for the next Premier of France to understand what France has promised the American banker.

The Socialist statesman who will probably succeed Poincare, went on foot to the President's palace, arriving a few minutes before noon.

Promptly on the hour, Premier Poincare drove up and a moment or two later ex-premier Painleve, the peacemaker of the Left, arrived. The three were closeted with the President, who had spent the morning consulting with his advisors regarding the exchange situation, and with M. Doumerouge, president of the Senate.

The condition of her exchange is the most vital thing to France right now and already the franc has shown signs of skidding, due to the uncertainty of the political situation, the financial decrees and the increased taxes—plus a very important loan of about $40,000,000 from Morgan—arrested a recent downward plunge of the franc.

With a new government Socialist in character, coming into office, the financial stability achieved temporarily by Premier Poincare, may be lost.

Certain Socialist leaders, for instance, have delivered their intention to abolish Poincare's decrees and the 20 point increase in taxes and generally change the equilibrium of taxation.

According to the Matin, J. P. Morgan and the financial syndicates which aided France during the recent crisis of the franc wish to know just what the policy of the next government will be.

These bankers, says the Matin had counted upon France continuing a policy of strict equilibrium of the budget, and now wants to know if the new regime will renew assurance on this point.

President Millerand was requested to inform Herriot and Painleve in the pesence of Poincare, how matters stood.

The Premier called a Cabinet council for to-day and the president summoned a ministerial council for to-morrow, all part of the elaborate machinery of a change of regime in France.

President Millerand to-day summoned to the Elysee the leading statesmen of France with whom he consulted regarding the formation of a new Cabinet to succeed that of Premier Poincare.

Edouard Herriott, the probable successor to Poincare, ex-Premier Painleve, the peace maker among the parties coming into power, and President Doumerge, of the Senate were among those called to the palace.

Millerand first conferred for half an hour with M. Marsal, regarding the exchange situation and then talked with M. Doumergue concerning the general political situation.

Premier Poincare was asked to come to the palace. The usual consultation that preceded the formation of a new ministry obviously were in progress.

Chief interest centred in the arrival of M. Herriot for his conference.

"My line of conduct is clear, the Socialist leader said upon reaching Paris, the first time he has come to the capital since the elections.

"I wish to follow out the logical conclusions of the elections and constitute a cabinet from the bloc of the Left.

"My policy will be open. There will be no secret combinations. I will examine the situation [illegible] radical executive committee. France has clearly indicated her political tendencies, and I will respect them."

A CITY BUILT FROM ORPHANS

Charles Page, Once An Orphan Boy, Made Good and Has Built a Town Near Tulsa.

SAND SPRINGS, Okla., May 21. —As an orphaned boy almost 60 years ago, Charles Page with his finger traced in the sands of a cornfield near Stevens Point, Wis., the plans for a model city dedicated to serve humanity.

Today the boy, now grown to manhood and wealthy through millions of dollars amassed from oil, sees a realization of his immature dream in this utopian town he founded just seven miles from the outskirts of Tuisa.

Sand Springs, the city as Page intended it to be, is built about what is probably the most unique and charitable organization in the United States.

The nucleous of its life is the Sand Springs Home, an institution established to shield orphaned boys and girls from some of the hard knocks which Page had experienced most his life.

Sand Springs Home owns outright more than 12,000 acres of fat farming land.

State's Richest Enterprise.

It dominates and controls a standard gauge electric line running from its door to Tulsa, runs a water and gas company, owns innumerable spouting oil wells, operates a cotton mill costing $3,000,000, sells electric power to surrounding cities and has its corporate hand mixed up in numerous other enterprises and utilities.

Altogether, Sand Springs Home is perhaps the wealthiest institution and power in Oklahoma.

Its holdings and revenue run up into the millions every year.

The hundred boys and girls shielded by its broad expanse of modern buildings enjoy all the comforts and privileges of guests invited for a permanent visit to some palatial country estate.

Family Atmosphere.

And Sand Springs Home asks nothing in return save that they fashion themselves into good men and women.

The institution operates more like a large family and does not smack in any wise of institutional air.

There are parties, vacations, and time for recreation in model playyards equipped with every conceivable kind of apparatus from swimming pool to swings.

Likewise there is no drudgery about the home, for all work is performed by electrical servants commanded by the institution's own power plant.

Colony for Aged, Too.

Anyone who pleads the cause may carry away bacon, flour, cheese and other food products from the home's well lardered refrigerator for the asking.

In Sand Springs, the home maintains a widows' colony. Here widows and couples too old to work, may bring up their children with all sustenance provided free by the home.

Page, the man who made all this possible, is loath to talk about himself.

"Sand Springs Home is in the world to serve but one purpose," he says.

"It exists to destroy selfishness, the greatest curse of man."

Poor Until 50.

Page made his last stand and leaped to fortune when almost 50.

The jinx of hard luck and poverty that had pursued him since boyhood trailed him still into the switchyards and roundhouses of frontier railroad towns.

It followed close on his heels into the lumber and mining camps of the Sierra Nevada and Rockies and the cattle ranches of the great plains.

This pathway finally brought him to the Indian Territory in 1900 along with a band of adventurers.

Just south of the Kansas line Page halted and drove his tent peg to take one last chance.

His first drilling attempt was rewarded by oil.

The first well was followed by others, and soon Page, the dreaming orphaned boy, had the millions which made his early dream come true.

Quiet Period in Wheat And Flour at Present

Wheat is holding up in price on the cash market remarkably well. Business, however, is very quiet. There is little selling pressure and little buying powers visible on the market these days. There is some liquidation going on by holders of May wheat, to take place during the next two weeks, and foreign buyers, being aware of this situation, are holding back to see what will be the effect of this liquidation. There is a more hopeful outlook in the political situation in France and Germany, and this is reflected in the exchange rate for money in France and Britain. If things should take on a more constructive attitude in Europe it would help the grain business in Canada.

In the meantime there appears to be a cautious policy being carried on by every branch of the grain trade. Although the United States markets have declined the Winnipeg market has not been affected, and has stood up well against unfavorable conditions. It is apparent that the United States is getting down to a world's basis in spite of the recent advance in the tariff and will shortly be a serious competitor with Canadian wheat.

The Ford Motor Company employs in its plants throughout the world 162,792 persons.

Eighty-Three Years Old And Still Works Garden

LAKEFIELD, May 21.—Mr. Josiah Bullock who is in his eighty-third year and still going strong is one of the remarkable old men of the village. He is active and works harder than many men much younger. He takes care of his own garden and property and also keeps his neighbors during his spare time. He split and piled eleven cords of hard wood for one patron and is now putting in the garden. He is one of the pioneers of the country and after years of hard work he is clear of mind and active of body—a good type of a Canadian grand old man.

The warmer weather has made people speed up their gardening and during the past week the work of planting has proceeded briskly between showers. Last year was not an ideal year for gardens as there was so much dry weather but the prospects are better for this year.

Big Demand For Farm Workers in Alberta

CALGARY, May 21. —Owing to the bumper crop last year there has been much more demand for farm labor this spring than has ever been known before in Alberta. During the last two months, the Calgary branch of the Government labor bureau has placed 2,162 men on farms in spite of the fact that many more men were employed throughout the winter than hitherto. For the corresponding period last year the farm placements were less than fifty per cent. of the number made this season. The actual number last year was 1,073.

Three-Year-Old Cow Gave 18,903 Pounds

EDMONTON, May 21.—A three year-old Holstein cow, one of the herd maintained by the Alberta government at Oliver Farm near Edmonton, has just completed a milking record which places her at the top of the list of Canadian Holsteins of her class. In the twelve months the heifer gave 18,903 pounds of milk and 941.25 pounds of butter. As a two-year-old, the cow produced 18,415 pounds of milk in twelve months.

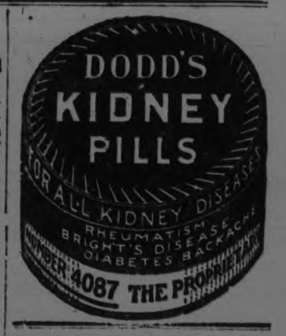
ADVERTISING EXPERTS DISCUSS THEIR PROBLEMS

INDIANAPOLIS, May 21.—The rank and file of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives have selected the matter to be brought before that body at its annual convention at Columbus June 9-11, according to Frank T. Carroll, Indianapolis, preisdent. Of the hundred or more problems suggested for discussion, the program committee selected those that were proposed by the largest number of persons.

National advertising will be discussed June 10. William A. Thomsen, director of the Bureau of Advertising, A.N.P.A., will be one of the speakers. The Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives, meeting with the Association of Newspare Classified Advertising Managers, will cover classified advertising problems that are of interest to both organizations.

General advertising management is the subject for June 11. An important part of this session will be the proposal of a code of ethics covering varied problems and practices of newspaper advertising management.

Three separate noon luncheons also are on the program. Men representing newspapers published in cities of less than 75,000 population will meet; representatives of morning newspapers published in cities of more than 75,000 will get together at another luncheon, while the third group will consist of newpapermen from the larger cities.



Lakefield Bright With Tulip Bloom

LAKEFIELD, May 21.—The wet weather of the past week has been a detriment to the work of seeding but the warmth has provided growth on high ground, the fall wheat is coming on well. Low lying fields are almost submerged and work there is at a standstill. Last year was an exceptionally year with its late season and the winter with its huge banks of snow, which owing to the lack of frost in the ground, melted and was absorbed into the earth. Wells and springs which have been at a low ebb for a couple of years are filled and the problem of providing water for the stock is solved. Last autumn the scarcity of water was a serious matter in many parts of the country especially in North Smith.

It's tulip time in Lakefield and these gay heralds of spring are flaunting their cup like blossoms in all their glory. The post office grounds are brilliant with these blooms which with background of grey stone wall and emerald grass present a most attractive picture.

TONGUE COATED BAD TASTE IN MOUTH EYES TINGED WITH YELLOW

Liver Trouble the Cause

Mrs. A. C. Brown, Oromocto, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a few years back and was so bad I did not feel able to do my work.

I had severe pains in my stomach so bad I could hardly stand them at times; coated tongue; bad taste in the mouth, especially in the morning, and had a yellow and sallow complexion.

I had read a great deal about Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and decided I would try a vial, and after taking two or three I found I was greatly improved, and can truthfully say that I felt more like living and can now do my own work without any trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c, a vial at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Woman Owner of Ranch Faces Loss of Cattle

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Facing the possible extinction of her herd of 1,500 cattle Mrs. Dorothy Alexander MacDonald, owner of a 2,000 acre ranch in Southern California, now visiting in this city, said of the situation: "Foot and mouth disease spreads like wild-fire; already I have lost 500 animals; the cattle industry where I live is in the greatest danger. I stand to lose 70 to 80 thousand dollars, the fruits of 10 years' hard work." For the past 10 years Mrs. MacDonald has been coming to British Columbia every summer, and she is convinced that this province possesses the finest beef and cattle industry in the world.

HEALTHY WOMEN, HAPPY HOMES

Do not resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy made from roots and herbs is always within reach.

SAYS ARABS DON'T MIND HANGING

LONDON, May 21. — (United Press).—Arabs don't seem to mind hanging at all; they go to death stolidly, according to J. A. Drowley, the official hangman of Bagdad.

Drowley is an Englishman who went to Bagdad as a British soldier in 1915 and after the armistice, secured a steady job as hangman.

"I've hung between 20 and 30 men" he said the other day, just before embarking on his return to Bagdad, after spending a short holiday in England.

"One man I hanged requested that I should carry out the sentence, personally, as he was most anxious that the job should be done properly, most of the executions being in public."

HELEN WILLS IS COURT'S BEAUTY

None of Her Photographs Does Justice to California Girl's Charm, Says the London Standard.

LONDON, May 21.—Helen Wills of California, who has come across seas to compete in the Olympic and other international tennis matches this season, arrived at Southampton yesterday on board the steamer Berengaria from New York.

The Berkeley schoolgirl, who holds the United States championship, made an instantaneous hit with the British ship news reporters, who have been busy regaling readers of London newspapers with descriptions of her complexion, which is likened to that of an English school girl, her gray eyes, her modest reserve and her eagerness to begin practice at Wimbleton this week.

"The first thing that strikes one about her is that not a single photograph that has been published in England does her striking beauty anything like justice," says a despatch from Southampton to the Evening Standard. "No lovelier or more striking girl has ever been seen on the historic courts here."

Miss Wills put in two hours every morning and afternoon during the voyage across the Atlantic batting balls against the walls of the Berengaria's deck. It is expected here that she will enter some minor contests prior to the Wimbledon tournament.

Manufacturers Convene In Montreal on June 3

Visitors From Outside Will Number 1,200 — Many Delegates Go to London

MONTREAL, Que., May 21 (Canadian Press).—With from six to seven hundred delegates from all parts of Canada in attendance, the 53rd annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will open here on June 3rd for three days. This is expected to be one of the larger conventions at Montreal this summer, as, with their ladies, visitors from outside of Montreal will probably number around 1,200.

Two convention programmes will be carried out, one for the business of the convention and the other for social purposes. The general plan is to hold business sessions for delegates in the mornings, with sightseeing and entertainment in the afternoons and evenings, save for the last day, when there will be a business session in the afternoon.

The business sessions will be mainly confined to the reception and discussion of reports from the many sections of C. M. A. activities, which deal with a multiplicity of subjects connected with the industrial interests of the Dominion. These will be followed, probably on the last day of the convention, by a general discussion on "National Affairs," which will include tariff, taxation, and like subjects.

The valedictory of the retiring president, C. Howard Smith, of Montreal, with the election and installation of the new president and other officers for the ensuing year, will be the business of the afternoon session of the concluding day of the convention, on June 5. While the matter of a successor to the presidency is open to the decision of the convention, it is expected that precedent will be followed and the first-vice-president, Lt.-Col. A. F. Hatch, of Hamilton, Ont., promoted to the presidency.

The retiring president, C. Howard Smith, will preside at the business sessions, while the new president will, in all likelihood, take the chair at the annual banquet on the concluding day. This will be a shorter function thanin past years, and will be followed by a ball. There will be many features of entertainment during the convention. One of these will be a "Pow-wow a la Canadien," with a habitant voyageur programme and smoker.

On June 6 about 250 of the delegates will sail on the Montcalm for a visit to the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.

MAY A MAN KILL NEIGHBOR'S DOG?

Justifiable In One Ottawa Case — Owner of Pup Responsible.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 21 (Canadian Press).—Is a man justified in killing a neighbor's dog if it trespasses on and attempts to destroy his property at night? This question came up in Hull Police Court the other day when Isidore Dubeau, of Danford Lake, sued Clifford Gibson, of the same place, for $99, the value he placed on a dog which the latter acknowledged he had killed on the night of June 3 last year, when he found it attacking a colt in the field adjacent to his home. Judge Millar was of the opinion that the act was justified and dismissed the case against Gibson. Judge Millar stated, in dismissing the charge, that if a man might shoot a thief who entered his house at night, with intent to steal or destroy, he was certainly entitled to do the same to a dog, and the onus of responsibility rested on the owner of the animal.

NO NEW ANGLO-RUMANIAN ACCORD.

LONDON, May 21.—Prime Minister MacDonald, answering a question in the House of Commons, said that during the recent visit of the King and Queen of Rumania to London no agreements or understandings were arrived at, and he had been informed that the discussions which took place were quite general in character.

FRENCH PLANE WRECKED

Captain Doisy Passed Objective Of Eastern Flight Before Crashing.

PARIS, May 21.— The French Air Service received a despatch from Captain Pelletier at Shanghai yesterday, reading:

"Crashed, landing in ditch. Machine entirely destroyed. No harm to us."

Laurente Eynac, Under-Secretary of State, immediately cabled to all the French agents in the Orient, giving instructions that everything possible be done to procure means for the aviator continuing his trip to Tokio.

Captain Doisy said: "The War Department instructed me on leaving Paris to proceed as far as Hanoi, Indo-China, then to go as far as I might desire with this airplane. Since the airplane is demolished beyond repair, I have decided to terminate the undertaking."

Restaurant Strikers Joined By Six Chefs.

PARIS, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—The strike of Paris cooks became livelier yesterday with the advent of determined attempts to provoke further walkouts, notably in tourist centres about the Place De L'Opera and the Rue Royale, where there are famous restaurants.

The walking delegates were successful in only one place. This was a small hotel just off the large boulevards, possessing a bar known to almost all tourists, where they induced six cooks to drop their ladles.

Several strikers were arrested for interference, but were later released.

"HEARTS AFIRE!"

By MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, who has become entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—guest at the country home of

Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, from whom (unknown to all, save Prudence, who has been wrongly accused of one of her thefts) Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Performing an experiment in his laboratory, there is an explosion, and Peter is blinded. His nurse, Janet Mercer, takes Prudence to see the injured man.

Mrs. Vansittart urges Virginia, for decency sake, to go also.

Prudence shows Peter her unquenchable love for him, and at that moment they overhear Virginia announcing that she will never marry a blinded man!

CHAPTER LXXV.

Rejected.

Virginia Dale was in a quandary. 'Nerves' (as she styled her selfish rage) having completely got the better of her outside Pear-Tree Cottage, she had run away from her distasteful errand, only to realize that when the truth came out, as inevitably it would, thanks to Janet Mercer's acid tongue, that haven—Winston Towers—would be permanently closed to her!

"I ought to have gone in to Peter and played the ministering angel!" She made an angry face as she hurried off in her car. "But, after all, it would only be postponing the inevitable, for I simply couldn't marry a blind, disfigured man! So why prolong the agony?"

She made a wide detour to fill in the time supposedly allotted to the invalid.

"Janet Mercer—hateful cat! will be around soon enough to tell on me. But I'll have one more evening at the Towers, and in that time I'll pull things off with Bert."

Yes, that was the cue, the only possible solution.

Bert had been crazy over her for years. They'd marry right away, and then Bert could shoulder all her problems. There were lots of easy albeit shady ways the pair of them could garner money, without really working for it!

She was lucky in finding Bert still in the library, alone.

"Well, how goes it?" He looked up carelessly from the novel in which his nose was buried. "Did you play the consoling angel to the stricken hero?"

'Jinny' flushed a little.

"I never was really keen about him Bert. Don't kid me."

She came over and stood beside him. He made no effort to remove his slim legs from a neighboring chair, where they were resting.

"I'm not kidding. It's a nasty corner for you, if you didn't ever care for the chap. It was his money you were after, wasn't it? Well, it's still O.K., I s'pose? He'll have a nice enough nest-egg in the bank, even though he's smashed up."

"Don't Bert." She dropped on to the edge of the deep armchair in which his person was luxuriously sunk, and her fingers—as though she would seek to hypnotise him—played with his sleek hair.

"Don't, Jinny." He jerked his head away. "You make me go all 'goosey' when you try those tricks." Then, attempting a pleasanter tone:

"Well, what's on your mind? Let's have it."

She hesitated, then she said, uncertainly:

"Mrs. Van is wild with me!"

"Huh! Is that all?" Young Traymore grinned in a very knowing manner. "She'd be a heap wilder if she knew all I know!"

A flood of red ran to Virginia's cheeks, showing under the carefully applied rouge.

"What on earth do you mean? What are you insinuating?"

He had raised himself for a moment in his chair, giving her a searching look. But now, with a light laugh, he sank back again.

"Oh, we've had quite enough melodramatics for one day. Forget it, and let's be cheery. When you go away from here, as go you must, if you've chucked Armstrong—Mrs. Vansittart being a sort of champion of the sick, as 't'were—what's to become of you?"

She looked at him with goo-goo eyes.

"You and I were awfully fond of each other once. Don't you think we could do pretty good team-work, Bert?"

He dropped his legs from the neighboring chair, and sat up straight again. His glance was frankly astonished.

"For mercy's sake, you're not hinting that you want to marry me?"

She tossed her head.

"You've asked me more than once if you'll remember!"

"But I couldn't keep you in shoes, let alone in frocks and—and other things! For the love of Mike, what's come over you, girl?" He caught her arm.

She dropped against him.

"Oh, I'm tired of always knocking around other poeple's houses, outstaying one's welcome, and—and having to toady—and flatter people you despise!" It was one of the frankest confessions she had ever made, and Bert was stunned into silence. "And you and I needn't really be hard-up. I could 'play' my wealthy friends in all sorts of ways."

She stared at her incredulously.

"But that's just what you want to escape frome, you wre saying!"

She hummed and hawed.

"It would be different if I had something—somebody—permanent, behind me," she said, lamely, conscious that she wasn't setting the matter forth in its most attractive light, and yet sure of Bert's affection and allegiance. "We could go on the films together, or I could start a dressmaking establishment, or—we're pretty good at bridge and poker, Bert——"

The words died on her lips at a look on the young man's rather sulky face. Had she tried him too far, and the worm proverbially had turned?

Or—had he met some other woman?

"What is it, Bert? Don't you care for me any more?" She edged nearer to him on the chair's edge.

He looked searchingly into her made-up eyes, and, when he spoke, his words were in the nature of a bomb-shell.

"At one time I was fond of you. But, now, I've no desire to marry a woman who is nothing but a common thief!" said he.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 21.—Sobbing details of her spurned love, Mrs. Grace Dolby has confessed that she threw acid in the face of G. B. Hackney as he sat in a motion picture theatre, to "spoil his face so no one else would have him." Hackney died from heart disease.

Mrs. Dolby was held for investigation.

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

CAVAN FARMERS' WIVES ENJOY A SEWING CLASS OF PRACTICAL BENEFIT

Attended Every Day For Ten Days, Driving Several Miles to Participate — Miss Phillips Was Ideal Teacher.

COMPLETED DRESSES.

CAVAN, May 21.—The Sewing Class, held in Cavan Community Hall by the Women's Institute, completed a two weeks' course on Friday afternoon.

There were eighteen members in the class, ten of whom were girls. The remaining eight were mothers from busy homes, who had to make a great effort to accomplish enough work in the mornings, to enable them to spend every afternoon for ten days away from home. Many of them drove miles to take the course.

They managed it, however, not one member of the class missed an afternoon, and when the course was completed, one and all declared they were delighted with it. It was not the dresses which they had made, and proudly took home, which they valued most, but rather the fact that they had learned to do so many things properly.

The first three days, Miss Phillips took up different kinds of stitches and demonstrated measuring each member of the class for the pattern, which she intended cutting for that member.

She measured each one and had each one of the class measure one person, to make sure that they understood how it was done.

A lesson was given on drafting. The rest of the time was spent in making the dresses and using the stitches and other things taught. Instructions were given on how to put in pockets, placketts, make button holes and many other parts used in dressmaking.

No Kimona Sleeves

One thing Miss Phillips stated that she would not allow to be used on the dresses made, was kimona sleeves, as nothing was to be learned by using them.

By the last afternoon the eighteen dresses were completed. They were of different fabrics and colors, but one and all were very pretty and well made. On Friday afternoon, Miss Phillips showed how to use the patterns which she had cut, and used in cutting out the dresses.

It will be a great benefit to every member of the class to possess a pattern cut to her own measurements.

From half-past four to five visitors were allowed in to view the dresses and work done.

At six o'clock the class enjoyed a merry banquet with Miss Phillips. All manner of good things were there, even 'toasts', and these by the ladies.

After the banquet, Miss McNeil, on behalf of the class, presented a box of Laura Secord chocolates to Miss Phillips and expressed their appreciation of all that she had so willingly and patiently done for the class, to which Miss Phillips appropriately replied.

Well Worth While

A class of this kind had long been talked of in the Institute, but never before could fifteen (the smallest class possible) be pursuaded to promise to attend, but now that it is over the members are only surprised that they had not taken it long ago.

Eight years ago Fairmount Institute conducted a similar class. Two, who took it at that time, again took the course with this class.

It is well worth while for any community to make an effort to have one of these classes. The value of the course cannot be realized, except by those who have taken it. In these days when it is so hard to get sewing done, and it costs so much to have it done outside of the home, it is a great boon to busy mothers to understand the principles.

All that is necessary for an Institute to have the course is to apply to Mr. Putnam for a demonstrator, and instructions how to form the class.

Miss Phillips goes to Toronto on Saturday to spend the week-end with friends. On Monday she goes to Bracebridge to conduct another sewing class.

CHARLES S. GILLESPIE

Who advises the dairymen of Seymour to reduce the number of cheese factories.

REDUCE NUMBER CHEESE MAKERS

Charles S. Gillespie Believes Seymour Folk Must Concentrate Efforts.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—Charles S. Gillespie, who is regarded as the father of municipal ownership in Campbellford, and under whose direction the water works system of the town was inaugurated, he being the reeve at the time, believes that the dairy farmers of this township must concentrate their efforts in the matter of cheese production in order to get the industry on a paying basis. Mr. Gillespie has built and equipped the majority of the cheese factories, not only in Seymour Township, but in the Peterborough district and though they served the purpose for which they were intended when put up, he is satisfied now that they have outlived their usefulness owing to changing conditions.

Would Reduce Number

Mr. Gillespie believes that six factories would be sufficient in Seymour, whereas there are 17 now listed on the cheese board, although several of these dropped their affiliation last summer, and others are likely to do so this year. He advised the dairymen to concentrate to close all but three factories on each side of the river, and says that by so doing they could reduce the cost of production by fully 50 per cent., making dollars under the new arrangement instead of the cents which they are now taking in. If every factory were equipped with eight or more vats instead of two or three as at present, the operating cost would not be much more than it is to day. Besides this advantage, it would be easier to have better buildings and to keep them in a sanitary condition.

Collecting the Milk

In the days when the present factories were put up, roads were not what they are now, and the auto trucks had not been heard of. Collecting the milk for the cheese factories, done as this work was by waggon, was a problem. It was necessary to have the factories built near each other as the area in which milk could be gathered by one man was limited. It is easier, Mr. Gillespie says, to collect milk from a seven mile radius today than it was to haul it two miles by waggon.

The Farmer's One Hope

Mr. Gillespie says that the one hope of the farmers in the Campbellford district is the dairy business, the land being specially suitable for the purpose. That being the case, every effort should be made to get the industry on a sound paying basis. He has taken the matter up with some of leading dairymen in the district and finds that the majority of them are of his way of thinking. Judicious amalgamation to reduce the cost of production is essential, especially in view of a market that appears to be falling on account of the competition of dairymen overseas, who are carrying on under more favorable climatic conditions than those which prevail in Canada.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

AS THEY, SO I.

"I like to think that back of me for age on age
A company of loving women stand,
The incense of whose love lends fragrance to the page
That I am writing with my own frail hand.
It stays my weakness when I feel they lived and loved,
And walked along the pathway I have come,
And that they knew the sense of service as they moved
In all the happy ministries of home.
The dress they wore, the flesh that bore their spirit's grace,
The ruthless years have moulded into dust;
It is my hour now to fill their vacant place
And hold aloft this lamp of love and trust.
And when I, too, shall slip beyond the things I see,
I crave to leave within the world I know
A little woman child, whose mother heart shall be
A place where tender herbs of healing grow;
Who shall take up the lamp of service and of love
And all the joy and pain of womanhood,
And bear it high life's round of petty cares above
And glorify the place where once I stood."

Before buying a teapot or a house, ask yourself "Can I clean it easily?"

SPRAYING OPERATIONS ON LAKE SHORE FARMS

COBOURG, May 21.—Prof. L. Caesar, O.A.C., Guelph, and Mr. Harry Sinett, Brighton, have been assisting Mr. F. C. Patterson, of Port Hope, district representative of agriculture for Port Hope, in spraying operations. The weather for the past two weeks has not been favorable for this kind of work, and much more favorable for the growth of scab, a condition they are endeavoring to offset.

TO SAVE CALIFORNIA HERDS FROM STARVATION

By A. H. FREDERICK.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 21.—California must break the hoof-and-mouth epidemic by June 1. Otherwise thousands of head of cattle, doomed to ranches devoid of pasturage, will die of starvation.

The struggle against the disease is as serious a war as any human conflict. Orders are issued from headquarters here, and obeyed with military snap and precision. Daily, or more frequent, communiques are issued. Censorship is enforced.

Commander in chief is Dr. U. G. Houck, veteran of three previous outbreaks, assigned here by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Under him are consolidated state and federal forces assisted by business organizations and public service corporations.

The centre of the outbreak is Merced county, with spots of infection scattered between San Francisco and Los Angeles. Disinfecting stations have been put up at practically all county lines where deputies see that no person, animal or vehicle crosses without disinfection.

At the same time the war against the disease is waged ruthlessly. One animal caught with an infection, and the whole herd is slaughtered and buried. More than 55,000 head of cattle have thus met death, some of them costly prize animals.

All the farmers get in return for each animal slaughtered is $40 from the Federal government and $40 from the State. Yet one prize herd of Herefords, valued at $426,000, each head worth in four or more figures, had to be put underground. Tillie Arcartra, former world champion milch cow, alone worth $50,000, was one of this herd.

Cattle, sheep and hog owners are cooperating in every way with the authorities in their effort to end this dreaded war by June 1. California's sunshine is a helpful ally, because the germ cannot endure two hours of it if directly exposed to the sun's rays.

More than 200 scientific workers are on the firing line.

Children, before crossing a county line to play, must step into a pan of creosote (upper left), and no auto is too grand to escape driving through the creosote "dip," lower photo, while deputies search it for animal pets. Upper right, are Dr. U. G. Houck, in charge of the hoof-and-mouth war, with George H. Hecke, right, director of the California Agricultural Bureau, co-operating.

SINGLE HARNESS AGAIN IN STYLE

Campbellford Farmers are Investing in Harness Instead of License.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—John S. Hay, who retired from actual farming some time ago, but whose son is still living on the homestead, is now in the harness business in Campbellford. He reports that farmers in the township are finding autos an expensive luxury owing to the cost of upkeep, and predicts that many farmers of his acquaintance will not take out licences for their cars this year. In proof of this assertion he reports a marked revival in the sale of single harness, some of these sales having been made to farmers who for years seldom drove a horse to town.

Local auto dealers, in common with those in other lines, say that business is quieter this spring than usual. On the other hand the records in the office of C. H. Davidson show that the number of licences issued for his district is ahead of all former records.

The Farmers' Last Chance.

Mr. Hay says that his experience on the farm has taught him that unless grain is sown on high clay land by May 24 the seeding season should be regarded as closed for ordinary crops, the only variety that can be raised to advantage after that date being buckwheat. He expects a large acreage will be planted to this grain this year. On low soil the seeding can be continued until June 1st with fair hope of returns.

LOTS OF HAY ASSURED TO FARMERS IN CAVAN

CAVAN, May 21.—Some of the farmers have finished seeding, but a number are held back on account of the continued wet weather, it being impossible to get on the low land at all. A few have started preparing the ground for the root crop. The farmers think there is a great prospect for lots of hay. Gardens are very backward, too, as it has been too cold for any growth.

Deputy Reeve Robinson was around on Tuesday seeing where there were washouts and culverts needing repair.

J. W. Howson has men engaged putting up a wire fence on the south part of his farm, which was destroyed by the men underbrushing on that line.

COBOURG FARMERS ARE TALKING TILE DRAINS

COBOURG, May 21.—Seeding operations are reported to be at a standstill along the lake shore in Clarke Township, Durham County, and a resident says that the annual rainfall has been a record-breaker. Another farmer says the advantages of tile draining appeals forcibly to the more thoughtful agriculturist as a result of conditions there this year.

Hogs Have the Same Traits as Men And They Thrive on the Same Food

Men May Learn to Keep Fat and Fit by Studying the Sty Occupants--Hog is Really Intelligent.

HOGS AND MEN ARE DOMESTICATED

CHICAGO, May 21 (United Press).—How to keep fat but fit can be learned from watching the habits of the hog, John M. Evvard, professor of animal husbandry of Iowa State College, holds. The feeding habits of hogs and humans do not differ very much, he said.

Long ago the hog was a slender, bony fellow, when the business of rooting for a living was more serious than it is now, Evvard said. Then man took him in hand, made life easy—and now look at him. All this because the farmers treat hogs more like humans, the professor stated.

"In the wild state, hogs were long, slim fellows, who had to root for a living," he said. "They didn't dare overeat. The hog couldn't afford to be burdened with fat—it meant his life. To get away from spry enemies he had to be spry on his legs.

"Neither could the cave-man afford heavy waist lines. And he didn't have them.

"But to-day, both hogs and men have become domesticated. The life of the hog has become a life of leisure. He is so pampered and hot-housed in order to add the extra pounds of market fat that he doesn't get enough exercise to maintain proper digestion."

The Aristocratic Hog.

The aristocratic hog of to-day has as delicate a digestive system as a human being, according to the professor. If Mr. Pig's breakfast isn't mixed in the proper proportions or if his meat-meal ration is a little too large, he is likely to become sick, just as a man would.

"Hogs like the same foods as humans, and their rations must be even more carefully balanced, for hogs get less exercise," Professor Evvard continued.

"Along with the porker's bread and meat, the wise hog-raiser adds green trimmings, the salad, if you please, in the form of alfalfa, bluegrass, clovers and rape. On the side he serves salt and pepper, nicely blended—the hog man calls it mineral feeds. These furnish the necessary seasonings.

"The corn must be butter-yellow. Butter is too expensive to serve in the porcine dining hall. Just the same, the hog family needs the vitamines found in butter, and yellow corn is a good substitute. It contains the fat vitamines necessary for the balanced diet of both man and hog."

With such feeding, hogs thrive in their modern life of leisure, fast laying layer of fat on layer of lean, like the frosted layers of a chocolate cake, Professor Evvard continued.

Hogs Getting Heavier.

"Over a period of ten years figures show that hogs coming to the principal markets have increased in weight on an average of practically a score of pounds per head. This extra poundage is partly the result of improved breeding, but most of the phenomenal progress was made by breeders who followed out the discoveries made about hog feeding in the agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

"To raise hogs successfully, a man must first have a knowledge of human nature. The hog has the same traits as a man. He isn't as low in intelligence as the majority believe, but stands with the horse in reasoning power. Although he isn't as brainy as the primal monkeys and gorillas, he is a wizard compared with most of his barnyard companions to-day."

Fraserville Is Dry And Seeding Starts

FRASERVILLE, May 21.—Mr. W. A. Wood shipped for the U.F.O. Club, South Monaghan a car of cattle, hogs and calves to Toronto this week. In the load were seven heavy export cattle averaging 1,350 pounds fed by Beebe Brothers, South Monaghan, bringing the top market price.

Seeding will again be general throughout the vicinity as the land is drying up owing to a good wind and a few days clear weather. The spring grain which was sown before the wet weather is all up and looking well.

It is reported by several of the farmers in the community that owing to the backward spring feed has become very scarce and stock have had to be turned out on pasture before the grass was ready, this being something unusual for this district.

Mr. B. Seabrooke has planted his field potatoes. Owing to his land being high and dry he has become one of the first in the district.

SOME VERULAM FARMERS HAVE FINISHED SOWING

DUNSFORD, May 21.—Farmers in Verulam Township have been held up in their seeding operations by the wet weather. However, a number of them have finished seeding and others are pretty well through.

Mariposa Township has suffered very much more than Victoria County because of the wet weather conditions, but we are praying that the wet weather will change for the better.

Farmers Tenacious In Face of Bad Prospect

ORLAND, May 21.—On Friday and Saturday of last week the farmers in the 7th Concession of Brighton township looked forward to being able to do some seeding the first of the week if the drying wind continued.

But the weather man willed otherwise as it rained nearly all day Sunday followed with a very cold wind and likely in some of the other localities there will be frost.

Matters are looking serious for this township particularly the Orser neighborhood and the third concession. Mr. Stanley Maybee of the third concession, his neighborhood has the three D's—drowned out in spring; dryed up in the summer, and drifted in the winter. Not a very pleasant prospect but it speaks volumes for the residents "stick-to-itive-ness." Mr. Roscoe Morrow with a farm of 400 acres reports to date only 16 bushels sown.

"Aha!" said the farmer. "I'm glad to notice that you're arriving punctually now, Mr. Slocombe."

Hand: "Yes sir. I've bought a parrot."

"A parrot? What on earth for? I told you to get an alarm clock."

"Yes; I did. But after a day or two I got used to it, and it didn't wake me. So I got a parrot. And now when I go to bed I fix the alarm clock and put the parrot's cage on top of it. What that bird says when the alarm goes off would wake up anybody."

Uneconomic Production

MORE farmers suffer through uneconomic production than from any other cause. This statement applies to Ontario as well as to all other farming areas.

Recent surveys reveal that two-thirds of our fruit growers, milk producers and poultrymen are working for less than laborers' wages. And this condition is worse in most other parts of the continent.

The reason for this is that too much good food is wasted on poor stock. With two-thirds of our hens producing less than 144 eggs per year; two-thirds of our cows producing under 300 pounds of butterfat and two-thirds of our apple trees being early varieties as compared with one-third of late varieties, we must expect trouble even if there were not a host of other contributing causes.

All of these faults will be remedied when we learn to cull severely, rotate our crops, breed constructively and plant trees with some thought of the popularity of varieties and their keeping qualities.

ROSENEATH WELLS FILL WITH WATER

Dry For Three or Four Years and Great Cause of Anxiety and Trouble.

ROSENEATH, May 21.—The land was beginning to dry up last week when rain started on Wednesday afternoon and continued till Thursday morning, leaving the land practically as wet as when the snow went off.

The wet weather has its drawbacks but it also has its advantages. The climate has been so dry for the last four or five years that the water supply was getting to be a serious problem, wells going dry that were never known to dry up before, and forcing many people to drive their cattle four and five miles to water. Since the rains the springs have risen and the wells are full to overflowing in most places.

Mr. George Clarke has thirty-five acres yet to sow, while Mr. Andrew Brown, who owns a farm of one hundred acres on the outskirts of the village, is not able to sow anything on his land yet. The Mattress Bros., who operate a tractor as well as horse-power, have only six acres sown on a one hundred and fifty acre farm. Mr. Orra Varcoe is believed to be the only farmer in this district that is through seeding his farm, almost all of it being on high-level land.

OMEMEE IS OPTIMISTIC DESPITE SOWING DELAY

OMEMEE, May 21.—Seeding operations are at a complete standstill in this vicinity. The ground is so wet that it is useless to attempt to cultivate the land. Many farmers in Ops township have not commenced spring work yet, and the rain has hindered many more from sowing after they had the land in shape.

Prospects are bright for a good hay crop as there is already a great growth of grass.

The hog market showed a decline in price for Thursday's shipping, and only twenty pigs were bought by the U.F.O. shipper, Mr. S. D. Vaughan. This week's price was $7 a cwt.

Mr. T. J. Beatty received this week a carload of Manitoba oats, which were quickly disposed of at 50c a bushel.

DISCUSS EGG CIRCLE FOR MILLBROOK FOLK

MILLBROOK, May 21.—Martin Pethick, who has been in charge of the "egg circle" recently established by the Millbrook Farmers' Club, has resigned his position. Inadequate financial returns is the reason given for Mr. Pethick's withdrawal.

A rather burdensome amount of bookkeeping, in which accuracy was an absolute essential, was entailed by the operation of the circle, and the quantity of eggs delivered made the effort unprofitable. The venture is not at present being proceeded with, but from the large district the U.F.O. has to draw upon it would appear that its ultimate success should be assured.

Even Farmers Need Rest

AFTER the grind of a troublesome day, when you're needing of real relaxation, shed all your cares and remain unawares of all, save a few hours vacation.

You're due for a rest; shed your coat and your vest and blot out the cares of the day. Hie to the stoop and just let your nerves droop as you watch Mother Nature at play.

The birds in the trees and the cool evening breeze are restful if man makes them such. Look the world over and smell of the clover and get the real open-air touch.

Throw out your chest and just drag in a breath and fill up your lungs to the brim. Breathe long and steady, 'cause nature is ready to help keep your system in trim.

You're just a machine that's been functioning keen and running in form through the day. It's great to go to it, but don't overdo it; remember your system needs play.

FIFE'S SPRING WHEAT WAS INTRODUCED HERE FROM FIVE LONE EARS

Freak of Nature On a Local Farm

YOUNG'S POINT, May 21.—Freaks of nature in animal life are not so uncommon as they ones were, when Barnum and his ilk made a living from five-legged calves and two-headed goats, but they are still infrequently enough met to cause comment.

A calf born on the farm of Victor Young, here, recently, is handicapped through lack of a tail, which was omitted by nature in the calf's make-up. Otherwise, the calf is quite normal and is growing well. Probably by the time it reaches the status of maturity there will have been provided an artificial tail with which it can switch the summer flies. What it will do this summer, though, is hard to imagine.

Of the Five Ears, Two Were Destroyed By Cattle —From Three Remaining Ears Pioneer Spread This Grade.

BEST FOR DISTRICT.

COBOURG, May 21.—In a letter dated "Oct. 12, 1849, Otonabee, Colborne District," Henry Bowbell, secretary of Otonabee and Asphodel Agricultural Society, tells the story in the "Canadian Agriculturist," then published in Toronto, of the introduction into this country of "Fife's Spring Wheat." It is as follows:

"One of our farmers having been so fortunate as to introduce a new kind of wheat into this township, of which a brief notice was given in a Cobourg paper, I trust a more full account of it may be not unacceptable to your readers, as from its tendency to resist the effects of rust and its adaptation to low black soils, it requires only to be known to be extensively cultivated and highly valued.

"Eight years ago Mr. David Fife, having a friend about to revisit Scotland, requested if an opportunity occurred, that he would forward to this country a small quantity of wheat from some of the northern parts of Europe. On landing at Glasgow he found a vessel discharging a cargo from Dantzic, and having procured a portion he sent it to Mr. Fife, who sowed it the spring following, and it came up various kinds, as might be expected, and the whole was affected by rust, except this variety, of which there was but five ears and two of them were destroyed by cattle. Yet from the remaining three ears he raised the third year half a bushel. From the produce of this he supplied some of his friends with a few bushels, and it began to be noted for not rusting, and one person had twenty-eight bushels from one bushel sown.

"Next year the Agricultural Society introduced the Club wheat as a change of seed, which, being sown alongside of the new wheat in many instances, the former was rusted so as to be worthless, while the latter was not the least injured. So established became its superiority that last spring the agricultural Society thought it desirable to purchase 260 bushels to distribute among its members rather than it should be taken into the township. The principal holder of the wheat refused to take less than $2 a bushel for it. That price was given by the society, and many bushels were sold to the neighboring townships at the same rate, many people applying for it in vain.

"It is rather a late kind of wheat, being eight or ten days behind the Siberian or Club if sown at the same time, and this scorching summer has not suited it so well on dry soils; but on low black-ash swales, and any similar place not too wet for wheat to vegetate, it succeeds well, and its bright yellow appearance confirms the application of 'The Golden Grain,' so often applied to wheat, though some of your readers may think that the price paid for it gives it a better claim to that title.

The Editor of the "Agriculturist" adds

"A sample of this wheat may be seen at our office. It seems to be pure, and the quality is good. From what we have heard in different quarters we consider it well deserving the attention of wheat growers, particularly such as have low or wet land."

In this way there was introduced into Canada a wheat that shortly came to be almost generally accepted as best adapted to this country, and was largely sown.

VOLUNTEERS IN APSLEY PARISH

Rev. C. Spence Sent Out SOS to Seed Farm--Seven Responded With Teams.

APSLEY, May 21.—The Rev. C. Spence intends to put in a crop this year on Mrs. Grant's farm, and sent an S.O.S. call, which was right royally responded to on Monday last when no less than seven men with teams and ploughs turned out to give a day's ploughing. Unfortunately, the weather was unpropitious, and a heavy downpour of rain, which started at noon, and kept on steadily all afternoon, proved too much for the workers, but not before a seven-acre field had nearly all been ploughed.

The ready response of the men who voluntarily gave the day was very much appreciated by Mr. Spence, who entertained them all at the parsonage on Thursday evening, when an enjoyable time was spent with their lady friends in dancing. The wet weather for the past week has seriously hampered seeding operations, very few settlers being more than half through. Grass is beginning to grow, and stock already are gaining after their winter's diet of hay.

Why Neglect Your Kitchen When the Paint Can Is Out

It was Saturday afternoon, and she was busy with paint and brush. She was not working on canvas. She was painting the kitchen. She was painting it yellow. "That's for sunshine," she said. "Why should the room, where I spend so many hours a day, be ugly and barren? Why should just anything be good enough for the kitchen? It shouldn't. I'm tired of looking at the smoky, dark walls, poorly-curtained windows, and tables and chairs, none of which match."

Then she told how she was going to paint the kitchen furniture the same sunny yellow to match the woodwork, how she was going to calcimine the the walls a light spring-like green, put yellow and green gingham Dutch curtains at the windows to hang over dotted muslin sash curtains, and add a rocking chair to the room's equipment. I'm going to have it as comfortable and attractive as possible. If there's any room in the house where there's need of sunshine, it's the kitchen. It's a good place for a bouquet of flowers, too."

RAIN FELL EVERY DAY IN BETHANY DISTRICT

BETHANY, May 21.—With the unfavorable wet weather that is still prevailing some of the farmers are becoming anxious as to the seeding operations of some of the low-lying lands.

The cheese factory at Lifford is now in operation and the trucks collecting cream will have a tendency of curtailing the supply of butter for the summer months. Eggs are plentiful, with an increase of 2c per dozen paid last week.

Owing to the long confinement of stock the feed has become scarce and farmers are turning their cattle into summer quarters.

Rain had fallen in this vicinity practically every day last week, making it impossible to finish sowing operations.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY HAS WATER BORDERS

COBOURG, May 21.—Motor parties to and from Toronto report there are acres of land along the provincial highway almost underwater, so heavy was the rainfall of the last few days. Farmers on low-lying farms are almost in despair over getting the crop in. It will take several days of sunshine and favourable conditions before they will be able to get on the land.

HUMBLE BEE HAS A KICK AT MARMORA'S WEATHER

MARMORA, May 21.—Farmers who have invested in bees as a side-line are finding that, so far this year, the weather has been unfavorable for their work. The damp weather coming so soon after the bees were put out for the spring was hard on the bees themselves. Besides the Spring has been backward so there has been little chance for a good honey season.

BOY OF NINE USES NEW MILKER ON THREE COWS

YOUNG'S POINT, May 21.—Mr. W. J. Tedford has installed a new milking machine on his farm and is having entire satisfaction. When he returned home from Lakefield on Wednesday evening, Gerald, his nine-year-old son, who had only seen the cows milked with the new machine a few times, had already three cows milked.

Several farmers in this district have already their crops sown. The clover fields are looking splendid throughout the country.

PETES FIRST GAME ON HOLIDAY WITH PONIES

Much Touted Kingston Team After Winter's Press-Agenting Will Open Central League Season at Riverside on Saturday at 3.15.

The Petes will open the Central Ontario League season on their own grounds after all, the postponement of the game scheduled for today at Belleville leaving the Kingston-Peterboro fixture at Riverside Park on Saturday as the Solomon crew's first scheduled clash.

An opening game, especially when it falls on a holiday is always a popular event and the fact the Kingston Ponies will be the opposition adds much to the interest of this fixture. There has been so much pennant claiming from Kingston in the past two months that the newspaper jibes got under the skins of the local fans and they want to see the Ponies trimmed in the holiday attraction which will be called at 3 o'clock sharp.

The Petes are working hard to get into shape and by Saturday should be ready for the word, although a week of hot weather would have been of great assistance. Considerable time is being spent in batting practice and it is hoped that the Petes attack will show the results of the grind when the old rivals go into action on Saturday.

The Ponies may trot out their new southpaw Kelly or pin their faith on the other left hander on their staff, Gallagher. It is certain, however, that the Petes will have to face a portside heaver Saturday and again next Wednesday when they clash with Oshawa. In fact the only right handed stuff the squad will encounter will be in the Belleville series as Belleville always the home of a good left hander until this season has to depend upon three star-board twirlers.

Appropriate ceremonies will mark the opening and with seasonable weather the first game of the season will be a memorable affair.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. When a runner is declared out for interference or running out of line, who is credited with the putout?

2. Ground rule gives batsman two bases on a hit to a certain part of the field. The ball bounds out, is recovered and batter is thrown out trying to go to third. What is the ruling?

3. Runner on first starts to steal second, field umpire is hit by a ball thrown by the catcher. It goes to right field, and runner tries for third but is thrown out. What about the play?

ANSWERS

1. On all such plays the player who would have made the putout is credited with it, when the action of the runner prevents the completion of the play.

2. The ball was dead the moment it went into restricted territory. It was impossible to retire the runner, who should have been sent back to second.

3. The ball is in play, and the fielder made a proper play when he threw the runner out at third.

LENGLEN SAYS SHE WILL NOT PLAY AT WIMBLEDON

PARIS, May 21. — (United Press). — Suzanne Lenglen continues to reaffirm that she will not play at Wimbledon this season, and even those who understand her temperament best, are beginning to believe her.

Many reasons are given for her decision not to defend a title that she has held for several years. Her reason is two-fold. First, that she wants to save herself for the Olympic Games, and, second, that she is afraid grass courts will dismantle her style for the "en-toutcas." Her father, who is her guide, prophet and alibi referee, advances for reason the sentimental circumstances that the English public, by some sporting perversity, always shouts for the underdog, and that this greatly confuses and disconcerts Suzie. Still another reason might be called Helen Wills.

BANKERS LOSE TO WESTCLOX

Opening Game of Mercantile League Produced Good Ball With Clockmakers Winning By 4-3.

The Western Clock defeated the Bankers at Riverside Park last night 4-3, in one of the hardest fought games ever witnessed in the Mercantile League. Good and bad baseball featured this contest.

Herbie Wolfe was on the mound for the Westclox and aided by good support he turned in a fine performance. He had the world of speed and a good curve and worked both to good advantage. The Bankers found it a rather tough proposition touching his fast ball which shot across the plate at a blinding speed. "Jeff" Hardill got the pitching assignment for the Bankers and he turned in a great game. His support was very wobbly at times and the three of the Western Clock runs were the result of misplays by his teammates. Hardill relied on his curve ball a lot and the Clockmakers found it hard to hit. When they did smash it his fielders fell down and let most of them get by.

There were few fielding features, but Hensley supplied the hitting power for the Clock. He got three hits in four trips up. One of the hits went for a triple, but if it had been properly fielded it would have only been a double.

The weather was rather cool for baseball but nevertheless a good game was turned in. There was a good crowd of fans on hand for the opener, in fact more than was ever expected, and a good gate was realized.

Cobb and Rattenbury were the umpires and both made a real job of it. Their decisions were impartial and were never questioned.

The teams lined up as follows:

Western Clock—Prosser, c; Wolfe, p; De Graw, 1b; Barry, 2b; Hensley, ss; O'Brien, 3b; Robinson, lf; Lundy, cf; Batten, rf.

Bankers—McClarty, c; Hardill, p; "Hip" Hardill, 1b; McQueen, 2b; Whitehouse ss; Grosse 3b; Hollingsworth, lf; Bell, cf; Herbison, rf.

Umpires—Cobb at the plate; Rattenbury on the bases.

QUAKERS AND EXAMINER MEET

Quaker Oats and Examiner Meet Thursday Night in Mercantile League Game— Should Draw Large Crowd.

On Thursday night at Riverside Park at 6.15 p.m. the Quaker Oats meet the Examiner in a Mercantile League game. As was the case in the game between the Western Clock and Bankers this game should be a good one. The fans were advised to turn out and see the Western Clockwere given a real treat for these two Bankers games, and those who did teams dished up one of the prettiest games that has been witnessed in the Mercantile League in many a moon. The Examiner-Quaker Oats battle should prove equally as good for both teams have lined up a good bunch of players.

The Quaker Oats are one of the new teams in the league but they have some good players. In Howard Kirn they have one of the best pitchers in the city and Kirn is also capable of turning in a good game behind the bat. They have "Lefty" Turner last year with the Adanacs, who will also do some of the heaving. Alex Butcher, Fred Ash and a good bunch of other well known stars will be out with the Quakers.

The Examiner are away stronger than last year, in fact they have one of the nicest looking infields in the league. Harry Dugan who will do the receiving is going better than he has at any time in his career on the diamond. He is receiving them well and his arm is greatly improved. On first base Roy Taylor will do duty. At second the Examiner has "Red" Franks, considered one of the best second baseman in the city. Bill Collins will be a shortstop and Bob Baker at third. The Examiner infield looks as good if not better than any in the league. They have a bunch of other players who are fairly well-known in this line of sport, including Dorrington a big right-hand pitcher who hails from across the border.

The fans are assured of a great game and should turn out in great numbers. The Western Clock-Bankers game should assure them the kind of ball they will see from Mercantile teams this year.

There is no admission charge but the hat is passed. Ladies are admitted free at all times. The game will get away at 6.15 sharp.

"REVENGE" RACE WAS REJECTED

Owner of "Sir Gallahad" Regards Proposal As "Absolute Bumptiousness" — Commercialism Not Sportsmanship.

PARIS, May 21.—Captain Jefferson Davis Cohn, owner of Sir Gallahad III., which worsted Epinard in Monday's match race at Saint Cloud, thinks the proposal of a revenge race for 500,000 francs is "absolute bumptiousness" he indignantly declared yesterday.

"Under no circumstances," he said, "will I consent to any match for money. I have not been consulted in regard to this proposed return match and have received no challenge.

"I think Sir Gallahad will not run again for three months. I have had him in training since January 1, and he has had five races during that time. I cannot train such a nervous horse for any longer period of time.

"These people who put up half million dollar purses are idiotic. They seem to think horses are like machines. That's not sportsmanship; it's commercialism.

"No, if I decide to run Gallahad again it will be under conditions similar to those in the last race with a small purse like 20,000 francs—that's a sporting proposition —or for a trophy. Anyway, you can say now that the prospect for a return match is extremely unlikely."

Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, when informed of Captain Cohn's reply, said:

"So that is settled. I am not anxious to meet Sir Gallahad again unless the fortunes of racing get our horses together.

"Epinard has been coming along nicely and will just be about ready for Ascot. I did not challenge Captain Cohn, but permitted friends of my horse—not mine—to do so.

"The racing experts all agree that Epinard was beaten but not disgraced. He will show his Newmarket form again next June."

KANSAS ATHLETE MAKES BID FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

EARL McKOWN

EMPORIA, Kas., May 21.— Here is the vaulting form that puts Earl McKown, Kansas State Teachers' College junior, over the bar consistently at 13 feet. McKown is shown clearing the bar at 13 feet 1-2 inch at the Kansas relays at Lawrence some weeks ago. A little later on he won the pole vault at the Drake relays at 13 feet under adverse weather conditions. He has done 13 feet 6 inches in practice.

McKown's two firsts in major relay carnivals to date this spring against the best pole vaulters of the middle west stamp him as a most likely member of the Olympic team.

There are few consistent 13-foot vaulters in America to-day and McKown is more than likely to better his present season record as the track season advances.

POP GEERS AFTER NEW RECORD

Most Remarkable Ancient In the History of Sport Begins 1924 Campaign.

(By Billy Evans)

Baseball has its illustrious veterans, the Speakers, the Johnsons, and the Cobbs.

The ring game had its remarkable ancients, the Fitzsimmonses, the Britons, the Kilbanes.

Many other sports have produced notables whose enduring qualities keep stride with their blazing genius.

But the most astonishing veteran of them all—the great, great-granddaddy of the sport world, is Pop Geers, 73 years of age, and 50 years in the harness.

Did you ever stop and think that Pop was training and racing horses in Tennessee not so long after General Lee signed those immortal papers at Appomattox Court House, and a couple of lifetimes before many active participants in sports to-day were born?

A story of Pop Geers' life on the harness turf would be a story of the Grand Circuit, since the days of the Grand Quadralateral Trotting Association, beginning in 1871.

What a world of speedsters his name has been associated with! Belle Hamlin, Robert J., Direct Hal, Napoleon Direct, Etawah, Dudie Archdale, Billie Buck, and scores of others.

Now Pilots Fastest Horse of All Time.

Is it not fitting that the fastest harness horse of all time, Peter Manning (1.56 3-4), should now be in his stable along with Sanardo (1.59 1-2), one of the gamest pacers that ever looked through a bridle?

As a compliment to the association, Pop agreed to ship to Fremont, O., this month and start his 1924 campaign at the little half-mile track in the Ohio Short Ship Circuit.

His schedule calls for a few Grand Circuit engagements this season but he will confine his efforts largely to exhibitions with the two champions. It is a combination of pleasure and profit and through them he has been able to eliminate much of the worry that is coupled up with the conduct of a big racing stable.

This should not be taken to mean that Pop has lost any of his cunning as a reinsman, because he can rate one as well as ever and knows how to "reef 'em" through the stretch.

Indeed, it is whispered that the venerable Tennesseean has made a small wager, involving some choice Havana smokes, that he will set a new world's record this year.

DELAVAL ARE TIED WITH HIGH ROLLERS FOR THIRD

When the official standing of the City Ten Pin League was compiled by the Examiner Sports Editor it was found that the De Laval were tied for third place with the High Rollers. A mistake was made in crediting the wins and losses of the teams and when a revision was made it was found that the De Laval had won three straight and not just two as had been credited them in the unofficial standing. The official standing as compiled last night from the games kept from the newspaper reports gives the De Laval twelve wins and nine losses, the same as the High Rollers.

Billy Evans Says

Babe Ruth is nothing if not original.

Babe became baseball's greatest idol because of his ability to hit the ball farther than any other human being.

Sportdom likes the athlete who packs the punch in any line of endeavor. Ability to hit home runs made Ruth

Last season, Ruth, although failing to smash any home-run records did break the season's base-on-balls record.

Passing Ruth in the pinch—not giving him a chance to hit when a home run might change the complexion of the old ball game—got on the big fellow's nerves.

The Babe tried to cross 'em up by resorting to the bunting game, and met with fair success.

In an interview from the Yankees' southern training camp this spring, Ruth was quoted as saying he was going to pass up the strategy this season and go back to bustin' them again.

Apparently Bambino has suffered an early change of mind. While he is still taking his healthy swing on most occasions, he is also choking up on his bat against certain kinds of pitching, in an effort to hit into left field.

There is method in Babe's madness.

In the parlance of baseball, Ruth is known as a dead right-field hitter. He will probably drive eight out of ten balls to that field.

With this konwledge, the opposition play for him accordingly, and rob him of many a hit because of the peculiar defense essayed with him at the bat.

In the infield, the first baseman moves over to the foul line, the second baseman plays where the first baseman is regularly stationed, the shortstop is almost directly back of second, while the third baseman moves over to the shortstop's usual position.

The outfield shifts along the same lines used by the infield.

The pitcher tries to so work on Ruth that he will pull to right field.

This peculiar shift with Ruth at bat leaves a big space for him to hit in left field. In reality there is no left fielder with Ruth at bat. Now for the strategy.

Ruth, a natural right-field hitter, is attempting to cross the opposition by hitting into left field.

It is apparent that a short fly ball, dropped just out of the infielders reach in left field, would always be good for at least two bases.

Ruth essays to hit into left field on all balls pitched outside, the system used when the pitcher isn't very anxious for him to take a cut at the ball.

In a recent game with Chicago, with the crafty Thurston pitching against the Yankees, Ruth reached out and seemed to merely push at a badly pitched ball. It dropped into the left-field bleachers for a home run—one of the very few he has made to that field.

As the ball dropped into the stand, Catcher Ray Schalk turned to me and said, "That's the first home-run bunt I have ever seen."

"Y" GIRLS WON

The Girls' Softball League got off to a flying start last evening when the Quaker Oats and the Y.W.C.A. team clashed at Central Park. The "Y" girls showed the beneficial effects of the winter's gym work and were in good form, winning on 18 to 9 victory. In spite of the cold weather both teams played good ball and long hits were plentiful.

The Softball League this year consists of six teams, which are all in first class form, and the season looks bright and as though there will be better ball played at Central Park than ever before.

Timely Tips To Amateurs

SAYS EDDIE ROMMEL

Pitcher, Philadelphia Americans

If you would be a successful pitcher, develop a change of pace the moment you have mastered the fundamentals.

There are various definitions of a change of pace. My thought is that it is the ability to slow up on the batter, using the identical motion with which the fast ball is thrown.

Change of pace depends upon three things, the development of a slow ball, a half-speed ball and control. Without control a change of pace is worthless.

I am often asked if I think a pitcher should develop a freak delivery, because of the success I have had with a freak slow ball.

If a pitcher possesses control, he is in a position to experiment. If he lacks control it is a sad mistake to try to invent a delivery that is different.

MEN AND HORSES

How closely related is man to the more intelligent of the animals is seen in many of the ailments to which both are prone and the remedies to which they answer.

Doctors and veterinarians are oftentimes surprised to learn of the similarity of their methods of handling the ailments of man and beast.

Sprains, burns, scalds, scratches and many other minor injuries, many everyday ailments, too in men and animals take the same course, and both answer immediately to the same treatment—Absorbine Jr.

Absorbine was first discovered by a very close student of the horse, W. F. Young, and by him, devoted to its cause. Its very exceptional benefits, however, were promptly seized upon for the human race and, in a milder form, the preparation is sold all over the continent today as Absorbine Jr. It is used for men, women and children everywhere as a positive germicide—a germ killer—and a prompt and certain healer of all hurts. It is useful not only for all the purposes served by ordinary liniments and embrocations, but as a mouth-wash and for anything else where a germicide is needed. Don't wait until you need it. MICHIGAN PICKED FOR PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

This Will Be the 136th Annual National Congress of the Denomination.

GRAND RAPIDS, May 21.—Nearly 1,000 commissioners from every state in the union, officially representing the 299 Presbyteries of the denomination, will attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. at Grand Rapids, Mich., beginning May 22 and extending through May 28 or 29. This will be the 136th annual national congress of the denomination, which is sometimes erroneously referred to as the "northern Presbyterian Church, but which is not in any way northern or sectional.

Outstanding features of the business of the Presbyterian General Assembly will be:

The opening sermon by the retiring Moderator, Dr. Charles Frederick Wishart of Wooster, Ohio, which is expected to sound the keynote for the 10,000 churches of the denomination against divisive forces which have been active in some quarters the past year and in favor of harmony and peace.

The election of a new moderator. He must be chosen from among the commissioners actually registered and sitting.

The disposition of matters vitally related to the doctrine of the church, particularly in connection with the report which the Presbytery of New York will make to the General Assembly by direction of the General Assembly of a year ago. This involves the preaching of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, in the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church of New York City.

The annual reports of the four new boards of Foreign Missions, National Missions, Christian Education and Pensions, showing the progress made under the re-organization of the 16 boards and agencies into four.

Progress of plans for a great Presbyterian Centre in Washington.

Reports of several interdenominational movements of co-operation and union, including a plan for merging Congregational, Reformed and Presbyterian bodies.

Plans for the reduction of the size of General Assembly.

Dr. W. R. Patterson, comptroller of the Presbyterian Central Receiving Agency, will report the year's gifts for benevolence as totalling $8,815,887.80, a net increase of $1,354,487.92 over the previous year.

GAVE A CONCERT

A concert party from this city motored to Halls Bridge (Buckhorn) and put on an excellent concert in the Orange Hall in aid of the funds of St. Matthew's, the Anglican mission of which the Rev. J. Lancaster Hughes is in charge. Standing room only was obtainable when the concert began, and the audience showed in no uncertain manner that the various numbers on the programme were entirely acceptable. Those who took part in the concert were:— Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, Mrs. R. J. Devey, Mrs. Connolly, Miss Doyle, Messrs. C. E. Coleman, R. Farthing, H. Boddy, H. J. Devey, Rev. J. L. Hughes, with Mrs. Hughes, and Mr. R. J. Devey furnishing the piano accompaniments. The trip was made possible only by the generosity of Mrs. H. W. Darcy, M. W. E. Conway and Mr. H. J. STEAL FLOWERS VICTORIA PARK

Vandals Attack City's Most Beautiful Spot--Flower Beds Are Prettier Than Ever.

Victoria Park, beautiful in its dressing of variegated tulips, has been visited by vandals, who cut down the blossoms and scattered them on the grass. Patches here and there throughout the several beds show the traces of these miscreants, and children have trampled over the large round centre bed.

Never before, probably, has the park looked so beautiful as this year, thousands of tulips beig this week at their best. Mr. Daniel Hayward, and Mr. Horace Wells have excelled themselves in the artistic setting of the beds, and have given painstaking attention to the growing plants. The lower part of the park is the brightest spot in the city and will repay a visit, while the grass has the refreshing appearance that is experienced only in the spring.

KRAENZLEIN HOLDS OLYMPIC'S RECORD

His Record Set Up in 1900 at Paris Will Not Likely Be Shattered This Year.

NEW YORK, May 21. —So long as the Olympic games continue to represent the peak of international athletic competition, the names of two American athletes will linger in the memory of those who follow the turns of the cinder path. These two men reached pinnacle by individual athletic brilliancy, one by winning four different events in one Olympic meet, the other by winning two events in four successive Olympic meets and one other event in two successive meets.

Alvin C. Kraenzlein and Ray Ewry were the athletes who have inscribed their names on the Olympic roll of honor.

Kraenzlein, a University of Pennsylvania star in the late 90's, won four events in the second Olympiad at Paris in 1900. He breasted the tape first in the 60-metre dash, the 110-metre high hurdles, the 200-metre low hurdles and won the broad jump. His performance is the only one on record in the history of the Olympic games where any one athlete won more than three events.

Ewry's triumph is even more impressive because it was achieved over a stretch of eight years. In 1900, he won the standing broad jump, the standing high jump and the standing hop, step and jump. He repeated this triple triumph at St. Louis in 1904. At Athens in 1906 the Olympic committee eliminated the standing hop, step and jump but Ewry won the standing broad and high jumps for the third time with apparent ease. In London in 1908 he won these two events again, passing out of international competition at the conclusion of the London meet.

There are many instances of athletes winning two events in an Olympic meet and some who have won three events Harry Hillman, present track coach at Dartmouth and a member of the 1924 Olympic coaching staff, achieved the remarkable feat of winning three events at St. Louis in 1904. Hillman won the 400-metre run and the 200 and 400-metre hurdles. In the same meet Archie Hahn was crowned as sprint champion with victoris in the 60, 100 and 200-metre dashes.

Triple victories have been scored several times in Olympic annals, a trio of American stars performing this feat at St. Louis in 1904 when this country swept the field. Harry Hillan, of Dartmouth, a member of this years' Olympic coaching staff, captured the 400-metre run and the 200 and 400-metre hurdles; Archie Hahn was crowned sprint champion with victories in the 60, 100 and 200 metre dashes; while Lightbody, middle distance crack, ran off with the 800 and 1,500-metre events and 2,500 metre steeplechase.

One of the most remarkable "triples" and the last one on record was scored by Hanens Kolenhainen, Finnish distance star, at tSockholm in 1912, when he won the 5,000 and 10,000-metre runs and the cross-country race.

Many double victories have been recorded, but the increasing tendency for athletes to specialize in one event had reduced the versatility which formerly was so prominent. Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish runner, who won the 10,000 metre run and cross country race in 1920 at Antwerp, may try for three distance titles this year, while Charles Hoff, the Norwegian holder of the world's pole vault record and all-round star, may figure prominently in several events, but these performers are exceptions.

Among America's hopes, Harold Osborne, Illinois A. C. high jumper and all-round star; Glenn Hartranft, Stanford discus and shotput tosser; Joie Ray, middle distance runner, and Loren Murchison and Charley Paddock ,among the sprinters, are outstanding candidates for honors in more than one event.

AMUSEMENT TAX FROM TREASURER

Fifteen Issuing Agencies in Ontario Cut Off

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—By a changed method of collection, the Ontario Government plans to make the amusement tax productive of more revenue for the Province. The plan which it is intended to adopt is to eliminate some 15 tax issuing agencies which have existed at various points throughout the Province and to have theatre managers and others requiring tax tickets secure them directly from the Provincial Treasurer's department. The Government hopes by this change to save agencies' commissions, totalling upwards of $75,000 per year.

The general plan upon which amusement tax tickets have been distributed in the past has been for the Provincial Treasurer's department to send out in large amounts to bonded district agents. These agents have given them out to theatres and other amusement enterprises as they have been required, and have received for their distributing offices a commission of one and one-half per cent.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce is the issuing agency in Peterboro.

GERMANY BUYING DRIED FRUIT.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—(Associated Press).—A sudden heavy demand for dried fruit has come to central California from Germany. Since Jan. 1 German imports of dried prunes, peaches and apricots have been increasingly heavy. Before the war Germany was one of California's heaviest buyers of fruit, but in recent years her purchases dropped virtually to zero.

MRS. HANNAH CHALK BURNED TO DEATH

Victim Was Over Seventy Years of Age

KINGSTON, May 21.—(Special).—To be burned to death in her own home was the sad fate of Mrs. Hannah Chalk, over seventy years of age, and one of the oldest residents of the village of Wagarville. Only meagre particulars have been received of the tragedy, but it appears that Mrs. Chalk's home caught fire and was totally destroyed. The aged woman was in the house alone at the time, and was unable to make her escape. She lived with her son John Chalk, and at the time of the fire the latter was working in the fields. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is believed over-heated stove pipes were responsible for the blaze. Deceased lived at Wagarville all her life, was widely known all over the district, and much sympathy was expressed by all her acquaintances over the sad affair.

THIS MAN TELLS YOU HOW TO KEEP FIT!

Bear River, N.S.—"My back was so bad I could hardly work. I was always tired out and had no ambition; was nervous and dizzy, and everything seemed to worry me. I also had terrible pains in my right side. I felt badly for about eighteen months, and could not do my work as is should have been done. I tried several doctors, and also bought about $25.00 worth of put up medicines, but I found no relief until I took Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Doctor Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets. I have taken two bottles of the Discovery and four of the Anuric Tablets, and can say that I feel as well as I have felt for the last ten years. I advise any sufferer to give Dr. Pierce's remedies a fair trial. I cannot recommend them too highly for what they have done for me and shall be pleased to answer any one who cares to write me."—Norman E. Trimper, R.R. 1.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"AFTER SIX DAYS."

Attendance at the Grand Opera House, whose afternoon and evening session to-day completes the run of the big picture, "After Six Days," has been very good. The magnificent feature picturization of the world's greatest story has aroused much favorable comment. An array of characters and scenes gathered from the story of Old Testament days is presented in panoramic fashion to the spectators, carrying him from the Garden of Eden to the gorgeous splendor of the Court of King Solomon. The story of our first parents, the dramatic project of the Ark, the cataclysmic flood of the waters, the awe-inspiring destruction of the cities of the Plain, the vital story of Joseph and his brethren, all are pictured in their flight from the fect. The children of Israel are pictured in thier flight from the land of the oppressors, with the plagues devastating the pursuing horders, and the followers of the wicked Pharaoh struggling in the waters which have divided for the footsteps of the legions of the Lord, while a dramatic finale is given by the inclusion of a portion of the story of the Wise King, Solomon, in which a romance is delineated, in the story of the 'lily of the field' and the great ruler. The magnificence of Egyptian courts and the splendor of Solomon's court follow close on the heels of the delineation of the rude life of the early dwellers in a new world.

AT THE ROYAL

"SLANDER THE WOMAN" AT ROYAL THURSDAY.

Finding just the right locality for the filming of a picture sometimes presents problems to a director which at first appear insurmountable. Picture the plight of Director Allen Holubar, of First National Pictures, when he was handed the script of "Slander the Woman," on a warm, sunshiny California day. Imagine the problems that confronted him when he found that the locality needed was one of snow, sleet, ice, forests and cities more European than American.

His first thought was of a suitable star. Because of her work in "Once to Every Woman," "Hearts of Humanity" and "Hurricane's Gal," Holubar selected Dorothy Phillips for the stellar role. He wanted an actress who could portray the emotions of a woman when she realized that her most priceless heritage—her fair name—had been ruthlessly stolen. He found this woman in Dorothy Phillips.

His next problem was the selection of a stretch of country wherein were to be found snow, sleet, ice, wind and forests. His scouts decided upon Truckee, a little town not far from Lake Tahoe, nestling amid the snow on the California-Nevada frontier.

It was a memorable occasion when the cast of "Slander the Woman" left Los Angeles in a special train for Truckee, Cal. The train consisted of eight sleepers and a dining car, several flat cars loaded with equipment and several special cars containing equipment that was necessary to lighting and the proper photographic effects.

Probably the most important equipment taken was a special dynamo, built expressly for filming this picture. There were also portable conveyances for transporting the generator, lights and other equipment into the wooded fastness.

Utilizing the most modern inventions, the outdoor scenes of "Slander the Woman" were filmed. A great many of the scenes were 'shot' at night, in the glare of the great Kleig lights. Because of the picturesqueness of the locality the production contains some of the most beautiful snow scenes that have ever been shown.

This triumph of photography and acting will be shown at the Royal Theatre for three days, beginning Thursday. "Slander the Woman" is presented by a superb cast and portrays a story replete with heart throbs and soul-stirring interest. It is considered to be one of the stellar First National releases of the year.

AT THE CAPITOL

FILM ACTOR GOES 10,000 MILES FOR REAL SEA SCENES

Player Ships as Regular Sailor to Get in Proper Atmosphere.

More than 10,000 miles were traversed by Reginald Barker and his company in finding and filming suitable locations for "Women Who Give," the Louis B. Mayer-Metro production to be shown at the Capitol to-morrow, Friday, and Saturday.

A great majority of the scenes were made along the New England coast and off Newfoundland, the Grand Banks fishing grounds. Other locations used were in California and included the beautiful regions around Bolinas Bay, Duxbury Reef, the Devil's Cave near San Francisco, and Laguna Beach.

Many months ago when Mr. Barker was first assigned to make a motion picture of Sarah P. McLean Greene's "Cape Cod Folks," from which "Women Who Give" was made, he took Robert Frazer, who plays the leading male role, and his cameraman, Percy Hilburn, on a long cruise on the Atlantic.

Run Into Bad Storm.

They encountered several of the severest storms of that notorious storm section, but they "shot" some of the most realistic scenes ever caught by a motion picture camera.

The Messrs. Barker, Frazer, and Hilburn were taken aboard a chartered fishing schooner on their arrival at Newfoundland. They sailed out to the Grand Banks where ten other schooners were taking in a "big catch." Many thrilling events were photographed here, among them a battle with a 600-pound swordfish, and after many weeks spent with this fleet they joined the other members of the company on location at Cape Cod.

Among the scenes photographed at the Grand Banks was a storm at sea, taken aboard ship, action scenes on the deck with the fishing fleet as a background, and the many exciting incidents in the lives of the men who make a living by going down to the sea in ships.

Old Ambition Thwarted.

"I once had a great longing for the much sung 'joyous' life of a sailorman," said Robert Frazer in speaking of his experiences after his return to Hollywood, "but that was before I went swordfishing in the North Atlantic. Life on the open sea may be a continuous round of pleasure in the eyes of song writers and poets, but it is tough on an ordinary citizen."

Mr. Frazer must know what he is talking about for he served as a member of the crew during the time spent in making the sea scenes for "Women Who Give," and went through all the hardships of a real sailorman.

FARMERS' MARKET HELD ON FRIADY

Holiday Will Be Observed on Saturday in Peterborough.

As the 24th of May occurs this year on a Saturday, there has been considerable argument about the proper observance of the accompanying holiday. Some districts have argued that the following Monday, the 26th, would be a better occasion; but, as far as this city is concerned, a definite decision has been arrived at, and Victoria Day this year in Peterboro will be observed in the regular public holiday fashion on Saturday next, the 24th instant. On Friday the farmers' market will be held.

OBITUARY

DR. E. E. HARVEY.

Dr. E. E. Harvey died early last evening at his residence in this city, after a lingering illness of several months.

Dr. Harvey was born fifty-seven years ago in Atwood, Ontario. He studied at the University of Toronto, having a distinguished career in both Arts and Medicine, and graduating as medallist of his year. He began the practice of his profession in the town of Norwich, Ontario, where he resided for twenty-two years. In addition to his professional duties he found time for many other activities ,there, serving at various times as medical officer of health, secretary of the Board of Trade, town councillor, member of the Library Board, police magistrate and school trustee, the last office being filled by him for eighteen years. In 1915 he removed to Peterboro, and speedily became one of the best known members of the medical profession in this city. As a citizen, Dr. Harvey was always keenly interested in all that made for the development of the city, and followed with particular interest the work of the Chamber of Commerce. Unknown to many was his ability along literary lines, and many interesting and worthy papers and essays came from his pen. In religion Dr. Harvey was a Methodist, being a member and trustee of George Street Church. A faithful physician, a loyal friend, a generous supporter of many worthy projects, his death will be widely and deeply felt.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Isobel McKay, of Port Hope, and by two daughters, Miss Marion Harvey, who is at present studying in Toronto, and Mrs. G. Clifton Carruthers, of this city. ATE "ELEPHANTS' EARS"

Family Who Picked "Mushrooms" Attacked by Poison—One Dies.

TILLSONBURG, Ont., May 21.—After eating a quantity of poisonous fungi in mistake for mushrooms, the members of the family of Harry Simes, three miles south of here, were violently ill, and fifteen year old Wilfrid Simes succumbed to the attack in convulsions at 11 o'clock last night.

The fungi were believed to be morrals, which are not harmful, but they were not even like morrals in appearance, being reddish in color. A common name given the fungus locally is "elephants ears."

ROME PILGRIMS TRAVEL IN AUTOS.

COLOGNE, May 21.— Cologne and the Rhine Valley recently sent a pilgrimage to Rome which made a much faster trip than the wayfarers who made the same journey in the Middle Ages under Emperor Henry IV. Neither did the pilgrims go barefooted and bareheaded. In all there were 300 automobiles and 500 motorcycles in the Rhine Valley party which made its way through Brenner Pass to the plains of Lombardy.

WOMEN QUIT RIDING ASTRIDE.

LONDON, May 21.—(Associated Press).—Women equestrians are gradually reverting to the side-saddle when on horseback, as they find riding astride develops muscles not good for dancing. A well known riding master says the side-saddle gives women more grace and security, and girls from 10 to 14 years of age only are being encouraged to ride astride.

SERVICE

FROM a modern woman's standpoint it is almost impossible to overemphasize the importance of having a well equipped kitchen. As long as the serving of three meals per day remains a household necessity, just so long will women rate the success of a home by the ability of the kitchen equipment to fulfill a household's standard of hospitality. The latest and most important adjunct to the modern kitchen is the Electric Range, the cheapest, cleanest, and most desirable method of cooking.

SALE TO GOVERNMENT ARRANGED BY SENATOR CLAIMS REMUNERATION

Carries Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada From Courts of Nova Scotia—Suit Opposed Under the Independence of Parliament Act — Question Raised As to Senator's Right to Payment For Professional Services In Any Contract With the Government.

RAILWAY MATERIAL SOLD.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(By Canadian Press.)—For the whole of Wednesday afternoon's sitting, the supreme court of Canada had under consideration the unique case of Senator Girroir of Antigonish, and, when the court rose till to-day, argument had not been concluded. The case is of special interest as raising the important question how far, under the Independence of Parliament Acts, a member of the Senate may claim remuneration for professional services rendered in negotiating sales to a Government department.

The case began with two claims by Senator Girroir against the estate of A. R. McDonald, formerly of Antigonish and a partner in the firm of Kennedy and McDonald. The two claims were:

(1) For services rendered to A. K. McDonald in respect to efforts made in 1917-18 to have a nephew of McDonald, who was in the flying corps, transferred to home service as an instructor.

(2) For commission on sale in 1918 of railway equipment owned by the firm of Kennedy and McDonald to the Department of Railways.

The first claim was for $1,250, based on legal services at Halifax and Ottawa, 25 days at $50 a day including expenses. The second claim was for $3,270, being 10 per cent commission on the selling price. From these sums was deducted $1,228 due on a note owing by Senator Girroir and $1,000 received, leaving a net claim of $2,292.

Basis of Appeal

The judge of probate in Antigonish disallowed both claims but the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, Judge Mellish dissenting, allowed the first claim. The second claim was unanimously disallowed by the Nova Scotia court. The ground taken was that it was contrary to public policy and violated the Senate and House of Commons Act which provides "Under Independence of Parliament" that no Senator "shall directly or indirectly, knowingly and wilfully be a party to or be concerned in any contract under which the public money of Canada is to be paid."

It is against the judgment of the Nova Scotia court on the second claim that Senator Girroir is now appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Not Before Senate

Eugene Lafleur K.C. of Montreal representing Senator Girroir, argued that the authority of a Senator was entirely legislative. The Nova Scotia court had evidently thought that Senator Girroir was a guardian of public monies. But there was nothing to require a Senator unless in his legislative capacity, to see that contracts were carried out for the benefit of the Government. A Senator had no executive functions and the contract for the sale of the plant had never been before the Senate.

Mr. Justice Anglin observed that care should be exercised not to do anything which would have the effect of whittling away the effect of the Independence of Parliament Acts

Would Cancel Note

Mr. Lafleur took the ground that the Acts enumerated the disabilities of a Senator or member of the House of Commons and that the disabilities mentioned in the Acts should not be extended. As to the first claim, Mr. Lafleur said that when the question of compensation was under discussion between Senator Girroir and McDonald, McDonald had suggested that he cancel a note for $1,000 he held from Senator Girroir and pay expenses in addition Senator Girroir had said it seemed too much money to put out on an uncertainty.

In closing Mr. Lafleur requested the court, in the event of confirming the judgment of the court below to state reasons. This, he said was a very serious matter for a public man If the judgment stood against him on the ground of violation of the Act not only would he be subject to the loss of his claim but he was also subject to penalties.

Illegal Contract

L. P. Sherwood of Ottawa, for the respondent, had not concluded his argument when the court rose. He held that the contract between Senator Girroir and McDonald for the sale of the equipment was illegal and that the statute imposed penalties for doing "these forbidden things." He said, in regard to the first claim, that Senator Girroir had not been able to accomplish anything. He had seen officers in the Militia Department and had been informed that the air force come under the jurisdiction of the Imperial authorities. He had seen Hon. A. K. McLean who had sent a cablegram to the admiralty as also had a deputy minister, but no reply came.

PISTOL USED IN MILLER WEDDING WAS ONLY TOY

Craig Miller's Narrative of the Events That Led Up to the Charge Against Him of Intimidating John O'Neil to Marry His Sister.

LURED TO RECTORY.

TORONTO, May 22. —"There are only one or two occasions in the life of a man when he can show whether there is the least spark of manhood within him,and this, I believe, was the only occasion I would ever had have. I took it, and asked Jack O'Neil to show that same spark of manhood, if he had it in him."

This was the(sentimental plea which Craig Miller says he made in asking O'Neil to "do the right thing," as he put it, and marry his sister, Marion Miller. David Craig Miller told about it yesterday. He had appeared in Police Court, looking very much worried over his predicament, on a charge of intimidating John O'Neil to marry his sister.

"Take his own bail for a week," suggested Austin Ross, adding,, "It was a case of Mr. O'Neil getting justice in this case."

"We were notified of my sister's illness only last Tuesday, and from a man whom I want known only as the "third party," said young Miller. "He played man's part throughout, and does not want any publicity. He told me over the phone that he had something on his chest which weighed heavily, which would interest me, and at the same time relieve him of a serious load. I made an appointment to meet him and he told me what he had ascertained, through his aunt, who took an interest in my sister.

Sister Corroborated.

"I had not seen Marion for three months previous to Tuesday night. At that time she had said she wanted to go out of town, but I persuaded her not to go.

"Well, I went to Marion and she corroborated what I had been told. She told me she had come to an arrangement with O'Neil's mother, that, if she would keep everything from her brothers, she would pay all expenses and see that she was treated right. It was only because of a motherly interest taken in her where she boarded that she broke down.

Saw J. J. Kelso.

"On Wednesday morning, I took my sister to the Children's Aid Society and saw J. J. Kelso. He heard the whole story and detailed a Mr. Boyes to inquire into the matter. I was to rturn on Friday again with my sister. Later that morning, I went to Niagara Falls, N.Y., to see Bill, my brother. I asked him if he had money enough to back me up in getting O'Neil to do the man's part by my sister. He agreed to do so, and promised to come to Toronto. I returned alone. Friday I went with my sister again to see Mr. Boyes. He promised to take immediate action, and that was all he could do.

Girl Got License.

"Saturday morning, accompanied by my sister, I went to the marriage license office in the city hall. I want this noted particularly. We went into the office and the marriage license issuer was busy with another party. My sister was very downhearted, and I cracked some jokes to cheer her up. She did laugh, and the issuer of licenses passed the remark 'Don't you people think this is far too serious a matter to laugh over?" and my sister replied that she thought he did not understand, as we were brother and sister. He issued the license, and my sister gave O'Neil's name. I did not at any time sign any register, or anything else.

Arranged For Marriage.

"Saturday night, my brother came to Toronto and we decided to take matters into our own hands. Sunday we made arrangements with the minister for a marriage service to be performed in a house on Kingston road on Monday night. Monday morning we had cards printed with Major McBain's name on it. We 'phoned O'Neil and we asked him if we could engage him to play at the opening of Major McBain's country residence on Monday night. He

Boy Saved From Drowning By Woman's Heroic Plunge

Fell Into the Thames at London, Ont., In Attempt to Prevent Hoop Rolling Into the Water—Woman Waded Out and With Pole Rescued Boy, Who Was Quickly Revived.

LONDON, Ont., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Gordon Jarvis, three-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Jarvis, of 1 Wharncliffe Road North, was saved from death in the river Thames Tuesday afternoon by the heroism of Mrs. M. E. Fortner, of 62 Cavendish street.

The little fellow was playing along the river bank in the rear of the Fulton and Fortner residences just west of the Wharncliffe Road bridge and in endeavoring to prevent a hoop, with which he was playing, from rolling int othe river he fell in himself, and began slowly to float out toward mid-stream.

Mrs. Fortner and Miss Emily Fulton were attracted by the screams of the lad's playmates and both rushed to the aid of the little fellow.

Mrs. Fortner waded as far out as she could in the icy waters and then with a clothespole secured from her yard she managed to pull the child to shore.

Though chilled by her plunge she began work of resuscitation on the boy and by the time the doctor and firemen arrived she had succeeded in reviving the child.

GRAND DUKE IS RUSSIA'S HOPE

Former Commander of Russian Forces the Only Person Who Can Reclaim Country From Chaos.

CHATHAM, May 22.—That the Grand Duke Nicholas, former commander of the Russian forces, is the only man who can bring Russia out of its present chaos, was the emphatic statement of W. O. Rodomar, a Russian of noble birth who is visiting here, in an address delivered before the Rotary Club yesterday.

Rodomar stated that it is impossible for any government to do business with the present Russian administration and that so long as chaos remains in Russia the instability of Europe will continue.

"The Bolsheviks will never be able to deal with any country in a business way for they are not backed by the majority of the population," he said. "In fact they are hated."

"It has taken the Grand Duke seven years to make up his mind to head the movement in which three million Russian refugees will endeavor to restore peace to their native land. There is no Russian who is so dearly loved. Even the men in the Red forces love him. Once he crosses into Russia they will follow him."

W. O. Rodomar, formerly of Athens, is here with his wife visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. McLachlan. He refused to discuss his parentage when interviewed, although it is rumored that his tile qualified him as a Prince.

CAPTAIN LOST WITH 'ORINOCO'

Survivors of Lake Superior Wreck In Hospital Suffering From the Effects of Exposure — Others Have Left the Soo.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 22 (Canadian Press). — Eleven members of the crew of the ill-fated Orinoco left the Soo last night for Bay City. The remainder of the survivors from the wrecked steamer are in the Marine Hospital here receiving attention as a result of their harrowing experience and exposure.

Most of them are suffering from frozen faces and limbs, with the exception of Dewyomans, who sustained a fractured arm in falling in the Orinoco's cargo hold when she broke up.

All survivors are loud in their praise of the treatment accorded them by Captain D. A. Williams, of the tug Gargantua, in effecting their rescue in providing food.

"From the time they took us on board, they treated us like princes," said Wm. Schneider, a member of the Orinoc,, crew. "Hardly fifteen minutes elapsed after we were aboard before the cook called us into the dining-room, where we got a regular dinner, which tasted mighty good after being without food since Sunday morning."

The Chieftain, which was in tow of the Orinoco was left in Barhewana Bay with her crew of seven aboard, where she will be picked up by the steamer Coulee, and taken to her destination for pulpwood.

Outside of the shaking up she got in the storm, the vessel and crew are all right.

The bodies of Wm. Ostrandrttttttt The bodies of Wm. Ostrander and Clarence Clarkson, who died of exposure in rowboats after they left the steamer, are in a morgue in the Canadian Soo.

They were shipped to their home to-day.

The party which left last night were in charge of the second mate, A. G. Reckstraw, the first mate, Edward Gonyaw, being one of those taken to the hospital.

Captain Lawrence, with his chief engineer, Joseph Wurtz, and wheelsman, Hugh Gordon, went down with the steamer.

Unknown Man Picked Up By Motor Party; Only Fatality When The Auto Overturned

MONTREAL, May 2.—(Canadian Press).—Described as about 31 years of age, weighing around 190 pounds, brown eyes and hair, the body of an unknown wayfarer of Polish-Russian extraction, is in the hands of the local Jewish authorities who are trying to establish his indentity.

The man met a touring car when nearing Chambly canton and asked for a lift saying he was a printer formerly employed in New York who was seeking work in Canada. The occupants of the car took him, and a few miles further on had an accident in which the car turned turtle, killing the unknown man. The body of the unknown was brought here after a verdict of "accidental death" had been returned at the inquest.

Legacy Unexpected From Knife-Grinder

GLASGOW, Scotland, May 22.—John Thomson, a jobless warehouse porter, has moved from the poor quarter to one of the finest residential sections of Glasgow. Because he wrote letters and performed a few other simple services for an itinerant knife-grinder here, Thomson recently came into a legacy of several thousand pounds when the knife-grinder died.

RICH GRAFT FOR KLAN OFFICIALS WAS DIVIDED UP

Former Investigator For Hooded Order Pocketed As Much As $1,000 a Week — United States Was Laid Out In Sections For Membership Harvest.

TEXAS CAMPAIGN.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The inner workings of the Ku Klux Klan and the manner in which high Klan officials divided the country into sections and divided the money paid in for memberships was described to the Mayfield committee of the Senate by J. Q. Jett, of White Path, Ga., a former investigator for the hooded order.

Jett described it "as graft" and candidly admitted he made from $500 to $1000 a week while with the Klan He said he had been employed by the Klan as an investigator. Later, he said, he worked under H. L. Savage in the Klan's bureau of investigation. As an investigator he was paid $40 a week and expenses. He added:

"But I made $500 to $1,000 a week."

Senator Spencer, Republican of Missouri, asked for an explanation and Jett said:

"Well, in this way: I was sent to see a girl in Tampa, Fla. I turned in an expense account of $1,800. I really only spent $300."

Senator Neeley said:

"Then the $1,300 was graft?"

"Sure, they all did that. Everyone knew it was going on. They divided up. W. H. Evans, the imperial wizard had eleven States for his own little graft. That included Texas."

Money For Education

Jett told the committee Evans had sent $25,000 into Texas to elect Mayfield to the Senate. There was some question about the legality of Mayfield's name on primary ballots and the money, according to Jett, was to be used "to educate Klansmen to write in Mayfield's name. Evans also sent paid workers into Texas, Jett added.

He testified that E. Y. Clarke, head of the propaganda department of the Klan, tried to induce Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, Clarke's business partner, to donate $100,000 to electing a United States Senator. Jett added:

"He told her Texas was the best place in which to do this."

Jett described himself as an "ex-son-in-law" of Mrs. Tyler, from whose daughter he is divorced.

Jett said Congressman Upshaw from Georgia, was the Klan's "man," but he was stopped by a chorus from the committee, who ordered the testimony stricken from the record.

Luther Nickel, representing the anti-Mayfield forces, then had J. S. MacQuinn, assistant cashier of the Imperial Palace in Atlanta, out on the stand. Nickel questioned MacQuinn regarding collections and expenditures.

Books in Good Shape

MacQuinn testified that in 1922, during the Texas primary election, and before he affiliated himself with the Klan, he made an audit of the Ku Klux Klan books.

The books were in first class condition, MacQuinn said, and they did not show one penny to have been spent on the Texas election.

Car Demolished Driver Escaped

KINGSTON, May 22.—Miraculous was the escape from death of Mr. I. L. Benn of Long Lake, whose Ford car was struck by the C.P.R. flyer at the Frontenac Road crossing near Parham, about 2.30 yesterday afternoon The train which was travelling at high speed crashed into the car in which Mr. Benn was driving and literally smashed it to pieces. After the crash Mr. Benn was found in the back part of the car by men who rushed to the scene, alive and unhurt, not even scratched. The carcass of a calf was being brought into the town by Mr. Benn and it was hurled from the back seat for a distance of fully one hundred feet.

SUPERANNUATION OF CIVIL SERVANTS BILL INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Estimated Cost to Government $1,435,000 A Year Hon. Mr. Robb Announced.

GIVEN FIRST READING

Dependents of Deceased Civil Servants Included For Allowances.

OTTAWA, May 22 (Canadian Press). — First reading of a Bill providing for the superannuation of civil servants as given in the House of Commons yesterday.

The resolution on which the Bill is based, states that it is "a measure to provide for the superannuation of civil servants, to provide for contributions by civil servants to the Consolidated Revenue Fund to civil servants and to the widows and children of deceased civil servants of superannuation allowances or gratuities."

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the leader of the Opposition, asked what would be the annual cost to the country or the average cost for the first five years and the anticipated cost for the second five.

Five Per Cent. of Pay.

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, explained that the cost to new entrants would be 5 per cent. of the pay roll.

The civil servants would pay 5 per cent. and the Government 5 per cent., so it was impossible to determine exactly what the cost would be without knowing how many civil servants would transfer. He estimated that if all transferred, the cost to the Government would be about $1,435,000 a year.

Mr. Meighen: "That $1,435,000 must be 5 per cent. of the present civil service salary total?"

Mr. Robb: "I imagine so."

Merge Other Schemes.

Mr. Robb understood that the other schemes would be merged with the proposed one. It would be a matter for the civil servants themselves to consider. He understood that civil servants were willing that all the funds should be merged.

Sir Henry Drayton asked if military superannuation, as distinct from military pensions, would be brought under the new schemes.

Mr. Robb did not think so.

The Bill was about to be given a second reading, when G. G. Coote (Progressive, Macleod) objected on the ground that the Bill was not yet printed ,nd the members were not in possession of copies.

The objection was upheld, and the Bill will come up before the House for second reading to-day.

Moose Slain In City of Quebec

QUEBEC, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—A cow moose appeared in the heart of the city about 4 o'clock yesterday morning and was first seen turning the corner on to St. John street from Palace Hall.

Constable Oscar Tanguay jumped to the running board of a passing auto and the car pursued the animal through the city along St. Anne street, down Chauteau avenue, along St. John street, down Palace Hill until St. Valier street was reached.

The constable kept up a fire from the running board and wounded the animal several times, but even then the moose was able to shake the constable and car driver off, when they caught up with her and tried to hold her down by the head. A final bullet, however, ended her struggles.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR IMMIGRANTS

Scheme of C.N.R. Colonization Department to Demonstrate Canadian Agricultural Conditions

LONDON, May 22 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Colonisation Department of the Canadian National Railways here is formulating a new training school for intending British settlers in Canada, including preliminary instruction in England, to be followed in the Dominion by practical contact with farming conditions.

It is hoped that the scheme will enable likely settlers who, however, possess no agricultural experience, to make some acquaintance with Canadian agricultural conditions before embarking.

It will also enable the Canadian National Railways Colonisation Department to make a more careful selection of those who profess themselves already experienced in farm work.

About two months ago the Canadian National Railways, through Dr. J. W. Black, European manager of the Canadian Department of Colonisation and Development, signed an agreement with the Overseas Settlement Committee with a view to encouraging the settlement in Canada of groups of families on specially selected lands adjacent to the railway. This scheme included provision of expert advice and also financial assistance for settlers.

EXPLOIT SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY

C.P.R. Intend to Demonstrate Possibilities of Beet Growing On Irrigated Tracts of Alberta.

MONTREAL, May 22 (Canadian Press). — A campaign to demonstrate the possibilities of the sugar beet industry in irrigated tracts of Alberta will be undertaken this summer by the Canadian Pacific Railway, it was stated here yesterday by G. G. Ommaney, development engineer of the Development and Colonisation Department.

Seed is to be distributed and expert advice furnished to farmers in the eastern irrigation plot in order to demonstrate the commercial possibilities of sugar beet production this summer.

The plots will be one-quarter of an acre in area, and when the beets are harvested a test will be made of every plot to determine the yield and the sugar content of the beets grown on the farmer's own land.

It is thus hoped to show clearly how much profit the grower might expect were he to devote more space to this crop, and give him first hand knowledge and confidence to start a new industry,

FIVE HOLD-UPS STAGED IN NEW YORK YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, May 22. — More crime was experienced here in the past 24 hours than in any other similar period in several months, according to the police records.

The first occurrence was a hold-up yesterday morning, in which one of two bandits was shot and killed by a policeman. The last was early today when four ticket offices of the Elevated and Subway Transportation lines and an East Side store were robbed almost simultaneously. Five armed men took part in one of these hold-ups.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY OPENED BY DR. WISHART

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 22. —(Canadian Press). — Dr. Charles F. Wishart, retiring Moderator, opened the 136th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America to-day with a scathing denunciation of the warfare between the nations and a vigorous demand that the Church take a determined stand towards abolishing it. He struck a keynote of pacificism that is expected to sound through the Assembly.

Modern war is utterly anti-Christian, he said. It is not so much the destruction of life, the loss of property, the "damning centre of indictment against modern war," is that it is by necessity thoroughly organized, carefully stimulated and systematically propagandized.

To Attend Centenary Conference To Be Held At Picton In June.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—The district meeting of the Campbellford district of the Methodist Church was held on Tuesday, May 20, 1924, in the Methodist Church at Campbellford—Rev. C. W. Barrett, of Stirling, chairman of the district, presiding.

The morning session, for the ministers alone, was spent mostly in routine business of the circuits and as a district. The latter part was given to a general discussion on the pastors' work, especially in regard to receiving new members into the church.

The afternoon session was for the laymen as well, and there were present eleven ministers and twelve laymen. As the roll was called the following responded:—

The Missionary givings for the district this year amounted to $8,152, an increase of $729 over last year. Campbellford Church raised for missions alone, $1,318, an increase of $5. The report of the Religious Education secretary showed $1,503 for the support of our missionary—Rev. R. McWilliams, B.A. Of this, $732 was raised from the Sunday Schools and $771 from the Young People's Societies. He also mentioned the summer school to be held at Bobcaygeon, July 21 to 28, and urged each circuit to send a delegate.

Centenary Conference.

The chairman mentioned especially of the centenary conference to be held in Picton in June, and of the excursion to old Hay Bay Church on the Wednesday of conference week.

The representative from the district to the Stationing Committee, by ballot fell to the lot of Rev. M. L. Hinton, of Hastings; Rev. Rogers to be the alternative.

Another item of interest was the motion of Rev. A. McLaughlin, Keene, and Rev. J. E. Glover, Seymour, that this district desire that Rev. R. McWilliams be our district missionary.—Carried.

The session closed at six o'clock with prayer by the chairman.

Young People's Society.

The new officers of the Young People's Society were initiated at their meeting on Monday night, and each one was asked for a short speech, to which those who were present complied.

The 3rd vice-president (Mr. George Smith) had the programme in charge. Besides the musical numbers and readings, Mr. Smith gave a splendid topic on "John Bunyan and Pilgrim's Progress."

The retiring president and the pastor each made a short speech. A meeting of the executive was called at the close of the league and planned work for the coming year.

Hotel Guests Driven Out By Masked Gang

WILLIAMSON, W.Va., May 22. — Approximately 100 men and women, ordered to leave the city last night by a band of men wearing hoods and robes, departed on trains to-day, the Police Department reported.

The robed men called upon hotel proprietors late last night, and demanded that they clean house by ordering out certain women and men who were suspected of being bootleggers and gamblers.

In event the orders were not carried out, the local owners were instructed to leave Williamson within 48 hours.

IODINE IN SALT TO STOP GOITRE

Absence of Iodine in the Thyroid Gland is Cause of Disease.

TORONTO, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—The introduction of a small percentage of Iodine in all salt used for domestic purposes as a means of preventing goitre, was advocated by Dr. David Marine, associate professor of Pathology in Columbia University, ..New York, at yesterday afternoon's session of the annual convention of the Ontario Health Officer's Association.

An exhaustive survey of the results of 20 years study of the causes and nature of goitre by Dr. Marin, the anouncement by Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health for Ontario, that within the year he hoped to be able to demonstrate positive cures in a series of goitre cases, and brief talks by Doctors R. M. and Wm. Box on the scientific basis for the slogan, "Teach your tooth brush to shimmy," were the major terms on the program which was listened to by nearly 200 municipal health officials.

According to Dr. Marine, it has been scientifically established that simple goitre is caused by relative or absolute deficiency of iodine in the thyroid gland. If the amount of iodine stored in the gland decreased to less than one tenth of 1 per cent. of gland tissue, dried goitre occurred inevitably.

It could be prevented by placing a small percentage of iodine in drinking water, but the most easily handled method was that which used salt as the medium.

FOR 15 YEARS WAS TROUBLED WITH ECZEMA
There is no other remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters that can possibly give such relief to all sufferers from eczema, salt rheum and all other diseases of the blood for the reason that this old and well tried remedy goes right to the seat of the trouble and completely and permanently drives these diseases out of the system by cleansing the blood and making it pure and rich.
Mr. F. W. H. Schultz, Pembroke, Ont., writes: "Having been troubled with eczema for fifteen years, during which time I tried everything I could think of, including doctors, but without getting anything to do me much good I finally decided to take Burdock Blood Bitters, and I was certainly surprised to find that two weeks after I had started to take it I was relieved of my trouble. That was nine months ago, and I have not had a sign of it since. I surely wish to thank you for this wonderful medicine and strongly recommend it to anyone suffering from the same trouble as I had."

Joliet's Voyage to Be Celebrated in Pageant.

JOLIET, May 22.—Floating down the Chicago drainage canal and the Illinois river, a modern Louis Joliet, accompanied by Father Marquette and his voyageurs, will be greeted when he lands June 18 at the city bearing his name, by a pageant of more tahn 1,000 actors, given in commemoration of the landing of the original oliet here 250 years ago.

The week of June 16 to 22 is to be devoted to a celebration of Joliet's exploration and discovery of the site of this city.

Although the trip down the Chicago canal and river will not follow accurately the original exploration trip of Joliet and Marquette, it may follow the route taken by the famous explorer a year later in returning to the Illinois country.

CAMPBELLFORD POLICE LOST PRISONER TWICE

Much Wanted Man is Still at Large--Revolver Shots Failed to Stop Him--Second Man in Gaol.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22. — Police Chief Duncalfe on Tuesday received a letter from Provincial Officer W. H. Boyd, dated from Haliburton asking him to be on the look out for Roy Lindsay and Ernest Cornelius, who had been arrested on a charge of shop breaking on Saturday but who within two hours of their incarceration had broken out of lockup at Haliburton. As Lindsay was known to have relatives in vicinity of Campbellford it was the opinion of the officer that the men would head in the direction.

Harry Seaborn, assistant chief of police here, who drives a truck when ont on duty for the town, while going his rounds, Wednesday morning noticed two men on Front St., near ly opposite the police station who answered the description of the pair wanted at Haliburton. Leaving his team standing on the street he proceeded to take the men into custody, calling upon J. H. Poulton for assistance. Officer Seaborn seized one of the men and Poulton the other. Both put up a stiff fight for their freedom and Poulton's man succeeded in making his get-away, but the assistant chief was too much for the other who was taken to the station. He is a full blooded Indian, and admitted that his name was Cornelius, and that he was one of the men wanted.

Lindsay, the other man, sprinted across the bridge to the west side and managed to elude pursuit. Chief Duncalfe commandeered R. H. Cole's auto and gave chase, going out about nine miles to the home of Lindsay's relatives near Hastings. The man's friends denied having seen him for some itme and that he had spent Tuesday night with them.

In the afternoon Chief Duncalfe and Assistant Chief Seaborn motored out to the same place and the bolter concealed himself near the house. It was not long before he saw Lindsay approaching the residence. When the officer ordered him to halt Lindsay made a break through a cedar swamp, followed by the assistant chief, who was almost mired in the soft ground. The fugitive again managed to escape, three shots from the officer failing to stop him. When the officer emerged from the swamp he found himself on the shore of a small lake which Lindsay had reached ahead of him and was crossing in a small boat. There was no other boat in sight so that the pursuit had to be abandoned.

Cornelius, the Indian, is out on parole, after serving a sentence following his conviction for burglary. Of the two he is the one specially wanted by the police and his capture by Assistant Chief Seaborn is regarded as a good piece of police work.

Cornelius, who is in the lock-up here awaiting the arrival of the Provincial officer, admitted that he and Lindsay escaped from Haliburton. At Lindsay they caught a freight and made as far as Hastings. From there they walked to the home of Lindsay's relatives and there spent Tuesday night, coming to Campbellford on Wednesday morning. Lindsay's relatives admitted to the officers on the second visit of the latter yesterday that they had sheltered the escaped prisoner Tuesday night. A suit case belonging to Lindsay was found at the house and taken to the police station. His recapture is regarded as certain as he is well known in the vicinity where he was last seen.

Chief Duncalfe met with delay in getting an auto when Lindsay first broke away and but for this it is not likely that the fugitive would have got outside the town limits.

Traffic on Canal.

The Trent Canal has been opened for the season. The first boat to whistle for the raising of the bridge was the Rosetta, a yacht from Toronto. Wednesday morning the Dawn a yacht from the same city, passed through here. Both boats were bound for Bobcaygeon.

Rumor Denied.

A rumor that reached here Wednesday afternoon, to the effect that a man in Marmora had shot and seriously injured another during a quarrel, was denied last night over the long-distance telephone.

Bread Is 9 Cents.

The price of bread has been increased here from 8 to 9 cents. Dealers who formerly sold two loaves for 15 cents now charge nine cents straight.

At the Regent.

Capt. Hyland has provided a special bill at the Regent Theatre for the week-end. Beginning to-night, the big attraction for the remainder of the week, with Saturday matinee, will be the film of the 15-round bout between Dempsey and Gibbons, this being the first presentation of these pictures in Ontario. The other attraction for the remainder of the week will be the Scotch comedy, "Stop Your 'Ticklin' Jock." Reserved seats can now be secured at Birks' Drug Store.

SHIP BECALMED FOR 30 DAYS AT EQUATOR.

LONDON, May 22.—The Norwegian bark Trio, from Antofagasta, Chile, has arrived at Plymouth in charge of the mate, as on the outward trip the captain and one of the crew died at Melbourne from injuries received during a storm.

While crossing the Australian Bight the Trio experienced a very heavy gale, huge seas swept over the vessel, and several of the crew were badly injured. On the homeward journey the bark made good progress to the vicinity of the Equator, and there for thirty days she was becalmed.

SEA DOGS OF GERMAN NAVY ARE TURNING GLADLY TO FARMING

KIEL, Germany, May 21.—(Associated Press).—Former German naval officers to the number of 145 have become farmers. The land apparently has had a stronger call than might have been expected in the case of seafaring men. Eight of these officers became farmers in foreign lands, and the remainder are in the German republic. They are said to be happy.

There are 2,800 commissioned officers in the German navy when the war began. Of these 647 were killed and 462 were retained in the navy, which now consists of only a slight coast defence. Consequently 1,691 officers had to seek new vocations. One officer only got a foreign naval job; he became a commander in the Paraguayan navy.

Banks and financial institutions gave employment to 98 ex-officers and a similar number went into municipal and state administrative offices. One former admiral is now a courier in the German Foreign Office. Fifty-seven ex-officers have become merchants. One hundred in all have gone abroad, half of them having become clerks. The professions of most of the others have not been reported.

These figures are supplied by an organization of ex-officers which has sought to find employment for its members.

SHOT BY BANDITS BUT SAVED MONEY

Heroic Fifty Year Old Edwin Hinkley Slain on Street in Defending $1,075.

DETROIT, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Highwaymen killed Edwin G. Hinkley, 50, collector for the White Star Refinery Company, in a revolver battle yesterday at Dubois Street and Lyman Place. Hinkley's battle saved his employers $1,075, which he was carrying. It was the second time in two weeks he was held up. Hinkley was driving north on Dubois Street when the robber car drew abreast, with two men in the rear seat flourishing guns and ordering the collector to the curb. As he slowed down the two armed robbers jumped to the running board of Hinkley's machine. Hinkley grasped a loaded revolver and fired two wild shots. Six shots came in answer and Hinkley slumped to the floor dead.

DR. MAYO DECLARES MAY CURE CANCER

Depends on Discovery of Microbe Transmitting the Disease.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Cancer is not considered contagious, but if scientists eventually discover that a microbe transmits the disease a way will be open for its rational treatment and control, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., set forth yesterday in a telegram to Dr. George A. Soper, managing director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

"There are several causes which contribute to the development of cancer," said his telegram to-day. "Microbic infection possibly is one of them. Chronic injury or irritation is a long recognized cause, and may give opportunity for infection."

IN MEMORIAM.

A year has passed, but none can tell
Of a loving husband loved so well,
One of the best that God could send,
A loving husband, a faithful friend.

What would I give to clasp his hand,
His loving face to see,
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant so much to me.

I think of him in silence,
His name I oft recall,
But there's nothing left to answer
But his picture on the wall.

In memory of Peter Buchanan, who died May 22nd, 1923.

Estimates of Free State Show Saving.

DUBLIN, May 22.—The total saving on the Free State budget in comparison with last years amounts to $70,000,000. Of this saving a cut in the army of about $30,000,000 is the larger part. It is pointed out in the old Unionist press that allowing for the difference in the value of money, the British Government spent $12,500,000 a year on maintaining public order in Ireland. Last year it cost the Free State over $67,000,000, and this is taken as the measure of the abnormality in Irish conditions.

The estimates of the finance minister for next year show an estimated deficit of some $43,000,000 which "will be found by borrowing or otherwise." A great part of the expenditure will go in payment for damage to property in the campaign by the Irregulars against the Free State.

Wool Textile Industry Facing Wage Struggle.

LONDON, May 21.—(Canadian Press Cable)—There is a prospect of a strong fight being made over the question of wages in the wool textile industry. The Yorkshire operatives demand a 10-per cent. advance in their wages and this has been refused. The employers' affiliation is resolved to resist the demand to the utmost and a strike seems imminent.

A LOSING GAME.

A Winnipeg bank bandit who held up a bank staff and secured $2,000 was pursued by the police and killed as he attempted to make his escape.

His fate is another proof that banditry as a profession is a complete failure.

The man who tries to wrest a fortune from the world at the point of a gun is leaving only two or three alternatives for himself—and they are all losing hazards.

Some are temporarily more lucky than this Western outlaw who died within a few minutes after committing his crime.

But the shadow of the penitentiary or the gallows always hangs over them—or the chance that a policeman's bullet will end their career.

"Red" Ryan pointed the moral when as the gates of Kingston closed on him again he warned those who might be tempted to follow his example, that "there is nothing in the game."

THE AMUSEMENT TAX.

The new method of collection announced by the Ontario Government in regards to the Amusement Tax may prove productive of considerable revenue to the Province, but will be a source of annoyance to many people.

Hitherto the Province has distribbuted the Amusement Tax tickets through bonded district agents—the Bank of Commerce has acted in that capacity in Peterborough—and theatre owners and others have been able to secure their tickets as they needed them from these agents, who received a commission of one and a half per cent.

These destributing agencies are now being abandoned and tickets after June 1st will have to be secured directly from the Provincial Treasurer's Department.

In the case of large users of tickets this change will not make much difference, except that they will have to buy more at one time than they had to under the old system.

Organizations who only requre a few tickets for an entertainment or dance at which an Amusement Tax should be collected will find it rather inconvenient to have to secure their supplies from Queen's Park.

However, it is estimated that the Province will save $75,000 a year in commissions, and possibly the people are at present in such an economical frame of mind that will reconcile them to the inconveniences of the new system in view of the financial gain to the Province.

A GENUINE CLAIM.

The automobile dealers are still pressing strongly for the refund of Luxury Taxes paid in advance on automobiles, and have presented such a strong case that the support of newspapers in all sections of the Dominion and of Chambers of Commerce and similar organizations has been readily offered.

As the facts appear to the Examiner, the claim of the dealers is a just one.

The Luxury Tax, it will be remembered, was passed in 1918.

It was abolished by order-in-Council late in December, 1920, but not until after the dealers had stocked up with cars for the 1921 season, on which they had to pay the tax.

There was no chance of passing this tax on to the consumer, and the result was that the dealers themselves had to pay it out of their own pockets.

The total amount lost in this way is estimated at over a million dollars.

The dealers point out that they were compelled to advance their own money to the Government in payment of Luxury Taxes on an average of at least four months before they could pass the tax to the ultimate consumer, who, it was clearly understood by the Special War Revenue Act, should pay it, thus costing the dealers in interest-carrying charges alone $411,961.50, so that in this respect they were heavy losers, in addition to being out the total Luxury Tax on automobiles in stock when the tax was lifted.

The dealers have a genuine claim for consideration, and this session should see some consideration give to their case.

WEST INDIAN TRADE.

There is nothing upon which the British Labor Government can congratulate itself in the first outward manifestations of the general attitude of the Empire overseas towards the Budget reactions, says the Montreal Star. In the lowering of the preference here and the total elimination of the preference there may be a weighty sop to the great Free Trade vote, but unfortunately the overseas Empire does not depend upon that vote and has very little immediate interest in it. What is obvious is that if the British preference hitherto granted to the Dominions and the smaller dependencies that make up the Empire is to be cut off or reduced, the inevitable result will be to deflect trade that ought to go to Britain in other directions—in the case of the British West Indies, for instance, to the United States, which already enjoys a disproportionately large share of the commerce of the islands.

This may not trouble the Free Traders in Britain, if they ever give the matter a thought, but it is a more serious matter for the Islanders. The Empire has no more loyal adherents, and they are keenly desirous that their trade should flow eastward to Britain than westward. But it is impossible for the strongest form of loyalty to withstand economic pressure when that pressure marks the dividing line between profit and loss. If the West Indies are forced to divert their trade from Britain to America, it means that they will buy American-made machinery for their estates instead of British machinery. While the adage that "Trade follows the flag" is only partially true, there is a good deal of serious thought to be given to the unpleasant contingency that in some cases the tendency is for the flag to follow trade.

It is a dull day that does not bring some fresh trouble for the Home Bank directors.

THE ONTARIO RED CROSS.

The fourth annual report of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, just received by the Examiner, makes interesting reading.

Too many people think of the Red Cross as merely a war auxiliary.

On the contrary, the organization is always at work in this Province.

It is still caring for the comfort of soldiers in hospitals or on lonely farms.

It is carrying a nursing service to some of the outlying parts of the Province through its outposts, which, it is hoped, will be trebled during the present year.

Through the Junior Red Cross it is reaching over twenty thousand children in our public schools, who under its auspices are learning to play the game of health and growing up straight and strong to be good citizens of Canada.

Through its emergency department the Ontario Red Cross has held out a helping hand to Haileybury, Cochrane and the people of Japan.

The annual report gives many interesting details about these and other activities of the organization, and the extent of the work carried on, as shown by the pamphlet and by the "foreword" at the beginning of the report, published for the benefit of those who may not care to read the complete details, will be a surprise even to those who have been brought into touch with some one phase of the society's activities.

The work done in connection with the epidemic of typhoid fever at Cochrane last spring furnishes a typical example of the peace-time usefulness of the Red Cross.

The appeal of the striken northern town was responded to promptly.

The Red Cross conducted a large emergency hospital for nearly two months.

It furnished food to a large number of indigent sick families, supplied medicines and sick-room supplies, sanitary appliances and antiseptics for the control of the disease, a trained personnel, medical nursing, etc.

There are few organizations of more general usefulness than the Red Cross Society.

WEALTH IN WAR.

Any movement that may help to prevent war, or tend to minimize its horrors will command the sympathy and support of every right thinking man and woman. But enthusiasm in a cause, however righteous, is not always a sure criterion of its effectiveness; nor is the practical value of a theory or proposed reform to be measured simply by the zeal with which it is advocated. And in no relation is this truth more applicable than it is to the multitude of theories propounded and movements inaugurated to end war, or ameliorate its conditions.

From Wilson's humanitarian appeals and shibboleths to the peace-at-any-price propaganda of the pacifists: from the formation of the League of Nations to the Communist idea of a universal strike; from disarmament treaties to proposed amendments of the rules of war; from Barrie's conception of a League of Youth to Miss Agnes MacPhail's plea for expurgated school books, there has been no lack of inspiration and effort in the direction of ensuring everlasting peace to a war-weary world. And if we are no nearer the millennium sought after, it is because the theorists and reformers have not taken sufficient account of the natural laws that govern nations, as well as individuals, or of the grim realities that precipitate war and attend its conduct.

This is once more illustrated in the latest peace movement which, like not a few others, has its origin in the United States. Based on the plausible theory that the most effective way to prevent war is to render it financially intolerable, it seeks to promote, and, if possible, enforce the doctrine that the nations while engage in war shall be found to mobilize all their resources, money as well as material and men; in other words, that to carry on war there shall be, not only conscription of manhood, but conscription of wealth.

In the direction of movements of this kind it seems to be almost impossible to avoid the intrusion of a good deal of sloppy sentimentality and distorted reasoning. With tearful accents and reproachful tones, we are admonished, for instance, that never again shall our brave boys be compelled to fight our battles while their elders and less patriotic fellows remain at home to fatten on their sacrifice and enrich themselves at the price of their blood. And there is emphasized the all too common, though by no means well founded, assumption that wars are caused by the cupidity of individuals who hope to profit from them, and that if profiteering were eliminated, wars would cease.

That there is unfortunately profiteering in every war cannot be disputed, and any means which can be devised to prevent or punish it should and would meet with universal approval. But to suggest that the last great conflict was "engineered by profiteers," and conducted and prolonged to enable many who remained at home to commercialize the sacrifice of those who fought, is to slander a vast body of people, whose patriotism was constantly in evidence, and to flagrantly distort the known facts of history.

As for the proposal to conscript wealth as well as men in time of war, it is by no means clear from the propaganda of the promoters of the movement as to how, or in what degree, that object is to be attained. Indeed, it is significant that of several provisions, drafted for submission to Congress, no two are alike in their definition of what is meant by the conscription of wealth. Nor is any sound reason advanced why Governments which have permitted profiteering and other abuses in their conduct of war should in future be trusted with the unlimited power of mobilizing or conscripting what they might regard as wealth regardless of circumstances, or without fear or favor. There is certainly no guarantee that under such conditions the same evil forces which have operated in past wars, and which the promoters of the present movement so loudly condemn, would not be found at work, on even a larger scale. For Governments, after all, are not less human, or more patriotic than the people they govern and they are not so easily punishable.—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 21.—The only real sticky end in the cattle is with the heavy unfinished steers. Several loads of these gone over by the exporters and are not either up to the class or are priced too high. The drovers are putting the commission men up against a tough proposition by paying too much in the country. One load was pointed out this morning which cost $7.50 a cwt. at St. Catharines, and the best bid here was $7.35.

Parsons & Bowman shipped a load of feeders at a cost of $7.75 a cwt. These weighed 1,240 lbs. each and were pretty select. Other good feeders sold from $6.90 to $7.35 a cwt. Stockers around 800 lbs. each are averaging pretty close to $5.75 a cwt. The exporters only got four loads of steers on Tuesday from $7.25 to $8 and ten bulls $4.25 to $5. They will ship out 35 cars today, and a few steers were bought this morning at $8.00 a cwt.

Choice medium weight butchers are selling from $7.50 to $8 a cwt. and handyweights $7 to $7.50. A good class of medium mixed killers sold at $6.50 and good cows $5.50 and $5.75. Medium cows were $4.75 and $5 a cwt. A better trade is now on in milchers and springers and the dealers are making good sized shipments at slightly better prices. Outside good to choice butchers, the beef cattle, were slow this morning and there will be lower prices paid for any heavy steers.

Calves are holding Tuesday's firmness and several choice calves were dealt in at 11 cents a pound. Good mediums are 9 to 9½ cents and in-betweens around 8 cents. Common calves are selling close to 5 cents.

Spring lambs took a drop this morning and a fair bunch averaging 54 lbs. each went at $8 each. Some of the best f.o.b. lambs did not bring over $13 each. Sheep were around 8 cents. The quality of the spring lambs coming in is anything but good and this accounts to some extent for the lower quotations.

Hogs are in debatable ground from $7.25 to $7.50 a cwt. f.o.b. although the heavy run today of over 3,500 was in favor of the packer's bid of $7.25.

How Does Your Porch Floor Look?

There are two outstanding features about this Porch Floor Paint. One is that it is SPECIALLY made for Porch Floors—and combines a hard durable finish with a clean lustrous appearance. The other is that two pints will go as far as three pints of ordinary or so called cheap paint—assuring the consumer of Best Results and a considerable saving on the cost of material. The reason is to be found in the quality of the ingredients used and the fineness to which they are ground by powerful machinery. It is easily applied, dries quickly, and can be had in six harmonious shades.

BUDGET RESOLUTIONS DRAGGED IN COMMITTEE

Tariff of Six Per Cent. On Mowing, Binding and Reaping Machines Under Review — Hon. H. H. Stevens Indicates Handicap on Steel Rod Manufacturer.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(Canadian Pesrs).—Budget resolutions made slow progress beoire the House of Commons in committee yesterday. Discussion began with those authorizing the Government to extend the preference to mandatories of a British country under the League of Nations, if the British country concerned already enjoys the preference.

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, stated that the only mandatory at present in view under the section was Samoa. He explained that Samoa exported cocoanuts and fruits and might import canned fish.

He remarked that the trade of Samoa was similar to Fiji, to which Canada gave a preference, and this brought a question from Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Centre Vancouver) in regard to relations with Fiji. Mr. Robb in reply stated that the treasurer of the colonial government of Fiji was now in Ottawa seeking to arrange bettr transportation arrangements between British Columbia and Fiji. He had been in communication with transportation companies and was hopeful of securing more favorable arrangements.

The resolutions dealing with the preference was carried.

Duty on Tea.

There was considerable discussion of a resolution providing that "in computing the ad valorum rate of duty on tea purchased in bond in the United Kingdom, the value for duty shall not include the amount of duty payable for consumption in the United Kingdom."

Sir Henry Dayton led the attack. He complained that since the bulk of Canada's tea came from the Orient direct, the British dealers would be able to increase its price so as to absorb the benefit from the reduced tariff and Canadians would get none of that benefit.

A. R. McMaster (Liberal, Brome) pointed out that tea and coffee were "competitors in the temperance market." The consumption of tea might be increased at the expense of coffee, that was all. In any case the price of tea would have to come down. British shipments could be sold cheaper. Oriental shipments would have to follow the downward trend in prices. Perhaps a middle price would be struck, but it would be cheaper, and he was in favor of it.

Farm Machinery.

The tea resolution finally was allowed to stand and the committee proceeded to the consideration of the item concerning moving, binding, and reaping machines. It fixes the tariff on these at six per cent for the intermediate and general tariff and free for the British preference.

Hon. H. H. Stevens read a prepared statement showing a comparison of prices of such machinery during the last ten years emphasizing the effect which any changes of the tariff had had on these prices.

He further analyzed the cost of production of iron and steel products such as rods, bars and belts, claiming that the duties that manufacturers had to pay on coal, machinery and rolls, and the sales tax which he paid on all his supplies, constituted a premium to his American competitor who escaped the sales tax and many of these other charges. He said he was not asking the Government to reduce duties further but he would like to know why they did not apply to the steel rod manufacturer the same principle of compensating reductions as they extend to the implement manufacturer.

"Can my hon. friend assure me of his support," in turn asked Mr. Robb., "if I accept his suggestion?"

"Absolutely no," replied Mr. Stevens, who added that he believed in a system of protection to encourage the development of Canada's natural resources.

Indifferent to Farmer.

C. G. Coote (Progressive, MacLeod) remarked that the indifference of the implement men toward the farmer was enough in itself to make him vote for the Budget. The question of depreciated currency throughout the world was vitally affecting the western farmers. Canada might even consider allowing her dollar to depreciate a little bit in order to enable her to compete with the rest of the world. It was a question which must be faced, and was putting the western farmer deeper and deeper in to debt.

The committee rose at six o'clock with the resolution concerning mowing, binding and reaping machines still under consideration.

brought vigor by morning

How to Keep a Child Healthy

A GENERATION ago parents thought that sickness was a part of a child's life, but we know better now. The secret is in the food the mother allows the child to eat, and in watching that elimination occurs regularly two or three times a day. Mrs. W. E. Margeson, Centreville, N. S., and Mrs. Pratt, 45 Gillson Ave., Runnymede, Toronto, always keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin in the house, ready for use, and avoid many of the ills to which children are subject.

A Substitute for Physics

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a scientific compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and suitable aromatics. The formula is on every package. You will find you do not have to force children to take it, and it is much better for them than castor oil, calomel or coal-tar drugs like phenolphthalein even if covered with sugar or chocolate. Laxative Syrup Pepsin is mild and gentle in action and your child will have an easy passage without griping or strain. It does not contain narcotics, and you can give it with absolute safety to an infant at the breast.

"Magic" in a Teaspoonful

Every store that sells medicines sells Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. Give half a teaspoonful to any ailing baby or child at night when you put it to bed and you will find a happy, laughing youngster in the morning. Take Laxative Syrup Pepsin yourself when constipated, and give it to any member of the family young or old, for any ailment due to constipation, such as biliousness, headache, lack of appetite, sleeplessness, bad breath, cankers, fever sores, indigestion, and to break up fevers and colds. Stop that first sneeze or sniffle and you will have a healthy winter.

PISTOL USED

agreed. We told him we would send for him.

During the day we made arrangement with a chauffeur to call for O'Neil. We went to Woolworths and bought a 15c. toy pistol. Monday night we took the chauffeur to show him where O'Neil lived, and then he drove us to a spot on the Kingston road, where he was to pick us up again. He left us, returned for O'Neil, showed him McBain's card and took him out. On the Kingston road, as pre-arranged he signalled us and stopped the car. We boarded.

Deaf to Pleas.

"'Why, hello Bill,' O'Neil greeted my brother, and then said 'hello' to me. During the time we picked up the taxi, the third party played his part and called for my sister, taking her to the house where the miniser was to meet us.

"In the taxi I pleaded with O'Neil for humanity's sake, and told him that but once in a man's life he is called on to show his spark of manhood if he has it in him. All was in vain. My brother, who when he gets excited begins to stutter, could say nothing, but he shoved the toy pistol into the ribs of O'Neil.

Asked For Guarantee.

"O'Neil then remarked that my brother could not frighten him, and that he had made a mistake by using the pistol. O'Neil also asked me and my brother for a guarantee to be written out and given him that we would agree to get my sister after he had married her to go and live in the United States for six months, and enable O'Neil to get a divorce from her. My brother remarked that all he wanted was justice. We told him he had kept company with Marion for over a year, and he should do the right thing by her now. All the time, in the taxi, he did not deny anything, and had very little to say.

"We reached the house, and as soon as he stepped in he used the 'phone. The party he wanted he couldn't get. So he went through with the ceremony. We brought my sister home, and took him home. On Tuesday morning we went to his place of business to give him the written guarantee we had promised him about the divorce. We couldn't find him anywhere. My brother then left for Niagara Falls.

No Force Used.

"O'Neil was willing to go through the ceremony. There was not the least force used, and he said, as long as this entire thing was hushed up, the girl taken care of, and he should be enabled to get a divorce, that was all he wanted. He told us that he did not want anything mentioned by anybody, as it would spoil his chances with the girl he was now engaged to.

"There is much more in this than meets the eye, and it will come out in court. No violence was used at any time or anywhere."

"Ever since I was a little child, I suffered with eczema on my face. At times my face was completely covered with large sores, and I tried nearly every kind of medicine that I heard of with no results. This lasted for over twenty years, until one day I asked the advice of my druggist, who bade me give Dr. Chase's Ointment a trial. After using the Ointment for a few days, the sores began to heal, and soon I was completely relieved of the disease."

LONDON'S SOCIAL SEASON UNDER WAY

This Season the Opening is Expected to Be the Most Brilliant One Since Before the War.

LONON, May 21 (Canadian Press). — London's social season of 1924, which is expected to be the busiest and most brilliant since the glorified days before the war, began last night with the regal splendour of the Royal Court held by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace.

As is the custom with the first Court of the season, the guests numbering about 1,000, were drawn mainly from diplomatic and official circles, but there was also a small number from the general circle of society, among them several Canadian debutantes.

Ten American girls and matrons were presented by Ambassador and Mrs. Kellogg, and a few other Americans sponsored by their friends among the nobility.

The King wore the uniform of a Colonel-in-Chief of the Coldstream Guards.

The Queen was attired in a creation of gold tissue, embroidered in gold and diamante. The train was of emerald green and Indian gold kincob, the colour scheme being continued in her coronet of emeralds and diamonds and emerald and diamond ornaments.

From all over the world women of wealth and social station came to London for the Court, many of them making trips of thousands of miles for the special purpose of being presented at the Court of St. James, which is an essential requirement for all who would be really "in" British society.

This Court, the first under the Labour Government, lacked none of the traditional colour and pomp of its predecessors.

"HEARTS AFIRE!"

By MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, who has become entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—guest at the country home of

Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, from whom (unknown to all, save Prudence, who has been wrongly accused of one of her thefts) Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Performing an experiment in his laboratory, there is an explosion, and Peter is blinded. His nurse, Janet Mercer, takes Prudence to see the injured man.

Mrs. Vansittart urges Virginia, for decency sake, to go also.

Prudence shows Peter her unquenchable love for him, and at that moment they overhear Virginia announcing that she will never marry a blinded man!

Virginia turns to her old sweetheart, Bert Traymore, who tells her he no longer wishes to marry her—"A Common Thief."

CHAPTER LXXVI

Virginia's Shame.

Virginia drew back from Traymore.

"How dare you?" she breathed, in a furious undertone. "How dare you libel me? I'll have the law on you for this! I'll—"

"You'll keep quiet, please, and not try any scenes with me!" Bert Traymore caught her by the wrist with vise-like grip, so that she winced. "I know what I know, and it'll be better for you if you bear that in mind." He moved nearer, whispering in her ear: "What about the silver and gold plate you stole from here, and buried in the woods?"

She blanched in terror.

"Don't deny it, you little fool. I watched you at work. Now, when I do at last find the spot, I see that you've removed the stolen goods. Where are they?"

Virginia's knees trembled. So someone other than Prudence Page knew of her guilt! A secret divided between three people in the world can never be a secret!

"Come on, don't be silly. I'm not planning to expose you. But just cut out this sentimental, marrying talk, give me a little much-needed hush money, and maybe you and I can come to some arrangement profitable to both of us, and no harm done."

She shrank away from him.

But Traymore was persistent.

He had her in his power, and he intended to press that power to the limit. He had abode his time, and now the season was ripe for his nefarious purposes.

"Another matter I'm interested in—" —he lowered his voice for fear of eavesdroppers.

As she listened, Jinny's face changed from a thwarted sulkiness to a predatory greed that made her bear resemblance to a vulture.

"You don't say! As valuable as all that! And you think I could get hold of it?"

"Certainly." He looked at her through narrowed lids. Then, rising lazily to his feet: "It's a couple of hours till dinner. I think I'll kill time by calling around at Pear Tree Cottage, and inquiring for the invalid."

They gave each other a long, slow look, pregnant with meaning, then Traymore left the room.

"Is Mrs. Vansittart lying down?" Virginia inquired of the butler, who was passing through the hall.

"Yes, madam."

Virginia went to her own room, carefully fastened the door behind her, and unlocking a suitcase that was hidden at the bottom of the cupboard, drew out one of the heavy golden candlesticks she had appropriated some weeks back.

What to do with it? That was a problem.

A shadow fell across the window, Virginia, kneeling on the floor with the ornament in her hands, started backwards as she saw the butler pass outside.

She hurriedly slipped the candlestick out of sight.

"Was the fool spying on me?"

But no that was too stupid. Simpson was an excellent servant, and had no mind above his station. He had only been in Mrs. Vansittart's service in the last two weeks, but had given every satisfaction.

How quiet the house lay! Wouldn't this be a fortuitous time to slip the missing candlesticks back into their place?

But what end would that serve since she—Virginia—was going away?

The candlesticks were worth a heap of money. What purpose to relinquish that?

She'd need all the money she could lay her hands on, for all here best-laid schemes had gone wrong, and even Bert didn't seem to want her any more.

She flushed as she remembered now he had dared to call her a 'common thief'. Yet, immediately after, he was putting into her mind another daring 'coup'. Surely that went to prove that he appreciated her cunning, and could be won, yet, matrimonially speaking?

Meantime, the object of her thoughts was taking a peculiar way of 'calling to inquire for the invalid.' He was dodging round the boarded-up windows of Peter's erstwhile laboratory, feeling for an opening with his hands.

It was rather disconcerting to suddenly come face to face with Prudence Page.

Had she seen him try the boarding?

"What are you doing here?" The girl faced him unsmilingly.

He attempted jocularity, though he felt very awkward.

"Just what you're doing, lady fair. I've come to inquire how the poor fellow's getting along." He held out his hand in greeting, but Prudence made no move to take it.

"If you come round to the front door, Miss Mercer, who's his nurse, will give you the latest report about him." Prudence led the way, and then betook herself off in the direction of her own home.

Janet Mercer regarded young Traymore suspiciously.

"You got all the news of my patient a little less than an hour ago. I suppose you've come here to bring the apologies of your friend, Miss Dale?"

"Oh, no, he hadn't. He'd just come to make a friendly call, being almightily sorry for poor Armstrong. Was there anything that he could do?

He disliked this competent, brusque woman, and was glad to sneak away at her dismissal.

Arriving back at Winston Towers, he found the front door open but no sign of the well-trained butler anywhere. Simpson was usually visible but now a queer air seemed to hang about the place, as though it were the unnatural calm before a storm—what could be brewing?

Suddenly, from the direction of the library, he heart a woman scream.

It was blood-curdling!

Followed a voice, wailing:

"Horrible! Horrible!"

Traymore's feet impelled him to the library, and with shaking hands he threw the door open.

An astounding picture met his eyes. Mrs. Vansittart, the butler Simpson, and three other men faced Virginia Dale, who—heavens!—was actually handcuffed to two big policemen!

NEW YORK POLICE PLAN CONVENTION

Each of the Numerous Entrances to Madison Square Garden Will Be Closely Guarded.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(Associated Press).—Every bureau of the New York police and fire departments, with the exception of marine, rum and harbor patrols, will contribute units for the protection of life and property and the regulation of traffic during the Democratic National Convention in June.

Under a system drafted by Police Commissioner Enright, Madison Square Garden, the adjacent park, where thousands of non-delegates are expected to hear the convention proceedings by radio, and the surrounding district for blocks in each direction, are to become almost a restricted area during the convention period.

This system will be put into effect without adding a single man to the existing force of 15,000. "Given time to make our plans," the Commissioner told Stanley J. Quinn, Directing Vice-President of the local non-partisan National Convention Committee of 500, "we can cope with 200,000 visitors without calling for reinforcements. In fact, it will be easier for us to maintain order and avoid traffic congestion for this convention than it often is to perform such duties at the scene of a championship prize fight, a World's Series of baseball, a big fire, a spectacular accident, a sensational crime, a demonstrative political mass meeting, or on any occasions when comparatively small crowds gather spontaneously."

Commissioner Enright has not disclosed his plans in detail. The general program, however, provides first of all for absolute safety to delegates and seatholders within the convention and along the routes from the various delegations' hotel headquarters to Madison Square Garden.

Each of the numerous entrances to the Garden will be closely guarded, underground as well as at the street level. Streets leading to the auditorium will be roped off for two or more blocks, so that only such traffic, vehicle and foot, as is identified with the convention can pass through the lines.

Uniformed police and plainclothes men will be scattered among seatholders at the Garden, throughout Madison Square Park and over all that section, on the lookout for ticket scalpers, panhandlers, gamblers, swindlers, pickpockets and such [illegible] as prey upon humanity whenever it gathers in large numbers.

"Camera eye" men from headquarters will be there, on the lookout for faces pictured in the rogues' gallery; women detectives will circulate among the throngs spotting criminals of their sex and male "mashers." Patrol wagons will be stationed on readily accessible side streets.

Fire Commissioner Drennan also has his plans for the convention worked out. Inspectors will superintend the $50,000 alterations to the auditorium interior, guarding against the accidental installation of fire hazards, the blocking of fire escapes and the construction of fire traps.

Firemen will be on duty in the Garden and in surrounding structures throughout the convention inspecting fire-fighting facilities, tramping out carelessly tossed cigars and cigarettes, and keeping aisles and exits cleared. A traffic policeman will be detailed to each fire hydrant. Emergency apparatus, first aid units and ambulances will be kept in readiness everywhere.

Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. CHILDREN AFFORD GREAT HAPPINESS

Maternity Authority Says That Fear of Motherhood Is Due to Superstition.

By MARIAN HALE.

Despite feminism, women's interest in politics, business and professional life, the time is coming when women will rightfully think of motherhood as the greatest source of happiness and the most enriching experience a woman can have.

This is the belief of Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, R. N., who through her scientific study and her teaching at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Training School for Nurses and her surveys here and in Europe, has become an international authority on maternity and baby welfare.

She is one of the few Americans invited to attend the Conference on Infant Welfare to be held in London in July under the patronage of the King and Queen.

"The reluctance on the part of the modern young woman to undertake what should be the joyous responsibilities of motherhood is based largely on fear which is an outgrowth of superstition," she says, "and this fear must be dispelled by knowledge.

"As soon as a woman finds she is to be a mother she should consult a physician. Statistics prove that a large proportion of the perils which may lead to loss of life or invalidism may easily be prevented and corrected in the early stages of the new life's development.

"The theory of invalidism in connection with prospective motherhood is groundless and has been long exploded. There is no reason why the average woman should not feel strong, buoyant and happy during the months in which she expects her child."

She points out that many women did not achieve the top-notch of fame until several children had been born to them. Madame Schumann-Heink, the mother of 10, is an outstanding example, as well as Louise Homer, Alma Gluck, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Ethel Barrymore, Madame Curie and others.

"Women are learning, however," she concluded, "that they really can have a great deal of fun and express themselves to their highest satisfaction bringing up their children. It is a scientific pursuit. A happy, safeguarded childhood means a healthy, contented life. People are beginning to recognize the intelligence and quick understanding of children, and parents are broadening their experience to be interesting to their children."

A DISLIKE FOR FOOD

Every healthy man and woman should have a natural desire for food at meal times. This means that the digestion is in working order and that the blood is in good condition. But if you feel a dislike for food—if the sight and smell of wholesome food repels you—then you may be sure that Nature is telling you that all is not well. If after a night's rest you have no appetite for breakfast, your digestion requires attention. If your food is distasteful, or if you feel that it is a trouble to eat, your stomach is rebelling. You do not digest properly the food you are taking and are therefore not hungry.

All these symptoms of a disordered digestion means that the blood is not absorbing proper nourishment from the food, for the work of the blood is to collect proper nourishment from food and impart it to the system. The stomach tries to refuse food the nutriment from which the blood cannot absorb, and this causes the lack of appetite. If you force yourself to eat, the undigested food becomes a clog to the system. Nature is warning you. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone give the blood the richness and purity that it requires to perform its natural function. Women Less Efficient, Says Swedish Committee

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Registered bonds have many distinct advantages.

The holder of a registered bond has protection against the theft of his bond and a certain sense of security as to it's keeping. He knows that no one can possibly get hold of that investment without his knowledge and consent.

A full registered bond is one which is made out in the name of the owner and recorded on the books of the company. It has no coupons. The company forwards the interest when due, and transfer must be made on the books of the company.

Coupon bonds can be registered as to principal only.

The disadvantage of a registered bond is that it is not so quickly negotiable.

Bonds belonging to a trust fund should be registered.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

ALICE TELLS ABOUY WONDERLAND

And there sat Alice making a daisy chain

"Where are we going now?" asked Nancy, as Mister Muggs came along in his little magic car.

"I thought you would like to make a call on Alice who went to Wonderland," said the fairyman.

"Oh, yes, yes, yes! We would," cried the Twins. "And shall we see the Rabbitt and the Dormouse and the Duchess and the Mad-Hatter and everybody?"

"Well, I can't say that for sure," answered Mister Muggs. "You see Alice lives in Once-Upon-a-Time Land and she met those people when she was away visiting."

"Well, she can tell us about them anyway," said Nancy, "and that's just as good."

They all got into the little car and rode until they came to an orchard marked "Alice's Orchard."

Then they stopped and everybody got out.

And there sat Alice herself making a daisy chain.

"Oh, dear," she yawned. "I'm so sleepy and it's so warm! I feel as though I were going to fall asleep and have another adventure. I wonder if—"

Just then she saw the visitors and jumped up. "Oh, I'm so glad you came," she said. "I'm never sleepy when I have company and I'd so much rather talk."

So they all sat down and Nancy began, "Which one of the people you met on your adventures did you like the best?"

"Oh, the rabbit was a darling!" said Alice. "He had such cute little clothes and was such a fine gentleman. When I fell down the rabbit hole he was all dressed up to go to the Duchess' party. Oh, dear, I shall never forget the things that happened to me there! How I grew big and little inside of a minute, until I forgot who I really was. I tried to say the 'How Doth the Busy Little Bee' to comfort myself for being somebody else, and do you know I couldn't even remember it. I said 'How Doth the Little Crocodile instead."

"I never heard that. How does it go?" asked Nick.

So Alice recited:

"How doth the little crocodile
Improve his shining tail,
And pour the water of the Nile
On every shining scale?
"How cheerfully he seems to grin,
How neatly spreads his claws;
And welcomes little fishes in
With gently smiling jaws!"

"Thank you!" said Nick. "That's not hard to understand. And did you find out who you were?"

"I was myself, of course," answered Alice, "if I did come in assorted sizes. Once I bumped my chin on the ground I was so little. And again I hit my head on the roof, I was so tall. But it all came out all right and there wasn't a bit of use in my crying."

"Did you cry?" asked Nancy sympathetically. "I suppose you were frightened."

"Not a bit," said Alice. "I was a goose to cry for nothing. I made such a pond of tears I nearly drowned everybody. I'll tell you about it tomorrow."

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people wh enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Snake and Ape Pals; Spend Hours in Same Cage

LOS ANGELES, May 22. — The Damon and Pythias of a local showplace are a 20-foot constrictor and a 20-pound ape. The two spend hours together in the same cage, and although it would be easy for the snake to crush and swallow the little simian, they always are on the most amiable terms. The ape pulls the snake's tail, beats the monster's head and tries to catch the red, needle-like tongue as it darts in and

LOS ANGELES POLICE HEAR STRAIGHT TALK FROM THEIR CAPTIVES

The Character of Men Arrested Should Be More Closely Investigated By the Arresting Officer.

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(Associated Press).—Chief of Police August Vollmer and his police captains recently instituted a new form of conference when they held a round-table discussion on crime, its causes, and means for its prevention with the inmates of the Lincoln Heights jail here.

At a luncheon in the jail the prisoners, at the invitation of the Chief, told the arms of the law just what they thought of policemen, courts and law enforcement in general. Chief Vollmer said he learned much from the conference, including the following:

The character of men arrested should be more closely investigated by the arresting officer.

A court should be established to handle vagrants exclusively.

A sympathetic officer should be appointed to hear the pleas of these vagrants and those arrested on other petty charges.

Some of the remarks by prisoners that led up to these conclusions were:

By an Irish prisoner, called by his co-inmates, Sam: "These cops pinch us because that's their business and they don't care if we're innocent or not. If they get nothing real against us, we're canned on a charge of being vagrants and a boob judge gives us 90 days for having an empty stomach."

By an educated prisoner, who said he had made it his business to study crime from both sides: "There is, apparently, only one thing for a man to do when he is broke and hungry, and that is to 'knock somebody off.' I believe that the majority of small crimes is caused by that reason and no other."

By a grey-haired inmate, whom all saluted as Vincent: "Conditions are not going to be a bit better until the public is taught to place trust and confidence in the police department, and they will not show that trust and confidence until the department merits it. At present some policemen will lie and cheat to convict a man."

By an admitted bootlegger: "What I want to know is this: when you pinch a man and get 18 gallons of good whiskey from him, why is it that the records show you confiscated only three gallons?"

Chief Vollmer asked for the names of officers who did this, but at a warning from other prisoners, the bootlegger sat down.

OFFER MADE TO FLOUR COMPANY

Further Step By Spillers Overseas Industries, Limited, In Rumored Milling and Elevator Merger.

CALGARY, Alta., May 22. — Another step in the negotiations which may lead to the investment of between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 in western Canada by the Spillers Overseas Industries, Limited, was taken here yesterday morning when Winfield B. Sifton, representing the subsidiary company of the great British milling consolidation, made the directors of the Alberta Flour Mills Limited an offer for the control of the local company. This offer if accepted, will mean the reorganization of the companies; Spillers to find money to complete the plant, and the operation of the mills as soon as completed.

If this offer is acceptable to the directors and shareholders of the the Alberta Flour Mills Limited, said Mr. Sifton, building operations would start as soon as the legal formalities were disposed of.

Questioned about the rumored purchase of control in the Alberta Pacific Grain Company by Spillers, Mr. Sifton said:

"Negotiations have taken place. They are still going on but there is nothing to announce at the present time."

BANK ROBBER DRUG ADDICT

Squeezed Slender Purse of Father In Craving For "Dope"—Was Known In Drug Ring.

WINNIPEG, May 22. — Frank Martin, who was shot and killed shortly after he had robbed a branch of the Bank of Montreal here on Tuesday according to the police records, was a confirmed drug addict and was known as "Dopey" Martin among those who moved in the world of the "junkers" or drug addicts.

According to his father, James Martin, who reached Winnipeg from Oak Lake, yesterday, Frank had kept him poor for years as a result of his insatiable craving for "dope."

"He never showed any regard for me, but rather squandered every cent he could squeeze from my slender purse. I don't care what funeral arrangements are made for him; I am not going to do anything," the aged father declared with manifest feeling.

"Dopey" Martin, was well known in Winnipeg circles. For many years he was connected with the local Dominion and International dope rings, but so far as is known never faced a peddling charge.

TICKET OF LEAVE ACT AMENDMENT

Prisoner to Serve At Least Half Sentence Before Eligible For Remission of Penalty.

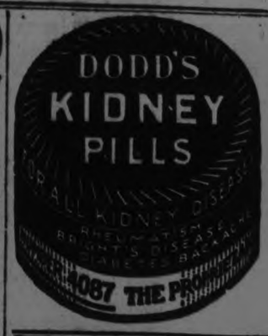
OTTAWA, May 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Second reading was given to a bill to amend the Ticket-of-Leave Act in the Senate yesterday, and the bill was referred to a special committee made up of all the lawyers in the Senate. At the opening of the discussion Senator White, who introduced the bill, explained the meaning of the term, "ticket-of-leave" as originally understood. It had been invented in the days of Australian transportation, when a document or pass was handed to a convict who had completed the second stage of his sentence. The ticket was the outward sign of remission gained by industry and blameless conduct, and had to be forfeited for disobedience or neglect of conditions shown on the ticket.

The purpose of the bill, said Senator White, was to have the prisoner serve at least half his sentence in order to be eligible for ticket-of leave. The practice had apparently grown of allowing prisoners out after they had served but a sort part of their term. The bill did not in any way interfere with the right of the Crown to pardon a prisoner and to allow him his freedom at any time.

Senator Dandurand said that it was only in exceptional cases that leave was granted before half the sentence was completed. He had submitted the matter to the justice department, and in a letter from the Deputy Minister of Justice it was urged that it was better for both prisoner and public that ticket-of-leave should be granted than freedom through exercising the power of clemency. It was also urged that in justice this remission of sentence could not be restricted to only those who had served half their sentence, as if it was good for those it was equally applicable to others who had not completed that portion of the penalty.

SECOND ROYAL COURT.

LONDON, May 22.—King George and Queen Mary last night held their second court of the season. Generally, it followed the line of Tuesday night's first court. The function was favored with beautiful summer weather and again large crowds gathered in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace to see the guests arrive.



BUREAU NOT A LIBERAL REBEL

Minister Was Tired and Ill—Didn't Wait to Vote On Budget Because of Certainty It Would Carry

OTTAWA, May 22.—(Canadian Press.)—A portest against his name being used by any member as an excuse for not voting on the budget, was made by E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River), in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

He complained that C. A. Fournier (Liberal, Bellechasse), had made special reference to himself as the principal cause of the budget debate continuing to so late an hour that Mr. Fournier was compelled to leave town without voting.

"I was only exerting my undoubted right to speak on the budget. It was no fault of mine that I had to speak at that late hour (about five or six a.m.)," he said.

Mr. Fournier startled the house, during Mr. Garland's budget speech, by shouting "have a heart" and then abruptly leaving the chamber.

A few moments later Hon. Jacques Bureau, said that he had noticed a reference in the press to himself as "one of the rebels" against the budget, "which I am not," he added. "I came up to the house and I stayed till late," he said. "I was sick and tired and I went to bed. I was sure the budget would carry by the greatest majority of any budget in the country."

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing it

When you wash children's hair, be careful what you use. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

T. L. CHURCH'S ENQUIRY INVOLVED PREFERENCE

Premier King Declined To Comment on Legislation of Any Other Part of Empire.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(Canadian Press.)—When T. L. Church, Conservative member for North Toronto, asked in the House of Commons yesterday "what damage had been done to Canadian industries in the new budget re the British preference," the Prime Minister objected. Mr. King thought the Government should not be asked to make reflecetions on the legislation of any other part of the British Empire.

The first part of the question asked if representations had been made to Britain regarding damage done to Canada by withdrawal of the British preference in the recent British budget.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen suggested that the question be redrafted, and on this understanding it was dropped.

COURT RULES A WIFE IS FREE TO BOB HAIR.

Says Husband Has No More Control Over Her Hair-Cut Than Over Her Vote.

CHICAGO, May 22. — Judge Burke, in the Municipal Court, has ruled that a husband has no more control of his wife's hair-cut than he has over her vote.

The ruling was in the case of Jacob Silverman, arraigned on complaint of his wife, Jennie.

She said she had her hair bobbed, and when Jacob arrived home he expressed his disapproval by striking her.

"I wouldn't mind a plain bob," said Silverman, "but she is 32 years old and ought to know better than to get one of those what you call King Tuts."

"Times have changed," said the Court. "It is now one of woman's inalienable rights to vote. Surely a person capable of casting a ballot must be presumed capable of choosing a hair-cut. You are placed under peace bonds."

Political campaigners must pay $100 for every ten minutes of talking, if they seek to use the microphone at WEAF, New York.

BOOTLEGGING FLOURISHES AROUND SARATOV, RUSSIA.

SARATOV, Russia, May 22. — Bootlegging is continuing unabated throughout this district. During the last three months the authorities have discovered more than 5,000 illicit stills and confiscated 50,000 quarts of home-brewed vodka.

Seven thousand indictments have been found against persons engaged in the manufacture and sale.

CONFIRMATION LAST EVENING

Twenty-eight Candidates Receive Rite of Confirmation at St. John's Church.

At St. John's Anglican Church last evening, the rite of Confirmation was administered by the Right Dev. J. F. Sweeny, D.D., Bishop of Toronto, to a class of twenty-eight candidates, of which eighteen were men and ten women, the latter robed and veiled in white. This is the first time within the memory of the Rector that the rite has been administered at one time to more men than women, the latter usually outnumbering the male applicants.

The Bishop was assisted by the rector, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, who presented the candidates and took charge of the services, by Rev. Maurice Kingsford, who read the Preface, and by Rev. W. R. Courage, rector of St. George's Church, who read Scriptural passages.

A fully robed choir also rendered music adapted to the occasion. A large number of people witnessed the ceremony.

In his exhortation to the candidates, the Bishop based his discourse on the text: "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves, for if any man be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his face in the glass, who looks in the glass and straightway goeth his way, forgetting what manner of man he was."

"The first bishop of the church in Jerusalem ,the most practical of the Apostles, uses these words as an example for many people, to those who know the way but will not try to continue in it, who falter at the doing of the living Word of God as it is contained in the written Word of God. What difference it would make in our whole outlook upon life, in society and in business and in the other inter-relationships of this complex system and scheme of existence if we would try to carry out the principles of the precepts of the Sermon on the Mount in our own lives, day by day. An agnostic has said that it is impossible and impracticable and absurd to try to do so, but the Christian answers, it is none of the three.

"The new commandment that Christ left us, 'That ye love one another,' is an obligation that rests upon us all. What a difference there would be in national and international relationships, in society and in community and family life, if we all lived up to this commandments. And also what a difference there would be in the quality of our brand of Christianity if everyone paid heed to that commandments, which has to do with the mysteries of Christ's Passion: 'This do ye in remembrance of Me,' and answered that deeper, spiritual challenge of the soul which summons the believer to partake of Communion. The small proportion of people who remain for Communion services is due to the fact that these people do not understand. They have not gone down to the heart of things. They are like the man in the text.

"What a difference it would mean, too, in heathen lands, where darkness ruleth, if everyone yielded obedience to that commandment, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature.' If we had remembered that commandment as we should, would there still, after twenty centuries, be one thousand billions of people who have never heard the name of Christ?"

To the candidates, "on this night of your fresh re-consecration to God, when you are about to re-affirm those vows and obligations and responsibilities which were assumed for you in baptism by your sponsors," the Bishop recommended consideration of some of the responsibilities of a consecrated life. "What about your prayer life? Is it like the glimpse in the glass, or is it a deeper, abiding influence that rests with you throughout the day, so preserving the spirit of your morning prayer that at any moment you can draw aside and hold communion with God, taking to Him your difficulties and perplexities and temptations, and finding in Him a sure Refuge and Friend?

"What about your Bible reading? Is it just a glance at the Scriptures, with the words soon forgotten, or do you memorise daily a small portion to make your own, to become part and parcel of you, and become a source of comfort and strength in your life."

In connection with Bible reading, the Bishop spoke of the effort now being made to have courses in Bible reading incorporated in the public school curriculum, so that the message of the Word of God might be implanted firmly in young minds during their plastic years.

"What about your worship life? Do you let every little thing interfere with it? Are you more careful to preserve the code of conventon and the canons of hospitality than you are in breaking an appointment with your God? The ringing of the church bell summons the believer to accept the invitation of God to come to His House. The church is the chamber of the King and the gate of salvation.

"What about your active life in the community? Are you following the injunction of St. James, who voiced the code of the first Social Service society, and recommended the visit-the widowed and the fatherless in their distress?"

The Bishop said that the social service movement of to-day was not a new thing, but very old. It was simply applied, practical Christianity, a following in the footsteps of Christ. He referred to the recent establishment of a centre of Jewish social service in the city of Toronto, which was being watched with interest. "What will be their model? Will it be the Mosaic institution, modelled on the great Pentateuch of Moses, or will it be influenced unconsciously by the spirit of the Christian community in which these people live, expressed in their own peculiar way?

"Probably you have here the everyday problems of any community; the slums, the unemployment, the under-privileged class. What are you doing about it? Are you standing aside, or are you going forth to bind up their wounds, in the way that Jesus set forth in His great parable of Christian social service, the parable of the Good Samaritan.

The Bishop recommended also to support the home base, the church, in a financial way, in saying to the Lord, as well as 'Take my life,' also his hearers their duty in helping to "Take my silver, take my gold. Give all that you have, all that you are, in this consecrated service to God. The root thought of confirmation," said the speaker, "is to strengthen. The real meaning of the Holy Ghost the Comforter is the Holy Ghost the Strengthener."

Speaking of the many persons confirmed by him in the fifteen years of his episcopate, the Bishop spoke of the good which might have sprung from their lives and actions if they had always borne in mind the solemn vows and promises of their re-consecrated lives.

KING GEORGE'S THIRD SON TO BECOME DUKE

LONDON, May 22. — (United Press). — Prince Henry, King George's third son, is expected to be made a Duke on June 3rd, the King's birthday. It is believed that he will take the title of Duke of Edinburgh, and that during the visit of the King and Queen of Roumania, the latter, as a daughter of the last Duke of Edinburgh, has been found to have no objection to the revival of the title.

This may be the only peerage given on the King's birthday as the Labor Government is understood not to want to grant any more peerages during its tenure of office.

"When I heard her continually laughing," he said, "I could only suppose she had beautiful teeth." He was right.

PROFESSOR WRONG TO GIVE ADDRESS

One of the Outstanding Historians of the Day Will Be Here Tomorrow

A special treat is in store for those who attend to-morrow's luncheon of the Peterboro Kiwanis Club, when Professor G. M. Wrong, of Toronto University, will give an address on "The Present Situation in Europe." Prof. Wrong is one of the outstanding historians of the day, and is a leading authority on Canadian history. The soloist for to-morrow will be Miss Ernestine McManus.

A RECITAL

A pleasing recital by the pianoforte pupils of Mrs. Stanley J. Richardson, A.T.C.M., assisted by vocal pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, was given in the J. M. Greene Music Store last evening, attended by a large crowd, which filled the upper section of the store to capacity. The small pupils of Mrs. Richardson acquitted themselves admirably. Their performance was a credit to themselves and to the painstaking tuition of their teacher. A specially noticeable attribute of their work was their memorization of their solos, all of which were played without music by the small pupils. Their phrasing also was good, and they have a smooth, round tone that makes their 'pieces' enjoyable.

Two vocal pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, Miss Clara Allen and Miss Violet Buckham, both soprano voices, gave pretty solos. Miss Allen sang "Pipes of June," and Miss Buckham "A Strong Box."

The following junior pupils gave solo numbers: Noreen McDonough, Bill Morrison, Eunice Barnes, Dorothy Smith, Clarence Thomas, Clarence Barnes, Lizzie Grieves, Emmet McDonough, Beatrice Morrison, Garth Braund, Leslie French, Agnes Moore, Alice Dunkerley, Dorothy Henry and Evelyn Routly. Alma Gerard played Bach's "Solfeggietto"; Ella Cummings, "Valsette"; May Pollock, Morceau Characteristique"; Marian McCannon, "Ariella," and Josephine Arthur, "La Cascade."

Two piano duetts were given, one by Eunice and Clarence Barnes, the second by Alma Gerard and Dorothy Henry. A number for two pianos was also included in the programme, "March of the War Gods," played by Gertrude Leggott and Ernest Braund.

SMALL BOY KILLED WHEN CAR HIT HIM

TORONTO, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Struck by a motor car at Shuter and George Streets yesterday afternoon, five-year-old Douglas Barlow, George Street, sustained internal injuries from which he died last night in St. Michael's Hospital.

The lad is said to have been running across the intersection of the street when he was run down by a motor car driven by Thomas Breslin, who was arrested.

MRS. ELIZA KILLINGBECK

COULD HARDLY LIFT HER HANDS

Terrible Weakness Caused by Digestive Disorders Quickly Relieved by Dreco--Peterborough Lady Now Has Splendid Appetite, Sleeps Soundly and Strength is Returning Every Day.

"For years I had suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion," says Mrs. Eliza Killingbeck of 200 Edinburgh street, Peterborough, Ont. "I had a very poor appetite and would bloat terribly after eating. I had frequent dizzy spells and felt very weak and run down. My nerves were all on edge and I couldn't sleep at night. Sometimes I was so weak I could hardly lift my hands to my mouth. My kidneys, too, were bad and I suffered no end of misery from them. I was also chronically constipated.

"I took all kinds of medicines and dear knows how much money I spent trying to get relief, but nothing did me any good. Finally, my son advised me to try Dreco, and after taking four bottles, I can truthfully say that I feel 100 per cent. better. While I still have to watch my diet, everything I do eat agrees with me, and my nerves are steadier than for years. I sleep soundly, have no more dizzy spells or bloating and my kidneys are in good condition. My constipation is also relieved and I feel that my experience with Dreco justifies me in recommending it very highly."

Dreco is the most reliable corrective and tonic for digestive disorders made. It stops suffering by stopping the cause of it, which in most cases is nothing but weak, lazy digestive organs. Dreco strengthens and regulates these organs till they do their work properly. It contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs, being a purely herbal preparation with absolutely nothing injurious in it.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold as follows:
Lakefield—E. H. Northey
Campbellford—J. E. Birks
And by a good druggist everywhere.

MILITARY COLLEGE WILL UNVEIL ARCH

Mrs. J. Wright of Ottawa Whose Two Sons Were Killed in the War Will Do the Unveiling.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 22.—The Memorial Arch at the entrance to the Royal Military College will be unveiled on the fifteenth of June and the ceremonies in connection with the unveiling are being carried out by the Royal Military College ex-Cadet Club, which has had the matter of erecting the memorial arch in hand from the first. The unveiling will be done by Mrs. Joshua Wright, of Ottawa, whose two sons, Major G. D. Wright, D.S.O., C.E., and Major J. S. Wright, 50th Batt., ex-cadets of the college, were killed during the Great War.

The Minister of Defence, Hon. E. M. MacDonald, is expected to be present at the unveiling ceremonies, and will take the opportunity of formally presenting the college with the collection of silver plates and trophies recently received from the officers of the Leinster Regiment on their disbandment. The minister will also present to the college a collection of trophies of different wars which has been personally got together by himself for the R.M.C.

ONE DROWNED WHEN WAR CANOE UPSETS

TORONTO, May 22. —(Canadian Press.)— Overturned in the lake outside the sea wall, opposite the Toronto Canoe Club quarters, about seven o'clock last evening, a war canoe spilled its fifteen occupants into the water, with the result that John Johnston, aged 24, of Glen Road, was drowned. The other men managed to scramble to the sea wall, and were taken from there by boats manned by members of the club.

The crew of the war canoe were out practising, and were about ten to fifteen feet from the wall when the craft capsized. There was quite a roll on the water at the time, and a heavy backwash, and it is understood that a wave caught the canoe broadside, thus causing it to upset.

STRANGLER LEWIS WON FROM ITALIAN CHAMP.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—(Canadian Press). — Ed. ("Strangler") Lewis successfully defended his world's heavyweight wrestling title last night against Renato Gardini, claimant of the Italian championship. After a second fall, which Lewis won in 15 minutes 14 seconds with a series of headlocks, the challenger left the ring, and it was announced by the club physicians that he was unable to continue the match. Gardini won the first fall in 26 minutes 15 seconds with a toe hold.

TWO INJURED MEN REPORTED IMPROVED

COBOURG, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Edward Rowe, who was shot in the leg at the Crossen fish reserve at Baltimore early Sunday morning, is reported to be in a favorable condition, with his wound apparently doing well.

CHEAP FRUITS LOCAL MARKET

Saturday Night is Bargain Night For Many Things—Strong Cheese Out.

The main feature in the local markets just now seems to be the comparative cheapness of many fruits, which have reached a fairly low level, when compared with prices of some years previous. Saturday night is bargain night for many things. Last Saturday, good-looking pineapples might be bought at 3 for 95 cents, or 6 for $1.00, in different qualities, and some of the stores throughout the week have them at 6 for $1.40. Small pines run as low as 18 cents apiece in this, their demand season.

Rich red strawberries from Louisiana at 20 cents for a small box, and luxurious imported cherries are a dollar a pound. Bananas this year also are cheap and plentiful, with reports of a good crop in the Central American countries.

String beans are a rare and expensive adjunct to the table just now. From forty to fifty cents a pound must be paid for these high-priced vegetables, which will have to tumble off their high perch before long. Asparagus is slightly cheaper, selling at 20 cents a bunch, and green peas are a scarce commodity, at 15 cents a quart. Head lettuce and celery, from import centres, are practically off the market.

In the dairy produce line, there is a little difference in the price of butter, which has dropped a cent per pound for the dairy brand, but eggs are up by two cents on last week's prices, selling for 25 cents a dozen. The retailers are selling the new cheese and the medium, or September, make. Not so much demand for the heavy types of cheese and the odoriferous Limburger are reported by the grocers.

Possibly the passing of the beer glass and the strong taste engendered by alcoholic consumption might have something to do with a decreased demand for the German favourite. It would require a stronger drink than is at present generally available to wash it down.

All sorts of plants, both vegetable and flower, are available in boxes. Cauliflower and cabbage, tomato and chives, may be had for 20 and 25 cents, with blossoming pansies and sweet alyssum a little higher in price.

NEWS OF CAVAN AND THE DISTRICT

CAVAN, May 22. — There was a heavy frost here on Sunday night, ice forming a quarter of an inch in thickness. As yet no damage to the crops has been reported, the spring grains not being far enough advanced to do any harm, and gardens also.

The cold, backward spring hasn't prevented the alfalfa from doing well. Mr. H. Seymour and Mr. Trew have two of the finest fields to be found anywhere.

Mrs. Brown and children, of Toronto, are the guests of Mrs. Brown, Cavan Station.

Mrs. Margaret Staples has returned to her home here after an absence of six months spent in the South.

Mr. Eggleson, of Coldsprings, visited Wm. Nill this week.

Mrs. Howson was a visitor to Lindsay on Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Nill has returned home after a month's visit with her sister at Coldsprings.

STOLE BABY CARRIAGE AND WAS PUT IN JAIL

TORONTO, May 22.—(Canadian Press). — Arrested on a charge of stealing a baby carriage, the circumstances surrounding the case of Frank Sampson were so pitiable that the officers and men of the Dundas Street Station took up a collection and presented the proceeds to Mrs. Sampson, who called at the station in the afternoon to visit her husband.

Sampson has been having very tough luck. He has been unable to secure work, it is said, for months, and besides himself he has a wife and four children to clothe and feed. Two of his children are at present in the hospital, and a third has only recently come out.

SHOWER FOR MISS LAVINA PRESTON

Given at the Home of Mrs. J. H. Payne, Lakefield—One of June Brides.

LAKEFIELD, May 21.—Mrs. J. H. Payne entertained about forty lady friends on Monday evening at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Lavina Preston, who is a bride of June. When all the guests were assembled, little Miss Isobel FitzGerald drew a prettily-decorated waggon into the room in which was a decorated basket piled with gifts for the bride to be. Miss Preston, who was completely taken by surprise, thanked her friends for their gifts and good wishes for her future happiness. Miss Olive Cullen sang "Within a Mile of Edinboro Town" in splendid voice. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Payne for the very pleasant evening which all enjoyed. A number of ladies were present from Selwyn and North Smith, many of them being relatives of Miss Preston.

The continued wet weather has been rather an impediment to the seasonable task of housecleaning which requires almost constant use of the family clothesline for rugs, curtains, quilts, etc. The ladies have been visiting frequently the local weather bureaus for advance bulletins on the weather.

Growth is proceeding at a remarkable rate, considering the cold weather and the scarcity of sunshine. With the soil so well moistened with rain, a few really seasonable days should produce almost tropical growth. The weeds do not need better weather conditions as they are growing fast, much faster than the vegetables and flowers.

Miss Rhoda Alford, nurse in training in the Belleville General Hospital, is spending her holidays at her home in the village.

Miss Walton, who spent a week in Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro', has returned to the village and is with her sister, Mrs. F. J. Burgess.

MASONIC BANQUET HELD AT MARMORA

Served In Town Hall By Ladies' Aid of Methodist Church.

MARMORA, May 21.—On Monday evening after the meeting of the Masons in the Masonic Hall, a banquet was served in the Town Hall to the Masons and their wives by the Madies' Aid of the Methodist Church.

After the banquet, Worshipful Brother Buskard took the chair. Following the toast to "The King," the Deloro stringed orchestra rendered several splendid selections. The toast to the "Grand Lodge" was given by Brother S. B. Wright of Deloro, and responded to by Right Worshipful Brother Tom Leacock. The toast to the "Ladies" was given by Brother Baker of Bonarlaw, and responded to by Worshipful Brother W. P. Woodger, of Trenton, who is the District Chaplain for this year.

Mr. Wm. Sanderson proposed the toast to the "Members of the Visiting Lodges," and in reply the Grand Master of the the three Belleville lodges, the Eureka Lodge, the Moira Lodge and the Belleville Lodge. Mr. Sanders, a representative from the oldest lodge in Canada, the Annapolis Lodge, Nova Scotia, and Mr. Elliott, a member of Woodstock Lodge, also spoke for a few minutes.

The last toast of the evening was to the "Junior Wardens."

Miss C. M. Wilson, of Deloro, delighted the audience by several solos, accompanied by the stringed orchestra.

The Masonic quartette also furnished several selections for the evening, and were well applauded.

A large number of visitors from the lodges of the district were present.

On Thursday evening the Ladies' Aid served supper in the Council Chambers from 5.30 to 7.30. A large crowd attended to help eat the provisions which had been so bountifully supplied for the evening before.

DAMAGES CLAIMED FROM DR. DOWNING

Richard A. Saunders of Carlton Place, Ontario, Wants $10,000 for Death of His Wife.

OTTAWA, May 22. —Evidence tending to show that the doctor had been negligent in his duty, was adduced by six witnesses for the plaintiff when hearing of an action for $10,000 damages, brought by Richard A. Saunders, manufacturer of Carleton Place, Ont., against Dr. A. Downing, physician of Lanark county, commenced in the Supreme Court here to-day.

Mr. Saunders charged that the doctor was not in attendance at time of birth of his wife's sixth child, that his neglect and lack of professional skill resulted in the death of his wife last December,, and that the doctor during his visits before and after birth of the child had frequently used offensive language.

In giving evidence, Mr. Saunders claimed that when the doctor arrived ten minutes after the child's birth, he had heard his wife complain that the doctor was hurting her. Dr. Downing is alleged to have said "shut your mouth. You have too many kids, anyway." Mr. Saunders also alleges that the doctor did not even know the sex of the child when he visited him later for the purpose of obtaining a birth certificate.

The case is proceeding.

They are made all in one piece, on a heavy base that water cannot penetrate or harm. Moreover, their smooth, firm, seamless surface cannot absorb dust, ashes or spilled liquids. Cleaning them is merely a matter of wiping with a damp mop.

Another excellent feature of Congoleum Art-Rugs is that they lie perfectly flat on the floor without fastening of any kind. Just unroll them and in a short time they hug the floor; yet they can be easily moved if necessary.

ENLARGE PLAY GROUND AT QUAKER OATS FIRM

Old Raceway Has Been Converted Into Tennis Courts With All Modern Equipment.

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

After something has served its purpose, many people try to make something else out of it. A familiar instance is the use of the extinct hot water cylinder, or rather cylinder for holding hot water, which is attached to the kitchen range. Once it develops infirmity, it is cast out, and then some ingeiuous-minded householder turns it into a receptacle to hold growing plants and flowers. These contrivances, when completed, should always be placed right where impetuous people take a short cut across the corner of a man's lawn. People were doing this sort of thing at the corner of Dr. J. A. Morgan's lawn. So he had the corner excavated, filled in with some choice earth and planted a number of flowering ing shrubs. It is hoped that the heedless, of which there are many, will respect the shrubs and not stride across the corner as now arranged.

Making something out of an old relic is exemplified across in East City. Directly across the river, and opposite the buildings of the Quaker Oats Company, is a stretch of the old raceway or canal, that brought the water from the dam above to whirl around the wheels and millstones in the old Rogers' mill. We speak with respect both of the mill and of R. D. Rogers, pioneer merchant and flour manufacturer. Twenty years ago some steps were taken by the owners, the Hydraulic Company of the Quaker Oats organization, and the old raceway was partially filled in. The men of 1845 had cut down the high bank of the river, a sort of bluff, and putting the spoil along the shore of the river, formed the canal. Time was when the whole length of the raceway was lined with water power driven shops and mills, in large variety, for water power had to be used just where it was gained. All have been swept away, except the old stone mill and the wood working shop of Edward Wand —humming along as it has for the past 60 years.

The Quaker Oats needed ground for tennis. In fact its young people fairly ached for tennis. Last summer one links—no! links belong to Golf—one tennis court, rather, was made after a fashion. There the youth of the factory had a good time. Now the old raceway is being glorified by three courts. Plenty of room for combatants of all ages in the two sexes. The old raceway has lent itself admirably for the purpose. Enclosed by the high bank on one side and the lower bank on the other, no balls can be swiped into the river except with a baseball bat, and such implements are ultra vires in tennis. Electric light is provided, in case the hostilities be prolonged into the late evening. Nice new and comfortable benches installed, painted a chaste white. The posts holding up the nets are sunk in concrete that heedless players may not overturn the same. The general public are invited to approach the grounds from the east side, and will find on the high bank the grand stand from which the play may be viewed.

The Quaker Oats people formed a Quaker Oats Athletic Association some years ago, but last season was the initial attempt at having their own rink on the ground where the tennis courts are now installed. When the cold weather comes around again the rink will once more replace the courts. Established for the recreation and entertainment of their own employees, on ground owned by the Quaker Oats Hydraulic Power Company, the enclosure also affords space higher up for soft ball grounds which will no doubt be taken advantage of during the summer months.

FROST DID NOT HURT GARDENS NEAR CAVAN

Grain is up well but pastures not yet Attractive to Cattle.

CAVAN, May 22.—The farmers are again at work in the fields. The soil is working up pretty well, considering the amount of rain which fell.

The vegetables which were up in some gardens (radishes, spinach, onions and lettuce) do not seem to have been injured by the frosts of the last couple of nights.

The grain which was sown some time ago is up and growing nicely. The fall wheat continues to do well.

The pastures very much need warm weather. This is, no doubt, the reason why so many stray cattle are being inquired for. They stray away hunting better pasture.

Mr. James Keegan had the misfortune to lose a good cow a few days ago.

J. Swain sold two head of fat cattle to E. Lowes, of Peterboro' this week.

The price of eggs remains about the same, the local price this week being 24 cents, and 28 cents for butter.

OMEMEE WAS ATTACKED BY FROST ON TUESDAY

OMEMEE, May 22. — Jack Frost put in an appearance on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday evenings, and as a result much garden stuff was touched. Ice froze on Sunday night to the depth of about half an inch. Farmers report that the fields which were seeded down this spring are not as green, and it is feared that much damage is done. On odd farmer has completed seeding in this vicinity, and a few have mangolds planted and others are only commencing to sow.

EARPHONES IN CHURCH.

NORFOLK, Neb., May 22. — When some of the older people of the Grace Lutheran Church here began to miss services, the pastor found that they stayed away because they could not hear the sermons.

So special earphones have been placed in the pews and connected with the pulpit. Attendance is on the upward trend.

NEW SAWMILL, INDIAN RIVER.

INDIAN RIVER, May 22.—Mr. Edwin Fife sold a fine Percheron colt to Roy Parker at Norwood.

Mr. Arthur Elmhurst is training a colt for the races this fall.

Mr. E. Mann, of Peterboro', has purchased one hundred acres of timber from Wm. Elmhurst. He has had a sawmill erected in the woods and has a number of men at work cutting down the trees. He intends to cut everything as he comes to it, and use it for whatever purpose it is suited, from telegraph poles to stove wood.

GEORGE STREET HAD A MEETING

Reports of Various Departments of Church Read--Officers Elected

A congregational meeting of George Street Methodist Church took place last evening, with a good attendance, in the Sunday School Rooms of the church. Rev. W. H. Young acted as chairman, and opened the meeting with devotional exercises.

Reports of the various societies of the church were given.

Rev. Mr. Young's report showed a membership total at the present time of 1,158, an increase of 16 members over last year's total. Between 900 and 1,000 calls were made by the pastor during the year, with 21 baptisms, 30 marriages, and 55 funerals.

Mr. Young reviewed the outstanding activities of the year, and expressed himself as considering that the gratitude of the congregation was due to Almighty God for the advance shown in the year. Although there was general stringency in financial circles during the year, every department of the church had progressed.

The report for the Women's Missionary Society was given by Mrs. H. S. Strong; for the Ladies' Aid Society by Mrs. G. C. Staples; for the Sunday School by Mr. George Robertson; for the Senior Club by Rev. Mr. Young; and for the Junior League by Mr. Earl Leggott.

Reports were also given on the connectional fund, and on educational, missionary, and social service work, also for the Lord's Day Alliance, the Bible Society, the Benevolent Fund, and the Japanese Relief Fund.

The total amount collected for all purposes during the year, including benevolences, was a little short of $20,000, amounting to about $19,250.

Election of representatives of the congregation to the Official Board of the church took place, by ballot, resulting in election of the following:

F. H. Dobbin, P. E. Rutherford, P. Hagerman, Mrs. G. C. Staples, Mrs. C. E. Smith, Mrs. J. Long, Mrs. J. Kendry, Mrs. E. Coon, J. W. Kelly, W. J. Hamilton, S. A. Oke, G. C. Staples, C. S Thompson, and Dr. A. M. Weldon.

Rev. Mr. Young also outlined to the public for the first time the plans made by the Board for the celebration of the Jubilee Year of the church, which will be held from the autumn of this year until the autumn of 1925, at which time the present building, George Street Methodist Church, will have been dedicated for fifty years.

Mr. Young emphasised particularly the plans made for the inaugural ten days of the year, from 24th October to 3rd November.

Special preachers, special services, pageants, and musical festivals have been planned for this period.

At the conlusion of the business session, the service of coffee and cake was made by the ladies of the church.

FEED GRAIN TO COWS DURING MILK PERIOD

Mistaken Economy to Suppose That Pasture Is Sufficient.

By Leo C. Reynolds of Michigan.

After twenty-six years' experience handling a dairy herd on my farm of 145 acres under varied conditions, I am firmly convinced that it pays to grain cows well throughout the entire milking period. Early spring and summer pastures are highly succulent, containing a large amount of water and a low a heavy flow of milk cannot consume enough pasture to supply the essential amount of dry matter.

In past years, when my farm-grown supply of grain was exhausted, I thought I could economize by not graining my cows while on pasture, especially during the early spring months. However, after thoroughly trying the matter out I am convinced that it is unprofitable economy.

Every dairyman knows when the cows go to pasture in the spring the milk flow for a short time increases. This may continue for a month or two, then a gradual falling off becomes apparent. Not infrequently before this decline is checked a heavy loss develops. Pasture does not contain sufficient concentrates to sustain heavy-milking cows for any length of time. For this season I find it unprofitable to depend upon pasture alone even for a few weeks during early spring.

Some good dairymen I know think it does not pay to grain cows on pasture, as the increased milk flow is not sufficient to offset the cost of the grain ration. This in a measure may be true if taken alone from the standpoint of immediate increase in milk production. But there is something more important. I endeavor to encourage a heavy uniform milk flow throughout the entire milking period.

Graining on pasture keeps the cows in proper physical balance. The cows keep in better flesh, give less trouble handling about the stable, and produce a more profitable flow of milk throughout the year. They store up surplus nutrients in the body which later become available for the production of milk.

WHEN FIRE BELL RINGS IN BOSTON!

This motorcycle fire apparatus, now being tried out in Boston's narrow and crooked streets, is designed to save minutes when they count most. In automobile and grass fires, where it can replace heavier equipment, it it expected to save the city $25,000 a year. The outfit complete cost $750. It carries 300 feet of chemical hose, fire extinguishers, hose guns, axes, rakes and brooms.

PREVENTIVE FEEDING FOR PIGS

Certain definite abnormalities in pigs such as complete or partial hairlessness, undeveloped hoofs, blindness, large flabby and unanturaly developed neck and head, all arise from the same cause or causes. Pigs so affected usually die, although the sow remains normal.

Pregnant sows which are fed a highly nitrogenious ration, given insufficient exercise, and little or no vegetable or mineral matter, are usually the heaviest sufferers.

This indicates a deficiency of some necessary element in the ration. Control of the trouble lies in preventive feeding and improved management of the sow. It is imperative that the sow be encouraged to take daily exercise. In so far as is practical, separate the feed trough, sleeping cabin, and hay rack, or if the sow is housed in a shed or stray stack adjacent to or situated in the barn yard, the feeding trough should be placed some distance away so that she has no alternative but to take exercise. Close confinement of the pregnant sow must be carefully avoided.

Brand should always form part of the ration and to this should be added such meals as shorts, screenings, oats or barley supplemented with 5 p.c. of tankage and 1 p.c. of bone meal. Pulped mangels or boiled turnips and clover hay, preferably alfalfa, are suitable roughages. Minerals in the form of charcoal, earth, soft coal or wood ashes, etc., should always be available for the sows.

If these measures fail, medicinal treatment must be resorted to. Scientific investigation has demonstrated that addition of iodine in some form to the sow's ration may remedy the trouble. In Eastern Canada where only an occasional litter may be affected, exercise and proper feeds should be successful, but where hairlessness is common iodine should be administered during the gestation period, or at least for the greater part of it. A solution of one ounce of potassium iodide in a gallon of water may be prepared and when this solution is supplied to the sow in the meal ration at the rate of one tablespoonful per day she gets a daily allowance of about two grains of the drug, which is sufficient.

DENTAL SOCIETY ELECT OFFICERS

A Clinic in Crown and Bridge Work

The annual meeting of the Ontario Dental Society was held last evening, May 21st, with Dr. C. H. Fulford in the chair.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Dr. S. J. Graham.
Vice-President, Dr. A. A. Cameron
Sec.-Treasurer, Dr. J. F. O'Brien.

Doctors Craig and Cameron gave a very interesting clinic in crown and bridge work which they purpose giving at the Ontario Dental Convention which is being held in Toronto next week.

HEAVY RAINS DELAY SEEDING OPERATIONS

KINGSTON, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—That the crop conditions in this district are very serious as a result of the wet weather is the report given by prominent farmers. As a result of the heavy rains, many farmers have been unable to get their seeding completed, and many who finished the work have suffered from a washout, especially on low land. It is stated that in order to have a good crop all the seeding must be completed by May 26th, but as a result of the rain the work could not be carried on. The crop will in this district be one-third less than usual, no matter what happens now, said one farmer. Many farmers are unable to get on their land and work is practically at a standstill. Low prices for cheese and butter is also giving the farmers a great deal of cause for worry all over Eastern Ontario. The farmers will suffer as a result of the wet weather.

WAR WIDOWS POPULAR AS BRIDES.

LONDON, May 22. — There are to-day 100,000 fewer war widows in the British Isles than there were just after the Armistice.

This is due mostly to their having re-married, though many have died.

There are still 160,000 widows on the books of the Pensions Ministry, but every year sees the number decreasing.

Many of these women are comparatively young, and a cash gratuity which they get upon marrying again probably makes them more attractive to the marrying man than a single girl without any such dowry.

ALBERTA RICH IN PULP.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 22. — Alberta has enough pulpwood to supply the western portion of the United States with newsprint paper for 50 years to come, according to a report compiled by C. H. Morse, chief ranger for the Province.

"Pulpwood resources in the Province," said Mr. Morse, "total 247,800,000 cords. There are 53,900 squares of pulpwood forests. Pine composes about 45 per cent. of this growth, spruce 20 per cent., poplar 25 per cent., and other coniferous varieties 10 per cent."

Eyeglasses with platinum rims are growing in popularity among women.

Midlake Needs No Strict Department.

MIDLAKE, Utah, May 22.—This is a town that needs no street department, no traffic cops, no tax collectors.

It has only one thoroughfare—Main Street. And that is a railroad. No automobile ever has passed through Midlake under its own power.

And as for taxes—well, there simply are none to pay.

Midlake probably is America's most unique town. It is exactly 100 yards long and 60 feet wide. Out in the middle of the Great Salt Lake it stands, perched atop of piles, ten miles from the nearest visible land.

It is a station on the Lucin cutoff of the Southern Pacific in the centre of the trestle section as it crosses the salten sea.

L. E. Stroud, railroad station agent and telegraph operator, is, in effect, mayor, police force, health inspector, postmaster, superintendent of education and almost anything else occasion demands.

In addition to Stroud and his family, the population of Midlake includes telegraph operators, their wives and children and two section foremen and their crews.

The railroad does everything in its power to make life comfortable for these islanders. It has, for instance, strung a telephone line from the nearest radio at Lakeside, so the folk in Midlake can listen in on the concerts.

Then in summer, whenever anybody wants to take a swim, all he had to do is climb down a ladder and plunge into the lake.

But if anybody wants to see a movie, he has to get on a train and go to Ogden, 40 miles away.

Historic Vincennes to Become a Museum.

PARIS, May 22.—The Vincennes fortress, just outside the walls of Paris, which withstood countless sieges and served as a prison for political offenders under Louis XIV and other Bourbons is to become a war museum. It was here for long years that the "Man with the Iron Mask" is reputed to have been shut up, and against the walls of Vincennes the Duke of Enghien was executed in the dead of night by order of Napoleon.

The French Parliament, just before its dissolution, appropriated a sum of 2,000,000 francs for the purpose of repairing the structure and gathering together all the arms and weapons availabel in the history of wars.

TERRAPIN FARMING LATEST IN NORTH CAROLINA

RALEIGH, N.C., May 21.—(United Press).—Terrapin farming is North Carolina's latest vocation.

Under a new ruling of the state fisheries commission, the diamond black terrapin is to be protected by the state for the next five years. Only recognized terrapin farmers will be allowed to have one of the reptile in his possession.

These reptiles are said to propagate readily in captivity and only a small amount of space is required for a farm. On the market they bring excellent prices.

One of the largest terrapin farms is located at Beaufort, near Cape Lookout. Of course, accessibility to salt water is essential.

HEBRIDEANS TO SETTLE IN ONT.

About 175 Men and Women Will Land at Quebec on Saturday and Sunday.

MONTREAL, May 22.—(Special).—The first party of Hebrideans for settlement in the Dominion on the liner Canada will dock at Quebec on Saturday or Sunday, according to advices received to-day by James Morrison, general passenger agent of steamships and Canadian National Railways during the past year. Several large parties of these people from the Islands off the coast of Scotland have settled in Western Canada, Alberta particularly, but this is the first party destined for the Province of Ontario, whose history during the last century was largely that of hardy Scottish immigrants.

There are about 175 men and women in this party of Hebrideans, and they are being brought out under the ausnices of the Ontario Government. The men will all engage in farm work, and for the time being at least many of the women will enter domestic service. In view of the rather unique aspect of the occasion, special arrangements are being made by the Canadian National Railways for their reception at Quebec and their transportation to Toronto, from which point they will proceed to their individual destinations. Nothing will be left undone for their comfort and convenience during the time they are travelling over the lines of the system. Special cars will be assigned for their accommodation, and this will run through from the dock at Quebec to Toronto without change.

Of the three boats which will dock at Quebec this week, bringing more than one thousand passengers, the Carmania, of the Cunard Line, has the largest list with a total of 585. The R.M.S.P. Orduna will land 37 before proceeding to New York, and the Canada has on board 256 passengers in addition to the Hebrideans.

At Halifax there will also be considerable activity. Seven boats carrying approximately 900 passengers are due there. Of this number the most important is the Dante-Alighieri of the Transatlantic Italiana Line with 300 Italians for laboring work in the Dominion.

EDOUARD HERRIOT HAS YET TO FORM CABINET

PARIS, May 22. — Canadian Press. — It is now definitely established that Edouard Herriot is to be the next premier of France—provided that he can form a cabinet.

The leader of the Radical Socialists said to-day that he would offer the ministerial portfolios to certain Socialists but that their acceptance depended largely on whether or not the Socialists congress voted in favor of participation in a coalition government.

Herriot planned to confer with Aristide Briand, fomer premer, today, and to arrange to carry on with the formation of a cabinet single handed if the Socialists refused participation.

TWO TRAIN MEN DIED AFTER BEING SCALDED

NORTH BAY, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Robert Kennedy, engineer, and Norman Clark, fireman, were so severely scalded by steam when a Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway wrecker crane upset, 26 miles north of here, yesterday that they died in the local hospital last night. Investigation to determine the cause of the accident is being conducted, and an inquest will be held to-morrow.

Officials cannot account for the accident, both men having had long experience in crane work. They were loading coal on to cars when the crane pitched over. The men were terribly burned by escaping steam before they were extricated. They were brought here on a special train.

TO HEAR CHARGES IN BOND SCANDAL

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—The preliminary hearing of charges of conspiracy to defraud the public, or to affect public market price of Ontario succession duty free bonds against Aemilius Jarvis, Sr.; Aemilius Jarvis, Jr., and Harry G. Pepall, manager of the Jarvis firm, will take place to-morrow afternoon in the Police Court. Three men appeared before Magistrate Edmund Jones this morning and were remanded for one day.

The hearing of the conspiracy charges against Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, is also scheduled for to-morrow afternoon, thus bringing all related cases in court together.

PART OF AMERICAN NAVY, MAY VISIT LONDON PORT

LONDON, May 22. — (United Press). — It is announced that the U.S.S. Pittsburgh and four American destroyers now in the Mediterranean will be sent to the Port of London in June.

The move is to be made in honor of the British Empire Exhibition now under way here.

STOLE RIDE ON TRAIN FINED $2 AND COSTS

William Corner pleaded guilty to stealing a ride on the Belleville passenger train on the Canadian National Railway. He boarded the train at the C.P.R. diamond, and was arrested by Special Officer William H. Howard of the C. N. R. This being his first offence, he was fined $2 and costs, $4.50.

O.T.A. UPHELD BY THE COURT

John Smith's Appeal Was Dismissed by Supreme Court Today.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The Supreme Court this morning dismissed the appeal in the case of Smith vs. the Ontario Attorney General. The Ontario Temperance Act is therefore upheld by the court.

"We have," Mr. Justice Duff said, in delivering judgment, "come to the conclusion that counsel for the Attorney General has made good his contention:

"1—That notwithstanding this provision, the Ontario Temperance Act when viewed as a whole falls within description in Section 152 of Canada Temperance Act rightly understood, and

"2—That Part IV of Canada Temperance Act does recognize the possibility that prohibition of that enactment may be brought into force in relation to province in which prohibition created by the Provincial law, is a limited one."

There was no dissent from dismissal of appeal. Justice Idington took the ground that the proceedings were attempt to elicit from courts which, under the facts, they had no right to give. So strongly did he hold this view that he declined to express any view on questions to be raised.

Justice Mignault said that Section 44, of the Ontario Temperance Act, allowing, under certain conditions, the sale of native wines, furnished the only difficulty, but, he said, it must be observed that under the Canada Temperance Act, the sale of native wines was not considered inconsistent with prohibition of sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

John T. Smith, announced to-day that he would carry his appeal, dismissed this morning, to the Supreme Court of Canada to Privy Council. He stated that he was convinced he could not fail.

Upon the decision in the Smith case depended the validity of the section of the Ontario temperance legislation prohibiting the importation of liquor into the province.

It was on May 18, 1922, that John Smith first took up the cudgels on behalf of the legality of the importation, holding that prohibition, if it was not valid because Ontario had not been a dry province at the time at which it had been decreed, as the sale of native wine was permitted.

MORE CONSPIRACY CHARGES AGAINST AEMILIUS JARVIS

When Jarvis, His Son and Harry Pepall Given Bail Until Tomorrow Morning.

TORONTO, May 22. — Two additional charges of conspiracy, making three in all, have been laid against Aemilius Jarvis and his son, and Harry Pepall, in connection with the sale of succession duty free bonds of the province of Ontario.

When Aemilius Jarvis and his son, and Harry G. Peppall appeared in the court this afternoon, bail was renewed until to-morrow morning, Magistrate Edmund Jones deciding that it would be impossible to reach their case before Friday afternoon, as the preliminary hearing of Peter Smith, the former Provincial treasurer, on the charges of conspiracy to defraud, would be proceded with first.

NO INQUEST NECESSARY IN DEATH OF TWO MEN

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 22. — There will be no inquest into the death of William Ostrander and Clarence Carbon, both of Bay City, Michigan, who perished near Mica Bay, in Lake Superior, on Sunday night, as a result of the wreck of the Steamer Orinocco, it was announced by Coroner McCaig this morning.

A. G. Rackstraw, representative of the James E. Davidson Steamship Company, the owners of the Orinocco (who arrived in the Sault this morning) said that six of the crew were in the hospital across the river suffering from frozen hands and feet, but none were in a serious condition.

When asked about the condition of the Orinocco, Mr. Rickstraw said, "The Orinocco was in the best of condition when she went up the lake."

Little Oil Coming From Teapot Dome.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 22.—(United Press).—Production of oil by Mammoth Oil Co. wells in the Teapot Dome fields has steadily decreased, since work was suspended on March 13, by order of the court and receivers took charge of the property.

Since then no work has been done except such as has been necessary to protect the property from serious injury.

In consequence where, during the week ending March 8, the average production of Mammoth Co. wells has 3,965 barrels, for the week ending April 26, it was only 2,675. Unless drilling operations are again started, this will soon decline to less than 2,000 barrels a day.

Lessened production has naturally resulted in unemployment with the result that approximately 500 persons are idle. Not more than 50 persons are employed on the entire field there by the Sinclair companies at present.

Petrified Egg of An Extinct Animal Found.

BOISE, Idaho, May 22.—(Associated Press).—A schoolboy playing in the sagebrush a few miles from Kuna reecntly picked up what is believed to be a petrified egg. Speculation is now rife as to whether it is that of a dinosaur and similar to those found some time ago in the desert of Gobi, Mongolia.

In size the Idaho specimen is four and thirteen-sixteenths inches in diameter. The outer surface is dark ochre in color, the inside a dirty lemon, and it shows complete mineral replacement.

Some time ago the remains of a five-footed horse were discovered near Homedale, and once the skull of a rhinoceros was found embedded at the head of Picket Pin creek, near Idaho City.

CHINA TO HAVE UNIONS.

GENEVA, May 22. — The Government of China has authorised by law the organisation of labour unions, the International Labour Bureau here has announced.

The Chinese unions are to be encouraged by the Government to build up mutual assistance among members and to strive for an improvement in labour conditions.

THE AMATEUR SPORTS COMMITTEE WILL PUT ON A BIG FIELD DAY

Date Has Been Changed On Account of Ball Game —More Playing Grounds Needed.

To comply with a request of the Peterborough Baseball Club, who entertain Oshawa here on 31st May, the Amateur Sports Committee in charge of the big Field Day which was to have been held at the Exhibition Grounds on that date have decided to hold their Field Day one week later—Saturday, 7th June.

Representatives of the Peterborough Baseball Club were present at a meeting of the Sports Committee last week and explained their position. With Oshawa here on the date of the sports at the Exhibition Grounds they felt that many who would otherwise wish to see Oshawa play would be unable to do so. On the other hand it is obvious that all teams could not be accommodated for dates at Riverside Park, with the Seniors, the Junior City League, and the Mercantile League operating there, and it is necessary that arrangements should be made at this time to secure and finance other grounds if Peterborough is to uphold her reputation as the home of O.B.A. champions.

In taking over the Exhibition Grounds this year the members of the Amateur Sports Committee have in mind the providing of more playing grounds as a community asset, realising the value of the facilities for healthful recreation for the masses.

Peterborough has arrived at the stage where someone has to take the initiative if the great apparent interest in athletics is not to die for lack of a place to play. And the Exhibition Grounds with present accommodation for two baseball games and football and cricket at the same time would seem to be the solution.

The Programme.

Details of the programme are being worked out and the committee promise a real afternoon's entertainment, commencing with a parade of decorated bicycles, leaving Central Park at 1.45 p.m. sharp, headed, it is expected, by the Rangers Band, proceeding to the Exhibition Grounds, where all riding a decorated bicycle will be admitted free of charge.

Messrs. White's Cycles and Sports Limited are kindly donating several prizes for the best decorated bicycles.

Messrs. Doug. Loomis, Charlie Thorpe, and Capt. J. E. R. Munro are looking after the track events, which will take place from 2 to 3 o'clock.

Commencing at 3 o'clock the grounds will resemble a midway, but surrounded by games of brawn and brain instead of games of hance. On the large diamond in front of the grand stand the Rotarians and Kiwanians will settle their 1924 argument as to who has the best ball team. Mr. Bob Abbott is arranging this game. At the same time there will be a League football game between two leading teams of the P. and D. F. A., likely G.W.V.A. and Thistles, who have been providing such good games this season. This game will be played on the pitch at the east end of the grounds.

And for those who are interested in girls' softball, there will be a League game on the Bantams' diamond between two of the leading teams in the local Ladies' Softball League just starting their spring schedule. And besides all the above the cricketers will also hold forth in their own particular corner, it is expected, in a League game between Peterborough and De Laval Cricket Clubs.

At 4 o'clock the C.G.E. team, wice Intermediate O.B.A. champions, will entertain the Dye Works team of Cobourg in a scheduled game, and no doubt the fans will be out in droves to get a line on the chances of a third Intermediate championship for Peterborough.

This will be a fine opportunity for the fans to show their appreciation of the efforts of those who are endeavouring to provide accommodation for the different leagues.

KINGSTON WON OPENING GAME

Home Team Lived Up to Its Advance Notices and Defeated Oshawa.

KINGSTON, May 22.—(Special).—The Kingston C. O. B. L. team lived up to home expectations and surprised outside critics when it downed Oshawa 1-0 at the Fair Grounds here, last night, and started off the season with a win in the opening game. Strange to say, it was a pitcher's battle with Kelly and Dainty fighting it out and each allowing only five hits. Both pitched good ball, but the Kingston lad had it over the pride of the motor town as he issued no passes and was walloped for only singles. Dainty struck out eleven to Kelly's seven, but he was nicked for a brace of two baggers and when the hits came they were in a row. Rickman and Tyson, the rival catchers worked their men well and attended to business in fine shape which looked like mid-season stuff.

Cherry's hitting and the brilliant hitting and fielding of Compeau, the twenty-year-old short stop for Kingston ,featured the close battle. There was a record crowd out in spite of the chilling weather and they received their money's worth, without a doubt. Kingston's only run came in the sixth when Cherry started it off with a double and singles by Daley and Compeau kept the ball rolling long enough to score a well earned run. Oshawa tried hard to come back could not make the grade as Kelly held steady and got airtight support.

Score by innings:

Kingston—0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 x—1.

HOLIDAY MORNING GAME

Lakeviews and Crescents Open Junior City League at Riverside Saturday, 10.15.

There will be plenty of baseball for Peterboro fans on Saturday for in addition to the Central Ontario League opening fixture between Kingston and Peterboro in the afternoon the Junior City League will begin its pennant fight at Riverside Park at 10.15 o'clock Saturday morning, the Lakeviews and Crescents clashing. There is keen rivalry between the two teams and a red hot battle may be looked for. Whitehouse and Collins will be the Lakeview battery while Chuck Bradley and Delahaye will be in the points for the Crescents. With two clever southpaws on the rubber backed by two fast young teams there should be some lively baseball.

BRIGHTON WON FROM HASTINGS

Home Team Had Easy Win in the Opening Game of Northumberland League.

BRIGHTON, May 22.—The local baseball team opened the season auspiciously yesterday by defeating Hastings in a game that was more interesting than the one-sided score would indicate. Despite the heavy rains of last week, the diamond at King Edward Park was in fair shape and the infielders had no complaints about the "bounces."

The result of the game was never in doubt, for Brighton scored four runs in the first inning, and put it on ice with another quartette in the second. The third was the only inning in which the visitors were dangerous, their two runs coming at this point.

Herrington pitched fair ball after the second inning, but his support was poor at second, short and in centre field. In fact, his catcher was the only man who was really backing him up. Herrington struck out seven and walked four. Roblin worked two and a third innings for Brighton, and had the Hastings batters swinging, for he fanned five. Walter Shannon finished the game and was not scored on. His strikeouts numbered three.

Hugh Moore was the leading batter with a double and two singles. Solomon, Archer, Frise, Halliday and Hughes all had two hits apiece, and Thorne, the rookie outfielder, smashed out a nice double. Scriven and Keogan had two hits each for the visitors.

On the whole, the Brighton team surprised the fans. They expected a weak, inexperienced line-up when only four of last year's regulars played, and the good showing made by the whole team came as a pleasant surprise. Moore and Frise were particularly brilliant defensively.

Umpires Adams and Sprung handled the game well.

The score by innings:

Ponies Showed Class at Home In First Game

Turned the Trick on Duke Dainty and the Rest of the Motor Moguls and Will Clash With Heckman and Company on Saturday at Riverside.

HOLIDAY FEATURE.

The Kingston Ponies showed their calibre last evening by winning the opening game of the Central Ontario League schedule at Kingston, beating "Duke" Dainty and his Oshawa crew 1 to 0.. That means that for a little while at least the Ponies are leading the parade, and if they can come along here Saturday and beat the Petes at Riverside Park they will be sitting pretty on the top of the ladder.

* * * * * *

However, the Solomon crew are not worrying about the result of last night's game. They called Kingston to win, and would not have been surprised at a bigger margin, for the Limestone gang always go great guns on their own ball yard.. They claim that Kelly, Batstone and company will have a different kind of argument here on Victoria Day and are preparing for a real hot reception for the Easterners.

* * * * * *

The holiday fixture, which starts the local Central Ontario League season under way, will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, and indications point to a record crowd for the opening fixture. The good showing of the Ponies in their initial start has added interest to the fixture, and many fans from all over the district are preparing to spend the holiday in Peterborough in order to see the clash between the two rival Central League outfits.

* * * * * *

Manager Solomon has not yet announced his line-up or his pitching selection. Both Heckman and Serth should be in good shape for the fixture, but nothing has been given out as to which will start, nor is the exact composition of the rest of the team known. The Petes' pilot has Heckman, Swanston, Harrison, Johnston, Collins, Helson, Legon, Wolfe and Shaughnessy, of last year's team; Cook, formerly of Woodstock; Tommy Holyman, who was out of the Central League last year, but with the Petes in other seasons; three promising youngsters in Batten, Hall and Moore, and a new left-handed pitcher in Charlie Serth, so that he is pretty well fortfied all along the line and should be able to turn out a formidable team against the Ponies on Saturday.

Either Kelly, who beat Oshawa last night, or Gallagher will pitch for Kingston.

* * * * * *

The Easterners are confident of victory here, but the Petes are equally determined, so that both teams will go into the battle full of "pep."

With favorable weather there will be a big afternoon's sport in the park across the river on the holiday afternoon.

PAINTERS GIVEN DOUBLE WAGE IN RESTORATION

TOKIO, May 21.—Nearly all classes of skilled labor are receiving higher pay during the reconstruction period in Tokio, but none have profited more than the painters.

Before the great earthquake and fire of September 1, the Japanese were noted for the lack of paint outside and inside their houses. With the construction of thousands of temporary buildings, however, mostly of lumber, there has been a great increase in the use of paint.

Painters are now paid as high as 8 yen a day, approximately double their pre-quake wages. Carpenters and masons also share in the reconstruction prosperity but to a smaller degree, their wages averaging about 5 yen a day.

JOHNNY LEONARD TO MEET DUNDEE

Selected By New York State Commission For Chance at Featherweight Title.

NEW YORK, May 21. — Johnny Leonard, Allentown, Pa., featherweight was to-day selected by the State Athletic Commission as the most logical candidate for the featherweight crown of Johnny Dundee, world's titleholder in the 126 pound division. Notice of this ruling will be sent to Charles Johnston, Dundee's manager, to-morrow. Formal acceptance of Leonard's challenge must be forthcoming from Dundee within 14 days under the Commission's rules, or he will be placed under ban for an indefinite period.

Leonard broke Carl Duane's jaw in a recent bout at Madison Square Garden. He is matched to fight Tony Vaccarelli, in a 10-round bout at the Nostrand A.C. in Brooklyn on Friday night. This bout was substituted for the Berlenbach-Keiser match when Berlenbach's injured hand failed to respond to treatment.

JUNIOR LEAGUE OPENS SATURDAY

Crescents and Lakeviews Clash on Saturday Morning at Riverside Park.

The Junior series of the City League Baseball Association will open on Saturday morning at 10.15 when the Lakeviews, Ontario champions of 1923 clash with the fast Crescent aggregation, last year a juvenile team. Among the Crescent players will be seen several last year junior players along with "Chuck" Bradley who will do the mound work for them. It will be a battle of two noted southpaws who will demonstrate some snappy hurling for the many fans who will turn out on Saturday and give the teams a boost. The Lakeviews have practically the same team as last year, and although the Crescents have just jumped into the Junior class they will supply all the opposition that the Lakeviews want. Frank Whitehouse will pitch for the Lakeviews while Chuck Bradley will do his stuff for the Crescents. It is hoped that the fans will turn out strong on Saturday morning and give the teams a boost.

LACROSSE TEAM ACTIVE

Players Have Obtained O. A. L. A. Standing and Will Play in Trent Group.

Peterborough will have a lacrosse team this year, although they may be forced through lack of support to play their home games away. A few of the local players got together and sent in an application to the O.A.L.A. for a junior team and the locals have been leagued with the three Trent towns, Hastings, Campbellford and Havelock.

A lacrosse practice was called last evening in Central Park and fifteen turned out and a snappy workout followed right until darkness fell. The boys shaped up well, all seemed to be experienced and the passing was fast and accurate.

There will be another practice at Central Park this evening and all those under twenty who play lacrosse would do well to be on hand.

FIELD DAY TO BE BIG EVENT

Much Enthusiasm In Big Day Was Shown Last Evening In the Holy Name Rooms.

The City League baseball meeting which was to have been held last evening in the Holy Name Rooms was postponed until next Wednesday night at 7.30 o'clock. Several teams who had not been notified that the meeting was called off were represented last night and the meeting turned into a family gathering. Several different items were discussed and great enthusiasm for the big Field Day which will be held on the 7th of June was shown by all present. This Field Day is expected to be one of the largest events of this kind ever run in this city. Tickets for the Field Day are at present on sale by the Midland league teams while all other City League teams are asked to get in touch with President Jack Sullivan and get their tickets. The grounds are in fairly good shape at present and in a week or ten days the scheduled games will be started.

NO INTERFERENCE IN GIBBONS FIGHT

Promoter Assured That So Long As Carpentier Bout Is a Boxing Contest It Will Not Be Stopped.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 21.—Assurance that there will be no interference with a boxing contest between Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul and Georges Carpentier of France, was given Francis J. Parker of Chicago, promoter of the match to be held at Michigan City, Ind., May 31, by Governor Emmett F. Branch to-day.

The Governor informed the promoter who was accompanied by J. B. Dilworth, prosecuting attorney of Laporte County, in which the arena where the bout will be staged is located, that so long as the affair is a boxing contest that it would not be stopped.

The Indiana law permits boxing contests, but prohibits prize fights. The law however is indefinite in its distinction. Governor Branch said that he would have representatives at the contest and that it would be stopped if they decided that it was a prize fight.

THE CALL OTHE WILD NEARLY COSTS LIFE OF A PICTURE STAR

Dorothy Phillips Narrowly Escapes Being Torn by Claws of Mountain Lion While Making Scene for "Slander the Woman" — Animal Supposed to Be Tame — Royal To-night.

Is Jack London's widely read story, "The Call of the Wild," based on a truism? Will an animal, after enjoying a period of domesticity, revert to his original traits when returned to the scene of his nativity?

"Yes," is the answer of Allen Holubar, producer-director of the forthcoming First National attraction, "Slander the Woman," with Dorothy Phillips in the stellar role. And Holubar should know whereof he speaks, but for recently the producer and his company, while filming snow scenes in the high Sierras, had occasion to employ a California mountain lion in a certain sequence of the picture.

Always Well Behaved

The animal, known to many as the puma or American panther, had for the past two years basked in a cage at the Selig Zoo, Los Angeles, where he was a great favorite with the park visitors. Numerous times he had been loaned by the park management to various motion picture companies for work in pictures, and on all such occasions he conducted himself in fine style and proved to be an excellent trouper. At no time was he mean or unmanageable, nor did he object to the powerful rays of the studio lights or any other stage appurtenances.

It was because of his previous good record that Mr. Holubar made a bid for the services of this animal when his script called for the employment of a mountain lion in several important scenes to be filmed "on location."

All went well with the panther en route to the snowy ranges of the high Sierras, and not once did the erstwhile zoo exhibit object to handling by his trainer nor to the various modes of transportation used in getting him to the location. Upon the company's arrival at their destination the lion was tethered to a log, while cameras were set up and the scene was made ready for shooting.

The Call of the Wild

It was not until Mr. Holubar ordered the animal placed on a log that projected over water that the puma gave any sign of harking to the "call of the wild." Many times in his movie career he had been called upon to do more annoying "stunts" than hopping off of a log into the water, so it was evident that this bit of work was not the cause of the temperamental animal's agitation. Nevertheless, the beast suddenly "went bad" and refused to budge from his position on the log, clawing and snarling in a frenzy. Miss Phillips, who was to appear in the scene with the enraged lion, endeavored to quiet him by speaking in soothing tones, and seeing that this course was of no avail, she sought safety at the side of the trainer, who stood ready to kill the animal if the necessity arose.

Suddenly, and without warning of any kind, the beast made a flying leap for freedom, knocking over a valuable camera in his wild dash. Efforts to head off the animal were futile. The once domesticated favorite of the zoo had heard the call of his kind and he was answering.

As a result of this adventure, "Slander the Woman" cost Mr. Holubar several thousand dollars additional to produce, as Mr. Lion's sudden departure from the scene entailed a loss of two days' work while another animal was secured, damages to the camera, the cost of the beast and the re-making of a thousand feet of film.

"Slander the Woman," a vivid and startling story of the Canadian Northeast, will be the feature at the Royal Theatre for three days, commencing today.

AT THE CAPITOL

RATTLING SEA STORY FEATURE AT THE CAPITOL

Few of us there are who fail to respond to a tale of the sea. There is a certain fascination about stories of men that go down to the sea in ships that is bound to get under the skin and hold the interest. This is especially true of motion pictures of this type and in the cast of "Women Who Give," the new Metro picture at the Capitol today, Friday and Saturday, it is forcibly brought out. Here is a film play that is literally packed full of genuine drama, thrills and heart appeal, exceedingly well acted, capably produced, with the famous characters of a well-known novel brought to life on the silver sheet.

"Women Who Give" was directed by Reginald Barker from Sarah P. McLean Greene's classic of the New England coast, "Cape Cod Folks." It is a rousing tale and with the wide scope of the motion picture camera has been made into one of the most satisfactory pictures of the present season. Much of the action has been filmed in locations round about Cape Cod, providing genuine atmosphere, with the balance of the settings in perfect keeping with the nature of the story.

This interesting story and well-made production also has the distinct advantage of a cast worthy of being called all-star. Barbara Bedford and Renee Adoree share honors in the leading feminine roles. It may truthfully be said that they have never been seen to better advantage. Robert Frazer is admirably suited to the role of the young sea captain and Frank Keenan adds another to his long list of sterling characterizations. Joseph Dowling, Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing, Victor Potel, Eddie Phillips and William Eugene round out a particularly well chosen cast.

"Women Who Give" is thoroughly worth while. Everyone who appreciates the best in the way of entertainment should find time to witness a screening of this truly excellent motion picture.

"Women who Give" is a Louis B. Mayer-Metro presentation of Regi Barker's production. It is an adaptation of Sarah P. McLean Greene's story "Cape Cod Folks," adapted and photographed by Percy Hilburn.

AT THE REGENT

BATTLE FOR $60,000 FEATURE OF PICTURE.

At Regent Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Two men locked in a room with a table and sixty thousand dollars between them. The room is in a hotel, and the hotel is in Tangiers, Africa, where public opinion doesn't exist and law is more farce than force. This is one of the intensely dramatic situations of William Fox's production of Richard Harding Davis' famous story, "The Exiles," with John Gilbert in the leading role.

A murder in this godless Mediterranean seaport would mean nothing but raised eyebrows to the few who would hear of it. Its simplicity and ease were in themselves tempting. Both men knew this. Both desired the money, one for pleasure and the other for the one from whom it had originally been wrested.

The contestant for right was Holcombe of New York, an honored district attorney, in Tangiers, as a result of overwork at the bar. The other was a guilty police commissioner who had jumped his bail in New York. Holcombe had no legal right to take sixty thousand dollars from the commissioner. But since his residence in Tangiers he realized that the law is often blind, and that the money would never be returned if left to the law. In assaulting the commissioner for the money he was breaking the law, the very thought of which, before he came to Tangiers, would have terrified him. The gay, wanton city had opened his eyes to life as it is lived not as it is represented in law books.

The latter situation together with a miraculous rescue during a wild boar hunt, constitute only a tithe of this production's great thrills. The colorful scenery of Tangiers and the adventure and romance that revolve within its gates all conspire to make the screen version of Richard Harding Davis' story a thing of moment. The cast includes many screen notables.

Olympic Pool Is Largest In World.

PARIS, May 22.—The Olympic swimming pool at the Porte des Lilas, across the city of Paris from the Athletic Stadium at Colombes, is practically completed.

Long delays in construction and the immense cost, for the pool will stand the City of Paris 10,000,000 francs when completed, have caused to flow as much ink as would fill it; but the Olympic officials are sanguine that no further criticism will beforthcoming, and they are already claiming the distinction of having "the greatest swimming pool in the world."

The pool itself is 50 yards in length by 18 wide and five deep at the deeper end.

Accommodation for 10,000 people is provided in the Stadium which surrounds the pool and 40 dressing rooms are distributed underneath the stands. They comprise 750 separate cabins, permitting that number of athletes to dress at the same time.

The French realize that they have spent a lot of money in this affair, but the stadium was only the pretext; the swimming pool was the object. They say they have built a solid monument to water sports which will stand long after the 1924 Olympic games are forgotten.

RICKARD AMONG THOSE INDICTED

Mentioned in Plot to Put the Dempsey-Carpentier Fight Films In Inter-State Commerce.

NEWARK, N.J., May 22.—Steps were being taken by federal authorities here yesterday to have bench warrants issued for six individuals and one corporation mentioned in indictments handed down by a United States Grand Jury charging a nation-wide plot to place Dempsey-Carpentier fight films in interstate commerce.

It has been officially learned that Tex Rickard, fight promoter, and Jap Munn of New York, both of whose names have been mentioned in connection with the Senate investigations in Washington, are among those indicted.

It is thought likely final action of serving warrants may be delayed for several days pending location of several defendants who are said to come from the Middle West.

SWEDISH ATHLETES BUSILY PREPARING FOR THE OLYMPICS

Strength of the Swedes Will Be Concentrated Largely In Swimming.

STOCKHOLM, May 22.—(Associated Press)—Sweden's preparations for the Olympic games this year began immediately after the end of the 1920 Olympiad. The games are taken much more seriously in Sweden than in some of the larger states. The Swedish Olympic committee, a permanent body refreshed with new members after each Olympiad, has been keeping its eyes on the promising athletes of the country, so that it will have little difficulty in making the final selection of the team to go to Paris.

The strength of the Swedes will be concentrated largely in swimming, light athletics and horsemanship. Only men believed to have a good chance of winning prizes will be placed on the team. Consequently, Sweden's delegation will be smaller than the national contingent that went to Antwerp four years ago.

In water sports the oustanding entry from Sweden is Arne Borg, who has been visiting Honolulu recently. His best records at several distances rank even, or almost so, with those of Johnnie Weissmuller, and, on more than one occasion, he has improved upon the times set by the Australian acquatic prodigy, Allan Charlton.

Nils Trolle, another swimming star of Sweden, has covered 100 meters in just a fifth of a second over one minute. The Henning brothers will enter events calling for swimming on the back. High and fancy diving events will also be contested by Sweden.

In the cinder path this country has no sprinters of outstanding speed, but in the longer races of from 1,500 meters onward, there are several first class men available. The severity of the winter has hampered preparations for outdoor races.

The Swedish cavalry hopes to retain the high place it won both at Antwerp and eight years before at Stockholm. The stars of the former games will be mounted again this summer.

The modern pentaion, to a great extent a military sport, is being eagerly anticipated. Many young army officers are developing their skill in the varied turns that make up this number in the sport program. All but the best of them will be eliminated in preliminary trials the end of May.

Among other sports which Sweden will enter are bicycle races, yachting and association football.

TO ENSURE PURITY OF STRATFORD MILK

Pasteurization or Certificate From Tested Herds Will Be Insisted On.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 23.—Beginning as soon as the necessary testing can be done all milk supplied the citizens of Stratford will either be pasteuried or from herds certified to be free from tuberculosis.

This action was definitely decided on last night at a meeting of the Board of Health with the producers of and vendors in "raw" or unpasteurized milk. There was a good representative gathering at the meeting which was held in the Board room of the City Hall.

After some discussion a resolution was moved by George Jackson and Fraser Bell as follows:

"That the Boardof Health be requested to take immediate action to ensure that all milk offered for sale in the city of Stratford be either pasteurized or from tested herds, free from tuberculosis. And no vendor be issued a license until he is able to present a certificate from a qualified examiner certifying that the herd supplying milk to him is free from disease. Also that on presentation of the certificate the inspector shall inspect the barns and herds and issue the license."

This resolution was discussed privately by the milkmen and approved of with only one dissenting vote. It was then decided that the men would be given until July 15 to have herds tested and a further extension if it is found necessary in some cases.

ILLICIT STILLS

OTTAWA, May 2.— (Canadian Press.)— Some figures concerning convictions for operation of illicit stills in Manitoba were given in the House of Commons to-day in answer to a question. Such convictions in that province jumped from 4 in 1918 to 90 in 1919. They jumped to 127 in 1923 and totalled 492 in the six years. In the years 1913 to 1918 there were no convictions on this head. No berweries in Manitoba were amongst the offenders.

MYSTERIOUS

"Eterno" performs before Harvard psychologists, and has them guessing. He can throw himself into cataleptic states voluntarily, in which pins and knives can be thurst into his flesh without pain or blood.

It is the last word in absolute self-control. As a race, the Chinese have a similar power in a mild sense, being able to undergo operations without anaesthetic. The overburdened taxpayer is a similar phenomenon.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Gilmour Memorial Parsonage,
Peterboro,
May 21, 1924.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was greatly interested in your leaderette in last night's issue of The Examiner, entitled "True Democracy," especially as I am personally acquainted with James Brown, who has been appointed High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland.

He is M.P. for South Ayrshire, in which district my last charge was. In March, 1920, I was chairman of a no-license meeting in New Cumnock Town Hall, at which James Brown was the principle speaker.

He is a self-made man, having been a working miner for many years. About seven years ago, he being then a miners' agent, was elected member of Parliament for South Ayrshire, which seat he still holds. He is a man of simple habits, sterling Christian character, an elder in the Presbyterian Church in Annbank, an Ayrshire village. For many years he has been a strenuous temperance advocate, and has rendered splendid service in connection with the no-license campaigns which are held periodically in Scotland.

Being a life-long abstainer himself, he feels that he cannot go back on his principles, even when representing the King, so, for the first time in the history of the Church of Scotland, the functions in connection with the General Assembly, held in Holyrood Palace, will be run on strictly temperance lines.—Sincerely yours,

W. S. EDGAR.

SOCIAL SERVICE.

A prominent man who had just come in from the farm told the Examiner to-day that "the new fad of social service is spoiling workers. Hired help especially, instead of being self-reliant and feeling responsible for their work now, expect other people to do it for them. The bottom is falling out of our old, hard-headed, hard-working humanity and we are getting mighty poor service in its stead. We need self-reliance clubs badly."

STRIKERS DON SKIRTS TO SHOOT UP WORKERS

Police Interfered in Ruhr Battle and Found Men Dressed as Women.

BERLIN, May 22. — (United Press.) — Striking miners in the Ruhr are donning skirts in order to get through the police lines to take a crack at the strike-breakers on thier jobs.

A score of determined amazons armed with billies, were merrily beating up strike-breakers at Luedenschied yesterday when the police intervened and arrested them. Several of them were found to be hard faced miners who were wearing women's clothes for the occasion.

Belgian troops quelled the strike riots at Marl on Tuesday after the local police had failed to cope with a disorderly mob, which included many women. Two workers were seriously injured during the fighting and were taken to hospitals. Casualties among the strikers, many of whom were "Reds," are not known, as the mobs spirited away their injured.

KIDNAPPED BOY FOUND DEAD ON RAILWAY TRACK

$10,000 Demanded and Father Had Decided to Pay—Boy Was Abducted From Private School

PARENTS WAIT WORD

CHICAGO, Ills., May 23.—(Canadian Press.)—The nude body of a boy, found in a swamp at the intersection of Pennsylvania right of way and Eighteenth street, was identified late last night as that of Robert Franks, 14 years old son of Jacob Franks, ,President of Rockford Watch Company. The lad been murdered by knidnappers who had demanded a ransom of $10,000.

The father and mother of the boy had been waiting all day at their home for word from the kid nappers, who abducted the lad on Wednesday soon after he left Harvard school, a private institution. The father had decided to pay the ransom rather than risk the boy's life by calling in the police.

In a letter he received yesterday morning, he was informed that his boy would be returned upon payment of $10,000 ransom, provided the police or other authorities were not notified.

On advice of his attorney, Mr. Franks decided to comply with the demands of the letter .

Franks is rated as one of the wealthiest men in Chicago, and the kidnapper evidently knew his financial rating.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN FELL FROM A LADDER

William Reindeau Badly Shaken Up—Campbellford News

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23. — William Reindeau was 68 years old yesterday, and spent the day working at his trade as a painter, decorating the new office quarters on Front street, of his son, A. L. Reindeau, a job on which he has been engaged for several days. His son desired him to give up work on account of his age, but Mr. Reindeau would not consent to remain idle.

Shortly before six o'clock last evening while standing on a ladder adjusting the shutters on the upper windows Mr. Reindeau lost his balance and fell to the sidewalk. He was almost unconscious when picked up and carried into the office. Dr. A. Haig, who was called, found that the bones in Mr. Reindeau's left foot were badly broken, and that he was besides severely shaken up. It is hoped however that in spite of his advanced age, he will recover.

A few years ago Mr Reindeau fell from a ladder and on that occasion his left leg was broken in two places.

THE WEATHER.

Weather conditions are improving. This morning the thermometer stood at 42 degrees ,and the lowest point reached last night was only 38 degrees. To-morrow will be the "Queen's birthday" of a former generation, and was almost invariably associated with bright warm weather. Here's hoping to-morrow will prove a genuine summer day, when delayed garden planting may be finished, and straw hats may not seem out of place.—W. P.

Turkeys are so named because when they were first imported into England, it was generally believed they were from Turkey.

ARREST WOMAN IN A BOX CAR

Prisoner Will Give No Name Except Alice--Came From California

PORT ARTHUR, May 23. — (Canadian Press).—A girl of twenty years who refused to give her name or tell of her home, with her hair cropped short like that of a man, but with none of the lines of hardship or dissipation written in her face, is in charge of the matron at the district jail here, after having been arrested in a box car as a common male vagrant, charged and committed as such by the Magistrate at White River and brought as such to Port Arthur.

It was the constable who had charge of the mystery girl en route who noticed the small wrists under the handcuffs and the delicate fingers, and whose suspicions were aroused which resulted in the discovery of the proper sex.

The girl will no name except Alice. She admits that she hoboed her way east across the continent, and it is understood she came from California. Her term was three months. The authorities are now considering some other disposition of her case.

PRESIDENT LAID UP AS RESULT OF COLD

WASHINGTON, May 23 (Canadian Press). — President Coolidge's bronchial cold not only has refused to yield to treatment as expected, but was a great deal worse yesterday, with the result that he cancelled most of his engagements, and found himself unable to join with Mrs. Coolidge in receiving at the second of the White House garden parties.

Mr. Coolidge seemed early in the week to have mastered the cold which he contracted at the first garden party a week ago, and the first of the chlorine gas treatments at the army medical centre appeared to have helped him considerably.

MURDERED BY KIDNAPPERS.

CHICAGO, May 23. — (Canadian Press).—Robert Franks, fourteen-year-old boy, held for ten thousand dollars ransom, has been murdered by his kidnappers.

MINISTER PAID BACK $1050 HE HAD WITHDRAWN

Assertion Made That Hon. James Murdoch Acted Upon Knowledge Gained by Him as Minister of Crown in Violation of Oath.

NOTHING HIDDEN

OTTAWA, May 23.—Without dividing, House of Commons yesterday adopted motion by E. Guss Porter Conservative member for West Hastings, calling for reference to committee on privileges and elections of withdrawal by Hon. James Murdock Minister of Labor of Deposit of $4,050 he had with Home Bank. Mr. Murdock withdraw money two days before the bank failed.

In his motion, Mr. Porter sets forth that he is credibly informed and that he believes he is able to establish by satisfactory evidence that.

"The Hon. James Murdock Minister of Labor, did withdraw from the Home Bank at its Ottawa branch on the 15th day of August 1923, two days before such bank's failure, thousands of dollars on deposit therein to his credit using certain information he had received, as such minister, of likely immediate failure of said bank and had received advantage and profit to himself to extent of such withdrawals, contrary to his obligations as such minister in derogation of his office and honor, dignity and traditions of Parliament."

Mr. Porter argued that if minister of crown could not go out and divulge information to public, how could he use for his own benefit knowledge while denying the public?

Murdock spoke briefly in reply. He merely read correspondence which conveyed the information that Mr. Murdock proposed to return the balance. This after deductions is calculated by liquidator at $2,115.08.

Premier King thought that in view of appointment of the McKeowan commission, inquiry by commission, inquiry by committee was not necessary. If it was felt, however that any right and proper purpose "for maintaining honor, dignity and integrity of this house or any minister will be served."

Then the Government would be only too ready to have the motion pass.

"The charge," argued Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, 'is one undoubtedly of grave misconduct ,misconduct that neved could be cured by subsequent repentance or return. It was either wrong or it was not."

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen condemned the action of the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, in dismissing last July the Veterinary Director-General for Canada, Dr. F. G. Torrance.

The letting out of Dr. Torrance, Mr. Meighen said, was "as cruel and brutal a dismissal as ever came to any man." In defence of that dismissal, he continued, the House had been asked to accept statements contained in a "piece of buffoonery" some of them so ridiculous and absurd as to be beneath notice.

Sir Henry Drayton caused somewhat of an uproar when he alleged the "falsification of evidence" in connection with the memoranda upon which the dismissal had been based.

Mr. Motherwell reviewed again at length the events leading up to Dr. Torrance's dismissal, declaring that he had done his best to get for that official a retiring allowance of $1,500 based upon 17 years' service.

He alluded again to the "political influence" paragraph in the letter written by Dr. Torrance to Dr. Mohler, head of th Health of Animals Branch at Washington, respecting the possible changes in the regulations governing the importing of cattle from Great Britain. Never had he seen such letter, the Minister said, and he accepted full responsibility for the dismissal.

Hon. S. F. Tolmie characterized the action of the Minister as harsh and utterly unjust to an official of outstanding capabilities.

That the real object behind the dismissal was the benefit of "that party heeler, Duncan Marshall," was alleged by Hon. Hugh Guthrie (Conservative, Wellington South).

Victoria Day—Empire Day

ONE hundred and five years ago tomorrow Victoria, ruler over the British Empire for sixty-four years, was born in Kensington Palace. Her father died in 1820, and Victoria became heiress-presumptive to the crown on the accession of William IV. in 1830. On William's death in 1837 she ascended the throne of Great Britain and Ireland, that of Hanover falling by the Salic law to her uncle, the Duke of Cumberland. She was crowned in Westminister Abbey on June 28, 1838. In 1840 Victoria married her cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and her children numbered nine. In 1876 she assumed the title of Empress of India.

The striking feature of the Victorian era was the rapid development and extension of the British colonies, and probably for that reason "Victoria Day" is more of an Empire-wide celebration than any other purely British holiday. Her period was so marked by literary progress and political and industial achievement and development that it is spoken of appreciatively as the Victorian era, as a counterpart of the Elizabethan era.

Victoria I. died on January 22, 1901, and was succeeded by her eldest son, Albert Edward—King Edward VII.

PETER SMITH IS SENT FOR TRIAL

Ten Charges of Conspiracy -- Pepall Had Account in Dominion Bank.

TORONTO, May 23. — Peter Smith, the former Provincial Treasurer, in the Drury Administration, yesterday was committed for trial in the assizes on ten counts charging conspiracy to defraud affecting the sale of succession duty free bonds of the province of Ontario, and breaches of the Secret Commissions Act of 1909.

For the first time since the Ontario bond scandal became the subject of investigation, evidence was produced to show the existence of an account in the Dominion Bank, King and Yonge streets, Toronto, in the name of Andrew H. Peppall.

From the records of the savings department of this branch Manager Norman J. Flynn showed that $12,500 had been deposited in this account in "legals" of $1,000 and $500 denomination, by Harry G. Pepall.

On the same date Hon. Peter Smith discounted in Stratford Andrew H. Pepall's note for $6,250.

Although Aemilius Jarvis, Sr., Aemilius Jarvis, Jr., and Harry G. Pepall were on hand to answer charges which dovetail more or less with which Peter Smith is facing, Crown announced that these cases would be proceeded with to-day in the police court.

On completion of the Crown's evidence Mr. Dewart voiced a protest against the meagreness of the Crown's case. In an impassioned address Mr. Dewart declared heatedly to the Bench: "I sumbit it would be a worse crime than the crime which is charged against my client if you were to commit him for trial."

Mr. Jones, however, treated these four charges in precisely the same manner as the first six, committing Smith for trial on them all.

JOSEPH GIBBONS WON SEAT.

LIVERPOOL, May 23—(Canadian Press).—Labor gained another seat in Parliament yesterday by the election of Joseph Gibbons in the West Toxteth by-election. Gibbons received 15,505 votes, and Thomas White, Conservatice, 13,034 votes.

In a previous election Gibbons lost the seat by only 139 votes to Sir Robert P. Houston, famous shipowner.

Impoverished French Donor Gets Back Gifts to Louvre

PARIS, May 23.—When he was rich and unmarried Joseph Ange Durighello presented to the National Museum at the Louvre his valuable collection of Phoenician vases. Later he married, and his fortunes declined as his family increased. So he asked the Louvre to restore his treasures to him, that he might sell them to feed and clothe his offspring.

The Louvre authorities were inclined to regard his claim generously, but, in order that the legality of his request might be established, they contested his right in the courts.

Judgment has been given, and his vases were restored to M. Durighello, it being shown that the presentation to the Louvre was only in the nature of a loan to the nation, which did not extinguish his rights of ownership.

SUCCESSOR WAS TOLD BUSINESS

French Retiring Premier Informed Herriott of Foreign Relations.

PARIS, May 23. — (By Webb Miller, United Press).—A new precedent in the relations between outgoing and incoming French Governments was established to-day when Edouard Herriot, at Premier Poincare's invitation, visited the Qua D'Orsay and was informed in detail by the retiring Premier regarding the status of this country's foreign relations.

Although there is certainly no love lost between Poincare and the Left Wing, the Premier took the unusual step of offering to inform his successor personally on such matters as the present stage of negotiations with Great Britain over the experts' report.

The Ere Nouvell, an organ of the Left, says to-day that Herriot has decided to accept the Premiership and to occupy the berth of Foreign Minister as well.

2 BOYS DROWNED WHEN RIDING SURF

Sarnia Was Scene of Tragedy.-Third Boy and Dog Rescued.

SARNIA, May 23. — (Canadian Press).—Two boys, Arlow Debell, aged 15, and Dean Livingstone, aged 19, both residing at Port Huron, lost their lives yesterday afternoon in the St. Claire River, when a small duck boat in which they had just left the Canadian shore at Sarnia was sunk by swells from a passing steamer. The tragedy occurred in midstream. A third boy, Laverne Peariss, aged 17, floated until picked up by a boat which pulled out from the shore. An Airedale dog which was in the boat also was saved. The shouts of the boys attracted attention ashore. They had been following a popular practice of "riding" on the swells of passing steamers.

ATTACK ON LABOR HAS FIZZLED OUT

LONDON, May 23 (Canadian Press).—The much-heralded attack in the House of Commons on the Labour Government on its unemployment policy ended last night in an anti-climax, the Conservative motion to reduce the salary of the Labour Minister, Tom Shaw, by 100 pounds, was talked out after a motion by former Premier Baldwin to impose the closure, and was defeated by 244 to 210, this negative result being due again to the reluctance of the Liberals to vote against the Government on a motion involving possible defeat of the Ministry.

The debate never rose to a great height, though some heat developed in the later stages, when Neville Chamberlain and others severely criticised what they alleged was the Government's failure to redeem its pledges to remedy unemployment.

Miss Margaret Bonfield, Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Labour, who spoke for the Government, challenged the Opposition parties to send the Labourites to the country whenever the Conservatives and the Liberals combined.

THAW RODE ALL NIGHT IN TAXI LEADING CHASE

Goes to Pittsburg After Hunt as Far as White Plains--New Statement Tells of Settlement on Evelyn Nesbitt.

GETS NEW ATTORNEY

NEW YORK, May 23. — Having set himself right with a few court technicalities which had held him over for a day, Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, has started for his home in Pittsburgh. He was accompanied by a bodyguard.

Thaw said he did not know when he would return to New York, but hoped that eventually the three indictments that led to his appearance in this city would be dismissed, making unnecessary his return to face another jury.

He seemed fit and contented, though he had little sleep, having been engaged until 4.30 o'clock in the morning in an effort to elude reporters who pursued him as far as White Plains. There Thaw lost them. He continued on, nevertheless, to a point in Connecticut and did not get back to New York and bed until 6 o'clock.

In a statement he issued to the press before leaving for Pittsburgh, Thaw made formal announcement of his plan to settle $10 a day on Evelyn Nesbit, his former wife. During the trial in Philadelphia last month, at which he was adjudged sane by a jury, Thaw let it be known he had in mind helping Miss Nesbitt to that extent.

Thaw was frank is expressing his displeasure at being followed wherever he went. It was because of this circumstance, he said, that at the last moment he cancelled his programme of spending the night in Philadelphia and decided, instead, to sleep in the apartment of a physician, who was an old friend of his mother.

Goes to Sleep in a Taxi.

It was about midnight when Thaw and his bodyguard drove up to the Market Street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Newark, tickets in hand, to board a train for Philadelphia. A crowd gathered quickly and Thaw became discouraged. He said he would spend the night in New York. He took the tube to Thirty-Third Street, Manhattan, and there engaged a taxicab.

"If those reporters want a real ride I'll give them one," he announced to his bodyguard. His car sped into Westchester County. Before it had crossed the city line, however, both Thaw and his bodyguard were asleep.

At White Plains both machines ran out of gasoline. Thaw's was replenished first. By the time the reporters had obtained gasoline they had lost Thaw's taxicab.

Thaw was at the office of Abraham H. Goodman, an attorney, 1,482 Broadway, at 10 a.m., to discuss with him the indictment which alleged that he and Oliver Brower, a private detective, had conspired to keep out of the New York jurisdiction Frederick Gump, Jr., of Kansas City, whom Thaw was accused in two other indictments of kidnapping and assaulting. It was the beating of Gump in a New York hotel on December 24, 1916, that led, the next Spring, to a Philadelphia jury declaring Thaw to be insane and to his commitment for the next seven years in the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases.

Having obtained the dismissal of the indictment so far as it pertained to Brower, Goodman was engaged by Thaw to act for him. Thaw then communicated with his other New York attorneys, Bartholomew D. Coyne and former Assistant District Attorney George Z. Medalie, and learned that he would not have to appear again in General Sessions Court. Thaw had remained over because he had thought his presence would be necessary, as there had been a tangle over the discovery of the conspiracy indictment after he had been arraigned and released in $10,000 bail for trial on the kidnapping and assault indictments.

Issues Another Statement.

He had been arraigned on the latter two charges before Judge George W. Olvany and on the conspiracy case before Judge Morris Koenig. The latter paroled Thaw in his own custody until the matter of bail had been straightened out by Judge Olvany. The latter decided in chambers that a $500 bond would cover the conspiracy indictment, and when it was furnished by the National Surety Company the Court said Thaw would not have to appear.

Thaw spent the afternoon with Coyne at the latter's office, 2 Rector Street, where he issued this typewritten statement:

Usually Like Brothers Sworn Two Men Battled With Razors Until Both Dead

NEW YORK, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—William Rooney, street cleaner, and Patrick Travers, night watchman, were both found dead with crushed skulls and many deep axe and razor cuts, on the floor of their tenement, West 49th street, last night.

Mrs. Nellie Lenisan, landlady of Rooney, remembered that she had not seen the two men since Monday, and became worried because, though they were like sworn brothers most of the time, they usually fought on Saturday nights, and occasionally at other times threatened to kill each other.

She called the police, who forced a window and found their bodies. After an examination of the bodies and weapons medical examination showed that the men must have fought with razors. Inflicting several serious wounds. Then apparently, one man got an axe and landed a heavy blow on the skull of his adversary. An axe and two razors lay on the floor.

BURNBRAE HAS A FARM NOTED FOR AYRSHIRES OF THE HIGHEST GRADE

Humeshaugh, Which Has Sheltered Three Generations of the Humes is One of Model Farms of Country.

MODERN PLANT

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23. — "Humeshaeugh," "the home of the Humes," as literally translated, is the appropriate title of the famous stock farm a short distance east of Burnbrae, appropriate because it has already sheltered three generations of the family, and the prospects are that it will remain indefinitely in their possession. All over Canada the farm is famed as the home of a prize herd of Ayrshire cattle that have won prizes at Toronto Exhibition and at other Fairs in the larger centres where competition is keen, a herd too, from which some of the finest animals of that time have been secured for the Ontario Agricultural College, two purchases having recently been made by that institution.

Burnbrae is the oldest farming community in Seymour township. It was originally settled by a high class of immigrants from the old land, these including a number of officers who had seen service in the Imperial army and navy. In no other district in Ontario, perhaps, are the descendants of the original settlers found in possession of the land to-day, to the same extent as at Burnbrae. Alex. Hume is the present owner of Humeshaeugh, and the first of his ancestors to make it his home was his grandfather, the late William Hume, who purchased the place from W. Hill when it was partially cleared. That was in 1853. The farm, 230 acres in extend, was regarded as the best proposition in the district at that time, but the price paid for it would represent the present value of only a few acres of it.

An English Family.

The late William Hume and his wife left their home in Newcastle, England, in 1833, and came to Canada, being six weeks in crossing the Atlantic. Mrs. Hume's father, who was in the Imperial service, had been in this country for some time but he died before the arrival of his daughter. The young couple lived for some years in Kingston and later moved to Michigan, but not liking that country, returned to Canada, going to Burnbrae in 1853. Their son Thomas, father of the present owner of the farm, was given a good education and was one of the original graduates of the Toronto Normal school to be given a first class teacher's certificate.

Thomas taught school successfully for 12 years in his home district, but gave up that profession and settled on the farm with his father. He was handicapped by poor health, which prevented him from taking part in the heavy work, but he was full of ideas, and progress marked every step of his career. Burnbrae is noted for its Ayrshire cattle and it was William Hume who gave the industry its start, although William Stewart, a neighbor, shares in the honor, but it was Thomas who developed the business.

The First Cheese Factory.

With the improvement in the stock there naturally came a desire to find a profitable market for dairy products. About 50 years ago a cheese factory, the first in the

PLANTING TREES JANETVILLE PARK

Two Acre Grove Will Be Set Out and Park Beautified.

JANETVILLE, May 23.—During the present week scores of young maples are being planted around the new park ,while a grove of about two acres will be set out on the north side of the enclosure. The park will be one of the most beautiful of its kind in the county. Any person desiring to plant a tree in memory of a friend may do so. Rev. G. E. Ross was presented with a tree this morning; and it was planted in memory of his son deceased, and called "The Douglas Maple."

State of the Crops

Little damage has been done in this community by the recent frost, and the water on the lowlands is subsiding. The weather has warmed up and the farmers have found their whistle. It is true the gardens are black and bare, but it is only the 21st of May, and we never expect to do much gardening before the 24th. The early sowing on the higher land is looking fine, so is hay and fall grain. The farmers are working around the edges of the wet fields, and if barley or oats cannot be sown on them in time, they can be seeded to corn, buckwheat, millet, flax, or root crop; and the rest can be summer fallowed. The resourceful agriculturist need have no waste land, but he must study his ground, and catch each opportunity by the forelock as it comes.

Father's Day

Last Sabbath evening a Father's Day service was held in the Presbyterian Church and quite successful. Never had the daddies so many roses thrown at them before.

In the Methodist, Mother's Day was celebrated in the morning and at Mount Horeb in the afternoon. The services were very successful.

ROSENEATH CATTLE TO SUMMER ON AN ISLAND

Animals Were Transported by Boat—Growth is Very Slow-- Roseneath News.

ROSENEATH, May 23. — Mr. George Ivatt reports that his spring grain is all up and growing nicely.

An unusual spectacle was presented to those along the road on Monday when Mr. Bruce Parker took his herd of young cattle numbering 75, from his farm to Dunnett's Landing, where he transferred them by boat to White's Island, to pasture for the summer. This island has an area of over 200 acres, and is owned by his father, Mr. Frank Parker, of Norwood. Mr. Parker owns 300 acres of land and goes in for fat cattle extensively. He had a scow built this spring, and owning a launch he was able to take the cattle across the water himself, other years being obliged to have all this done by others and to take chances of getting a boat at the owner's own time.

It is hoped that the three successive night of frost (Sunday, Monday and Tuesday) which apparently has done little or no harm, will be a forerunner of warmer weather, as the grain and grass is growing bery slowly, the ground still being cold.

The berry bushes and trees are all starting to leaf out making it look more like summer.

Miss Reta Varcoe of the Ontario Hospital, Cobourg, is home for two weeks' holidays.

Mrs. Archie Kayo, and little daughter, Marion, of Mimico, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. James Ivatt.

Mr. P. E. Delanty of the Cobourg Monumental Works, is busy in the vicinty this week, engraving stones in St. James' and Merril's cemeteries.

Miss Hilda Arthur is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ernest Timlin.

Our local physician, Dr. A. G.Armstrong, received a hurried call on Sunday morning to the scene of the shooting on the Crossen resort, at Baltimore. He motored to Toronto, taking one of the victims of the accident to an hospital there and assisting in the operation. He is also staying over for the doctors' convention which is being held there.

The work has been started on the boarding house being erected on Margaret's Island, by Miss Bertha Ferguson.

EDITOR ATTACKS JAPAN'S POLICY

Says Foreign Plans of His Government Are Subservient to America and Britain.

TOKIO, May 22 (Associated Press). — Japan's foreign policy is pitifully subservient to the United States and Great Britain, according to Ichiro Tokutomi, probably Japan's most noted editor, in a diatribe against the Foreign Office which appeared in his paper, the Kokumin, recently. The creed of Japanese diplomats, according to Mr. Tokutomi, is that just as the earth revolves around the sun, so international politics moves with the Anglo-Saxon race as its axis.

"All inteligent people know the damage this creed has done to Japan's prospects," the Kokmin editor continues. "Although an independent country, Japan has often appeared as though she were a dependency of Britain or America in the field of international politics. The main reason the Asiatic peoples have ceased to trust Japan is because this country, ashamed of associating herself with other Asiatic nations, has been bent on following the lead of the Americans or British in all matters.

"This being so, the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance was gratifying not only to the United States, but also to all easterin peoples for it raised in the minds of the Indians, Persians, Turks, Afghans, the hope that thereafter Japan would be able to give full play to her mission as an Asiatic country. However, it remains to be seen whether Japan will live up to the hopes of her fellow Asiatics."

MANTLE OF CARUSO MAY FALL UPON AN INMATE OF PRISON

CANON CITY, Colo., May 23.—(United Press).—Will the mantle of Enrico Caruso fall on the shoulders of a murderer, serving time in the Colorado state penitentiary here?

From behind the iron bars and drab gray walls of the "big house" come stories o a golden tenor voice discovered accidentally by the leader of the prison band, Earl Stowe, and now being developed and trained by him.

It was more than a year ago that Harry "Hickey" McAndrews, who is now 26 years old, was sent up for ten years after he had killed Wallace Keim, Denver realtor.

From the first he was "bugs about music" as fellow prisoners put it. He asked to be put on the prison band, where he worked hard and seemed supremely happy.

Then, one day, Stowe heard him humming to himself during one of the practice intervals. Startled by the beauty of tone and timbre, he stopped to listen. McAndrews, oblivious of an audience, sang to himself snatches from Irish and Italian songs.

Finally Stowe went to Warden Thomas Tynan and asked permission to train the prisoner's voice.

"He has one of the most powerful voices I ever heard," Stowe said. "If I can devote some time to him and get him intersted in developing his great gift he will be another Caruso, I feel sure."

Permission was granted. McAndrew was readily interested in the plan. And now he is spending part of his time each day cultivating the voice that has given him a new hope for life after his sentence is up.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir: Will you please allow me to speak a kind word for those that cannot speak for themselves.

Complaints are continually being made of cruelty to animals, but the former Inspector has now no power to act. There is an organization, but no money. There is an engine, but no steam, a crystalized sympathy for horses, but no horse power to drive it into practical work. In seamen's vernacular, "there isn't a shot in the locker to splice the main brace." A ship without a rudder, a workman without tools, a merchant without a store, a preacher without a pulpit, are no worse case than a society without money. Yes, I am aware that times are hard, and our working capital is tied up in the bridge, and therefore we must economize. But to our citizens I would say, please do not carry this policy so far as to save a few measly dollars by doing without a branch of the Humane Society. Have a thought for future generations. This is a disgrace that must be borne by your children's children. History will record that in the year of grace 1923 the citizens of Peterborough, the great electric city, so famous for its rich men and great dames, its piety, learning and love of art, allowed the humane society to die thereby failing to show concern for the sufferings of animals. And yet I notice that large numbers of our citizens turn out every Sunday and march off to church.

Now, is this religion? Oh, yes; it may be religion alright. But is it Christianity? As, that is another question, a question which I will leave you, Mr. Editor, to answer with the superior Biblical and theological knowledge which no doubt you in commmon with all editors, possess.

A penny a year from each citizen would pretty nearly do the trick. If each one of us withholds that penny then man's faithful, patient dumb friends must go on submitting to cruelty from miscreants who richly deserve the lash.

NEW FACTS ARE FOUND IN CASE ELWELL MURDER

Sister Sails for France to Discuss Evidence With the Leading Figure in the Tragedy -- Would Clear Miss Straus.

RE-OPEN INQUIRY

NEW YORK, May 23. — Bernard H. Sandler, a lawyer, or 150 Broadway, said yesterday that certain new facts had come to light concerning the Elwell mystery, and that he might ask for a reinvestigation by the police and the District Attorney's office.

Mr. Sandler said this on the steamer France, where he talked with his client, Mrs. Walter Lewisohn, who is sailing to France to discuss the alleged new evidence with her sister, Viola Kraus, who was a conspicuous figure in the mystery.

"I want Mrs. Lewisohn to talk with her sister before we decide what to do about it," said Mr. Sandler. "It is true that I have been making an investigation of this case for a long time, with the object of clearing Miss Kraus absolutely. There are certain new facts. I am hopeful that the murderer will be brought to liyht eventually and convicted, but I am not prepared to say at present what evidence I have."

Mrs. Lewisohn was booked on the steamer under the stage name of Maria Selma. Miss Kraus has peen living abroad for most of the last four years because of the notoriety which the case brought her in this country.

Closely Questioned by Investigtors.

Miss Kraus was questioned originally because on the night before the murder she was with Edwell at a party at the Ritz-Carlton and at Ziegfeld's Frolic, which was also attended by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewisohn and by Octavio Figueroa, a South American journalist.

Miss Kraus called the Elwell house by telephone on the following morning—11th June, 1920—and was decoyed there bv the police, who were then in charge of the premises. She was questioned and requestioned.

District Attorney Swann said it was clearly established that she knew nothing about the case.

Walter Lewisohn, who was recently declared to be incurably insane, gave the police and District Attorney a long account of the events of the night before. So did Mrs. Walter Lewisohn. The investigators could not trace any connection between the occurrences of the night of 10th June and the murder, which occurred shortly before 8 o'clock on the morning of 11th June.

Elwell was found sitting in an ante-rom beside the front door of his house at 244 West Seventieth Street. He was in his pyjamas. There was a bullet through his had. He had evidently been murdered while reading his morning mail, several unopened lettrs lying in his lap, while an opened one, relating to turf matters lay in his left hand. The weapon was missing.

Report Premature, Says Sandler.

Mr. Sandler was reported yesetr day to have said he had evidence strongly incriminating a man who had been among the many previously under suspicion. When asked about this, he said:

"That is all premature. I don't want to say that I have anything that would really make good evidence. It is probable that I will ask for reopening of the case, but I am not sure of that."

In reply to a question, Mr. Sandler said it was correct to assume that if he had any valuable evidence he would have communicated it to the police immediately.

Captain Arthur A. Carey, of the Homicide Squad, who had charge of the investigation of the Elwell case, said:

"There have been no new developments in that case. We still have it open. New leads are coming to light and men are working on new angles from time to time, but nothing of importance has occurred recently.

Mr. Sandler bought the Elwell house immediately after the murder, but he said no new evidence had been found there and that the police investigation of the premises at the time of the murder had been thorough.

John T. Dooling, 37 West Forty-Third Street, the Assistant District Attorney in charge of the investigation in 1920 said he had heard of no new facts concerning the Elwell case.

"Our investigation advan,ced to a point where we could prove that a certain man was in the Elwell house early on the morning of the murder, but that was all we could prove against him," said Mr. Dooling.

Evidence Was Incomplete.

"We could show that this man left an automobile in a garage in the vicinity and that an effort was made to tamper with certain records in order to clear him. On the other hand, the man in question might have left the Elwell house several hours before the murder was committed. He was killed at about 8 o'clock in the morning. We could not show that this man had remained there until that time. We were unable, therefore, to bring any accusation against this individual. This was the only man against whom suspicion was strongly directed. There were some curious coincidences pointing at others, but no real evidence."

Mrs. Walter Lewisohn has resumed her stage career since her husband was placed in a sanitarium at Greenwich, Conn., in May of last year. In the proceedings to establish the incompetency of Mr. Lewisohn, it was alleged that he suffered from incurable delusions. He was originally induced to enter the sanitarium at Greenwich, by being told that Miss Leonora Hughes, a dancer, with whom he was infatuat, ed, was to be found there.

Viola Kraus was formerly Mrs. Victor von Schlegel. She obtained her final decree of divorce the day before the murder. Von Schlegel was present on the roof of the Ritz-Carlton on the night before the crime. He was questioned at length, but wholly exonerated by the police.

Germany during 1923 paid to the armies of occupation over 24 million GOLD marks. She also delivered 298 million gold marks worth of commodities to the allied governments. On 1923 account she paid no cash reparations.

In other words the allies were able to squeeze out of Germany less than 80 million dollars last year, or about $1.25 for every man, woman and child

VICTORIA DAY.

Victoria Day, the birthday of Britain's much-revered Queen Victoria the Good, has always been a favourite holiday with the people of Canada, which explains why, after the death of that beloved sovereign, the anniversary should continue to be observed year after year.

The probabilities are that the memory of Victoria will be preserved in this manner in Canada for many a generation a permanent tribute to a ruler under whom the Empire flourished and grew great.

In Peterborough, as in most centres throughout the Dominion, tomorrow, the actual anniversary of the birth of Victoria, will be celebrated, in spite of the fact that it falls upon a Saturday.

In some cities and towns the business community has decided to defer the observance of the holiday until Monday in order that business may not be interfered with.

There is too great a tendency to allow commercial considerations to dictate in matters of this kind, and to many people it seems a mistake to get away from the actual date of public holidays for reasons of this kind.

The merchants of Peterborough, to their credit be it said, have never been offenders in regard to holiday celebrations, and as on this occasion have made their sacrifice cheerfully in accordance with the general plan.

BEFORE PAVING.

A local citizen, building three houses on Charlotte street west, finds it necessary in order to put in sewer connections to tear up the pavement.

This is particularly unfortunate in view of the fact that this stretch of roadway from Park street to Monaghan road has up to this time been without a break in its surface.

The incident should suggest something to the City Council.

It should concentrate attention upon the fact that before any more sections of street are paved it would be excellent business to see that all the necessary connections are made before the paving is laid.

Several streets are to be paved this summer, and if the pavement is to be left intact for any noticeable length of time it will be necessary to exercise a little foresight and render unnecessary any breaking of the surface, such as has been necessary in connection with the Charlotte street paving.

The roadway on George street has been ripped open at many points, and while some of this damage could not have been avoided, it is clear that much of the breakage could be prevented if services were laid whenever possible in advance of the paving operations.

THE UNITED STATES RAIDED.

It is the business of the people of the United States to decide what should be paid their veterans of the Great War, and Canadians have no desire to interfere with what does not concern them; yet there is natural wonder on this side of line at the action of the Senate in passing the soldier bonus bill over the veto of President Coolidge.

To most Canadians it would seem that Coolidge was right in his stand.

That nearly four billion dollars should be taken out of the Treasury of the United States to provide bonuses in the form of paid-up life insurance for 4,293,000 soldiers, hundreds of thousands of whom never heard a hostile shot fired and most of whom were conscripted into service and had no alternative but to don khaki, causes conjecture as to the mentality of legislators who would authorize such a raid, particularly in the face of the fact that their action renders tax relief impossible and increased taxation almost inevitable.

The worst feature of it is that next year the veterans are coming back with a demand for a straight cash bonus in addition to the four billion dollar insurance bonus which now becomes law.

Few of the ex-soldiers regard the present relief in any light but that of a gold brick.

Men who never left the training camps are more avid even than the soldiers who reached France in demanding cash—for their terrible suffering in camp.

And judging by the present attitude of the United States Senators, they'll get it, too.

No wonder the Philadelphia Public Ledger declares that "they (the Senators) have done a thing for which a tax-burdened country will damn them through twenty years. Worse than all else, they have thrown open the door of the Treasury and encouraged every breed and brand of dole-whiner and subsidy-hunter."

THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

Incidents in connection with the United States-France rugby final in Paris in connection with the Olympic Games makes one wonder whether any benefits that may possibly arise out of such international contests are not overbalanced by the harvest of bad feeling and ill-will arising out of the spirit of competition in these events.

The difference between the United States ideal of sportsmanship and that prevailing in most European countries provides a constant element of trouble.

With English sportsmen the idea always has been that "the game's the thing"; on this side of the Atlantic the theory of sport is that winning is more important than the sport itself.

A leading United States newspaper, referring to the Paris incident, says: "When an opponent was tackled he stayed tackled. This is the American idea of sports, and it is best seen in athletics which permit or necessitate bodily contact."

It is, however, not the European standard, and when it is accompanied by the exuberance with which our neighbors greet a victory it is a bit trying to people who have always been under the impression that there is something more important than mere winning.

It is to play the game according to the rules and to let the best man win in a sportsmanlike manner.

That is why Britishers are amazed at the "rooting" of a typical baseball crowd. The deliberate attempt to arouse the anger of opposition players so that they will be unable to do their best is so far distant from the British conception of sportsmanship that the visitor from across the Atlantic is utterly unable to understand the demonstration.

If the Olympic Games are to cause bickering and spleen and ill-feeling they should be abandoned.

THE "BLUE SKY" LAW.

Tomorrow Quebec's first "blue sky" law comes into operation. It is not so searching as similar legislation elsewhere, for it does not call for the endorsation by a special Government official of securities offered for sale on the stock market, says the Montreal Star. It does, however, require all corporations and joint stock companies offering securities for sale to file copies of all the persuasive literature they issue with the object of inducing the public to purchase those securities.

This is a very necessary provision. Reputable firms, of course, do not indulge in the use of misrepresentation, but it is beyond denial that a great deal of lurid and very misleading information—to use no stronger term—is put into circulation, both through the mails and by the hands of brokers who are specially employed to sell securities outside the market. A great deal of stock is sold by personal canvas, and it is in regard to this in particular that the "blue sky" law should operate as an efficient preventative.

The only criticism of the new law that is likely to be heard will be from those whose illegal operations it is designed to stamp out. It will be welcomed by all reputable firms, and it ought to prove a valuable medium for the collection of important data. The appointment of a special Government official can, of course, be made at any time by a simple amendment to the law, and it is understood that if this is found to be either necessary or desirable, it will be done. In the meantime, the provisions of the new law constitute a big step in the right direction.

HOW AN ALGOMA FARMER GOES SOUTH IN WINTER.

The most human story the Star has printed for many a long day concerns the struggle of Mr. Thomas Westcott of Tarentorus, six miles from the Soo, to develop a fruit farm. It is printed today.

It is a story showing how one of the things that couldn't be done, was done. Such a story of personal achievement under difficulties always grips the reader.

It is something to know that in Algoma a man has a highly successful farm, "as purely a fruit farm as any in the far-famed Niagara Peninsula."

And in the winter Mr. Westcott spends his time seeing the world, spending last winter in California. His crops of strawberries, raspberries, asparagus, and in a smaller way apples give him a generous income.

Mr. Westcott's evolution as a fruit farmer was interesting. After having been a "mixed" farmer for years he grew tired of the slow returns. So he decided to learn something about growing fruits. He spent a winter reading all the Government bulletins and literature he could get. He had noticed the scarcity of fresh fruit in the Soo. Mr. Westcott, you see, farmed with his head. He sized up the situation and made his own deductions. He decided that the Soo would prefer his fresh fruit to the stuff that had to stand a long haul from the outside. The outcome showed he was right.

In 1922 he set out two acres of apple trees. The return was good enough financially, but the trees did not bear abundantly enough to suit him. So he branched off into other lines.

In 1915 Mr. Westcott put in an acre and a half of raspberries, and in 1917 his return from these was $2,400. Now he has more than eight acres. Strawberries and asparagus were added. He can't supply the demand for raspberries and asparagus.

Mr. Westcott bought thirteen tons of old iron pipe at a cent a pound and tapped a stream a mile away. He did all the work himself, even carrying in the cement on his back to join the pipes in places where a horse could not go. He doesn't use barnyard manure, has only one horse, and that is kept by a neighbor while Mr. Westcott is wintering in the South.

If you didn't read the story you owe it to yourself as an Algoma man to do so. And when you are through with it send the paper to some fellow farmer who needs a little encouragement. Then read it to the club. Then send it to some Old Ontario editor you know and ask him to print it.

Mr. Westcott has done more than make a fruit farm. He has set an example that will inspire others. He has done something that will do a lot to offset the reputation the weather bureau gives New Ontario by daily reporting the freak weather at White River, 150 miles north of us.

It was Mr. Westcott who gave $100 to the Rotary Clubs' crippled children's fund last year, the largest single contribution made.

He has not alone a head, but also a heart.

The statement was made at a Board of Trade meeting by a man who handled garden produce that "ninety per cent. of the farm produce sold in the Sault was not grown in Algoma."

If this statement be true there would seem to be room for other farmers to duplicate the success of Mr. Westcott in other directions.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

A Thought

RUTS.

The world is full of ruts, my boy
Some shaller an' some deep;
An' every rut is full o' folks
As high as they can heap.
Each one that's growlin' in the ditch
Is growlin' at his fate,
An' wishin' he had got his chance
Before it was too late.
They lay it all on someone else
Or say 'twas just their luck—
They never once consider that
'Twas caused by lack o' pluck;
But here's the word o' one that's lived
Clean through from soup to nuts;
The Lord don't hand no derricks around
T' hist folks out of ruts.

LAKEFIELD, May 22.—It's harvest time for dandelions, which are enjoying a measure of popularity almost beyond belief. A few years ago a dandelion hoe was in demand to exterminate a noxious weed, now it is not an uncommon sight to see a motor car stopped near a meadow while the passengers are filling baskets and bags with the ever popular dandelion. Why this gathering of blossoms? The answer lies in the large number of people who are making home brew.

Drugs Have Never Cured Constipation

Internal Bathing the Only Permanent Remedy.

It is a surprising fact to note the number of persons who persist in taking drugs of various kinds for constipation and go on, year after year, gradually becoming worse all the time.

The system is continually becoming poisoned, not only with the poisonous waste which accumulates in the intestines, but the drugs themselves become absorbed, until the system becomes weakened, the blood becomes thin and poisoned, you therefore become liable to any disease that is prevalent.

You take cold easily, digestion becomes troublesome, heart becomes weakened, rheumatism or neuritis sets in, then sleepless nights and kidneys become affected. In other words, you shorten your life and lose the pleasure of real health and the joy of living.

Internal bathing with the J.B.L. Cascade has restored thousands to perfect health.

It completely removes constipation, keeps the system clean so that the blood circulates through a healthy colon. Soon the blood becomes purified again and you feel just like a different person. That elastic step soon returns, and you feel that you have something yet to live for.

Now this is not fiction, it is the experience of thousands who have pulled themselves out of the drug and medicine rut and used their own commonsense. The J.B.L. Cascade is the perfected invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrell of New York, for Internal Bathing. His theory is: Keep the blood pure and you will be well. A jeweler of Cobalt wrote us the other day saying: "Before getting the J.B.L. Cascade our doctor's bills were over $200.00 each year, and since receiving the Cascade two years ago have not had a doctor in the house. We all use it."

If you want to be healthy all the time get a J.B.L. Cascade and Bath Internally. Send for Booklet, "The Whats, the Why, the Way of Internal Bathing." It is free, and you will learn many facts about yourself and the way to be well all the time. Write for Booklet today. Address, Tyrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College St., Toronto.

This booklet may be obtained also at Warne Drug Co.

CHILDHOOD INDIGESTION

Nothing is more common in childhood than indigestion. Nothing is more dangerous to proper growth, more weakening to the constitution or more likely to pave the way to dangerous disease. Fully nine-tenths of all the minor ills of childhood have their root in indigestion. There is no medicine for little ones to equal Baby's Own Tablets in relieving this trouble. They have proved of benefit in thousands of homes. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Lunette, Immaculate Conception, Que., writes: "My baby was a great sufferer from indigestion, but the Tablets soon set her right, and now I would not be without them." Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SONG BIRDS IN LARD WAS FAVOURITE DISH

Old German Cook Book Compiled in 1452 Gives Curious Recipes.

NUREMBERG, Germany, May 23.—(Associated Press). — Song birds in apples, cooked in boiling lard, was a German delicacy of the fourteenth century and was served by royalty at all notable dinners of state. A cook book compiled in 1452 has been discovered by writers on domestic science, who quote many recipes of the olden times when kings and nobles gorged themselves on every occasion, and appeared to be particularly fond of black birds baked in pies.

At nearly all great feasts a most popular dish was an enormous fish pie, supposedly of Spanish origin. This contained two pounds of butter, half a pound of bacon, or pork, eight pounds of haddock, 20 to 30 eggs, one pound of veal, a pound of oysters, onions, spices and various other seasonings.

Beef tongue and cabbage is mentioned prominently in the old cook book, which is supposed to have been conceived by a nun in the Rosenthal convent in the Bavarian Palatinate. Even the nobility, it appears, was fond of cabbage in those days and put up great barrels of it each summer.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxines powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dust and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads as they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

KING'S TREASURER CANNOT PAY TAXES

Asks Extension of Time Until June—Handles Large Sums of Money.

LONDON, May. 23. — Sir Frederick Ponsonby, Treasurer of the King and Keeper of the Privy Purse, has written in reply to a tax summomns that his expenses and taxes are so great that he cannot meet the demand for several months.

The king's treasurer resides in Surrey and was summoned for water rate taxes amounting to $75 and poor rates amounting to $220. No one appeared at the court for Sir Frederick and the case was adjourned.

The assistant overseer told the court that he had written to Sir Frederick at St. James Palace five times and had had only one reply, in which an extension of time until next June was asked, Sir Frederick frankly explaining his position.

As the king's treasurer, Sir Frederick holds one of the most onerous and confidential positions in the royal household. He has a very wide range of important responsibilities, one of his duties being the distribution of the large sums which the King gives to charity.

Warsaw Farmers Work Land For Themselves

Tomatoes Out Early

A lady in North Dummer has had tomato plants out for over two weeks and they are doing well.

Several farmers are doing without men this season, except for day work, when absolutely needed. Wages demanded are too high, and the work done is often inefficient, the farmers say, and the prices realized by the farmers are generally too low, while commodities to be bought are quite high.

The milk truck is making trips on the northern route now, but there are still some patrons not sending.

While many have about completed their spring seeding, others are quite behind. Clay lands are very wet. Some gardens have been planted.

The frosts following hard on the rains have caused some uneasiness, but in some places, at least, even barley looks unhurt.

Cycling Safer Than Walking

A CHILD who suddenly darts out from the sidewalk into the road in a game of tag, or one who jumps from behind a standing vehicle, is far more likely to be run down by a motor car than a child on a bicycle.

In fact, Police Statistics show that cycling is safer than walking both for adults and for children.

Take the City of Toronto, for example, where the traffic is as heavy and congested as in any place in Canada. The carefully kept records of the Toronto Police Department show that out of a total of 2,199 accidents of various kinds in 1923, cyclists were only involved in 27, all of which were cases of collisions of cyclists and pedestrians. There were practically no accidents between motorists and cyclists. Cycling in smaller cities and in the country is even safer than in Toronto.

There are good reasons why Cycling is Safe.

A child on a bicycle has his attention on riding and watches traffic closely. A child on the sidewalk is very likely to engage in some game that makes him forget himself and run carelessly out into the path of motor cars.

Adults or children unexpectedly step off the curb—or suddenly cross the street between blocks—or dodge out from behind street cars or vehicles, and are hard for a motorist to avoid.

A cyclist, child or adult, that uses ordinary care and observes the rules of the road is safer on a bicycle than on foot. He is more easily seen by the motorist than a person on foot.

Put your children on quick, nimble C.C.M. Bicycles, that steer easily, stop quickly and get under way rapidly. Have them Cycle to School.

Ride a bicycle yourself. Cycling is the Safe, Quick and Economical way to ride to work.

VICTORIA FARMERS SEEK REAL EQUITY

Would Have a Commission Fix Prices Charged by all Classes.

OMEMEE May 23.—On Tuesday evening the Omemee branch of the U.F.O. had the honor of entertaining the several clubs in the county of Victoria or rather a representation from each in their club-room. A large turnout of members and their wives and many visitors were present.

Mr. Mark of Mariposa the president of the County U.F.O. was the chairman for the evening after being introduced by the president of the Omemee club Mr. William Burgess.

The meeting opened with "The Maple Leaf Forever" Mrs. F. G. Sandy presiding at the piano. After a few brief remarks by the chairman Mr. Merckley a director of the Co-operative Company of Toronto was given an opportunity to address the gathering and for almost an hour kept his audience keenly interested. The Co-operative Company is now in a position where it doesn't owe one dollar and the various departments are rapidly growing. The live stock department is increasing by leaps and bounds. Last week $289 000 worth of stock was handled in the Union stock yards and out of 92 000 cattle the Co-operative Company received 62 000. The records for last year show that 39 per cent of all the stock that went to Toronto was handled by the United Farmers' Co-operative Company.

The creamery industry has now become the largest in the Dominion of Canada having surpassed all other creameries within the last seven months and now 12 500 pounds of butter are being churned every day.

"We as farmers" the speaker said "have been endeavoring to trade with industry through organized industry but it is impossible. The purchasing power of our dollar is about 58c to-day We must put up a good article to get the price."

Mr. Merckley then dealt with the egg pool which subject he had really come there to discuss. "There is more money in hens than anything on the farm" the speaker said. Here he told a couple of humorous stories which had to do with what the men folk say and as a result much applause was heard from the ladies. The cash value of the egg crop last year was greater than the wheat crop in all the Province of Ontario. "Then think out of that cash value of 10 per cent were bad. Better conditions are rapidly coming into existence. We are manufacturing good food production but we are not merchandising our goods intelligently. During the period of highest production we are always taking the low prices."

A Carload A Day.

The directors of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company have adopted a plan. For the past three weeks a carload a day that is 500 cases have have been received for the pool. This pool as it is called is voluntary for any individual or group to ship one case or more. When shipped to Toronto they are graded and each shipper is paid the full market price for all under grades. These grades are placed in cold storage and an advance of 20 per dozen is forwarded and the shipper still owns them. After all legitimate charges are taken out such as candling storage etc. the United Farmers' Co-operative Company takes one cent per dozen and the farmer receives whatever advance there might be when the pool closes by the end of October or November. There are three grades —specials extras and seconds. The former must be clear and sound uniform in type weighing 25 oz. to the dozen and not more than of an inch air space. The extras must be sound and clear weighing 24 oz. per dozen while the latter must weigh 22 oz. per dozen and not more than ½-inch air space.

It pays to keep the pens clean and avoid dirt as a washed egg is classed with the cracked one in grading.

A round-table talk followed and much information regarding the egg production was brought to light.

A violin and piano selection was then contributed by Miss Alta and Mr. Melville Moncrief followed by reports from the various clubs represented.

Protest Conditions.

Messrs. D. Weir B. McNevin Robt. Reeds Mark of Mariposa and Mr. T. Martin of Verulam were appointed as a representation to meet the commission in Lindsay in June when they will present the following resolution:—

"Whereas the committee appointed to inquire into the cause of rural depression is receiving evidence and will make certain recommendations to the Government; and

"Whereas one of the main causes as shown the evidence is the inequality of reward for the service the farmers render society compared with reward men in other callings receive; and

"Whereas we disapprove of the system whereby men of the same calling meet and determine what fee they shall charge regardless of its effect on Society;

"And whereas it is unreasonable to expect any one class to reduce their income while others make large demands for their services; and

"Whereas it is impossible for the most important class—agriculturists—to set any charge.

"Therefore be it resolved that the County of Victoria Branch of the United Farmers of Ontario request the committee appointed to consider rural problems to consider the advisability of recommending the Government to appoint a commission composed of representatives from every important calling to set fees rate of profits and wages and further recomment that they all be lowered which will cheapen the cost of living and make agriculture more profitable increase export trade and bring general prosperity to Canada."

Refreshments were served by the Omemee ladies and a social time enjoyed thus bringing to a close a very profitable evening.

DUPED.

More than two billion dollars' worth of gold marks were bought by people outside of Germany in the last five years. This is one fact dug up by the Dawes committee.

Putting it another way, Germany has made two billion dollars profit unloading tons of paper money on the world and then depreciating it to worthlessness.

She will pay the penalty later when she tries to market financial securities of real value.

NEW HOMES IN THE SOUTH END

Small Sized Building Boom Under Way--A Survey of District.

Building operations are going apace in the section of North Monaghan, south of the exhibition grounds, at the present time. Commencing on Brioux Avenue there is a house going up, the first to be erected on this street. Mr Birdgenaw has already got a house put up on Edison Avenue, with a purchaser in sight, and others to follow by the same builder. On Braidwood Avenue, near Monaghan Road, there is already a house being put up, and at the back of this on Rose Avenue there is another house going up.

Lower down Monaghan Road, Mrs. W. H. Barnes has let the contract for a fine new dwelling house and drygoods store, and work is proceeding at a rapid pace.

Along Cameron Street a fine new brick residence has just been completed, standing in an acre of ground and is a model of neatness.

The district around King George Street and Braidwood on the north and Lock Street on the east, is fast becoming a residential district, woing to the number of houses that has been put up this last two years.

Mr. Sam. Parkes, McGill Street, has enlarged his dwelling.

While no campers have arrived as yet at Crawford's Grove, Mr. N. Patterson has erected a permanent cottage in the expectation that summer will arrive in due time.

CAVAN A.Y.P.A. HELD INSTRUCTIVE DEBATE

The Affirmative won by one Point—Trials of Rural Mail Carrier.

CAVAN, May 23.—The A.Y.P.A., of St. John's Church, Ida, had a social evening on Friday, May 16.

A debate formed part of the programme. The subject was, resolved, that reading is of more profit than travel.

The affirmative was taken by the Misses Helen Staples and Mabel Eggleston, the negative by the Misses Margaret McCamus and Kathleen Sisson. It was very interesting. The leader of the affirmative was very humorous. She used some local illustrations which were very amusing. It was a closely contested debate. The affirmative won by one point.

Songs were given by Messrs. Tom McCamus and Clare Winslow, which were much enjoyed. Miss Jean Lough sang a solo. Refreshments were served. About forty-five or fifty were present.

Road Is Poor

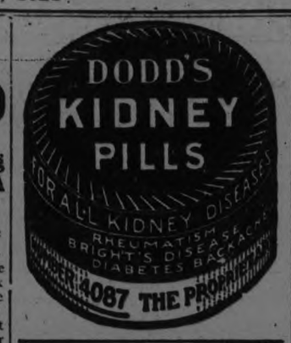
The 8th Line, between Mr. John McNeil's gate and the east quarter-line, is in a very poor condition, at times scarcely passable. During the recent heavy rains three cars had to be drawn out in one day. The rural mail carrie when he drives his car, has to travel some of the road twice. He used the 7th Line part way, as far as the middle road from the east quarter-line, then crosses over from the 7th to the 8th Line, and goes east again as far as Mr. Hatherly's mail box, then retraces his way to the middle road and continues his route west to Mr. T. A. Kelly's. He has to traverse considerably more road but does it to avoid wrecking his car.

R. Todd is busy on the 8th Line fixing and exchanging telephones, and putting up new wires. They are preparing the line for two wires and a metallic circuit. Up to the present a single wire has been used.

Personals

Mr. Osborne Staples, who is attending normal school in Toronto, has been offered a position on the public school staff of Toronto.

Messrs. Clarence Neil, Wm. Whiteside and Harry Ryley, Manvers, have purchased new cars.



The Farmers Wife

"The farmer's wife is now so occupied with social affairs that she has lost the art of making butter and jam and doing the work of the farm that her grandmother did. This results in a great economic loss to the country."—Extract from a United States Government report.

The farmer's wife in early days got up at half-past two
And shined the ploughs and milked the cows and put the prunes to stew;
The breakfast for the hands she set upon the stroke of four;
And then she'd bake her bread and cake and scrub the kitchen floor.
But nowadays the farmer's wife has time to call her own.
"Good gracious!" says the Government "how idle she has grown!"

The farmer's wife in times gone by brought up the calves and lambs
And sacked the oats and fed the shoats and smoked the hickory hams;
And when she'd cook three great big meals she cheerfully arose
And with her churn sat down to earn the money for her clothes.
But now she visits 'round and gossips like as not.
"My goodness!" says the Government "how worthless she has got!"

The farmer's wife some years ago was wholly free from nerves;
Twelve hours a day she'd slave away at putting up preserves.
Six children dangling at her skirts a seventh on her arm
She's gamely set herself to get the mortgage off the farm.
But now she sometimes takes a rest like city women do.
"Great heavens!" cried the Government "what is she coming to?"

The farmer's wife departed from this vale of toil and tears
For happier climes in those old times when under thirty years.
The farmer got another mate; he somehow always found
The ideal wife who toiled through life and rested—underground.
But now sometimes her years add up their full allotted sum.
"Great Scott!" exclaims the Government "how shiftless she's become!"

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 23 (Special).—The dramatic presentation of that great literary gem, "Jean Val Jean," from Les Mesirables, by Victor Hugo, as given by Rev. Herbert W. Piercy in the Baptist Church on Tuesday evening, proved to be one of the finest entertainments that Cobourg citizens have ever been privileged to attend. Mr. Piercy possesses wonderful dramatic ability and pleasing interpretation of literary gems, and these, coupled with pleasing personality, eloquent diction, and entertaining delivery, held his audience enthralled from his opening to his closing sentence. His presentation of this great work was indeed a rare treat. In addition, Mr. Piercy gave several lighter numbers, which also were characterized by his own inimitable interpretation and which were very much enjoyed.

Rev. J. N. Norton pastor, ably presided as chairman. Mrs. M. W. Sparling sang beautifully, her first selection from the Holy City being a rare delight. The McKinnon quartette, composed of Mr. and Mrs. James McKinnon, and Mrs. and Mrs. Alex. McKinnon, rendered much-enjoyed selections. Then there was Hall's orchestra, which won fame at the Ontario Musical Festival, who played several selections that were very greatly appreciated.

The Late Katherine English

The death of Miss Katherine English took place quite suddenly on Friday evening at the Methodist parsonage. Miss English, who was in her 80th year, was born at Omemee, where her parents were among the early settlers, and where almost her entire lifetime was spent. For the last two years she had resided with her niece, Mrs. Stillman. Miss English had been in her usual health all winter. On Tuesday she was not quite so well and a physician was summoned, but no serious results were anticipated until her sudden passing.

A service was held at the parsonage on Monday forenoon, conducted by Rev. W. A. Bremner, after which the cortege left to motor to Omemee, where interment took place in the family plot. Members of the Quarterly Board of the Cobourg Church were the pallbearers here, and at Omemee, friends from among the old settlers. Miss English is survived by one brother, Edward English, Grand Rapids, Mich., and by her nieces, Mrs. R. F. Stillman, Cobourg, Mrs. G. P. Hart and Miss Blanche Elliott, Toronto, who were here for the funeral.

Cobourg's Memorial

At a meeting of the I.O.D.E., held on Tuesday evening at the Cobourg Club, the members looked over a number of designs for a monument which had been received by the regent. Mrs. Spragge. A committee from the chapter will meet the members of the local memorial committee on June 10 to further discuss the matter of the erection of a monument to commemorate the sacrifice of our fallen heroes.

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

MILLBROOK DISTRICT FARMERS ARE SEEKING HYDRO ELECTRIC SERVICE TO LIGHT AND OPERATE THE FARMS

All Mechanical Labor on the Farm Can Be Done With Electric Power If Available—From Filling Silos to Cooking-House Wired Ten Years Ago In Readiness.

HENS DO OVERTIME

MILLBROOK, May 23.—At various times some effort has been made to secure Hydro-electric service for rural sections in this vicinity, but apparently nothing definite has as yet been accomplished. A meeting was called in Bailieboro last fall, the local Hydro superintendent, Mr. G. F. Harrington, being the speaker, and a movement was at one time on foot to have electric light and power for Cavanville and Bethany. Enough subscribers could possibly have been secured in both villages to make the project feasible, but the expense of transmission between the two points, only a limited number of farms being located along the line, was too great to be considered. So in neither case has any further advance been made.

This district is on the Healey Falls circuit, Millbrook receiving its electric service via Peterborough. Evidently some farmers at least are anxious to instal this modern convenience, which would do much to banish drudgery on the farm, but two barriers make it difficult to secure—the high cost of transmission and the high service charges. From other points come complaints along the same line. Regarding the former, T. W. Belch, 5th Line, Cavan, recently advanced the opinion that wireless might one day take care of this problem. There would be a reduction in service charges following an increase in the number of consumers, but A. A. Colwell, a farmer, living near Newcastle, lately made public the fact that he had his house wired ten years ago with the promise then that within a month electric power would be available—a promise not yet kept, however. "Only by building the line at my own expense, and then paying the same rate as my neighbor, who lives fifty rods nearer the centre of the village than I do, will I be able to secure electric power. Yet I would consume four or five times the amount of current that he does."

M. McDowell, Millbrook, whose poultry farm is located just outside the corporation limits, would doubtless be at the personal expense of poles, wiring, etc., to have electric service for his house and other buildings.

Oxford County enjoys the distinction of having Hydro electric in more common use than anywhere else in the Province, the nature of the service supplied, running all the way from a simple lighting proposition to an all-round equipment for house and barns. Installation eleven years ago was less costly than to-day in that section, though a fairly complete outfit, including lights, washing machine, motor for pumping, and iron, can be installed for round $900. Where only lights are called for the entire cost, including fixtures, and bulbs, will run from $200 to $300, depending on the number of lights and distance from the road.

Service costs vary. One farmer, with a complete equipment in house and barns, pays nearly $100 per year; another, who has not a range, but uses the current for washing-machine, pumping and lights, pays about $80 a year. Some use the electric power to fill their silos, and others to stimulate increased production with their hens, one man claiming he had paid his entire service bill in this way. Two hundred hens produced sixteen dozen eggs in a month, but with light installed 165 hens produced forty dozen in the same period.

First Lighted Henhouse.

Lewis N. Clarke, of Port Hope, owner and manager of one of the largest poultry farms in the Dominion, and the first user of electric light in illuminating henhouses in America, still follows this plan at "Oldham Farm," working his 4,000 white Leghorn layers fourteen hours per day during the winter by using the artificial light to deceive the hens. Recently, in Chicago, an officer of the Humane Society ordered this method discontinued on the ground that it was cruel to overwork the fowl by lengthening the hours of light. Should this attitude become general there is some speculation as to what course Mr. Clarke would pursue in view of the fact that he is President of the Humane Society in Port Hope.

Privately-owned electric plants are not numerous in this neighbourhood. The Methodist Church at Bethany has had one for some years, and the Methodist Church, Cavanville, recently installed a service which is giving splendid satisfaction. Richardson Bros., Pontypool, light their store and the Orange Hall with a plant which they own, and Mr. Albert Dawson, who lives about two miles west of Bailieboro, installed a plant about three years ago for light and power in his house and barns.

Baby Foxes Died.

J. L. Byam, who purchased a pair of black foxes last fall for breeding purposes suffered a severe loss this spring when four foxes died of malnutrition because of inability on the part of the mother fox to supply her young with food.

A similar difficulty experienced at one of the fox farms in Prince Edward County was met by a mother cat, deprived of her kittens, which nourished the baby foxes until other food could be given.

The famous Prince Edward Island fox industry is more prosperous this spring than since 1914, as breeding foxes are bringing higher prices, and at the recent sales in London, England, the highest priced silver fox skin was from the Summerside ranch. The world's champion silver fox, which won all the sweepstakes at the Boston show, was also a product of a Summerside company.

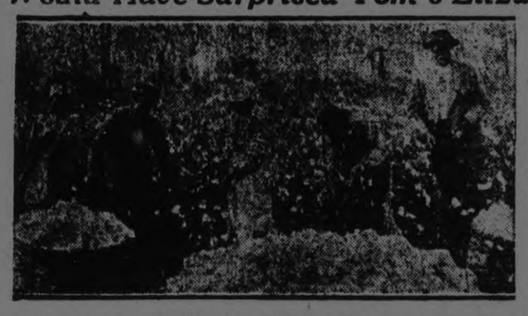
Mr. Byam's experiment in fox farming is the first of its kind in this immediate vicinity, though at one time a similar industry was carried on at the Baptie farm, in North Monaghan, and at present there is a large ranch at Chemong.

Local prices for butter and eggs remained practically the same, the former, which is being offered in fairly large quantities, bringing 25 cents a pound, while eggs, of which Burnham Bros. had 1,800 dozen as the result of one week's collection, are twenty cents.

A few degrees of frost the past two nights have not apparently done any particular damage beyond retarding growth still further for the season. In one or two cases where gardens in the village were ready for harrowing the work had to be postponed a few hours as the surface was frozen too hard to permit its being done when the attempt was made first thing in the morning.

Delay in planting, however, may not be a serious loss since growth is not likely to be rapid until warmer weather arrives.

Cotton North of Mason-Dixon Line Would Have Surprised Tom's Eliza



THIS MAY BE A SCENE AS WELL NORTH, AS SOUTH OF THE OHIO RIVER.

By GEORGE BRITT.

CAIRO, Ill., May 23.—If Uncle Tom's Eliza, hot footing it across the Ohio River to freedom, had stumbled into a cotton field on the far shore, she probably would have bewailed her fate at being still below the Mason-Dixon line.

Times have changed since Eliza's day. "De land ob cotton" is no longer exclusively the south.

Right here at the tip end of the "Egypt" section of the Yankee state of Illinois, in the counties of Pulaski, Alexander, Massac, Union and Johnson, farmers are busy today planting and cultivating cotton. Interest is tremendously keen in the new crop, and there is enthusiastic belief in its possibilities.

As an experiment last year between 1500 and 2000 acres of cotton were grown. It was the first time in more than fifty years, according to the oldest inhabitants. The crop proved a success, and this year there is a prospect of planting more than 20,000 acres.

Overtures have been made to join the cotton growers' associations of Tennessee or Missouri. The illinois Agricultural Association is back of the movement and the crop promises to become a staple.

Four factors go to make southern Illinois favorable to cotton production. First is the absence of the dread boll weevil, which hasn't spread this far north. Then there is contented labor, exceptional transportation on both Ohio and Mississippi Rivers and radiating railroads, and favorable climate.

Good Climate

Cairo is only forty miles north of the Tennessee line, and weather bureau records shows its climate is as warm as at points even in the state of Mississippe, in the thick of the cotton belt. The average for fifty-two years puts the last killing frost in the spring at March 30 and the first in the fall on October 29. This makes an average growing season of seven months.

With such climate, with fertile river bottom soil and need for another crop to rotate with wheat, corn and clover it is not surprising that the turn should be made toward cotton. Encouraging the farmers to make such a choice is the fact of cotton's high price. Figures indicate it is relatively the most profitable crop produced by the American farmer today.

East Emily Grain Hurt By Recent Hard Frosts

EAST EMILY, May 23.—The very hard frost which came the last few nights has hurt the grain considerably, and any garden seeds that were sprouted out of the ground were pinched off.

The market prices in this locality this week are much the same as last: eggs, 23 cents dozen; butter, 28 cents pound; potatoes, $1.75 and $1.80 bag; hay ranges around $12.00 per ton.

Quite a number of the farmers in this neighborhood are through their spring seeding, although there is still the hum of the tractors throughout this locality

Mr. George Carew has purchased the lumber and material from Mr. D. Deyell, with the intentions of erecting a new house in the near future.

Transfers of Farms in Campbellford District

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23.—Mr. Fred Hay, of Seymour, bought the farm owned by T. L. Diamond on the 8th Concession. Mr. Diamond has also made other sales this last week. Mr. Clement Russell, of Seymour East, bought a lot on Front Street, and will build in the near future.

Mr. John Duff, of Percy, has sold his farm to Mr. Outindyke, and has bought the house on Palliser Street owned by Mr. Outindyke. Mr. and Mrs. Duff will move to Campbellford shortly.

Mr. John Duff is having an auction sale of his implements and stock at his farm on Tuesday, May 27, as he is moving into town, having sold his farm.

Local Lady Culls Fowl Throughout the Season With Greatest Success

Does it pay to cull chickens? It certainly pays me. I cull mine for the first time when they start feathering out. All that feather out quickly across the back, with all feathers lying down smooth in the wings, with good shape of head and body, I mark for breeders. The rest I sell at nine weeks of age for broilers. This saves feed and work, gives me more room and more profit. Then what I have saved I watch closely. Whenever I see any that are not developing properly, I cull them out at once. In fact, I cull the year around. Thus I keep fewer chickens and yet get more eggs at less cost for feed. Too many folks keep all the pullets, whether they lay much or not.

You have a splendid farm page and one that will be useful to many farmers.—MRS. H. R.

IMPLEMENT STOCK MULCTED FARMERS

Salesmen Getting $2 For $1 Share and Promising Return of $3.

CALGARY, May 23.—That western farmers have been lured into a questionable stock-selling campaign is alleged by the Calgary Herald in a series of articles now being published.

It is charged that a "high pressure" stock-selling organization in Chicago, known as Russell and Company, of which Herman Garfield is said to be the executive head, has been selling stock in the Canadian Farm Implement Company, of Medicine Hat, under "gross misrepresentation." The stock-selling campaign was organized, so J. E. Davies, the president of the Canadian Farm Implement Company, states, through A. J. B. Fell, of the Industrial Finance Corporation, of Vancouver. Subsequently, it is understood, that Fell entered into an agreement with Russell and Company.

The Herald states that an investigation of this stock-selling "drive," which extends over Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia, has revealed a situation that is amazing and alarming, for already 30,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 have been sold, according to President J. E. Davies, and in all the cases reported to the Herald, the purchasers have paid $2.00 a share, which would mean, were all these shares sold on a like basis, a total of $60,000.

Rash Promises Alleged

It is alleged that the Russell salesmen promised that for every $2.00 paid for a share of $1.00 par stock in the Canadian Farm Implement Company, $3.00 would be returned within thirty days, or at latest by the first or fifteenth of April. The time limit set in the cases investigated has expired.

Incidentally it is stated that the present sale of the Canadian Farm Implement Company's stock is intended to finance the purchase of the Alberta Foundry and Machinery Company, of Medicine Hat. J. E. Davies, who is also head of the latter concern, states that no portion of the $2.00 for which the Canadian Farm Implemtent stock was reported to have been sold, was divided with the Alberta Foundry Company. The Canadian Farm Implement Company's stock, he states, was sold under a separate agreement, at a par value of $1.00 per share, fifteen cents of that amount going to the brokerage firms of Russell and Company and the Industrial Finance Corporation, the remaining 85 cents to Canadian Farm Implement Company.

Another point brought out is the alleged fact that the Canadian Farm Implement Company is taking immediate steps to apply to the Dominion Government for authority to increase the capital of the company from the present $845,427 to $1,500,000. That decision was reached on April 19, when, it is stated, no out-of-town shareholders were present at the meeting.

Sales Have Been Halted

According to a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in the autumn of 1923, a company such as the Canadian Farm Implement Company, holding a Dominion charter, may sell shares in any province without consent of the local tribunal, such as the Utilities Board of Alberta, or Saskatchewan's Local Government Board. Permission which had been granted to sell the stock in Manitoba has been suspended. The exposing of this alleged "high pressure" stock-selling campaign has resulted in stock sales being halted. J. E. Davies, president of the company, has instructed Vancouver not to issue further certificates for stock and has also given instructions that all trust funds for shares, now in possession of the Vancouver firm, shall be held until further notice.

FARM ACCOUNTS NOT NECESSARY

Farmer Can Guage His Standing Without Stroke of the Pen — Beneficent Government Helps.

(By ALEX. McGREGOR.)

If every buyer said to every farmer: "I will pay you 20 per cent. profit on your cost of production," how many farmers would be able to name their price?

That is a query, which seems to have originated in a farm paper in Illinois, which is being given considerable prominence in Canadian journals. Perhaps the majority of farmers would really be unable to state a price offhand through lack of knowledge while others would be unable to act, shocked as they would be by the prospect of a profit hitherto undreamed of in their philosophy.

One paper says that accurate accounts on cost of crops and livestock will accomplish more to make farming profitable than any single step within the farmer's power.

Does any man ever stop to think what a complex matter the keeping of farm accounts as his advisers would have them kept would really be? It would require a separate memorandum for every fowl, every head of his cattle, every horse, and every field on his farm. To insure the accuracy essential to make the system of any utility some technical knowledge of bookkeeping would be required.

An Instance of Profit

A farmer in Seymour Township last fall produced 110 bushels of fall wheat on two acres of land, an unusual yield. The grain was well filled, free from foreign substances, and for that reason was in demand for seed among the farmers of the district. For this grain of superior quality the producer received only $1.00 a bushel at his barn. Some of his town friends, hearing of the incident, figured on the amount of profit, taking into account every item involved in the production, interest on the value of the land, labor, the wear and tear of machinery and the like. The result showed that the farmer's profit was less than the amount paid the man who helped him harvest the crop, or of the machine owner who threshed it for him at four cents a bushel. The volunteer accountants were stumped when it came to taking into calculation the cost of the assistance the farmer received from his neighbors in threshing the wheat.

There was nothing allowed, either for depreciation in the soil. Every grain crop raised takes something out of the land, and unless this is restored, by allowing it to run idle for a year at intervals, or by some other means, it is only a question of time when it will eventually become barren. Writing off a certain amount for depreciation every year is one wrinkle in accounting that the average farm bookkeeper has yet to learn.

A Question of Methods

Still the farmer with a turn for computation can figure himself into bankruptcy or into imaginary affluence, according to the methods which he adopts. Who can blame him or any other sane person in private life if he is skeptical on the subject of bookkeeping as he notes the breaking down of the system of keeping public accounts? One political power—of course the one in power—claims a surplus of millions which their opponents by specious argument turn into a deficit.

Suppose the farmer, ambitious as the man in control of the treasury department in Province or Dominion, to make a financial showing, sells fifty acres of his farm. In the books, the price or the amount is added to his revenue for that year his purpose is accomplished, although his resources would be decreased by just that amount.

It is no very difficult matter for a farmer to gauge his standing, even without making a single stroke of his pen, although in the absence of accounts it is impossible for him to accurately locate the leakage.

But why should the farmer worry over such a matter as keeping books? A beneficient Legislature has taken the job off his hands by appointing a commission to make a tour of the Province and to tell the tiller of the soil why he is hard up. The up-to-date farmer requires no highly-paid official to call his attention to the cost of what he buys and the price of what he has for sale.

DON'T PASTURE EARLY.

Don't turn your live stock out to pasture too early in the season. Early grass is watery and has low feeding value. At the same time early pasturing tends to reduce the season's growth.

In a season like this when the feed is short it is difficult to avoid the wasteful method, but postpone it as long as possible. Every day adds to the growth of the grass.

SCOTCH FARMER IS BETTER OFF THAN AMERICAN

Fresh Viewpoint on the Vaunted Supremacy of Farm Life on This Continent Voiced By Scottish Expert—Too Much Taxation and Officialdom Here and Too Many Middlemen

HELD BY TRUSTS.

AYR, SCOTLAND, MAY 23rd. — The condition of farming in America, on the written testimony of Mr. James Dunlop of Midland, Prestwick, Scotland, well-known expert farmer and breeder of Clydesdale horses who bought "Baron of Bacclyvie" for £15,000 ($75,000), and whose position at home and whose travels beyond seas have given him a knowledge and a right to speak on the subject that are not exceeded by any other man in Scotland, has reached a vastly lower ebb than any that obtains here. Mr. Dunlop has travelled far and wide. He has paid successive visits to Canada and the United States, and therefore what he has to say about the latter must be accepted with confidence. Time was when the American farmer, working on his virgin soil, harvested big money as well as big crops; but now his land has become relatively exhausted, the big combines are sweating him to the last degree, he can no longer buy comparatively cheap and sell relatively dear, the trusts and the middle men hold him in thrall, and the sweating process has gone to such an extent that the farmers, in place of being a steadying and a moderating influence in the country, have joined the ranks of the discontented, and in one of the States have returned to the Legislature at Washington one of their own men who is not only a Communist, but a Bolshevist. That is not to be accepted as a proof that the farmers of Minnesota are politically after this extreme order. No, but it is an evidence that in their despair of getting justice from either of the two great parties in the States, they are prepared to accept strenuous help from whatever quarter it may come.

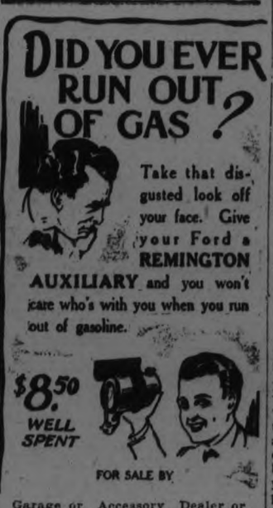
Mr. Dunlop tells how it is that the conditions have become so chronically bad. Labour is costly. Workers are scarce, and they are able to command a rate of from five to six dollars a day. The taxes on land have increased enormously. "The farmers say they have a habit of doubling themselves every few years, and they have reached a figure that constitutes a serious menace. In some districts the farmers told me they were paying from three and a half to four dollars an acre in taxation—a sum that seemed to me to be about a fair rent for the land apart from anything else." The American system is over-rich in officialism. Officials superabound. The farmers are underpaid for their crops. They have to sell their stuff at about a third of the price that the public have to pay for it. "Hundreds of thousands of farmers are faced with bankruptcy. It is estimated that three million people have left farms for the cities within the last two years, and there are thousands of abandoned farms from which the owners have made moonlight flittings and have left the land to mortgagees." In Mr. Dunlop's view the Scottish farmers have a better and an easier time of it than the American.

Cobourg Farmers Get Help For The Season

COBOURG, May 23.—Several of the farmers in the vicinity of Edville in East Northumberland have secured through the Government, help on their farms for this season. Farm help is reported to be very scarce throughout the district.

Mr. Keen, of Toronto, has purchased "Rural Hill" stock farm, situated north of Orono, from Mr. A. A. Powers, and has moved there. This farm has been in the Powers family for about eighty-three years. Mr. and Mrs. Powers are returning to Toronto, it is stated.

Only three per cent of the country's cattle are pure bred.



One-Room Rural School Has Forty Per Cent. of Canada's School Pupils

OTTAWA, Ont., May 23 (Canadian Press).—Nearly one-fourth of Canada's entire population is at school and of the 2,000,000 pupils more than 40 per cent. are in one-room schools in rural areas, according to a statistical review of Canadian schools published by the Canadian Council on Child Welfare. The field covered by the review includes, personnel, accommodation, inspection and playground activities.

The statistics show that 1,800,000 children are attending state controlled day schools and 50,000 are in schools subsidized but not controlled by the state. There are 57,000 instructors in the proportions of one male teacher to every five women teachers. Taking the age of 10 as a minimum it is stated that the illiteracy in Canada was reduced by 54 per cent. between the years 1891 and 1911.

USE IDLE LAND TO GROW TREES

Low Spots, Stony Places, and Odd Corners Can Be Profitably Utilized and Beautified.

MILLBROOK, May 23.—The Department of Agriculture is just now urging the planting of more trees to replace those destroyed through carelessness, fire, or the demands of commerce. On almost any farm there are low spots difficult to drain, stony places, or odd corners cut off from the large fields by water holes or creeks—idle land because it is too small to be profitably cultivated. These are instances of conditions where tree planting might be the means of converting land at present worthless into valuable and revenue-producing property.

The Ontario Government believes a big wood lot a valuable asset to any farmer, and is establishing a reforestration club in most counties in connection with which any number of trees of any variety are supplied at a merely nominal cost. "White pine forests dotted here and there over the Province would make it richer than gold or silver."

Northumberland is one of three counties, each of which, aided by the Forestry Department, is planting out 200 acres of trees as a solid block this spring. In Haldimand Township, ten or twelve miles back from Lake Ontario, 1,000 acres of sandy land has been purchased, largely through the efforts of Warden Walter Fowlds, and of this 200 acres is being planted with red and white pine, with some Scotch pine in the blow holes. Material is secured from the Government nursery at Orono.

To encourage such work as the above, the Government is setting out two or three acres as demonstration plots in different parts of the Province. The disappearance of woods is bringing about disastrous changes in rainfall and water supply, besides a shortage of fuel and timber, hence the great need of forest preservation. Canadian enterprise, ingenuity and public spirit should devise adequate methods.

The preservation of native nut trees is also being urged, "lest we fail entirely to save for posterity the remnant of these fine trees once so abundant in the Province." The chief native nut trees are: the black walnut, the butternut or white walnut, and the hickory, of which there are four species—the chestnut, the beechnut, and the hazelnut.

Wilfred Elson and Lloyd Sutton, as a private enterprise, shipped in two carloads of oats for seed this spring, finding a ready sale to farmers in the vicinity.

Fall Wheat Up.

W. Fred Fallis reports fall wheat up several inches in his fields, with red clover and alsike looking well. Most of the cattle on the line are now out on pasture. Only one or two farmers in that neighborhood keep sheep, as the land is all good for grain-raising and sheep will thrive on much poorer pasture, in fields where grain could not well be grown.

The spring, however, still leaves much to be desired, one farmer stating that he was able to sow only about six acres last week owing to the persistent rains, and there are still some who because of low-lying land have no seeding done at all so far this season.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is now distributing a new bulletin dealing with poultry diseases, which is of great value to the poultry keeper. The symptoms, prevention, and treatment of all the common diseases, including colds, roup, cholera, the various forms of diarrhœa, intestinal worms, etc., are fully described. One section is devoted to the control of lice and mites, and full directions are given for performing post-mortem examinations.

The pamphlet is free upon request. The author is Dr. Ronald Gwatkin, of the Ontario Veterinary College.

Hugh Cuthbertson Takes Shipper's Place Norwood

NORWOOD, May 23.—The U.F.O. held a meeting in the Council Chambers on Saturday evening last for the purpose of appointing a shipper to take the place of Mr. Robt. Sedgwick, who was compelled to give up the position on account of ill health. Four applications were received and voted on. Mr. Hugh Cuthbertson, who has been president of the club for the past year, was the one to receive the appointment.

The farmers in the vicinity of Norwood are again able to get out on the land and seeding is practically finished.

Butter has taken a drop to 25c a pounds. Eggs are still at 20c a dozen.

Luther Burbank

Famous Agriculturist Who Tells How to Grow Flowers and Vegetables.

INTEREST NEEDED FOR GOOD GARDEN

Man Who Uses His Understanding Will Have Best Garden.

By LUTHER BURBANK.

SANTA ROSA Calif. May 23.—Soil fertilizers, water, weeding—these are recognized everywhere as essential to good gardening.

There are two things equally essential but far too frequently neglected. These are interest and understanding.

Myriad are the cases where two adjoining gardens will show utmost disparity in productiveness and attractiveness. In nine cases out of ten the reason lies in lack of these two attributes in the one garden and their possession in the other.

Plants and flowers are like little folk. They have their likes and their dislikes their demands and their antipathies.

These must be studied with great care in order that best results may be obtained.

It would be impossible to lay out any set of rules for this care. It differs in the case of the various plants just as it differs in the case of various children.

General Rules.

Only a few general rules can be given equally applicable to all vegetables and flowers usually grown in the amateur garden.

Young seeding plants should be watered lightly once a day until they get root. Do not use too much water at this stage just enough to keep the ground moist not wet.

After the plants have taken root a once-a-week watering is sufficient. This sould be a thorough soaking.

Reason for this is found in our simile of plants and human beings. A thirsty man will go to water if water will not come to him. So will a plant. As soon as a plant has developed roots—its one means of journeying—it will make efforts to reach water in close propinquity.

If watered daily there is no need for the roots to "feel out" for moisture. But a once-a-week watering will make the roots progress through the ground in search of available moisture—and thus you will obtain what you want, a deep-rooted plant which will not need coddling, protection and watering.

Like Humans.

The cells of plants are like those of persons. Through these they get their nourishment brought to them by water. And they are controlled, as are those of human beings, by natural reactions. When men exercise and become heated, cells of their bodies open to permit more freedom in body breathing. Similarly, cells of plants open in warm atmosphere.

Nature has shaped the cells of plants for greatest convenience, elongated in the stem and flattened in the leaves. Food carried into plants through these long body cells goes to the leaves where it turns first to sugar and starch. The importance of seeing that these cells do not become clogged by unnatural and impedimental matter is apparent.

Do not use fertilizers unintelligently—any more than you would feed a child food which would cause it to become sick. Commercial fertilizers, and fertilization matter from poultry yard and barnyard are all good complete balanced food when used intelligently with regard to the particular plants. Hard adobe soils can be softened with lime.

Just one word more in regard to a hint for increasing your interest and understanding of plants. Make your garden as attractive as possible. Make it a place where you will love to linger, finding real pleasure there instead of only a place where a certain amount of "work" must be performed.

Home Beautified.

Flowers properly belong in front of the house, and vegetables in the rear. But vines along a fence or the side of the house serve a double purpose, one of which is beautification.

Or should you not desire to grow grape or berry vines, sweet peas along the back fence are well worth while to lend attractiveness.

A little glass house or lean-to, if space is available, is ideal for the winter and spring, and will do much toward making your garden a success.

Easy accessibility to all parts of the garden is important. But do not make your pathways too wide. This is mere waste of space. A border of boards or of concrete is advisable.

I know you will find more pleasure and get much better results from your garden if you thus do everything possible to enhance its good appearance. And then it will be a mere matter of time until you and your plants come to a full and sympathetic understanding.

Ray Atkin, of Stirling, Says Only Fifty Per Cent. of Seeding Done--Farmers Are Looking For Diverse Crops--Buckwheat, Millet and Alfalfa Are Included.

CULLING OF POULTRY

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

STIRLING, May 23.—Ray Atkin, district agricultural representative for Hastings County, whose headquarters are in this village, estimates that not over 50 per cent. of the seeding operations in the district have been completed. Some of the low land is still under water and work on it will be impossible for a week or more. On the high land where the seed was put in early, the grain is making a fine showing. Fall wheat and clover are far above the average.

Late as the season is the low land will still be made to produce returns. A large area of this will be sown to buckwheat and a remarkable circumstance is that the price of this grain, quoted now at $1.50 a bushel, is higher than it has been for years. A yield of 30 bushels of buckwheat to the acre is not regarded as unusual in a favorable season, but one fact that must not be lost sight of in estimating the value of this crop is that the straw is worthless if not actually injurious as fodder.

Mr. Atkin says that never in his experience have there been so many injuries for seed millet as this year, this being a crop that is suited to low land and which can be sown almost any time in the month of June. It generally yields about two tons to the acre so that dairy farmers—and they are in the majority in this district—have every prospect for plenty of fodder next winter. Corn for the silo is another crop that the late season has not yet threatened.

Alfalfa a Favorite

According to Mr. Atkin, the acreage of alfalfa has increased at least 50 per cent. over that of last year. Stock men are learning that a crop which yields three cuttings a year and is also excellent feed for all classes of stock, one that promises the best returns. Another fact that is being impressed upon them by experience that the seed produced at home is the kind to plant, this seed being of so delicate a nature that it is affected by even a slight change in climate, and by a shift from one variety of soil to another.

Interest in Agriculture

Mr. Atkin is a young man himself and one of his aims is to arouse the interest of the rising generation in agriculture as a vocation. He has been in Stirling for about two years, but in that short time has made a record. To maintain plowing in its former position a one of the biggest arts in farming he has revived the old-time plowing match. The first of these was held last fall and there was no question on the score of the interest aroused. Another will be held next fall, and final arrangements will be made at a meeting to be held later.

School Fairs

Hastings County is justly noted for its school fairs, a reputation which it has earned since Mr. Atkin came to his present position. Right of these, in which 120 schools were interested, were held last year. The number of children attending these schools is over 4,000, and the number of home gardeners entered for competition this year is an even 100.

Trip to Kemptville

Another innovation introduced by Mr. Atkin is an auto trip to the demonstration farm at Kemptville early in June. These outings are nothing unusual in Ontario but this is the first time Hastings County will take part. Stops will be made on the way at some of the leading stock farms in Eastern Ontario to study different types of cattle, and their management. The trip will include a visit to the farm of Senator Hardy at Brockville where what is admittedly the champion herd of Holsteins in Canada is kept.

Culling Poultry

J. A. Francis, poultry expert at the Agricultural College, Guelph, will be in Stirling on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week to give demonstrations in poultry culling so that owners may keep none but the best type of fowl. Four of the best young men taking this course will be selected to make a tour of the country for the purpose of weeding the deadwood in the farmers' poultry yards, a task which every owner is not competent to perform for himself. Rawdon Township will be the first in the county in which this work of pruning will be carried out.

Cheese Board Disbands

Stirling Cheese Board, at one time one of the strongest in the district, has practically disbanded, and no meetings have been held this year. The various factories will now sell either independently or through the co-operative association.

No Depression Here

If the village of Stirling has no tall chimneys, it at least escapes the industrial depression which appears to be general throughout the country. It depends for its commercial existence upon the farmers, and as it is the centre of one of the garden spots of Central Ontario, trade is steady. Its one factory, the establishment in which cheese and fruit boxes are manufactured, and which is owned by J. S. Marshall, is now running full time with a force of about a dozen men. The stock of logs on hand is sufficient to keep the place busy for the entire season.

Large shipments of live stock are made from this point every week, two cars being loaded with calves and hogs no later than last Monday.

WHERE GREEN PARROTS FEED ON RED BERRIES

Gorgeous Tibetan Vales Also Hide Strange Racial Secret—Two Expeditions Busy—Scientists Will Find Missionaries Observing Tribesfolk.

Two expeditions of the National Geographic Society are exploring separate regions in the heart of Asia, Associated Press despatches have related the narrow escapes from Chinese bandits of Joseph F. Rock, who heads the society's expedition in Yunnan province, China. Further north, in the racial twilight zone between China and Tibet, says a bulletin of the society, the Central China expedition is seeking human traces of east Asia's history before the Chinese came, hunting for the largest non-anthropoid monkey in the world, and collecting botanical specimens in a region virgin to scientific study.

The bulletin goes on to say that Mr. Rock recently located the chaulmoogra trees, whose oil has brought blessed healing to many lepers. He entered Yunnan to study the fascinating problem of how corn, indigenous to America, apparently was transplanted to China before 1492; and to hunt for a blight-resisting chestnut tree, for interesting birds and animals and for new fruit and flower immigrants.

Leaf-Eating Monkeys.

Turmoil along the turbulent China-Tibet border delayed Mr. Rock's work. He was counselled to come home and await more peaceful times, but he preferred to "carry on." As a result he already has amassed experiences which add the zest of adventure to the natural interest in a region where nature and man amaze—a region of leaf-eating monkeys, snow-crowned mountains, rope bridges which swing protesting miles across the frequent streams, green parrots feeding on red berries, gorgeous valleys of brilliant flowers, and bejewelled males.

In charge of the other expedition, Frederick R. Wulsin and his aides, with a string of 27 camels, pushed from Kansu province into parts of Mongolia where only nomads live. He then worked his way south toward Kewichow, where dwell some of the mysterious non-Chinese tribes of China.

The two or three million of non-Chinese folk who survive in Kewichow afford one of the most interesting living racial problems known to science. They have not been studied scientifically. Casual and infrequent visitors bring back reports of types resembling the Gurkha, the South Sea Islander, and the American Indian, of tribes which thresh grain on roof tops as in the Holy Land; of others that fly "prayer flags" on fortified castles, and of some where combatants, armed with blunderbusses, broad-swords and bags of stones, settles their disputes n horseback jousts.

Visits Among Them.

Midway between Kewichow and Yunnan provinces, scenes of these explorations and discoveries, lies the greater province of Szechwan, also touching Tibet and having its own non-Chinese "tribes people." Among these strange and little-known folk is travelling regularly a Canadian, bent on missionary work rather than on ethnological or botanical study. Rev. George E. Hartwell, B.A., B.D., has, however, a university man's fondness for description and writes the following rief account of his observations:—

"These tribespeople are stone builders. Travellers are astounded as they behold great stone forts, with flat-roofed buildings two or three storeys high and with turrets seven and eight storeys high, erected on the top of the mountains. The people themselves are hardly mountaineers and have free and open ways. Their faces are quite different from the Chinese. The dress of the women resembles more that of the European, and, while not bold, there is note of that shyness and restraint peculiar to the Chinese women."

"In recent years the Chinese Church which the Canadian Methodist missionaries have founded in Szechwan, has made the foothills and the tribespeople a sphere for foreign mission work. The Chinese missionary has married one of the tribal women, visiting her home, I saw the tribalm bride come forward with the grace of a western hostess, invite her foreign guests into her dining-room, serve them with tea and look after their comfort with the same ease as if she had been brought up in a well-regulated Canadian home."

NEW AMPLIFIER MAKES 4 TUBES

Two Tubes and Two Middle-Tapped Push-Pull Transformers Give Amplification Equal to Three Stages.

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

A two-tube push-pull amplifier that equals three and even four tubes of an ordinary amplifier has been designed for the benefit of radio fans.

It is one of the many ways by which radio engineers have been trying to obtain clarity and volume in amplification, to free radio of its bugaboo of distortion whenever more than two stages of audio-amplification are attempted.

In the circuit described here—one of the varieties of push-pull amplification—two tubes and two middle-tapped push-pull transformers give amplification equal practically to three stages of a transformer-coupled amplifier.

The idea of the push-pull amplifier is this::

Two audio-frequency transformers, with a tap in the exact middle of each of their secondary windings, are connected so that the two outside ends of one secondary connects to the grid of each tube, while the outside ends of the other secondary are joined to the plate of each tube.

More Efficient.

Thus, a positive and negative feedback system is established between the tubes, resulting in greater efficiency from both. While one tube has positive feed-back and tends to howl, the other has negative feedback and absorbs and prevents howling.

The parts to this amplifier are:

Two push-pull amplifiers, T1 and T2.

Two tubes and sockets, UV201-A.

One rheostat, 6 ohms.

Wire for connections.

The B battery of the receiving set should be stepped up to 120 volts and a C battery of about 6 volts should be connected between the primary of the second transformer and the negative of the A battery and filaments.

Since connections are easy, in this amplifier, and there are few parts, there has been no attempt to describe any arrangement of the parts.

The Transformers.

A mechanically inclined fan may try building his own transformers, although middle-tapped audio-frequency transformers for push-pull amplification are on sale. The transformers should be of the low ratio variety, 4 to 1 being about the best.

A good one may be made by assembling two transformer windings on one core. The core consists of two U-shaped pieces of soft iron, butted together, to form a rectangle. The windings are put over the joints. They are the primaries and secondaries of two low-ratio audio transformers. The primaries are then connected together in series, with the two outside connections of the primaries and secondaries brought out, and tap brought out where the two inside connections of the secondaries are connected.

By reversing the secondary leads, the amplifier may be tested for best results.

THREE MEN KILLED IN LIQUOR MIX-UP

Shooting Affray Took Place at Indian Reserve on Wednesday Near St. Paul.

EDMONTON, May 23.—(Canadian Press.)— According to brief and conflicting reports received here last night, three men are dead and a fourth is mortally wounded as a result of a shooting affray on Wednesday at Saddle Lake Indian Reserve, near St. Paul De Metes, about 100 miles from here. The murderer, whose name could not be learned, is still at large.

A prevailing rumor is that the victims, all Indians, were chasing a bootlegger, and it is thought that the shooting was a result of the liquor mix-up.

An earlier account of the killing said only one man had been slain and one wounded. The slain man was said to be Albert Sinclair and the wounded man James Poule.

Police have not returned from the reserve and no communication could be effected with the reserve.

SAYS RADIO WILL BRING ONE TONGUE

There Is a Day Coming When Universal Language Will Be the Result of World-Wide Broadcasting.

By HARRY B. HUNT.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—C. C. Dill, juvenile senatorial insurgent from Washington, believes that radio will ultimately unscramble the confusion of tongues resulting from the attempt to build the tower of Babel, and that it will, in addition, accomplish more than all the statesmen and diplomats in history toward establishing world peace.

"I foresee the day," says Dill, "when a universal language will result from the world-wide broadcasting by radio.

"The better understanding, the friendlier relationships, that will be promoted by this means of communication, will be the biggest factor in bringing universal peace."

* * *

If this end is to be accomplished, however, Dill maintains radio must be kept "free to the people."

"The air," he says, "is the only natural resource not already cornered for natural exploitation."

To prevent special interests from obtaining a vested right in radio broadcasting, denying the air to all who do not pay tribute and giving the right of censorship over what shall be broadcast and who may hear it, Dill has introduced a bill to safeguard the public's interest in radio and broadcasting development.

Here in Washington they call them "Elf-street cowboys," F street being the fashionable downtown promenade for flappers and flirts. Elsewhere they are grouped generally under the term "soda fountain cowboys."

"That title is an insult to the fine fellows riding the range in the cow country," Blanton declares.

By GEORGE W. BRITT.

CHICAGO, May 23.—What the family doctor gets from looking at a patient's tongue, the foot expert gets—and more—from a sight of one's shoe sole.

Miss M. Florence Lawson, physical director of the Y.W.C.A. here, who studies feet as a hobby, makes a diagnosis of foot troubles and presents a prescription for remedy.

Analyzing feet in detail, she has prepared a chart of worn spots on shoe soles with which any foot sufferer—they're mostly women—may determine her ailment.

"In general, shoes worn on the outside edge of sole and heel indicate good feet," says Miss Lawson.

"They may mean bow legs, but that is no great cuase for worry. Shoes worn on the inner edge indicate falling of the long arches and weak feet. They indicate knock knees also, and knock-kneed persons usually have poor feet.

French Heels.

"Women suffer from bad feet principally because of improper shoes, particularly French heels. They require one to walk as if on tip-toe and call for a continuance readjustment of balance. The result is shortening of the calf muscle, falling of the transverse arch, bunions and corns."

Correct shoes and exercise to develop the foot muscles are the cure for flat feet, according to Miss Lawson. The right kind of shoe is one with a straight inner toe line, flexible shank, broad toe and flat heel.

"Flat foot positively can be cured, except in cases where the muscles are very weak and the bones have settled far down from position," Miss Lawson says. "It only requires patient exercise and every-day wear of correct shoes. Here are the exercises:

"First, for fallen long arch, the most common and the worst of the foot distortions—stand with feet parallel, shoes off. Bend the ankles outward, throwing the weight on the outer edge of each foot, with toes clenched and turned in.

Raise Arch.

"Bend the knees outward, bow-legged fashion, raising the inner foot arch and throwing the weight on the outside of the foot.

"Sit with one leg crossed over the other and rotate the ankle, turning so the toes point first down, then in, then up.

"Sit with the legs extended straight out in front, and extend the ankles, pointing the foot up and then down.

"Practice walking on the toes, pigeon-toed, and walking on the outside edge of the foot. Repeat all these exercises, increasing the assignment as strength is gained.

"For fallen transverse arch—stand with the feet parallel and clench the toes, gripping the ground. Do this ten times in succession at first and work up to forty times in succession."

COMMON PEOPLE ARE CLEVEREST.

The Public Is Beginning to Develop a Sixth Sense That Recognizes Bunk At First Sight.

A funny thing happens in Brooklyn, N.Y. During a traffic tie-up a negro teamster overhears the conversation of two men standing on the sidewalk. The negro speaks up:

"Pahdon me, suh, ahn't you-all the gentleman, Mr. Vice-President Peter Hamilton, o' the Lawyers' Mortgage Company, what broadcasts through WEAF ev'ry Monday evenin'?"

Mr. Hamilton says, "Yes, I am."

"Well, suh," the teamster declares, "Ah jist want to say Ah have enjoyed yoh financial talks on mah crystal set."

* * *

Recently we overheard the conversation of a group of machinists during their noon-lunch hour. Between mouthfuls of pie and sandwiches they were discussing national politics with a sanity and instinctive comprehension that was little short of amazing.

The talk veered to science. A toolmaker gave a brief and intelligent explanation of the Einstein Theory. They drifted on into astronomy, and two of them, queried as to their rather astounding knowledge of the subject, explained it was their hobby.

These machinists evidently read scientific journals and books during spare time.

* * *

On the street car you frequently notice men who outwardly often may seem mediocre, reading "headache stuff"—philosophy, mysticism, biology, technical sciences, theories of business practice.

Average intelligence is advancing swiftly.

This has been revealed by the tremendous public interest in history as made interesting by H. G. Wells and Van Loon, and the popularization of science by Thompson and others.

And yet our generation is a collection of morons compared with the youngsters now growing up—a race of scientists, indicating their future by amazing technical understanding of radio.

Such words as "calories," "electrons" and "bacteria" have come into common use and are understood by the rank and file.

The editor or politician who underestimates average intelligence is riding for a fall. Schools, newspapers and libraries are getting in their work. And best of all, the public is beginning to develop a sixth sense that recognizes "bunk" at sight.

OVER THE FENCE

It's only a fence but the use is immense of the fence that stands out in yard. For every housewife spends a share of her life swapping sugar and butter and lard.

She'll lean on the fence when there's naught else to do and call to the neighbor next door. The air rings aloud with a merry yoo hoo, and the borrowing's started once more.

"Much to my sorrow, I find I must borrow a couple of eggs and some lard. I've started my baking and really, cake making, without these two items is hard.

The neighbor complies and she earnestly tries to indicate gladness to loan. But thoughts that are deep are "why doesn't she keep these things that she needs of her own?"

Like Old Mother Hubbard, mom goes to the cubbard and finds that it's bare of things; hence the things by the score that should come from the store are things that come over the fence.

THUNDERN'

Two little kiddies are tucked into bed and cover pulled up real tight. Their faces are washed and their prayers have been said, and they've kissed mom and daddy good night.

There's darkness outside and the wind starts to shriek and the tots are still as can be. Then one to the other will cautiously speak, "Say, cuddle up closer to me."

And then comes the glare of lightning flare and a thunder roll blasts through the night. Two pillows are bare; little heads are not there 'cause they've suddenly huddled from sight.

When the weather is warm and a summer-time storms, sends the elements out on a tear, you can't blame the mites on the thundery nights for wishin' their parents were there.

A faint little call travels down through the hall, e'er the thunder and lightning die. "Oh mamma! Oh, daddy! Come here, hold my paddy! They're having a war in the sky." fix up the infield too."

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

I have downed corned beef and cabbage, cooked the good old English style, till my appetite was fully satisfied; and I've masticated omelets, eaten weiners by the mile, and with apple, peach and raisin I've been plied.

Many times I've chawed a sirloin, quite enough for three or four, and the same is true of other cuts of meat. But the thing that gets me peevish; drives me mad, and makes me sore, is, they're always short of shortcake when I eat.

I can lasso marconi till the service dish is bare, and they serve this food in quantities galore. I can munch on mashed potatoes with a hunger that is rare, 'cause whene'er I clean my plate there's always more.

Charlotte Russe and I are playmates for I love this fluffy dish, and I've eaten it till I was fairly puffed. And with mothers' own bread-pudding I have satisfied my wish just to stuff and stuff till I was fairly stuffed.

You can name the list of dishes and I'll say I've had my share of the total lot except for one real treat. And I never will be happy or agree the deal is fair till they don't run short of shortcake when I eat.

BURNING MONEY MOST EVERY DAY.

Lumber Industry Claims That Fire Is Three-Fourth of Reforestation Problem.

Wood is so scarce in many parts of Europe that the peasants go about gathering bundles of small twigs to use as firewood. In France it is not uncommon to see an old woman actually sweeping up pine needles for fuel.

And yet Europe once was heavily forested, just as a large portion of America was before the coming of the white man with his logging crews and man-caused fires.

Our forests are vanishing swiftly. Experts say that a timber famine—even a Treeless America—is inevitable unless we stop destroying our forests and plant new trees.

Forests must be considered a crop, the same as wheat or cotton. Replanting must follow the harvest.

* * *

The lumber industry claims that fire is fully three-fourths of the reforestation problem. The figure may be exaggerated. But this is true:

Give Nature a chance and she will, to considerable extent, replace the ripe timber just as she has been doing for countless ages. New growth comes naturally. Give Nature assistance by planting systematically, and the danger of a timber famine will be within control.

The area of forest land swept by fire each year is about twice the area cut over annually by logging crews.

There are 36,000 forest fires in the United States every year—about 100 a day. These fires not only destroy mature timber, they also prevent or injure new growth. The actual loss by forest fires is estimated at 17 million dollars a year. But the real loss is vastly more. Why? Because an acre of seedling trees, when swept by fire, may be worth only $5, but it would be worth $200 when ready for the sawmill, and $1,000 or more in marketed finished form as building timber, furniture, etc.

The problem of planting new trees in forests is, after all, very remote from the average reader of this article.

But the fire problem is close to all of us.

Whenever you walk in the woods or pitch a camp, be extremely careful of starting forest fires. A glowing match or cigaret tossed carelessly away, or a campfire not extinguished on leaving, may cause millions of dollars worth of loss.

That is how YOU can help make sure there will be an ample supply of timber for the future. It is one of many thoughts that should be pondered during Forest Protection Week, beginning April 21. As for the lumber industry and the government, they are beginning to realize that crops of trees should be planted systematically, the same as wheat, corn, cotton and vegetables.

The grizzly is the most keen-minded species of all bears.

TWO GUN GIRL APPEARS IN NEW YORK WAVE OF VIOLENT ROBBERIES

Bobbed Thief Took $55 --Relieved Victim of $60 But Gave Back $5 on His Plea of Poverty

$35,000 GEM LOSS

NEW YORK, May 23.—Bandits were bolder and more active in New York yesterday than they have been for many weeks.

Axel Johnson and Albert, two payroll guards, were shot down at four o'clock yesterday afternoon while carrying a payroll of $2,700 to the Beechnut Foil Company in Bush Terminal Building, at 148 Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn.

A young bandit was shot and killed early yesterday morning by policemen who caught him in the act of holding up a man in front of 164 Judge Street, Jamaica.

Two bandits robbed a phonograph dealer in broad daylight at 253 Bowery.

A bob-haired bandit, carrying a revolver in either hand, robbed Louis Saxt, a picture-framer of 514 Bushwick Avenue, Williamsburg, at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The girl was alone, and, according to Saxt, she locked him up in his shop after robbing him.

Looks High School Age.

He said she was small and looked about high school age. According to his story, she came in yesterday and looked over scores of picture frames hanging in his shop and then studied a number of framed pictures. Finally she pointed at a gilded frame of elaborate design.

"How much will it be to make me a frame out of that for a two-foot photo enlargement?" she asked.

Saxt said it would be between $2 and $3.

"Too much," she replied. "I don't want to pay that much."

Saxt said that he stood by his price and that she began to rage at him. With a sudden twist, he said, she opened a silk bag. It dropped to the floor and he noticed that she had a revolver in each hand.

"Put them up," she said, motioning upwards with her revolvers. Saxt said that he was too bewildered to obey at first and he stared at her. He could not get over the idea at first that she was a school girl, he said. She wore a fuzzy grey coat and a hat of violet straw, silk stockings and silk pumps, and stood about four feet six inches tall. The combination did not look dangerous, and he hesitated.

Cowed By Her Black Eyes.

"I'll shoot you; if you don't," she said, according to Saxt. He said she had large black eyes that seemed to be in earnest, and he put up his hands. Then he faced the wall at her command. While in this position, with his hands up, the girl searched him, he said, taking $60 from one of his pockets. Then she gave him the usual threat to kill him if he moved. Then, according to Saxt, the following conversation took place:

"Don't take it all," he implored. "It's all I got."

"Are you married?"

"Yes; I have a wife and two children."

"Where are they?"

"In Russia."

She hesitated, according to Saxt, and then walked over to him. He started to look around, but he saw the revolver and he looked back at the wall. Then she thrust a $5 bill in his hand, saying it was the best she could do.

Still threatening him, she walked to the door. There was a key on the inside of the lock. She picked it out, walked outside, shut the door and locked it. Her last command was to remain as he was for five minutes, but Saxt said he cried out and ran to the door. He shook it and shouted in vain for a few seconds and then ran to the rear. Here he was able to tell his neighbor, a butcher, that he was locked in. The butcher turned the front door key and let him out. Saxt hurried to the Wilson Street station to report his experience.

Detectives are Sceptical.

There the detectives threw some cold water on his story. They expressed some doubt of the existence of the small, dark two-gun girl.

"It is true, every word of it," said Saxt, bursting into tears, as he told his story in his shop afterwards. He said he had been in this country only one year and that the loss would impede his plans for bringing his wife and children from Russia. The picture-framer offered security for his truthfulness by appeals in broken English and other languages to all that he held sacred. Detectives offered no reason for being sceptical.

The bandits at the Bush Terminal building, though working indoors, imitated the methods of the Diamond brothers. They opened fire on the messengers before even attempting to snatch the payroll. In this particular case, the shooting spoiled their plans. The bandits, who must have known all the customs of the Beechnut Foil Company, had taken their position at a turn in the staircase between the fourth and fifth floors. Their design was to take the money, dash upstairs and escape over the roof.

The payroll was guarded by Axel Johnson, a one-armed man, 27 years old, of 1150 Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, and by Albert Lake, chief clerk of the company, living at 55 Laconia Street, Elmhurst. The money is placed in envelopes in the office on the second floor. It has been the custom for these two men to carry it up to the fourth floor, which is the factory, where fifty men were waiting to be paid off. The one-armed man carried the money box and Lake, who was armed, escorted him.

Robbers Open Fire.

Lake and Johnson had reached the fourth floor when the bandits opened fire. Lake fell with a bullet in the left breast. Johnson was hit in the right thigh. Before he was wounded, however, he had pushed the iron door to the workshop with his shoulder and open it slightly. He staggered when the bullet struck him, but manages to fling the money box through the doorway into the shop. The iron door closed automatically.

Lake was unconscious and Johnson had fallen in a heap. The robbers rushed at the iron door, but it is heavy and hard to start swinging. Their shots had created an alarm, and they rushed upstairs without attempting to make a battle for the money, which amounted to $2,700

A few seconds later the iron door was opened from the inside and employees ran into the hallway. Lying on his side, Johnson pointed upward with one arm. Several of the employees ran up to the roof, but were too late.

The bandit who was killed yesterday morning was an eighteen-year-old boy, Harold Guintzel, of 329 East Eighty-ninth Street. He had never been in any trouble before. His partner in the crime, who was captured, was a twenty-year-old youth, Herman Mansbarth, of 479 South Street, Jamaica, who was making his first experiment in robbery.

Motorist Spoiled Hold?Up.

They were holding-up Walter Rankowitz in front of 164 Elmhurst, Queens, when a passing motorist caught a reflection of light from the revolver. He saw one man with his hands up, one aiming a revolver, and the third searching the victim. The motorist drove on, but he had gone only a short distance when he saw Policeman Henry Holzschneider. In a few seconds they were speeding back together to the place of the hold-up. The pocket-searching was still in progress.

Jumping from the machine, Holzschneider opened fire. Both bandits fled, but after the third shot, Mansarth stopped and threw up his hands.a The shooting brought Policeman Blehn, a "rookie," who began to shoot. When the excitement was over, however, the second bandit was missing.

Several other detectives and policemen arrived, and started a search of the neighborhood. Just after dawn the body of a dead boy was found in the rear of 14 Judge Street. There was a bullet wound in the back. The body was later identified as that of Guintzel.

Blames Dead Youth.

In the line-up at Police Headquarters many detectives looked over Mansbarth, but nobody could remember him as a criminal. The youth, who had been killed, had lived with his grandmother and had been considered a good boy. After confessing, Mansbarth laid the blame on the dead youth. He said he had met Quintzel playing handball at a Yorkville court, that they were both "broke," that Quintzel thought banditry would be easy monry, and that he procured the revolver and masks and laid the plans. Mansbarth said they had committed two other hold-ups last night before stopping Rankowitz.

Alfred Gross, the builder, whose large residence at 78 Exeter Street, Manhattan Beach, was raided by enforcement agents early Sunday morning, reported to the Coney Island Station yesterday that his wife had been robbed of jewels worth $35,000 during the raid.

Gross, who was arrested with two of his guests, asserted that the raiders had ransacked every room in his house.

"I don't know which ones were in my wife's bedroom," he said, "but they ransacked it, and to-day on our return, we found jewels worth $35,000 missing.

"I could not make any definite accusation against anybody, but we do know that the jewelry was missing after the raid."

VAST AIRFLEETS TO CROSS DESERTS

By WILLIAM J. LOSH.

WASHINGTON, May 23 (United Press).—Cities of Babylon of Persia, whose cobbled streets once resounded to the drumming hoofs of Marco Polo's caravans, but long since abandoned to a sweet and dusty solitude, are soon to take their ancient places in the world of commerce again, students here believe.

The trumpet call for their resurrection to ancient splendor and glories is to be the drone and hum of the airplane motor, hurtling mighty flying ships around the world along the route in which these cities played great parts before Portugese discoveries furnished a new way of bringing spices of Asia to the west.

This is the conclusion observers of the trends of trade draw from the present round-the-world flights being stated by the United States, Great Britain, France and Portugal.

Old Caravan Track

Each nation has routed its flyers for the lap between Asia and Europe along the old caravan track which started at Mediterranean ports in Asia Minor, followed the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates in Mesopotamia, passed north of the Persian Gulf and the Straits of Ormuz, skirted the Arabian Sea and ended in India.

Students of commerce see in this choice the probable selection of this route in future circum-globular travel when round-the-world flights are more than experiments and they predict that its use will restore importance to such old trading cities as Bagdad and Basra, along the Mesopotamian rivers; Bushire and Bandar Abbas, on the Persian Gulf; the Ormuz Straits, Choubar and Gwetter, on the Arabian Sea, and Karachi and Agra, in India.

Practical certainty of the future selection of this route is held to be contained in the climatic conditions that prevail along it. Lying as it does in warm latitudes, undisturbed by either tropical storms or the cold blasts encountered on the Siberian steppes, it affords virtually ideal weather the year around for flying. Storms ,of course, frequent the Persian Gulf, and at periodic intervals the monsoon ebbs and flows from the Afghanistan highlands to the Arabian sea with turbulent violence, but, all in all, so far as weather conditions are concerned, none better prevail in that quarter of the globe.

Much Work to be Done

To provide for a steady steram of air travel along this route, proper landing fields and accommodations for travelers will necessarily have to be built up. But this is regarded as a corollary to the establishment of the route and certain to be cared for.

Political complications will, of course, arise in promoting use of the route. The great flying nations, United States, Great Britain and France, will have to deal with the kingdom of Irag, Persia, Oman, and Beluchistan for the safety and security of travel along it. In this Great Britain will have the advantage along most of it, because of her influence in Mesopotamia and Beluchistan, France, with a mandale in Syria and considerable influence with the Angora government of Turkey, can dominate a part of it.

Russia, however, looms as the power to contend with because of her sway in Persia, the central part of the route.. The United States, except as she can deal with these powers, would appear to have no say in affairs concerning it, except as she might wield some influence in Persia by virtue of her assistance to that country in recent years in straightening out her finances and the presence of an American financial mission there.

PATIENTS TESTIFY

PARIS, May 23. — The criminal court of Amiens yesterday heard the defence of a 66 year old man being tried for illegally practicing medicine. The prisoner, although not a physician, has for 30 years been healing cases that were pronounced incurable by physicians.

The healer contended his cures were effected by a method taught him by his grandmother, viz., "Triscopia"— a diagnosis obtained by examining the eyeball of the patient and his profound knowledge of applying simple remedies according to the diagnosis.

The defense argued that the prisoner never cured for money, but for humanity. It was also said that only desperate "incurable" had applied to him from all parts of this and other countries after their respective doctors had failed to help them.

It further was stated that the small fortune the old man had saved came from voluntary contributions of grateful patients, many of whom testified to the prisoner's mysterious healing powers. Though virtually illiterate, among his patient witnesses were an ex-colonel, a politician, a captain of police, a manufacturer, pharmacists, and an author.

The prisoner was not arrested at the request of the doctors—several of whom he had cured—but on the complaint of a jealous herborist who resented the fact that the prescripions were filled by the prisoner's nephew.

The defense closed by asking the Court to take consideration of the fact that the healer's prescriptions were signed legally by a graduate physician, and never had called for medicines, but exclusively herbs. The sentence will be announced next week.

"The Finish That Endures"

Here Is a Paint That Saves Money as well as the Surface

What Determines Paint Value?

Paint value cannot be determined by the price per gallon.

It must be found in the extent to which it will cover and in the length of time which it will protect and preserve.

The real value of a paint is therefore arrived at on the value of service given annually per square foot or per thousand square feet. In other words, it is necessary to find the yearly cost of paint per thousand square feet.

Low-priced paint, covering 300-350 square feet, and lasting not more than two years, invariably gives the highest annual cost.

The highest priced paint, covering 500 square feet, and lasting at least four years, undoubtedly gives the greatest annual service value per thousand square feet.

From a decorative standpoint, the higher priced paint has more permanent colors, gives a better finish and retains a more lasting appearance.

The following is an extract from a letter that we will show on request:—

"Another old-time painter, Mr. H. Brawn, had a large house that he had already primed, and he figured that it would take seven gallons to put on the second coat. We persuaded him to try Floglaze Exterior, and we sent six gallons to do the job. After it was completed he had two gallons left, having finished the job with four gallons instead of seven."

Floglaze Exterior will cover 500 square feet, two coats, to the gallon ---a saving of 25% in material over any other kind of paint. It will give 25% greater wearing value---a saving in renewal and labor charges.

Buy Your Paint on the Basis of Annual Service Cost Per Thousand Square Feet

You would not buy lumber by the cord. You buy it by board measure. For maximum value buy your paint on the basis of the amount of surface it will cover and the number of years it will last. Paint covering 300 to 350 square feet, two coats, and selling at approximately $4.35 per gallon, will cost $12.40 per thousand square feet. If it lasts three years its annual service cost would be $4.14.

Floglaze EXTERIOR will cover 500 square feet, two coats, to the gallon, and last at least four years. This gives a cost of $12.40 per thousand square feet, and an annual service cost of $3.10. FLOGLAZE gives a more enamel-like surface, holds its gloss longer and gives 25% better protection than lead and oil or any other paint.

THAW RODE

"I remained over to-day upon the advice of my attorneys regarding certain business of yesterday. After dining at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark, Mr. Bartholomew B. Coyne and I motored over to his home in Maplewood, N. J., from where we drove with Rev. Father Henry G. Coyne to the depot so that I might catch a train for Philadelphia. Upon being informed, however, by a friend that the train would not reach Philadelphia till 2.30 in the morning, we decided to remain in New York.

"Three reporters followed thus far. When we reached the tube, two remained. As I wanted to see my extremely able physician, Dr. Valdemar Sillo, it was necessary to lose the good reporters. We motored and so did they and their gasoline supply like ours became exhausted. Then we got more before they could and so we left them, and then I went to Dr. Sillo's apartment at 353 West Fifty-Seventh Street and remained there over night.

"In the morning I called at the office of my attorney, A. H. Goodman, who handled these cases several years ago. From there I came to Mr. Coyne's office, 2 Rector Street, and am now here. I merely mention these details as I do not wish to dodge our friends, the reporters. I have but one statement to make at this time before leaving for Pittsburgh."

The statement went on to recall a conversation on April 6 last in Philadelphia with Dr. Elwood R. Kirby, and said:

"In the course of our conversation the subject of Miss Nesbit came up and her present financial condition was discussed. Last January she issued a statement that was very short and precise: 'Harry is all right and I hope he will gain his freedom, and I wish him the best of luck in the future.' Several years ago she earned a large income from her pictures and artistic work, but later she lost considerable money. For this reason, if there are no counter-objections, we thought proper that she should be given $10 a day as long as she lives—no contract being implied. This sum would be given her for her personal use and no one else could get it. As she is very adept as a sculptress and in modelling, she may pursue her talents in that direction.

Does Not Blame Former Wife.

"Since this conversation with Dr. Kirby last month, Miss Nesbit made several statements to the press while my trial was in progress. One could not blame her, as I was not able to do anything until now."

The statement concludes with an expression of gratitude "to my mother, my family and friends and to my counsel, Mr. Coyne, Judge Patterson, Judge Stone, Mr. Medalie and others who have rendered most admirable services—and in some instances extending over several years."

Thaw and Coyne had spent two hours preparing this statement. When it had been given out, Thaw said he was fatigued and hungry and that he planned to rest until he boarded a train at 10.30 o'clock. He said he had to be in Pittsburgh immediately to attend the funeral of his brother Edward, who died in

Thornton Boosts Canada's Charms

BUFFALO, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Two hundred of Buffalo's leading financial and industrial men heard yesterday an inspiring address from Sir Henry W. Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, descriptive of Canada and the opportunities offered by the Dominion to those with capital, brains or brawn. "Go north," was the modern day slogan, said the Railway Chief, paraphrasing the advice of Horace Greeley

Plenty of room, plenty of opportunities, awaited the settler in Canada, he said.

BURNBRAE

county, was put up at Wellman's Corners, in Hastings. A waggon was engaged steadily in gathering the milk, some of which was hauled a distance of 10 miles. The highest revenue received in any one year was $15 for each cow maintained and as this represents a loss, the factory was closed.

Mrs. William Hume began cheese making at home and this product soon received a reputation on the market, but the progressive farmers aimed to carry on the dairy business on a larger scale.

Mr. Hume, H. Whitton and James Cleugh organized a joint stock company to operate another cheese factory, they agreeing to supply milk from 100 cows if the remainder of the stockholders would guarantee a like number. That was the origin of the Brae cheese factory, which is still in operation. The late Thomas Hume was the first president of the company and his son Alex. succeeded him in that office, giving up the position this spring after 27 years of continuous service. Altogether father and son between them held the presidency for nearly half a century.

Pioneer Cheese Maker.

The first man secured as cheesemaker for the Brae factory was an American expert, who turned out a high brand of cheese. James Whitton, the young son of one of the organizers of the company, went into the factory to learn the business. Six weeks later the American gave up his position, leaving the young man to carry on alone. In a short time he was able to turn out as good cheese as any on the market.

The cheese factory, known as Brae was the first ever started in Northumberland county, just as the one at Wellman's Corners was the first in Hastings.

The Herd at Humeshaugh.

At present the herd of Ayrshires at Humeshaugh consists of 31 pure bred animals. Usually there are over 50 animals kept, but the number has been reduced by recent sales. Mr. Hume, however, has several purchases in prospect. In his father's day a barn was put up with accommodation for 50 cattle. The elder Hume's ambition was to fill every stall with a pure-bred, a feat that has been achieved by his son.

The herd sire, which cost the owner $2,000, is a well known prize winner in his class at the leading pure bred stock shows. This bull has been sold to a breeder at Winnipeg who will take him out west in June.

Modern Farm Plant.

The buildings on Humeshaeugh are all fitted up in the most modern style so that labor has been reduced to a minimum. Residence and barns are lighted by electricity suplied by the Hydro. There is a complete water works system in the house. There are two silos in which 300 tons of fodder can be stored. For ensilage Mr. Hume prefers corn and, after experimenting, has decided to use sweet clover only for pasture. He believes that alfalfa is beyond all question the most profitable hay crop that a stockman can raise and the high land on his farm is admirably suited to its production.

Was Warden in 1914.

The late Thomas Hume was elected to the Seymour township and his son followed in his municipal footsteps, serving one year as councillor and five as reeve. In 1914 he was elected Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham and cherishes the memory of his experience at Cobourg as one of the most pleasant and instructive in his career. County councillors as a rule retire after achieving the wardenship and the honor is regarded as a stepping stone to political preferment. In 1919 Mr. Hume was the legislative candidate of the Conservative party for his riding. That was the year that the U.F.O. movement was in its heyday and Mr. Hume was defeated by the candidate of the farmers' party by a narrow margin. In the town of Campbellford he scored the highest majority ever given a legislative or Federal candidate. He has served the public as president of the Brae cheese factory, as head of the Seymour Agricultural Society and of the Dairymen's Association, and his services are always in demand as a judge of Ayrshire cattle.

A Son of His Father.

William, son of Alex. Hume, and his business partner, is as much interested as his father in pure bred stock. From his many duties he is able to take time to devote to athletics and is one of the best all round players on the Northumberland League baseball team, never failing to take part in every scheduled game.

Two Side Lines.

Alex. Hume and Son, as the firm is called, are also breeders of pure bred Yorkshire swine and White Leghorn poultry, but it is for their Ayrshire herd that they are best known. They will be represented at the stock show at Minneapolis in October.

GOLF.

A glutton for statistics figures out that a golf fan expends 1600 calories of energy in a game. This includes swings with the clubs and walking from hole to hole but no allowances for the energy vented in outbursts of rage.

The average golfer in one game uses up a third of the energy his body generates in a day. It is obvious why golf is a dangerous sport for devotees who overdo it, especially the old. More people die playing golf than any other game.

ARE FRUITMEN GROCERS?

Cobourg Council Asked for Decision That Will Satisfy Holiday Seekers.

COBOURG, May 23.—Is a grocer a fruitman if he sells fresh fruits and is a fruitman a grocer if he sells groceries, is one of the matters with which the Cobourg Town Council has to deal. The reason therefore is, that the grocers want to close their stores on Wednesday afternoons commencing on June 1 so that they may take part in the usual summertime half holiday. Some of the fruit men, it appears, do not desire or do not see their way clear to close. The matter was put befor the Town Council at its last session by a deputation of grocers, who set forth their side of the question and asked the Council to pass a by-law closing certain stores on Wednesday afternoons.

The by-law committee of the Council will report.

In China there is a strong movement among the new generation of girls against the custom of infant betrothals.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OUTSIDE CHURCH

Edward Skitch of Campbellford Methodist Church Successfully Develops Innovation.

MEETINGS AT HIS HOME

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23.—An innovation by the Methodist Sunday school is the maintaining of an outside class which meets at the residence of Edward Skitch, who acts as teacher. The idea, which originated with Mr. Skitch, for years a teacher in the regular department of the Sunday school, was suggested by the work started in Chicago years ago by the late Evangelist Moody. Mr. Moody applied for a position as Sunday school teacher and was told that an opportunity would be given him on condition that he supply his own scholars, none of whom were to belong to any other school.

Mr. Skitch works on the same plan. His aim is to reach those who are connected with no Sunday school. His class was organized on 13th of January last, with the sanction of Alex. Winter, superintendent of the parent Sunday school. On the opening day there were four scholars all of whom Mr. Skitch had located, and upon whom his counsel had prevailed. The attendance has steadily increased, until last Sunday there were 16 interested scholars in the class. The session begins at the same hour as that of the regular Sunday school and reports of the work and of the contributions are made every Sunday. Each scholar is urged to bring a new member to the class.

Mrs. I. Boyld is pianist and Mrs. V. Marks is secretary-treasurer of the class. A member of the Methodist church choir visits the branch school every session and renders a solo, those already heard in this capacity being Mrs. R. T. Cowell, Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Casement. The solo-ist for next Sunday will be Mrs. E. Bates.

Any person not at present attending a Bible class or a Sunday school is cordially invited to join this class, the sessions of which begin at 2.30 every Sunday afternoon. The recognized form of procedure is followed and the regular Sunday school lesson is taught.

School Gardens.

School gardening is being carried on at the Separate school and although the ground available is limited the most has been made of it and it is carefully and neatly laid out. Every pupil is given a plot, furnished with seeds and held responsible for their planting and care. Practical instruction is given by a member of the staff, who holds a diploma as an agricultural teacher. The result of the work will be watched with interest by the citizens generally.

Special Council Meeting.

The town council held a special meeting on Thursday afternoon to pass the by-law fixing the tax rate for the year at 41 mills. J. D. Cummings, who sent in the tax roll, was re-appointed collector for the ninth consecutivte year.

Sale Called Off.

Adam Outtendyke, who recently bought the farm of John Duff in Percy township, T. L. Diamond making the sale, has purchased all the stock and implements on the farm. Mr. Duff had arranged to sell these by auction on Tuesday, but the sale has been called off. Mr. Duff, who is one of the pioneers of Percy, has been obliged to give up farming on account of ill health. He will make his future home in Campbelliford.

Apsley Woman Living Alone Was Found Dead

Neighbors of Mrs. Drummond Uncertain of Time of Her Death.

APSLEY, May 22.—Mrs. Drummond, an aged, well known resident of Chandos township, was found dead in her bed at her home at Owenbrook on Saturday morning, when neighbors broke into the house after vainly trying to get a response to their repeated calls and knocks. Mrs. Drummond had lived alone for many years, and was an eccentric character, suffering from hallucinations of a religious nature. She was about seventy-four years of age, her only known relatives being a brother and nephew who reside at Colborne. Many conflicting stories regarding the length of time that elapsed between her death and discovery of the fact, and also the cause of it, are current in the neighborhood. No inquest was held, and it is claimed that she was buried without a burial permit or doctor's certificate of death. She was interred in the cemetery at Owenbrook on Sunday afternoon, Mr. Fred Walker of Coe Hill, officiating.

The peculiar circumstances surrounding the whole affair seem to warrant an investigation, according to local opinion.

PET MONKEY TESTED AN ELECTRIC CHAIR

MANILA, May 23.—(Associated Press). — "Ronquillo," a monkey which long has been a pet around the Luneta police station, has been sacrificed on the altar of science. The Philippine government more than a year ago adopted the electric chair as a means of executing condemned murderers, and in order to test the efficiency of the apparatus, which recently was received from the United States, Ronquillo was commandeered as the first victim. It required five seconds to kill the monkey.

Officials have announced that the chair is ready to be used for the electrocution of nine murderers who have been held in Bilibid prison awaiting the installation of the apparatus. The Philippine Islands is the first country in the Far East to adopt the electric chair for the execution of murderers.

COBOURG ROAD MAY BE PAVED

Report That the Highway From Port Hope to Cobourg May Get Permanent Surface This Summer.

COBOURG, May 22.—Mr. Edward Rowe is reported to be still improving and it is hoped that he will shortly be recovered from all serious effects, resulting from his unfortunate accident.

Very grave anxiety has been felt for Mr. Byron McCroden's condition. He has been in the habit of spending a part of the summer at Rice Lake, where he also has personal friends, as well as here in Cobourg. Dr. Armstrong of Roseneath who attended him at time of his accident after the shooting is also a friend.

Dredge Here.

The Dredge St. Lawrence of the Frontenac Dredging Company has arrived at the harbour here and is being fitted out for the work of dredging the harbour.

May Be Paved.

There is a report current, whether authentic or not we cannot state, that the Provincial Highway between Cobourg and Port Hope will be paved this summer. This piece of road has been in poor condition this spring and motorists generally would be glad to know of some such action being taken.

Notice of Appeal.

Notice of appeal is stated to have been given in the case of the conviction of a local business man, who last week was fined $1,000 and three months in jail for an alleged breach of the Ontario Temperance Act, on the ground, it is further stated, that the fine is too severe. The charge against this citizen was one of selling, and it was an alleged second offence for breach of the O.T.A.

PRESBYTERIANS REJECT THEORY OF EVOLUTION

SAN ANTONIO, May 23.—The Presbyyterian Church in the United States declared through its General Assembly here, that it does not believe in evolution.

As an explanation of Man's origin, this theory was denounced in a resolution reaffirming the Church's stand given in a former assembly.

THE CHEERFUL WOMAN

Is One Who Has the Rich, Red Blood of Good Health.

The fact that one woman is bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked, strong, and cheerful, while another is pale, weak, and depressed is due more often than otherwise to the condition of the blood. The way to remedy this depressed state is to build up the blood, and for this purpose there is no other tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A case in point is that of Mrs. Melvin Abra, Graveley Street, Vancouver, B.C., who says: "About two years ago I was a very sick woman. I seemed to be wasting away and getting thinner all the time. I grew so weak that the doctor sent me to the hospital, but the treatment there did not help me and I returned home. Then I tried a number of tonics with no better results. At this stage my mother came to me, and as she is a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, she started me on this mtdicine. I can only say that they did wonders for me. I began to get new health and strength after I had taken a few boxes, and day by day this improvement continued until I was again well and able to do all my housework, and I have not had a sick day since. I cannot recommend your pills too highly and urge those who are looking for health and happiness to give them a trial."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

VOTING SINCE 1860 IS NOW FOUND INELIGIBLE

SEATTLE, May 23 (Associated Press).—E. W. Binns, 86, of Seattle, a veteran of the Civil War, who voted for Abraham Lincoln twice and who has cast his ballot for every Repblican presidential candidate since 1860, has recently found out he is not a citizen and can not vote for a candidate this fall.

When Binns went to register the clerk of a Seattle registration office fonud out that he was born in England, that he was not naturalised, though he had voted since 1860, and that, while he thought his father was a naturalised citizen of the United States, he could not produce a copy of his father's naturalisation papers.

Binns' father died 30 years ago.

PETERBORO ORCHESTRA DELIGHTED MILLBROOK

Music - Lovers of Cavan Greeted the Gliddon Symphony, Comfortably Filling the Armouries—The Programme Included the Ontario Festival Test Works.

MILLBROOK, May 23. — Lovers of good music enjoyed a rare treat on Wednesday evening when the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra gave an entertainment under the auspices of the Millbrook Continuation School. An appreciative audience filled the Armouries comfortably for the occasion, and had it not been open night for the stores preventing many of the business men from attending, seating capacity would doubtless have been taxed so many were anxious to hear a musical organisation which has recently added to its laurels by bringing home first honours in more than one class from the Musical Festival in Toronto.

The vocal solos contributed by Miss Ina Allen, who has a number of pupils here, were warmly encored each time.

L. C. Russell, chairman of the local Board of Education, made a brief opening address, welcoming the visiting artistes to the village and congratulating Professor Gliddon, and through him as leader, the other members of the orchestra, upon the well-deserved success which had been their portion, and the honour which they had brought to their own city, in the recent competition with several other similar organisations gathered from a Province-wide field.

J. W. Greene, chairman of Board of Education, Peterborough, replied in a few words, explaining that two of the selections which won the first prize shields at the Musical Festival would be played by the orchestra during the course of the programme.

The various numbers were as follows:

MILK A SPRING TONIC

No meal is complete without good, pure milk in some form. Serve it as delivered or cooked, you know your family is the better in health, spirits and energy for its daily help. Milk, as if by magic, brings you in winter the stored-up goodness of field and meadow—tender grasses, greens, fruits and flowers of all out-doors. In summer milk is even more to be desired, as it incorporates all the freshness and sweetness of every good growing thing which Mother Nature has provided for her animal charges.

No wonder milk is good—and good for us. As a spring tonic, a summer tonic, or a year-round tonic, it has no rivals. When we stop to think that milk is the essence of Mother Nature's bounty, we should crave it and value it accordingly.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, who has become entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—guest at the country home of

Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, from whom (unknown to all, save Prudence, who has been wrongly accused of one of her thefts) Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Performing an experiment in his laboratory, there is an explosion, and Peter is blinded. His nurse, Janet Mercer, takes Prudence to see the injured man.

Mrs. Vansittart urges Virginia, for decency sake, to go also.

Prudence shows Peter her unquenchable love for him, and at that moment they overhear Virginia announcing that she will never marry a blinded man!

Virginia turns to her old sweetheart, Bert Traymore, who tells her he no longer wishes to marry her—"A Common Thief."

And says he knows of her thefts and must have 'hush money'. Later, Virginia is arrested.

CHAPTER LXXVII
A Hateful Scene.

Virginia! In handcuffs!

Traymore could hardly believe the evidence of his own eyes!

"Save me, Bert! Oh, save me!" Like the heroine of a cheap melodrama, Virginia jerked forward towards him, but the handcuffs held her back.

"Take them off; they aren't necessary!" blurted out Mrs. Vansittart, who was weeping in a heart-broken fashion. Then, helplessly to Traymore.

"To think that such a ghastly scene could take place in my house! I'll never, never get over this!"

"Calm yourself, lady! The law must take its course," said one of the men authoritatively; but he nodded to the constables to undo the mancles. "If the prisoner won't try and escape again, and won't struggle, we'll treat her properly."

Mrs. Vansittart mopped her eyes.

"Come in and shut the door. The whole world'll know about this soon enough," she moaned to Traymore. "Oh, the disgrace will kill me! Oh, I know it will!"

The plain-clothes man said, briskly: "You have nothing to reproach yourself with, madam, except for being too 'easy'." He had a notebook with him, and turning to Virginia, observed:

"If the prisoner has anything further she wishes to say, go ahead; but I must caution her to be careful, as any statements she makes will be taken in evidence against her."

"I never took the things," cried Virginia, glaring round at everybody like a tigress.

"You will be given ample opportunity to prove the truth of what you say. Meantime, the evidence against you is overwhelming. This lady here—" —he indicated Mrs. Vansittart—"has employed one of my men in the house for a full two weeks, and it's principally on his evidence that you are being arrested."

Virginia made a clawing motion towards Simpson, the detective who has masqueraded as a butler, and who had seen her many times when she least suspected it!

In her trunks had been discovered stolen property, enough to convict her over and over again!

Janet Mercer's sweetheart was standing beside the pawnbroker who had sold to him Mrs. Vansittart's ruby ring. Virginia had stolen the ring in the first instance, and sold it outright to the broker for twenty-five dollars, little reckoning it would come home to roost again!

"Mr. Ogilvie gave it to his fiancee as an engagement ring," Mrs. Vansittart had explained to the plain-clothes man she had hired to investigate all the recent peculiar happenings at Winston Towers. "He bought it in a pawnshop at the neighboring town, and so it should be quite an easy matter to trace the thief."

Virginia would have been caught, in any case, for Simpson had many 'counts' against her. But her carelessness in not taking precautions anent the stolen ring had precipitated matters just a little.

"That's the young lady, certainly." The owner of the pawnshop had identified her at once. Virginia was a striking figure one wouldn't forget in a hurry.

Traymore would have fled from the hateful scene, if flight were possible. He was terrified that Virginia—stupid idiot that she had been!—would try to drag him down with her, if she were able to encompass it.

Indeed, she did do her worst, by blurting out that Traymore had known for some time about the thefts, and had only today demanded 'hush-money'.

"In that case," said the plain-clothes man to Traymore, you may be cited as 'accessory after the fact'."

Traymore had utterly denied the least knowledge of Virginia's guilt, and in this Mrs. Vansittart, who herself had been so hoodwinked, and for so long a period, backed him up.

"None of us knew what a—a Judas—we were harboring," vehemently she cried. "You can see it's as great a shock to Mr. Traymore as it is to me."

That observation stood Bert Traymore in good stead, although he was instructed that he must appear as a witness in the prisoner's forthcoming trial.

Finally, Virginia, alternately breathing forth venom and hysteria was led away by the police and officer commanding them, and taken by car to the neighboring police headquarters there to spend a night in meditation on the plight that her own greed and wickedness had led her into.

Mrs. Vansittart retired to bed, 'completely prostrated', to use her own phrase in the matter.

After a light evening meal (somehow he hadn't much appetite tonight!) Bert Traymore came to a certain definite decision.

"No time like the present," he reflected, fortifying himself with a double whisky, neat. The blame of his forthcoming enterprise could easily be flung upon Virginia, who would doubtless be in prison by the time discovery was made! She's been arrested today, so if the worst came to the worst, that would cover up my tracks!"

So deciding, and with a flash-light in his pocket plus one or two things necessary to his 'enterprise', he set off through the darkness stealthily.

MAKING LINGERIE AT HOME

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, May 23.—(United Press).—This is the month that many women devote a week's time toward making their Summer underwear. Undergarments have never been so simple to make as they are this season, and women who feel that they are not adept enough at sewing to make their gowns often find that undergarments require little skill. It is much cheaper to make them one's self than to purchase them in the shops.

Of course, every woman is well aware of the fashions in silk lingerie. Those who can afford silk will have no trouble in copying the silk models in the shops. This year, however, we find that lingerie voile is a new material sponsored for undergarments, which comes in almost every conceivable pastel shade. This voile launders well and holds its color. It is soft and the better qualities are almost as transparent as georgette. The price of lingerie voile ranges from 28 cents a yard to 50 cents a yard, so it comes within the means of everyone.

Shops and department stores are selling ready-made garments of voile which can be easily copied. These are usually trimmed in contrasting colors, rather than with lace. A model which is most attractive consists of step-ins and a separate top, which is made the length of the average skirt. The step-ins are banded in slightly at the knees by a turn-back cuff of contrasting voile. The upper portion, or overvest, extends to about hip-length and is likewise finished with a turnback cuff of contrasting shade. This vest is worn outside the step-ins, taking the place of the corset cover or chemise. Step-ins this season are made more scant than last season and they are extremely short in many cases.

There are many ways of trimming the voile undergarment. One of the most effective ways is the trimming of tiny squares of contrasting shade which are appliqued onto the garment. These squares are often embroidered in monograms or floral designs. Again, the voile may be bordered with the buttonhole stitch as a finish. Where the shoulder straps are made of voile this is a pretty finish. Colors that are frequently used together are pink and blue, yellow and lavender, green and rose, black and yellow and pink and orchid.

Jersey silk tubing in all shades is sold by the yard for the making of silk undervests. The average woman requires only three-quarters of a yard of this material. It is being sold at many shops for $1.25 per yard. The simplest way to make these vests is to hem the top and bottom edges and add shoulder straps of ribbon, but the woman who wishes a garment to have some shape prefers to split the tubing and use a vest pattern. By doing this one has a better fitting garment and the only additional sewing is the two side seams. If the material which is cut off at the sides, which is on the length-wise of the vest the vest will be firmer about the top and not have a tendency to stretch.

Colored costumes slips are designed for the colored frock. Each frock this season must have a slip of its own, as the days of the white slip are over. Voile is used to make many of these colored slips, the material being doubled to form a wide, sun-proof border.

The fastidious woman likes to have complete sets of one color. That is, she will have one complete set of pink lingerie, including silk vest, step-ins and costume slip, one set of lavender, a set of nile green, a set of yellow, etc. By making thes things herself she can be well groomed as to underwear at small expense. Where the costume slip is used one need not wear a chemise. Vest, brassiers, step-ins and costume slip are all that are required.

Voile nightgowns are also popular this season. These are simply made and bound about the neck and armholes in constrasting shade. Appliques of contrasting colored voile may be used as trimming. One lovely gown of nile green has a spray of pink roses with dark green stem and leaves appliqued as a corsage. The gown is bound about neck and armholes in dark green, the shade of the leaves.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

MORE ABOUT WONDERLAND

I happened to mention Dinah, my cat

Nancy and Nick and Mister Muggs were talking to Alice, who had had such wonderful adventures in a place called Wonderland.

"Oh, yes," said Alice, "the rabbit was a dear, but the mouse was always getting offended. I started it in the first place by crying a whole lake of tears and nearly drowing the poor thing; then while we were both swimming about, I happened to mention Dinah, my cat, who is such a good mouser. Next I spoke of the terrier next door, and the first thing I knew he swam away in a great rage. But he came back after that, when I begged his pardon, we ran a race to dry ourselves after our wetting."

"Who else did you see?" asked Nancy.

"Oh, let me see," said Alice. "I went to a tea-party while I was there. A queer tea-party it was! The Mad Hatter and the March Hare and the Dormouse were having it."

"That was a queer party!" remarked Nancy.

"Wasn't it, though! It was even queerer than it sounds, for their conversation was most unusual," said Alice. "They asked riddles without any answers, and the Dormouse slept all the time. They really didn't invite me, but the table was so long and the three of them took up so little room, I invited myself. As they used up the clean dishes, they kept moving along to new places and I had a hard time talking to them at all."

"What did they say?" asked Nick, who was more interested in the March Hare and the Dormouse and the Mad Hatter than he was in Alice.

"It was all very silly," said Alice. "The Mad Hatter complained that his watch was two days slow because he had oiled it with butter. And the March Hare replied that he couldn't understand that at all as it was such good butter. And then the Hatter said that no doubt crumbs had got in and the Hare had put the butter in with the breadknife."

"Why was his watch two days slow, instead of two minutes slow?" asked Nick curiously.

"Because it stays one year so long in Wonderland," said Alice, "that they tell time by days instead of minutes.

"After that the Dormouse began to sing," Alice went on.

"What did he sing?" asked Nancy, who wanted to know every word about everything.

"Let me see if I can remember. It went like this, I think:

"'Twinkle, twinkle, little bat,
How I wonder what you're at,
Up above the world so high,
Like a tea-tray in the sky.'

"The last time he said it, the sleepy Dormouse went 'twinkle, twinkle, twinkle,' so many times that he fell asleep again.

"The last I saw of them, the Hatter and the Hare were trying to put the Dormouse into the teapot," said Alice.

"Oh, dear! That was funny," said Nancy. "Do you know any more?"

"I'll tell you another part of my adventure tomorrow," said Alice, "if you like it."

Why Girls With Yellow Teeth Are Unpopular

No girl with yellow-stained teeth can be popular—no matter how attractive she may be otherwise. A girl may have a pretty face or a pleasant personality—yet if her teeth have a yellowish look she cannot be truly charming to men.

Men admire personal daintiness in a woman more than the clothes she wears. Notice the girl with pearly white teeth—she has a charm and attractiveness that is always lacking in the girl with yellowish teeth.

Yet there are still many girls with dull, dingy teeth who have not found out that teeth stains and discolorations can be completey removed by using a new scientific treatment recently perfected. This marvelous discovery is known as Bleachodent Combination. Contains a mild liquid which quickly softens and loosens the hardened stains which cling to the teeth so that they can be gently removed by the special kind of paste included in treatment. Once the stains have vanished Bleachodent Combination will prevent the formation of future stains and keep the teeth beautifully white—always.

This wonderful treatment, while it completely cleans the teeth, does not affect the enamel as its mild ingredients are especially combined to act only on surface stains. Men always admire sparkling white teeth. So get Bleachodent Combination (containing liquid and paste) today. Small cost. MORE JOBS WITH INCREASED WAGE

There Are At Present Over One Million People Listed In the Unemployed.

LONDON, May 23. — (United Press.)—The lot of British labor is better to-day than it has been at any time since the world war.

There are more jobs, higher wages and a lower living cost. Under each classification there is still much room for improvement. About 1,600,000 are listed in the army of unemployed—but there used to be 2,000,000, and until recently had rarely ever been less than 1,500,000. During the first three months this year, British payrolls for 1,700,000 workmen showed wage increases of $1,030,000 per week, or almost sixty cents per person.

Concurrently 590,000 workmen had wage reductions averaging thirty cents each per week. For the same period last year the condition was reversed—only 190,,000 workmen had wage increases and 1,600,000 had decreases. As for living costs, the level of retail prices in England now is seventy-three per cent. above July, 1914. A year ago it was seventy-four per cent.

So—the cost of living, while not down enough to brag about, has slumped one little point, at least. The individual who is still out of a job, or who got no raise is convinced, no doubt, that conditions were never worse. Even the man with a munificent sixty-cent per week raise isn't tossing his hat in the air and giving three rousing cheers. Reduced to individual terms the statistics are not enthusing, but, considered in their aggregate, most authorities here concede that the only interpretation is England has "turned the corner"—that the worst of unemployment has been passed; that the path now leads, though slowly, to better conditions of employment, wages and living.

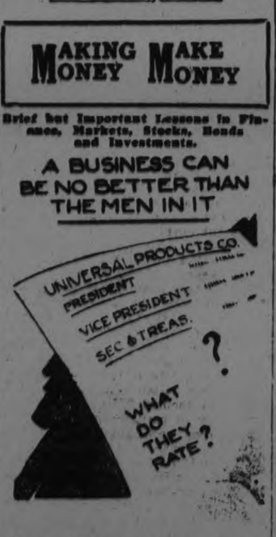
Another substantial evidence of the improvement is that England's "Army of Unemployed" has become long ago, an army that completetly changes its personnel periodically. An "army" is out of work—but not the same "army." This month 1,000,000 men are out of work. Six months ago most of the men in that million were at work, whereas an entirely different set of men were out of jobs. Six months from now, the million now in the army will all be at work. There will be another "army" composed of men who are working now but who will be out of work then.

"There is a ten per cent change every week in this 'army of unemployed' and a complete change within three months," Labor officials say. "This isn't a matter of opinion. It is an absolute fact, shown by the card-index records of every unemployed person. Very few of the 'army' are permanently unemployed. Only five or six per cent. have been unemployed for as long as two years and, as I say, it is very rare for a person to go three consecutive months without getting a job. There has been, and is, much uncertainty of jobs. There has been, and is, the 'army of unemployment'—but it isn't a standing army. Not only does its personnel shift regularly, but it is steadily getting smaller in numbers.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

A BUSINESS CAN BE NO BETTER THAN THE MEN IN IT



Industrial stock is as good as the ability of the men at the head of the business.

If you think of buying industrial stock or bonds, investigate the records of the men who direct the enterprise. Your banker will help you in this investigation or will direct you to reliable sources of information.

An industry that supplies something the public needs or wants, or an industry which is controlled and managed by able men, is usually an excellent investment.

But, an industrial enterprise that does not supply definite needs or wants is a speculation. Such an enterprise directed by men of doubtful ability or of insufficient experience is a most undesirable financial risk.

REMOVES SALT

If you have put too much salt into your soup, add a few slices of raw potato to it and remove them after they have been boiled a few minutes. They will have absorbed much of the salt.

COSTLY.

A modern debutante, travelling in the highest eastern society, cannot dress "properly" on less than $35,000 a year. This is the estimate in the exclusive circles of New York.

Why waste time foaming at the mouth because a young woman with foolishly futile ambitions "wastes" so much in clothes? The money is not wasted, by any means. Most of it goes for labor and profits to garment makers. So it travels back into circulation among the plain people. Far better than re'n'r frozen in bank accounts and securities. As long as they have the money, prodigal spending by the rich should please people on the "outside looking in."

NEWS OF BURNBRAE AND THE DISTRICT

Seeding is Nearly Completed in the District

BURNBRAE, May 23.—Mr. A. T. Donald, 6th Concession of Seymour Township, sold a Durham bull to Mr. William Snarr, of Wellman's Corners.

Most of the seeding in this district is completed. There are some stretches of low land unseeded on account of the recent rains. The grain is growing splendidly, and the prospects are good for the hay crop. The frosts of the past few nights have done very little damage.

Most of the farmers in this district are going into poultry extensively. They are building large hen coops; the incubator is in general use. The results from incubators set very early were discouraging in quite a few instances, but the second sttings were a great success. The egg grading has caused demand for Black Minorca chickens, as this breed lay eggs that are large and grade well for market.

Miss Alice Hume, of Stirling, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Rannie, of Menio.

Mr. John Coutts has gone to Bancroft for a couple of weeks to visit his son George.

Mrs. Johns, who has undergone a serious operation in Peterboro a few weeks ago, is expected to return home to-day.

Rev. J. J. Black and Rev. J. D. McRae, professor in the theological department of the University of Shan Tung, China, motored to Stirling on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. McRae gave an interesting account of education work in China at Burnbrae Tuesday evening.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. J. Black was presented with a beautifully framed life membership certificate of the W. M. S. at the meeting held Wednesday at Burnbrae Church. Mrs. William Rannie, of Menie, presented Mrs. Black with the certificate. Mrs. Black, in a few words, expressed her appreciation of the honor conferred upon her by the society.

FANCY CANES.

An interesting novelty is a cane wound with narrow ribbon ending in a shower of bows at the top, and a large envelope purse of ribbon to match.

It's Here!
We tore down Every Make of Electric Range
For years we have been making heat for cooking. We know how to get it — where to put it.
Then came the call for electric ranges; the call of economy, comfort and cleanliness. We had to respond.
We bought every electric range on the market. We laid them in pieces on our floors. This sounds as though it took minutes. It took months. We studied them as cook-stoves. And we made a discovery.
We found that nearly all were the products of electrical engineers — not of stove-builders.
The possibilities dawned on us. A cook-stove arose before our eyes—a cook-stove with electric heat, enough heat, then more than enough.
We designed the "Findlay" through stove-builder's eyes, with a knowledge of a woman's needs — designed it to store heat as well as make it — designed it for quality, style and beauty.
Then we called in the electrical engineers—the best in the world—and had them wire it and turn on the current. They turned it on — faster heat, cleaner heat, better heat than we had ever known. And here it is.
An Electric Range that is as Quick as a Flash—that boils a kettle in ten minutes.
That is Cheaper than Oil, Coal or Gas.—It does half its cooking with heat stored in its porcelain elements, instead of with the actual current.
That is Finished Inside and Out with Enamel—blue, grey, and white—clean! clean! clean!
The Findlay Electric gives you all that the others can give and more—it is wired with searchlight cable as pliable as string.
The heating elements are the fastest made.
The oven has a surplus of power.
Half its cooking is done with the heat that is stored when the current is on.
Turn off the power, and your kettle will boil for half an hour.
It is finished inside and out with the highest quality, indestructible enamel—every part is rust-proof.
Every corner is electric welded and "getatable."
From the outside, you know exactly what is going on inside, because an accurate mercury thermometer keeps you fully informed.
Let us send you our very interesting booklet on electric ranges. Just cut out this advertisement, write your name and address on it and mail it today

TURMOIL OF BRITISH PARTIES

By JOHN MURRAY.

A generation ago the British two-party system held unquestioned sway over the minds of the electors. Theorists and practical men alike commended it. The system had an instrutive basis in contrasted temperaments it gave an ideal opportunity for argument 'pro et contra,' and it enabled the State to respond easily and promptly to alternating phases of political interest. It was a representative system, though not in the sense of recording in the legislature the exact weight in the community of the multiplicity of political groups. It favored masses of emphatic opinion, and it recorded the great shifts of opinion. What the system lost in the statistical accuracy of the reflection of the mation's mind, each successive government gained in unhampered authority. By enabling the electorate to range itself for or against a policy or a party, the system guaranteed the periodical discharge of the nation's will, be it wilfulness or wisdom. Under the two-party system, politics was a 'Katharsis.'

A generation ago the Labor party, of small size but considerable influence, formed a wing of Liberalism. To-day it has 190 seats in the new parliament, or 40 more than the Liberals, whereas in 1910 the Labor party in parliament numbered only 40. It is natural to ask whether so rapid and so deep a division of the progressive forces need have occurred, and whether this division need be permanent. Both questions are very difficult to answer. If the Liberal party had itself from 1895 onwards been well-knit and harmonious, it might have essayed with better hopes to keep its Labor wing, a growing and not unfriendly if somewhat insistent body. But only office and responsibility can truly unify Liberals; and in the ten years of Conservative rule, from 1895 to 1905, they were deeply divided. Nor were the Liberal governments that followed, under Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Mr. Asquith, shining examples of concord. The radical ideas of Mr. Lloyd George and his followers were distasteful to many highly-placed Liberals. Yet those were the years when the effects of successive widenings of the franchise and of compulsory education of the masses began to be felt in politics. The popular awakening which the last third of the nineteenth century had prepared gathered force steadily in the new century. Millions of working men, educated under the new system, armed with votes, and organized in trade-unions, surveyed the realm of politics with the first stirrings of instinctive ambition. The election of 1906, which had been preparing ever since Mr. Chamberlain set out a few years before to reconquer Britain for protection and preference, touched the masses powerfully by its long-continued stimulus and by the character of the issues. During the years of Liberal government from 1906 onwards much working-class support began to be alienated from the Liberal party. In the struggle with the House of Lords the Liberals had the masses behind them, but without enthusiasm. A half-conscious feeling was abroad that the reform of constitutional machinery was less important than constructive effort towards improving the condition of the people. Mr. Lloyd George's insurance policy for sickness and unemployment was more in tune with the feeling of the masses than the Parliament Act or the weary and fruitless fight for Home Rule which preceded the war.

The rift between the Liverals and the Labor party widened in the first decade of this century, and widened beneath the surface more than above it. Even if the Liberals had realized better what was happening, and had shaped thier course more responsively, the rift would most probably have developed towards the same result. For the working-class movement, which was the creation of half a century of popular education, of trade-unionism, of friendly societies, of co-operative commercialism, of a score of pervasive class-agencies and influences, had become a power and must needs tread the paths of politics. The Labor party, indeed, was already a party of protest: here and there its aspirations and, even more, its discontent found utterance in Socialist views and revolutionary theory. Thus at the outbreak of the war, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, a far stronger internationalist than most of his followers, sharply opposed the mood of the nation, and throughout the war certain Labor elements cultivated a tenacious spirit of protest. Those years of stress reinforced the fanatical traits which were evidenced in anti-war feeling, in wholesale condemnation of the treaties of peace, in the frenzied crusade against capitalism, in nervous impatience of other political parties. The working-class movement, as a whole, must be distinguished, however, from the nerve-ridden behaviour of its would-be leaders. It was upon the movement itself and not upon the leaders that the war had its greatest and its decisive influence. How great this influence was, will be realized at once by those who weigh the circumstances of the time.

The sentiment that vivifies British Socialism to-day is the sentiment of the State. Internationalism is scarcely as yet its keynote. The war enabled the mass of the nation to discover the State. This was a stupendous discovery for millions whose contact with the State had been slight, and who knew it only as a remote power, slow to act and restricted in its range. In the four years of war the State assumed almost entire control and direction of life in Britain. It imposed work and suffering and sacrifice on all alike, dignifying humble lives and toil by the consciousness that all was done and endured for a noble end. The State used men and women, used them up and threw them aside, worn out, diseased or dead. But the travail of war gave life a richer meaning; it touched new springs of activity; it raised the levels of motive. The sense of the whole, of corporateness, which the war gave was new and welcome ballast for human nature. In spite of tears and blood the awakening nation realized instinctively the goodness of the new momentum.

The sense of the State, that awoke then in thousands of hearts hungers now. After four years of vivid wakefulness the nation now sinks again into slumber. The controlling hand of the State being withdrawn, personal issues and interests resume their sway. The practical Socialism of the war declines into a reminiscence. Fighting against fate, the Socialist party demands to have the State brought back as the State was in the war, and to have it thus in perpetuity. It would satisfy the sense of wholeness and corporateness by the nationalizing of all the means of production, distribution and exchange. Was ever a noble lesson worse applied? Old and strong as the nation is, it couls not have borne indefinitely the burden of the war, nor will it bear in peace the vast apparatus of a searching control which the State devised for war effort. Its inability and its reluctance may seem to some to be faults. Others will hold them, with more justice, to be a consequence of its love of liberty, and liberty to be among the essentials of life. The war taught the lessons of brotherhood and sacrifice more sharply than any other sign from heaven in the nation's long history. Socialists finger lovingly and superstitiously the outward framework of conditions whereby those great lessons were driven home. The machinery of the war must pass away. The spiritual lessons may also pass, and pass all too quickly. But perpetuation of the machinery will not save the lessons from decay. Those lessons consist in a new or renewed sense of the State, and a vision of citizenship. The sense of the State needs to be satisfied by adequate expression, which cannot be done without more knowledge and freer ideas than the Socialist movement offers to the nation.

In the supreme hour of awakening the working-class movement was dominated by narrow ideas of foreign origin—by Marxian prejudice against private enterprise and by an almost Prussian feeling for the State. The movement, at first so free from self-consciousness, fell all too soon into the hands of Socialist spokesmen. When the great chance came for enlarging and illuminating the nation's political instincts and imagination, those spokesmen had nothing better to say than "the State is God, and private enterprise is of the Devil." Liberalism teaches that the State is as likely to be tyranny or corruption as to be God, and that freedom needs continual defence. Conservatism teaches that the State, standing aloft as guardian of peace, order and justice, deserves devotion and respect. Socialism is the very antithesis of Liberalism, since it would enlarge the State's power vastly and undo the hard won emancipation of centuries. It reacts equally against the best instincts of Conservatism: for if the State were as Socialists would have it be, its citizens could neither look up to it nor endure it. The merits and the failings of the State are after all no new matter. The two historic principles, Liberalism and Conservatism, indicate the two main needs, that neither the liberty of the citizen nor his respect for the State must be impaired. It is not so very difficult to make of the State a thing that can neither be respected nor be endured; and this is what our Socialists, by giving a crude expression to an old sentiment, would do.

Most politicians and most electors realize that the pre-war view of the State and its activities was somewhat narrow. Thus, even in the Conservative ranks there is a readiness for the development of the State's functions. The Liberal party is prepared in principle for a development of the functions of the central government and of the local authorities, but it scarcely knows how to begin. It realizes that the State within its own ample province can and must serve the community more richly than in the past, while private enterprise too has its province, and its own service to render. But the Liberal party stands mainly on the defensive in support of private enterprise; and, although education and industrial relations and social insurance and the machinery of local government offer tempting opportunities for constructive statesmanship, Liberals ponder ineffectually, or discuss their projects academically, or stand silent and somewhat aloof, while the Labor party, drunk with the idea of the State, seeks for it a gigantic usurpation of all that now lies within the sphere of private enterprise. Now the welfare of the community rests on two things, on the state's assuming the right functions and performing them well, and on private enterprise turning its opportunities to advantage. Between the State and private enterprise there must be forbearance, good will, and a sincere acceptance of co-operation, since a spirit of usurpation or tyranny, if either should harbour it, must harm or ruin both. Britain is still far from ruin. The Labor party polled in December last less than one-third of the votes cast. In the present parliament it can pass no measures which the Liberal party may oppose. But in the constituences, and especially in dense urban divisions, Labor still enjoys prestige as the mouthpiece of the newly awakened sentiment of the State, and it will probably continue to grow. There is no clear evidence that the momentum of Labor is exhausted. It forges ahead, despite its Germanized ideals, its headiness, its crudity, and its Marx-and-water revolutionism. It may be doubted if its march can be arrested by anything but its own failure or misfortune in office.

The Labor group will probably continue to expand chiefly at the expense of the Liberal party, until that party, abandoning its defensive attitude, offers to the masses a better vision of constructive statesmanship, and proves itself unmistakably the true instrument of progress. But it is one thing to present such a vision, and another to win recognition and acceptance for it from the masses. While the task of counter-education is proceeding, or even before it can begin effectually, the Liberal party may suffer martydom. For the problem of party-government in Britain is in reality the problem of re-establishing the two-party system: and the fury of the Labor attack on Liberalism proves that the new party is aware that the instinct of the nation condemns the group system. The present problem is really a domestic problem of the Left, or rather the chronic problem of the Left. It is an old problem in a very acute phase. The party or the parties of the Left cannot be held together so easily or securely as the elements of the Right. A generation ago the internal difficulties of the Liberal party helped to provide the initial impulsion of the Labor party. The state of Liberalism during the war and afterwards contributed largely to Labor's second great opportunity. From the beginning of the war until the first coalition in 1915, Mr. Asquith headed what was virtually a national government. After more than a year of complete coalition, Mr. Lloyd George's accession to the premiership split the Liberal party, and the dissentient Liberals survived in diminished numbers into the parliaments of 1918 to 1922, and 1922 to 1923. But for the emergence of the free trade issue, Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George would now, most probably, be leading each his own faction. A party torn by strife and swayed this way and that by personal predilections cannot hope for power, or even for the electors' respect. The strain of dissension, moreover, is fatal to the creative and sympathetic moods whether in a man or in a group. While quarrels numbed the heart and darkened the imagination of the Liberal party, Labor easily effected mass-conversions in the great industrial centres. The Liberal party has struggled for a century past to widen the franchise, and has naturally filled the role of mentor to the new generations of electors. Its greatest service, perhaps, has been the education of the electors, a service which may lose as well as gain by tenure of office, and must suffer grievously by party dissension. For nearly twenty years the Liberal party has been immersed in the responsibilities of administration, and for the last seven years it has been distracted by divisions. It has thus been doubly handicapped as an educator.

A few months ago the Left was in shreds. Three Kings ruled there, or none ruled. Three parties and three complete organizations opposed the Conservative government. The double feud within the Left bade fair ro ensure the continuance of Conservative rule,—unless the Conservatives should play themselves false, or misfortune unhorse them. Mr. Baldwin's sudden campaign for protection has united the Liberal factions and transferred the burdens of government to the Left. The internal condition of the Left and the character of the election robbed the electors' verdict in advance of clearness and decisiveness. The two panaceas of protectionism and Socialism were beaten; but the Liberals, who opposed both cries, are the smallest party in the House; and though they may justly claim the moral victory at the polls, their role—whether in support of some other party or in office—must necessarily be difficult. Since the nation's strategy in the election was negative and defensive, the political initiative of the new parliament—if such is to emerge—must be developed within parliament, and there the scene appears to be set for party tactics rather than for strategy. Mr. Baldwin's attempt to free himself from Mr. Bonar Law's pledge not to raise the fiscal question has called down a veto on any and all initiatives, and confirmed the justness of Mr. Bonar Law's view that tranquillity was the nation's chief need. It is safest, perhaps, to regard the nation as in a double reaction from its vast war-effort, an from the reforming zeal and constructive energies of the 1918 to 1922 parliament. Those were the years of large hopes and far-reaching schemes. These are the days of adversity and small things, and the nation will be satisfied if the new parliament, its tripartite forces working of necessity as a form of coalition, passes ameliorative measures by agreement on familiar lines. Mr. Baldwin's championship of a comprehensive scheme of social insurance for the wage-earning classes shows in what directions the new parliament might work, and it shows too how far his party has moved from its attitude towards insurance when Mr. Lloyd George's pioneer Act was passed in 1922.

Of the three parties, the Conservatives appear to have the least speculative future. Various elements in the nation's life gravitate naturally to Conservatism,—certain strains of patriotism, of individualism, of social order, as well as the instincts of sport and of property. What the party's attitude to protection will be in the future is uncertain. The three weeks' electoral campaign was long enough to show how deep-rooted is the belief in free trade, but not long enough to permit Mr. Baldwin to detach much Socialist and trade-union support from Labor. A party familiar with Socialist ideas and with the expedients of current Labor policy may well appear to outside observers to be ready and ripe for protectionism. The Labor party, moreover, has drawn its members from Conservatism as well as from Liberalism. In the course of his electioneering Mr. Baldwin expressed his natural hope of dividing the Labor forces; and what he hoped for, others feared. The behaviour of the Labor leaders themselves suggested that they were not sure of the loyalty of their followers on this crucial question. They depreciated the free trade issue; neither free trade nor protection, they urged, could cure or prevent unemployment. Nationalization and a large capital levy offered far better hopes. A sincere belief in the project of a levy is not incompatible with dexterous use of it as an electoral red herring. But the event disappointed the hopes and falsified the fears. Mr. Baldwin allowed himself far too little time for driving his wedge into the Labor party: and, like many others, he underrated the force of party discipline in the Labor ranks. It is not easy to provoke divisions promptly in a party which assumes to itself a Messianic mission. What Mr. Baldwin failed to do in three weeks he and his following might try more hopefully to accomplish in three years. The Conservative party has suffered no such defeat, either morally or numerically, as befell it in 1906: and its deep instinctive sympathy for protection may tempt it, under circumstances very different from those of 1906, to risk another throw on the old issue. If the Conservatives keep protection and preference in the forefront of their policy, the parties of the Left may be driven to co-operate closely, and under certain rather improbable circumstances to coalesce. Such an orientation of the Left would be more to the advantage of Liberalism than of Labor. But Mr. Baldwin's maladroit challenge and his panic campaign have handicapped his party seriously for raising the fiscal issue again in the immediate future, not to say for keeping it alive. It may be doubted on the whole if protectionist aspirations will be strong enough in the new parliament to revive the fortunes of Liberalism or to disintegrate the Labor mass.

The domestic problem of the Left is not amenable in reality to the influence or the action of the Conservatives. It is for the Left elements in the electorate to impose harmony and unity on the rival factions, if these elements desire to see them united: but if the Left electorate is split for good, the wranglings and the jealousies and the vicissitudes of the Left factions in parliament will be neither to the advantage nor to the credit of the country, though the electoral chances of the Right will be improved. And it is not easy to see how the 'intransigeance' of the Left factions can be cured. The fact that many Radicals and social workers and ministers of religion and some rich men have passed over readily from Liberalism to Labor might seem to suggest that a congenial basis underlies poth parties and that the accretion of new elements must modify the attitude of Labor. But the migrants from Liberalism have been mostly the extremists and the intractables, and some considerable time may pass before these heterogeneous accretions become influential in their new camp. The Labor party descends from the Radical wing of the old united Liberal party, but it is no longer that wing.

What it is, what it is coming to be, is a matter of prophecy, or at best of precarious interpretation. Among its plainest features are its crusading spirit, its tireless proselytising, its 'camaraderie,' and its belief in its mission—though its mission, plainly, is not that of Moscow. It is a class-party, by instinct and organization. Its temper is suspicious, and at times fanatical. Pride of class pushes it on, and the Socialist mirage beckons it forward. It feels the allurements of power at least as strongly as either of the other parties. It has the inclination to overgovern, and it is therefore 'pro tanto' unfit to govern. It is not free from headiness and inflated sentiment and class partizanship, but neither is it enslaved to any of these. The acute and widespread fears of what Labor might be in office are traceable to the extravagance of its leadership in past years, rather than to political grossness or mischief in Labor itself.

This Leviathan, naive, selfish and short-sighted as he may be, is a steadier and wiser and more natural creature than his keepers—the parliamentary Labor party. A short spell of office has already inclined the party to observance of its master. Leviathan liking beer and the navy and busy dockyards, the government withheld its support from the recent Welsh local option bill, despite binding professions in the past, and it is building the cruisers which it foreswore at the election. And Leviathan, who has the due wisdom of his desires and emotions and sentiments, has other springs and motions in him besides. He has thoughts entirely his own on politics; reactionary as some, futurist as others may think them. He despises the political gam as it has been played for two or three generations by the historic parties. A shallow and hypocritical method, degraded too often into rhetoric and partizanship, yielded—he holds—small and tardy results.

Amateurishness, inte mittency, and sheer pusillanimity were its chief faults, and its chief features as well. If the nation's rapid growth excused the procession of half-measures and the patchwork of compromise that made up nineteenth century politics, the excuse holds no longer. A sound nation ought not to live from hand to mouth in its politics; a maturely developed nation ought to face its problems of constitution-building, and of domestic legislation, and of administration, in their systematic entirety. Thus Labor, suspected by other parties of revolutionism, thinks that itself alone of the parties has the courage of the Constitution, because it is eager to round off the system of our central and local organs of government in a scientific manner. Copious information, with bold and thorough theorizing, would accomplish more in a few years—Labor thinks—than the dilettanteism and the cultivated contentiousness of party politics in a century. It would remove political problems, as many as possible and in as many respects as possible, from the plane of emotion and histrionics to that of specialist and technical solutions. It would substitute the study for the hustings, and the expert for the caucus.

Labor's contemptuous outlook on the past is easy to criticize. Neither historic party, to be sure, has ever dared to be thorough. It was enough for them if they could keep the peace at home and hold enemies abroad at arm's length, preserving the vast and encumbered heritage of the race, with little touches of improvement and embellishment. Labor has forgotten, or never realized, the immense growth of the nation in wealth, population, and work during the last century, and its development 'pari passu' in home and imperial politics. It may be doubted if any other nation during any century ever advanced so far, or upon so broad a front. It is the accumulated results of the past that have provoked the petulant political perfectionism of Labor, which has entered without effort upon a very of chances won for it by others. Only in a prepared nation and in an exceptional atmosphere of harmony, only in a period of reasonably uniform convictions, can political problems be turned into technical problems.

The grouping of Labor after a technical basis and a technical method is proof of the unifying work of Liberalism in the last century; for the eclipse of the Liberal party coincides with the penetration of all parties, and of the public that belongs to no party, by Liberal sentiment. Liberalism, which thus affords to Labor its opportunity and its cue, has set it also an example. The suspension of party strife during Mr. Lloyd George's premiership, 1916-1922, a period of confidence and creativeness, facilitated—nay, provoked—the very supersession of political wrangling by technical methods and ideas which Leviathan and his servants in office yearn for now.

Such are some of the less obvious relations between Labor and Liberalism. While Liberals insist on fair play for Labor—a fair play very near to favor—and themselves support Labor honorably in parliament and elsewhere, the Labor onslaught on Liberalism continues merrily in the constituencies, Mr. MacDonald and his whips being unable to control their local workers and organizations. But a new movement, cradled in protest, fed very largely by its feelings, and trained in vehemence, is certain to be anarchic. Even its ministers get out of bounds, as when Mr. Wheatley—who last November was busily "cleansing the Clyde of Liberalism"—took a dangerous decision on the Borough of Poplar Poor Law expenditure without consulting the Cabinet, or when Mr. Ponsonby's unwitting reply to a question in the House about Jubaland provoked indignation in Italy, or when Mr. Henderson—electioneering at Burnley—declared for a thorough revision of the Treaty of Versailles in the middle of Mr. MacDonald's laborious effort to improve our relations with France. Cabinet and party discipline will doubtless grow more correct, and rapidly. The campaign against Liberalism in the constituencies will go on less obtrusively.

In parliament the Labor party may be expected to become more and more representative of Leviathan, and therefore more and more like the Liberal these processes of adjustment and approximation may be compatible with realizing the beatific vision of the technical method in politics, which is Labor's chief and perhaps its sole distinguishing mark, only the future can show. It may be that the slayers of the Liberal party must needs don the mantle of Liberalism, lest their naked ness and their paradoxical conformation should appear. Until the Messiahship of Labor has been put to the test, the future of the Left in British politics must remain a puzzle.

WELFARE WORKERS FIGHT FOR CHILD.

Last Year There was Over 90,000 First Work Permits Issued to Children Who Should Be Going to School.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

Having won equal rights in citizenship for themselves, it is now up to the women of this country to make an effort to secure equal rights for children.

So says Mrs. John J. O'Connor, chairman of the child welfare committee of the National League of Women Voters.

"Our heroic women who did the pioneer work in suffrage and took the knocks and cleared the way for us to enjoy the rights of citizens today would never consider their work done if they could see our child labor statistics," she declares.

"The knowledge that a million children between 10 and 16 years of age were making their own livings, and that many of them actually supported families, would keep them from settling back complacently on their laurels."

She points out that child labor is decidedly on the increase:

"Last year there were first-work permits to 90,166 children as compared with 75,686 in 1922. In eight cities the increase was over 50 per cent."

So long as such employment is legal nothing can be done about it, she admits, but the passage of the child labor amendment, now up before Congress, would give the federal co-operation necessary to wipe out the evil.

No matter how apathetic women, or men for that matter, may feel concerning the issues between the parties, here is a matter on which they may come together, she believes, and work for a common interest, the future of the race.

"It isn't a political issue, just a human problem," she urges.

Mrs. O'Connor has an enviable record of achievement and service. She spent many years in welfare work, served on the Pure Food Commission of New York, was a member of the Consumers' League and did much to help her husband when he directed the Red Cross Relief work in Guatemala after the great disaster there.

She is frequently called the "Silver Dollar" woman because her profile is said to be a duplicate of that of the woman on American silver dollars.

Do you ever smoke 50-cent cigars? A dealer in Providence, R. I., was doing such a big business in perfectos at half a dollar apiece, that rum sleuths sampled his wares. Inside each cigar was a glass tube filled with moonshine.

Yankee ingenuity will always find a way to get liquor to the thirsty as long as it is manufactured. The same is true of narcotics and all other forbidden fruit. Education alone can enforce prohibition effectively—that and prohibitively high price. The real problem is thirst, rather than quenchers.

BRITISH COLUMBIA ELECTIONS

VANCOUVER, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—With the dissolution of the British Columbia legislature, May 10, the province was flung into the midst of an election campaign which promises to be one of the hardest fought in years. It can not be long drawn out, though, for election day is fixed for Friday, June 20. Three parties, all apparently strong, are engaged in the struggle, and it is probable that in the two larger cities, Vancouver and Victoria, and in some of the mining districts, Labor and Socialist candidates will be entered as well. As there are 48 members to be elected, it is fully expected that there will be no less than 160 candidates in the field by nomination day.

The Liberal party, headed by Hon. John Oliver, is seeking a return to power. This party won office in 1916, for the first time since Confederation, sweeping out the Conservatives and leaving them only nine members in a house of 47. The Liberals were led by the late H. C. Brewster, in that memorable fight and the Conservatives by W. J. Bowser, the present leader. Mr. Brewster died after a little more than a year in office, and in the election of 1920, on. John Oliver led his party to victory. He carried twenty-six seats in all, while fourteen went to the Conservatives and Independents. Labor and Socialist divided seven.

Opposing the government is the official opposition the Conservatives, with Mr. Bowser at their head and the Provincial Party, which is putting candidates into the field for the first time. The leader of this group is Major General A. D. McRae. Under the late Sir Richard McBride, the Conservatives dominated politics in British Columbia from 1903 to 1915, and remained in office for nearly a year longer under the premiership of Mr. Bowser.

For some months, the Provincial Party has been carrying on an aggressive campaign against both the government and the opposition, and, about the end of the year made of number of serious charges. These had to do with the building of the Pacific Great Eastern, railway, which the government was forced to take over from the contractors, Foley, Welch and Stewart, during the war. The charges were that representatives of both the Conservative and Liberal parties had received gifts of money from those interested in the Pacific Great Eastern, and that in the construction of 213 miles of the railroad by the present government, there had been gross waste of public money and that the province had been defrauded in the work. A commission to investigate the charges was issued to Mr. Justice Galliher of the British Columbia Supreme Court and the commissioner's report constituted what the Liberals call a "vindication," and the Provincial Party a "whitewash." The inquiry had the result, however, of bringing on the election probably a year earlier than it would otherwise have taken place.

The Liberals are appealing to the country on the record of eight years work. They point out that in spite of hard times; the financial standing of the province is good; that the past eight years have seen a greater volume of social legislation than all the previous years in the history of British Columbia. They hold up the Pacific Great Eastern report as a certificate of character, and declare that the Conservatives are discredited by failures of the past while the Provincial Party is inexperienced, and has been quite unable to prove its charges. Most of all they base their claim to votes on the consistent and vigorous fight which the premier has waged for equalized freight rates. The fight, they say, has been largely successful, and the great growth of grain shipments through the port of Vancouver is the result. So far as he has won, the premier merits support, they insist. But the fight is not over, and it would be foolish to repudiate the successful champion and place his work in other hands.

The Conservatives criticize the Liberal administration as extravagant and point to the greatly augmented debt of the province, the enormous tax bills and the lack of any development commensurate with the outlay. If returned to power, they propose retrenchment, proper law enforcement, the lifting of mineral reserves and the encouragement of mining, cheap loans to farmers, a re-adjustment of the policy with regard to soldier settlement, an extension of the provincial road system, and adequate aid to farmers in solving their marketing and irrigation problems.

The Provincial Party declares that the Liberals and Conservatives are tarred with the same stick. Together they have debauched the province during twenty years and have encouraged extravagance and provided countless sinkholes for the people's money. The Provincial appeal to the electorate on a platform which embraces the abolition of patronage, strict ecomony, abolition of the personal property tax, a special attention to the distribution and marketing of farm products, equitable labor legislation, comprehensive and intelligent development of mineral, agricultural and natural resources, control of the Oriental menace, an active immigration policy, an educational survey and the completion of the missing links in the trans-provincial highway.

Two of these planks, the government has incorportaed in its pre-election announcement, having made public plans for a survey of schools and for the construction of highways through the Fraser Canyon.

Vancouver, which has been unrepresented in the provincial cabinet for about three years, and has had only five representatives since December, 1920, though it was entitled to six, is regarded as good fighting ground and it is probable that two of the party leaders, Mr. Bower and General McRae will enter the lists there. Against them will be J. W. de B. Farris, a former attorney-general, and Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith. On the side of the Provincial Party in the city will be Reginald Tupper, son of Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper and a member of the third generation to enter politics in Canada. Premier Oliver will be a candidate in Victoria. With the exception of Hon. John Hart, minister of finance, who is retiring, and Hon. Dr. McLean, minister of education, the cabinet ministers will run in their old constituencies; Hon. W. Sloan, minister of mines in Nanaimo, Hon. Dr. Sutherland, minister of public works, in Revelstoke, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands, in Prince Rupert, Hon. A. M. Manson, attorney-general, in Omenica, Hon. E. D. Barrow, minister of agriculture in Chilliwack. Hon. Dr. McLean's constituency disappears in the redistribution, and he will seek election in Yale.

Among other notable candidates will be Dr. Saul Bonnel, former M. P. for East Kootenay, who is to be the Conservative candidate in Fernie. Mayor Annandale, who is likely ot get the provincial nomination in New Westminister and Col. George Walkem, nephew of a former prime minister of the province, and member of a well known Kingston family, will be provincial standard bearer in Point Gray. A feature of the contest is the number of clergymen who are coming out as candidates. Rev. A. M. Sandford, principal of Columbian College is Conservative candidate in New Westminster, Canon Hinchcliffe, a Conservative member of the last House for Victoria, will be in the field again, while Rev. Clem Davies is expected to run as an independent in the capital. There is a possibility that in Vancouver, Rev. J. S. Henderson may receive a Liberal nomination, and that Rev. G. O. Fallis, remembered as a chaplain in war days, will run as an Independent Conservative.

In the two constituencies that return more than one member — Vancouver returns six and Victoria five—a unique ballot will be employed for the first time at this election. It will be more like the American ballot than that in vogue in Canada. The candidates will be grouped according to parties, and be given their party labels.

First will appear the six government candidates, designed as Liberals, then the six of the official opposition, marked as Conservatives. The other candidates will be arranged at the discretion of the returning officer and will have their party affiliation plainly shown. The object is to eliminate confusion in voting on the part of those who are forgetful of the names and initials of candidates.

On the same day as the election, a beer piebiscite will be held, and the voters will be asked to answer the question: "Do you approve of the sale of beer by the glass in licensed premises, without a bar, under government control and regulation?" The government makes it plain that there is no intention of restoring the bar, under any circumstances, but if the people decide in favor of beer by the glass, it will be sold in strictly regulated and licensed premises, which will probably include approved dining rooms.

Anyone who suffers with miserable health; who is tortured with Headaches; and who is unable to get any real pleasure out of life; will be interested in this letter of Mrs. Martha de Wolfe of East Ship Harbor, N.S.

Mrs. de Wolfe says, "For years I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicine seemed to help me. Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and the effect was splendid; and after taking only one box, I was completely relieved and now feel like a new person".

Floating Specks Before The Eyes Means Liver Trouble

When specks start to float before the eyes, when everything seems to turn black for a few seconds and you feel as if you were going to faint, you can rest assured that your liver is not working properly.

The essential thing to do in all cases where the liver is slow, lazy or torpid, is to stir it up by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and clear away the accumulated mass of waste and poisonous matter from the system.

Mr .Chas. Ayland, Frankville, Ont., writes:—"I used to be awfully bothered with floating specks before my eyes, headaches and sickness to my stomach. I took just half a vial of your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and ever since I have felt as well as I ever did. Now I always keep them on hand."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism

That is What Mr. B. Morneau Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Quebec man is very satisfied with the results received from taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ste. Perpetue, Que., May 23.—(Special.)—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular in Quebec Province is shown by the statement of Mr. B. Morneau, a well-known cultivator living near here.

"It gives me great pleasure to tell you that your Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a lot of good and I am very satisfied with them. I had suffered for three years with rheumatism. I always felt tired and had bitter tastes in my mouth in the mornings."

That Mr. Morneau's trouble came from his kidneys is evidenced by the relief he got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They heal and strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to strain all the impurities from the blood. With no uric acid in the blood there can be no rheumatism.

Sound kidneys mean pure blood, Pure blood means good health.

FABLES ON HEALTH

"SPRING FEVER."

For some days Mr. Mann of Anytown had noticed stealing over him that indefinable dullness, sleepiness and lassitude that betokened the arrival of spring.

Spring fever, he was inclined to call it—as are many others.

He oftened wondered what brought about that "spring feeling." Generally what happens is this:

During the winter months the appetite is a little keener; there is a likelihood that you have taken on a few pounds of weight, or you have been taking on extra food fuel to keep the body warm. In any event, you needed extra food. And the chances are, if the winter was cold and you stayed indoors, you took little exercise.

Comes spring, and warmer days. You have eaten an excess of food, exercised but little and then, suddenly, the coldness of the air gives way to a pleasant warmth. Spring arrives.

Of course you are sluggish and a bit dull and lazy; you feel heavy and wooden.

Good brisk walks in the outdoors will help.

Don't sit around and let "spring fever" overtake you. Get active and work off the winter sluggishness.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

(A Daily Menu for the Stout and Thin)

EAT AND— Lose Weight

One cup clear chicken broth, ¾ recipe baked asparagus, 1 cup fresh strawberries, 4 ounces baked bluefish, 1 cup new string beans, 3 ounces onion salad, 4 tablespoons fruit cup, 1 pint skimmed milk, 1 cup coffee with 1 tablespoon cream and 1 level teaspoon sugar, 2 thin crisp pieces gluten toast, 1 whole wheat roll.

Total calories, 1118. Proten, 269; fat, 377; carbohydrate, 472. Iron, .0163 gram.

If you must have coffee with sugar and cream you must add 100 calories of pure fat for the cream and about 25 calories of carbohydrate for the sugar and figure no iron grams or other minerals. The coffee itself has no food value.

To my way of thinking you make a bad bargain when you give up 125 precious calories for a cup of coffee with sugar and cream.

These calories will provide you with six protein calories, three fat and 91 carbohydrate to say nothing of .0006 iron grams and vitamins if you spend them for one good-sized orange. And more than that you will have 25 perfectly good calories left for radishes, spinach onions or cabbage.

A breakfast of one whole orange, one cup of hot skimmed milk and one piece of crisp unbuttered gluten or whole wheat toast will prove its worth before noon time for it will give you something lasting to work on while coffee stimulates for the time but does nothing more.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Wet weather has continued to hold up field work in many parts of the Province. Conditions are now considered to be about two weeks behind. A considerable acreage of grain yet remains to be sown. In some of the more favored counties, however, a fair extent of roots has been got in. It is likely that more sugar beets than usual will be grown in the Lake Erie counties. There will also be an increase of beans in Western Ontario this year. Elgin reports tobacco beds as looking well.

Many cattle are now on pasture, but there is not much substance as yet in the grass. As a rule live stock are in fair spring condition notwithstanding the comparatively long period of stabling.

Fall wheat is looking very promising, on the whole, although suffering from too much water in low spots. Clover and alfalfa are also showing up well, having made good growth despite the rather cool spring weather.

The labor situation has been much more satisfactory than for years, both as to the number and quality of men offering. Most of the immigrants brought in have made good, especially the Danes and the Germans. Elgin reports that some of the Danes are leaving for Michigan.

Essex.—Corn for feed in county is very scarce this year, dealers reporting that it is very difficult to get, and that they are cancelling a number of orders.

Dealers report that there are so many orders for seed corn that they are afraid some of the seed being sent out is not of a very satisfactory quality; but they are regulating the price to the quality of seed which they are forced to send out.

Welland.—Wet weather has seriously handicapped spraying. Raspberries are looking very favorable; older strawberry plantations look very much better than last year's planting.

Port Arthur.—There will be an increased acreage of sunflowers and Irish cobbler potatoes grown for certified seed.

Fort William.—Alfalfa is being tried out this year by a number of farmers. The seed is being inoculated, and judging from the results of a few growers in the past few years it should prove a profitable crop for the dairyman.

Milk prices on the whole, are discouraging to dairymen. Prices range from $1 to $2, according to butter-fat content and the local situation. One farmer is quoted as saying that the price he is receiving for milk does not pay for the grain fed to his cows.

Lambton.—Farmers are turning more and more towards dairying. One creamery reports that their make is over double that of last year. Some of those who have lately turned to dairying are now wondering how they managed to make ends meed previously.

Frontenac.—The make of cheese is gradually increasing. Very few cheeses are coming on the market, however. The offer on the Board was 14c per lb., but no sales.

Peterboro.—Most of the cheese factories are receiving a very heavy supply of milk at the present time. The creameries are also receiving a generous supply of cream. Cheese quoted at around 12c a lb. and cream around 28c. Dairy cows are still being sought after at from $40 to $80.

Middlesex.—There is a good lamb crop this year, and more interest has been taken in docking and castrating, partly due to the $2 cut decided upon by the packers, and also to the campaign we put on offering to dock and castrate all lambs in the county.

Bruce.—A number of foals are to be seen throughout the county. It is reported that there is a larger percentage of live foals this year to date than during the past few years.

Kent.—Ten carloads of cattle were shipped from Chatham last week. The best quality steers brought as high as 8¼c. Hogs are selling locally at $6.75, which is the top price paid the farmers.

Essex.—Many producers are becoming discouraged at the price of hogs, are selling their sows, and are not finishing thier young hogs.

TWILIGHT

Spillertown Sam, veteran mine mule who died recently, was the most pampered mule in the world. He toiled 26 years underground. In his old age, his owners gave him a private pasture near Marion, Ohio, with his own barn and special servant. Sam was the lucky creature of someone's whim.

No such pampering care goes, in old age, to the veteran miners who drive the mules. Or, for that matter, to the great rank and file of mules. Usually they're shot when they can no longer work.

A Little of Everything

POISON

Carbon monoxide, the poison gas in auto exhaust, can be made almost harmless by using a small amount of an inexpensive chemical compound mixed with gasoline. This is the claim of Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, the prominent inventor. He doesn't say what the compound is. Probably soon be for sale.

If Hutchinson really has conquered this poison, he is giving the world something beyond price. Thousands are killed yearly by carbon monoxide while running their cars in the garage with doors closed. Furthermore, the poison exhaust from millions of autos, being heavier than air, clings near the ground and attacks the health of all who use city streets.

PLAINER

The necessity of talking plainly and distinctly over the phone is making Canadian voices less mumbling and pronunciation more correct, linguists say.

They are optimistic. Average talk still is a hash; sample: "Whashudoontnigth." Only by a well developed sense of telepathy are Canadians able to follow each other's conversation.

BLINDED

More accidents to eyes than any other part of the body, among industrial workers, it's announced by National Committee for Prevention of Blindness. Every year 200,000 eye accidents in industry. Of the 100,000 totally blind among Americans, 15,000 were blinded while at work.

If you earn your bread and butter near a machine or any chemical or other thing hazardous to sight, cut this out and paste it where you'll see it often.

MISTAKE

Ras Taffari, prince regent of Ethiopa, visits New York and brings his enemies along as his bodyguard. This makes it sure they won't start trouble at home in his absence.

He says: "Unlike the late President Wilson, I am bringing my Lodge and Hitchcock with me."

The fatal blunder in Wilson's career was his not taking Lodge, Root and a few other Republican leaders to the peace conference with him. If he had, America might be in the League of Nations today.

HAIL

What was the largest hailstone you ever saw? Yarns about big hailstones rank second only to fishermen's yarns, when it comes to the incredible.

Weather Bureau, however, says hailstones nearly five inches in diameter fell in New South Wales in February, 1847. Eighteen years before, houses in Cazoria, Spain, were crushed by hailstones weighing as much as four and a half pounds apiece.

With such precedents in hail, maybe the fishermen are more truthful than reputed.

ABIE

"Abie's Irish Rose" begins the third year of it continuous run in New York. In the entire history of the stage there is nothing like its success. Already it is said to have earned two million dollars for its writer, Anne Nichols. Experts in the show business say she will get additional five millions in next ten years.

Every producer in New York is said to have turned down Abie when its author peddled it. She produced it herself on credit and a capital of $34. Every critic panned it. Look at it now. If you have a good thing, and are sure, plug along regardless.

SALOONS

After trying prohibition eight years, Calgary, Canada, put whisky on sale again in government shops. Tremendous rush of business. But not a single drunk the first two days. By drunk, we mean, staggering.

Maybe, in a reminiscent mood, you've wondered what would happen if the saloons returned and opened up for a day. Despite Calgary's precedent, many imagine the streets would be paved with souses. Maybe they're wrong. Forbidden fruit tastes best.

YONDER

More than 125,000 Americans who fought in the World War have died since July 30, 1919. One makes his exit every 20 minutes in an endless stream.

Time flies fast. Almost 10 years since the war started, six since it approached its end.

Death is the final victor. He gets both sides, conquered and conqueror. Before we realize, the World War vets will be sitting around leaning on canes and describing their battles.

RUST

Rust-proof iron and steel are perfected by Dr. Saklatwalla, the Persian famed in the steel industry, now with the Vanadium people. So it's announced, also that his discovery will save the world several billion dollars a year, since three-fifths of the steel industry's output goes to replace losses by rust.

Rust-proof steel already is on the market. The great value of Saklatwalla's discovery is that it's a cheap method.

How about tearing down some of the statutes of military destroyers and replacing them with likeness of such great constructors?

EASY

Twenty years ago U.S. Steel common stock sold at less than 9 and its preferred stock at a trifle under 52. Recently the common has been around 96, preferred 118.

Speculators pounce on such fabulous multiplication, like a man taking whisky to stimulate his courage. But don't forget the stocks that never rise in value. Nor the greater number that gradually slough away to worthlessness.

It's human nature to base opinions or activities on the precedent of minority cases, ignoring the majority.

ARTIFICIAL

Famine or over-production of food will be impossible later, for chemists will produce all food artificially in their laboratories. So claims a speaker before American Chemical Society.

This is Big Talk. It sounds good, but there nevertheless will always be farmers tilling the soil. Synthetic food, however, would be an excellent substitute dpuring famines.

A LINDSAY RESIDENT HONORED BY FRIENDS

LINDSAY, May 23.—A most enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Angeline street, on Saturday, April 5th when Mr. Wilson's mother celebrated her 84th birthday.

Mrs. Wilson, whose maiden name was Nancy Sedgwick, daughter of Wm. John and Martha Sedgwick, of Asphodel, near Keene, was born April 5th 1840, married July 28th, 1862 to Matthew Wilson, of Omemee, who had a business in Hastings. Out of this union were born five sons and four daughters, six of whom are still living, namely, Mrs. S. R. Carew, of Peterboro; Mrs. Thomas Fisher of Janetville; Mrs. Robert English, of Cannington; J. W. Wilson of Toffield, Alta.; W. E. Wilson and Mrs. W. G. Umphrey of Lindsay. Two sons died when quite young, Matthew Henry and John Samuel, and another son, Robert J., was killed at Burnt River, Nov. 1st 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson took up farming in East Ops in 1874, where they resided until 1904, when they rented and moved to Lindsay, where Mr. Wilson died, August 7th, 1918.

Mrs. Wilson, who is enjoying splendid health, has all her faculties takes a keen interest in local and public affairs, and can relate many interesting stories of pioneer, life when Ops was a forest and Lindsay but a small village of a few houses and a couple of stores.

She has twenty-seven grandchildren, twenty-one great grandchildren and enjoyed the afternoon and evening with her friends and relatives, where music, jest and good fellowship prevailed, cutting the birthday cake, which graced the table for the festive occasion.

Her many friends wish her many more years of health and happiness.

CHEESE PRICES ARE IMPROVING

Last Sales Indicate Higher Prices--Peterborough Board Out.

Local farmers who have been feeling somewhat discouraged over the low prices paid for cheese at the opening of the season are feeling a little more encouraged now in view of the improvement in prices that has taken place of late. Last week some of the cheese boards sold cheese for 13 13-16c a lb. On Saturday of last week the Belleville Cheese Board sold for 14 1-16c. The Campbellford Board since this has sold at the same price. This week United Dairymen Co-operative Ltd., of Peterboro, sold their Central Ontario cheese in Montreal for 14 9-16c a lb., f.o.b. Belleville. This represents 1c a lb. increase over the price at Belleville last Saturday and at Campbellford.

Most of the Peterboro County factories have been making for some little time and some have already made sales. Neither the Peterboro or Stirling Cheese Boards have reorganized this season. Factories in the Madoc district decided to hold two sales of the Madoc Cheese Board, and that if the prices realized were not satisfactory the salesmen were then to be left free to sell their cheese wherever they desired. Twenty-five boxes of cheese were sold at the last meeting of the Madoc Board.

United Dairymen Co-operative will sell over 1,300 boxes of cheese this week at Belleville, which is only a few hundred boxes short of the total boxes of cheese handled by the co-operative in Belleville during the whole month of May last year. Several Peterboro County factories will have cheese in this week's sale.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS UNVEILED ON SUNDAY.

In Memory of Late Mrs. G. A. . .Smith and Her Sister.

At St. Andrew's Church, Aldershot, near Hamilton, on Sunday morning, May 11th, two beautiful memorial windows, the gift of Mr. G. A. Smith, of Peterboro, were unveiled, and dedicated to the glory of God, by the Very Rev. Dean Owen, of Hamilton.

The windows are in memory of the two daughters—Flora and Helen—of the late Henry Wyatt, the founder of the church.

They represent "St. Mary" and "St. Cecilia," and are the work of the N. T. Lyon Glass Co., of Toronto.—From the Burlington Gazette.

A RECITAL

The second recital of vocal and instrumental music, given by the remaining members of Mr. George H. King's large class of pupils, was held last evening, in Trinity Reid Street Hall, which was packed to capacity for the occasion.

Thirty-one numbers were on the programme, a similar total to the first recital, when the first section of Mr. King's class presented a programme of vocal and instrumental music. As on the previous evening, last week, those taking part once again demonstrated the ability of Mr. King as a teacher in both sections of the musical art, giving a varied programme which met with much applause from the large number of friends present.

Especially interesting numbers in the instrumental section were those given by three advanced pupils, Miss Alma Blanchard playing the popular Prelude in C sharp minor, by Rachmaninoff; Miss Lillian Brown playing Liszt's "Liebestraume," and Miss Teressa Thompson of Bailieboro giving two numbers, Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso," and a Chopin Valse.

Other instrumental selections were given by Miss Lillian Brinson, "At Twilight," Miss Lillian Collins, Czerney's "Waltz," Miss Muriel Noftall, "A Dream," Miss Grace Sargent, "Pink," Miss Eleanor Stacey, "Danse Trigane," Master Norman Watts, 'Arielle," Miss Miriam Purdy, "Moss Rose," Miss Doris Steele, "Basket of Roses," Miss Doris Cooper, "Spanish Dance," Miss Marjory Armstrong, "Con Amore," Miss Eleanor Brown, "Last Remembrance," Master Gerald Neville, "Tanzweise," and Miss Helen Veitch "Rose Petals."

Vocal numbers included soprano solos by Miss Marjory Bridge, "Patter of the Shoon," Miss Louise Coughlin "Down the Vale," Miss Isabel Black, the 'Kashmiri Song," and Mrs. Ross Williamson, "Come to My Heart"; contralto songs by Miss Lillian Freeman, "The Flight of Ages," Miss Grace Northcott "The Carnival," Miss Annie Crocker, "A Dream," Mrs. Ernest Kitney, "The Dove," Miss May Ritchie, "Arise, O Sun,' 'and Miss Ethel Williamson, "Laddie o' Mine"; a baritone solo, "Fairings," by Mr Aubrey Adams; and a tenor solo, "It's a Mighty Good World," by Mr. James Browne.

PLEADED GUILTY TO A CHARGE OF THEFT.

Before Police Magistrate Bradford at Lindsay this morning, two farmers of Ops Township, William Smith and James Callaghan, prosecuted by W. H. Howard, C.N.R. detective, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of oil waste from axle boxes on C.N.R. box cars at the San Diego yards, Lindsay, and were fined $5 and $5.60 costs apiece. As this was a first offence, the Magistrate made the fines comparatively light, but gave warning of more severe measures in case of further transgressions.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR

(By Jeannette.)

The Peterborough Male Voice Choir, nearly fifty strong, journeyed to Cobourg in motors last night, to give a concert in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the Helping Circle of the church. The choir was in splendid voice and mood last night, and evidently made a splendid impression on the good-sized and very appreciative audience which greeted every effort with hearty applause. In a well-balanced and attractive programme, the members demonstrated to the residents of the lake shore town the outstanding musical proficiency which makes their native city proud of its choir.

Under the baton of their conductor, Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., they presented a programme of diversified music that showed their careful grasp of every detail of difficult vocal music. The pastor of the church, Rev. W. A. Bremmer, who acted as chairman, repeated, in different words, the commendation of the Toronto adjudicator, when he said: "Why some of these men can scarcely sing without smiling. They just love to sing." Mr. Bremner, in the name of his congregation, thanked the choir and the assisting artists for their efforts, recording his opinion of "the splendid way, giving enjoyment to themselves and others, in which these men are putting in their spare time," and extended to them a cordial invitation to return to Cobourg, "and come back soon." The audience last evening included visitors all the way from Yarker and Coldsprings.

The choir was assisted by Miss Greta LeBarr, soprano soloist, and Miss Muriel Bridge, accompanist. Miss LeBarr was accorded an enthusiastic reception by the audience, and Miss Bridge gave her usual excellent support in accompanying the solo numbers, which included also numbers by Messrs. D. G. Melton and A. Barton, and the choral efforts, a number of which had accompaniment. Mr. Fred Chenhall presided at the organ for several numbers.

The choir, in dignified black robes, overflowed the choir loft and were compelled to occupy also, in a solemn row, the space usually reserved for the minister. Mr. G. (Saint) Parlour was a tall and impressive figure in the pulpit proper, rising in true ministerial fashion for every choral number, and was ably supported on either side by Messrs. W. F. Skitch and F. E. Kerr.

Variations in the vocal programme, which were greeted with hearty enthusiasm, were the organ voluntaries of Mr. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O. Mr. Chenhall's masterly grasp of technical intricacies, his smooth fingering, and fine pedal work, were demonstrated to much advantage in a lovely transcription of "Swanee River," and in his initial selection, an air by Knewkome.

The choral numbers opened with a bright, delicate rendition of the pretty matin song, "Hail, Smiling Morn," in a trio that included also "The Bell-Man," in descriptive and deep-toned rhythm, with a chiming accompaniment. The soft, shaded work, which was a prominent attribute of the choir's work last evening, was noticeable in the hushed final notes of this selection, which was followed by a reverential rendition of "The Lost Chord," with solo in excellent voice, by H. Rush, and organ accompaniment. An encore to this trio was "Abide With Me."

The pizzicato serenade, "Sweetheart, Awake," was well done, the delicate, lightly-touched background of the choir supporting a quartette, composed of Messrs. E. Jones, C. H. Crowe, T. Pitchford and W. F. Skitch, with Mr. Jones' clear, fine tenor in the ascendant. The rousing, staccato measures of the jaunty "Mulligan Musketeers" followed, with the advance of marching feet in its crescendo passages, and a repeated, accented beat. As an encore, the choir gave the fantastic, amusing Chinese number, "The Gongs are Beating," with the roll of the guns, and the mimic warfare of the valorous soldiers simulated by the basses in fine style.

The four test pieces of the Ontario Musical Festival, two for a choir of twenty voices, and two for the full choir, were also given, in the minor, soft-keyed "Lullaby of Love," with some excellent diminuendo effects; the bucolic fantasy, "In Harvest Time," with splendid soft phrasing, Bantock's "Through Eastern Gates," the fresh, rugged song of morning and love, its pianissimo, flowing intervals alternating with sections in accelerated volume and tempo, and "New Life, New Love," smooth, calm, full-voiced, with a dramatic finale.

The last trio of choral numbers included "The Fishermen Glee," a anu- narrative, descriptive, interesting, its sequences and those of the two following numbers, demonstrating a diversity of style and treatment which were adequately handled by the singers. "Rolling down to Rio," was the second number, robust and rhythmic, illustrating the longing of the arm-chair traveller for other lands and scenes, followed by the dramatic rendition of "King Charles" with the warning to the ill-fated monarch brought out in the atmosphere woven by the fine voices, with organ accompaniment. A final encore was a pretty arrangement of "The Angelus" hymn.

Miss Greta LeBarr, whose appearance was greeted with applause that followed each pretty solo, sang in excellent form and voice, with dainty effect, the brief song by Molly Carew, "The Market," followed by the wistful cadence of "My Prayer," by W. H. Square, with an encore in the charming "Lilac Time" (Perspicacity). Miss LeBarr, who sings with ease and grace, gave also "The Piper of Love," a number in which her clear, sweet, expressive voice, with its excellent enunciation and vibrant, delicate inflections, was heard to splendid advantage. An encore was the funny "You'll Get Heaps of Lickins."

Two fine baritone solos were given also during the evening by Messrs. D. G. Melton, who sang "Linden Lee," and A. Barton, who gave "Lassie O' Mine."

At the conclusion of the programme, a dainty lunch was served to the choir and assisting artists in the basement of the church, by the ladies of the Helping Circle Society, the company breaking up later after some jolly community singing by the visitors, and a few words of appreciation to their hosts, voiced by Mr. W. F. Skitch, president of the Choir.

The spirit of co-operation between the choir and their leader was evidenced admirably in the way the members responded, almost to a man, to the invitation to Cobourg. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the presence of Mr. Paul Manning, whose ultimate arrival in his favorite chariot was a matter of speculation to his fellow choristers. Mr. Manning, however, appeared at twelve minutes past eight, just in time to don his black gown and grace the occasion in the front row.

Prof. C. A. Chant, of Toronto University, Tells What the Scientists Know of the Universe—Its Origin Discussed—Is There Another Planet?—Have the Stars Definite Numbers?

By FRED. G. GRIFFIN

THE heavens are rather out of fashion, out of sight, out of mind, for the city dweller. The boy on a York county farm coming in from the barn, the Grey county girl driving in a cutter along the snow-bound road, the northern trapper snowshoeing across a lake, the station agent at Casey or Mattice locking up after the last train has whizzed through, may pause at night and look up at the silent moon and the living twinkling stars, and wonder as to the why and wherefore of these myriad mystery points of light. As the ancients did when they expressed their awe of the planets by making them mythological gods. Or as our forefathers did when they regarded them as the beacon light outposts of the world to come.

But in cities like Toronto and Montreal the night skies are seldom seen. The full moon is often visible in the suburbs and one sometimes gets a flash of the new moon with the feeling, "Is that thing still going on?" but from Yonge street, for example, it is impossible to see the stars because of the blaze of the electric signs and the glare of the hydro lights. It may not be going too far to say that there must be city children who have never picked out the Great Bear or the studded belt of Orion, or wondered at the glistening magic of the Milky Way.

Which is one reason why it is pertinent to ask: What do we know of the universe? What does science know of the universe? Have any new theories been propounded recently or any new discoveries been made which would change the basis of thinking about the infinite cosmos?

So one saw Professor C. A. Chant, professor of astrophysics at the University of Toronto, who only eighteen months ago traveled to a remote point in Australia as the most favorable position to be during the few moments when it would be possible to take photographs of the sun's eclipse. Right away Professor Chant gave a new conception of the universe. Of a universe that was not infinite but finite. Of a cosmos that had limits, an end, frontiers, a last star, instead of a cosmos that stretched for ever and for ever and for ever, without end, into the empyrean.

Universe Not Boundless

"AS the years go by," declared Professor Chant, "the astronomer has enlarged his ideas of the physical. There is really nothing basically new in our conception of the universe—by which the astronomer means our sun with its system of planets and satellites, and the other suns of space with possibly their satellites. The chief feature of thinking has been to enlarge the bounds of the universe. You see, it all depends on how you regard bounds. The astronomer doesn't think of the universe as boundless. The astronomer has a notion that there is a definite number of heavenly bodies—that there is not an infinite number but a definite number. He thinks of the universe as a finite thing. Hence it isn't boundless. Yet you can't define space. It's one of the fundamental things which are beyond definition."

Probably everyone has a conception of our solar system, our own little whirlpool section of the universe, with the earth and seven other planets circling endlessly round the sun on different paths. Everyone knows that the earth, which is 93,000,000 miles away from the sun, takes a year to complete its orbit. And that the other planets take lesser or longer time to complete their circling according to their distances away from their parental pivot, the sun.

H. G. Wells, in his "Outline of History," tries to get our own particular solar system down to a basis where the ordinary man can grasp its significance. Suppose, he says, the earth were represented by a one-inch ball; then, on the same proportion, the sun would be represented by a ball nine feet across. That is their relative size. And these two balls would have to be placed at a distance of 323 yards apart to preserve the ratio of the heavens. The moon on this scale would be a speck the size of a small pea placed thirty feet from the earth. And Neptune, the most distant of the planets, would be represented by a ball placed 9,500 yards away from the nine-foot ball which represented the sun! On this same scale, he points out, the nearest fixed star would be 40,000 million miles away! Even this picturesque attempt to reduce the immensity of the heavens to backyard proportions which the mind may grasp leaves the mind staggering.

Camille Flammarion, who writes like a poet as well as being a great astronomer, says: "The universe is infinite. Space is infinite. If, impelled by our love for the heavens, we had the desire, and, above all, the means, to make a journey of which the goal should be the farthest limit of the sky, we should be astonished, on arriving at the confines of the Milky Way, to see the grandiose and phenomenal spectacle of a new universe before our dazzled eyes; and if, in our mad career, we crossed this new archipelago of worlds to seek the barriers of heaven beyond them, we should still find universe eternally succeeding to universe before us. Millions of suns roll on in the immensities of space. Everywhere, on all sides, creation renews itself in an infinite variety."

Over 120,000,000 Stars Counted

SO much for a brief indication of a few of the highlight features of this tremendous creation of which the earth is less than the smallest grain of sand to the Sahara, and in which any of us humans is less than a microscopic germ perched on that grain of sand. Such is the universe in which, according to Professor Chant, the astronomers are thinking of the stars as having actual number, though through the most powerful telescopes of the day they have been counted to the number of over 120,000,000. Which is only a fraction of the total. If one likes one may think of the Sahara having a definite number of grains of sand, as it has. But it is a different thing counting them.

As everyone knows, our solar system has eight planets, including the earth, of which Neptune is the farthest away—2,480,000,000 miles from the sun as compared to the earth's 93,000,000 miles. Neptune has been known for less than a hundred years, when its presence in the heavens was first discovered in rather an interesting way. Up to that time Uranus was the most distant of the planets. Uranus had been discovered largely by chance in 1781, up to which date there had only been six known planets. In the early part of the nineteenth century Uranus was found to be misbehaving in a way which suggested the influence of another planet so far not known. A great French mathematician, Leverrier, without leaving his study or without looking at the heavens by using a progressive table of distances which govern the other planets in the relation to the sun, calculated its position. On August 31, 1846, he announced where it was. And in less than a month a German astronomer, Galle, pointed his telescope to the place where Leverrier said the eighth planet ought to be, and behold! it was there. It had always been there. But it just shows how these things are discovered.

May Be More Planets Yet

SINCE then Neptune, god of the seas, has been regarded as the frontier of our own little solar system. But now, declares Professor Chant, "there are certain reasons for believing that there are other planets of our system beyond Neptune. Neptune was discovered through the irregular motion of the planet Uranus. Now Neptune is known to show also peculiarities which suggest to the mathematical astronomers the influence of still another planet beyond Neptune.

Using Bode's law of the planets, by which Neptune was located by Leverrier, Professor Chant reckoned that the unknown planet's period of revolution round the sun would take some 500 years. A year on it would be 500 earthly years long! It takes Neptune, by the way, 164 years and 9 months to circle the sun. So that it will be seen how slow this new planet's motion would be to earthbound eyes when at its tremendous distance the tiny speck that it is would take 250 years to traverse the hemisphere of the heavens which we see at night. The only way by which it would be possible to locate it and prove its existence, declared Professor Chant, would be by means of photographs which might be taken now and compared with similar photos taken at intervals very many years hence.

And this may not be the extreme planet of our solar system. Although Professor Chant did not think there were many others beyond this one.

How little do we know of the vast immensity of the ever-stretching universe when science has not yet discovered the limits of our own solar system!

Knowledge in State of Flux

THE more you enquire of the thinkers, the more evident it is that knowledge at the present moment is in a state of flux. Everything is hypothesis. On all sides is assumption. Dogma seems to be a thing of the past. All the branches of knowledge are rubbing shoulders with one another, changing bases of reasoning, giving new premises, directing investigations into new lines of thought. Theology has to fit in with biology and the evolutionist. The astronomer figures out something and the geologist says, "That can't be. We have discovered so and so." The evolutionist has to depend on the geologist for his dates. Knowledge is growing in a great evolution which is constantly changing direction.

In astronomy, Copernicus, Galileo, Columbus, Newton, and others played parts, some directly, some indirectly. Columbus proved the earth round. Newton propounded the law of gravitation. Each helped the astronomer by giving him a basis to work from. Then came the Darwin theories about the beginning of things. They, too, were fitted in. And then, recently, along comes Einstein.

What is exact? Every schoolboy will swear that Euclid knew his business. But was Euclid right when he said that a straight line was the shortest distance between its two points? The physicist told us that light proceeded in straight lines. But along comes Einstein to say that light rays coming from the distant stars bulge in their path when passing the sun. And the observation made by Professor Chant and the other savants on their trip to Australia to view the sun's eclipse proved that Einstein was right.

Then there was his theory of relativity which sent a shudder through everyone who had thought the universe governed by the simplicities of Newton. Einstein himself has said, it is said, that only twelve people living can understand his theory of relativity so one shall not attempt to explain it here. But its application may be hinted at.

Suppose a man falls from the roof of the Royal Bank building into King street. If a lingering spark of consciousness remains, the man probably thinks he has hit something. The spectators are willing to swear that he has fallen and the traffic cop will probably call the ambulance. But are the victim, the spectators and the traffic cop right? While the man was coming from the roof to the ground, the earth was rotating on its axis, it was revolving round the sun, it has drifted along with the rest of our solar system through space. Where, then, has the man fallen? Where has he lit? In what direction has he traveled? Only relatively has his motion been towards a particular spot. For that spot itself has been traveling in no less than three different directions.

Einstein has added a fourth dimension, time, to all our other worries.

Not as Simple as Was Thought

EINSTEIN himself has demonstrated the line of his thought in another way. You strike a table with your fist twice in the same place. It is only the same place relatively to the table and the room. Time elapsed between the two blows, time in which the knocker and the table are in motion not to mention the earth and the solar system.

"The Einstein theory" declared Professor Chant, "is going to make us look at things in a different way. One effect is that it brings us a little more to the notion that matter isn't the all-important thing that the pragmatist has said it is. Everything has been considered in a material way. Einstein has shown that it all isn't as simple as it was thought. What you don't see is perhaps more important than what you see."

Professor Chant declared that the moon had been more closely observed by the astronomer than any other heavenly body because of its nearness. He expressed the interesting belief that it was nearer to the earth than it was, not nearer than it was last night or that night when you had your first kiss beneath its lunar spell, but nearer than it was, say, a hundred thousand years ago. In fact, it was approaching with such comparative slowness that there was no observational proof that the distance between the earth and its satellite was lessening at all. No length of human time was long enough to observe the change.

If it did come closer, what then? What terrible things would happen if the cold white moon which shines so beautifully on these winter nights came closer to the earth? "If it came so close that it cut down the distance in half," replied Professor Chant, "it would have the same brightness as at present, but would appear four times as big. Its approach would certainly have most disruptive effects on the earth — earthquakes and tidal waves. But this is pretty much speculation. It won't take place for thousands of years—50,000, I think George Darwin says."

Which brings up the idea of the possible end of the earth. "The immensity of heaven," writes Flammarion, "bears in its bosom cradles as well as tombs, worlds to come and perished worlds. It abounds in extinct suns and cemeteries." So why may not the earth some day be also some day a perished world?

Though there might be serious disturbances on the earth because of the nearer approach of the moon, Professor Chant doubted that this would cause the end of the earth. He did not think the two bodies would ever meet with a bang. He thought they would keep going faster and faster in a mad fox trot round one another till there was contact, perhaps as gentle as two billiard balls ticking. At any rate, for fear that anyone should lose sleep thinking of the chances of this happening anyway soon, it may be remarked that the moon's mass is only the eightieth part of the earth's. So that it might not hit Ontario at all. It might strike Central Africa or impinge on Mount Everest. Besides, like the man who was carried to the hospital and said, "You ought to see the other fellow," the moon would come off a poor second in the encounter.

If the Sun Burned Out

A SECOND and more serious way in which the earth might come to an end, or, rather, in which life on the earth might come to an end, would be if the sun lost its radiant power. "It probably is cooling," declared Professor Chant. But do not blanch. This is largely a hypothesis with regard to the sun. There is no experimental evidence. It is a difficult thing to measure the rate of cooling. "How long has King Tut been dead?" asked Professor Chant. "Three thousand years? Well, it might be possible over a period like that to measure a degree of cooling. But we don't know. The only thing would be to leave our measurements for some very future generations to compare with ours.

"But even if there is no evidence that the sun's radiation is diminishing we feel it must be. The hypothesis is that it cannot go on for ever. No matter how rich it is, it must become poor in the end. Everything is going out and nothing coming in.

"It would not take much of a decrease in the sun's heat to affect the earth very materially. It would not take much of a permanent drop in radiation to feel its effects. A drop of ten degrees in the temperature of the earth would make life on its surface pretty difficult. Just how many degrees it would require to fall to make life impossible on the earth is is hard to state."

Incidentally, Professor Chant here in answer to a question declared that there was no satisfactory astronomical explanation for the different periods of glaciation which the geologists declare the earth underwent during the last few hundred thousand years.

The third possible end of the earth would be a "natural" death. Humanity dies. Why not the earth? The earth had a beginning. Why not an end? The general theory of evolution is applied to the solar system as to animals and plants. There is little fear of the earth dying of senile decay, according to Professor Chant. He cannot see how it can while the earth continues to supply light and heat on which earthly life depend. Mars and Mercury, he explained, have advanced further in their lives, not because they were older in point of time, that is, our time, than in our earth, but because they were of smaller mass. Relativity again. They had lived faster than the earth just as the earth was living more quickly than Jupiter, greatest of planets, which still flamed with its original heat as the earth did long before life as we know it came on its surface. Mars and Mercury had, in effect, he said, got down to a permanent condition. Which led to the question: "Do you think the earth has got down to its permanent (relatively speaking) condition?"

After thought Professor Chant replied: "I should say it has, physically. The earth has cooled. The crust has formed. To that extent it has assumed a practically permanent condition. In long periods of time the earth may give off some of its internal heat and cool down further than it has done. But so long as the sun lasts, such cooling should not affect life on the earth.

"It is difficult to make any statement that would last over any length of time. Some condition may arise which will upset all our theories. When you are talking in periods of millions of years or aeons you must be pretty speculative."

Will We Bump into Vega?

THE fourth line of danger for the earth involving the possibility of an end in the far distant future is the motion of the whole solar system, the sun, the earth and the other planets, with the moon and all the other satellites, comets and heavenly camp-followers, the whole outfit, bag and baggage, towards the star Vega, which is the fifth brightest star in the firmament and is situated as one of the Lyre constellation in the northern heavens not far from Hercules. So that the earth has not merely its daily motion on its own axis and its yearly motion round the sun, but it has what might be called, for want of a better term, its eternal motion towards Vega. The speed of this drift is awfully slow. It is only twelve miles a second. A mere crawl, relatively speaking, when you consider that light travels at the express speed of 186,000 miles a second. But all the same, in an hour the earth (with the rest of the solar system moving in relative uniformity) will have sailed 43,500 miles further than at present. No wonder that Einstein comes in.

However, to resume, Professor Chant is not very anxious about possible destruction of the earth by this drift towards Vega. For one thing, Vega is 126½ trillion miles away. The ray of light which we see at night coming from it has taken nearly twenty-two years to get here, even traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second. So that our twelve-miles-a-second gait will take us well over 100,000 years anyway. Which leaves a good margin of safety for even those of us who will become centenarians.

For another thing, Professor Chant thinks that when we come nearer to Vega we may find that we are not going in an absolutely straight line and that we may just shave past with some millions of miles to spare. Or we may really come so close to the influence of that constellation that our sun and the other sun may start revolving round one another in a sort of heavenly minuet.

"At any rate," declared Professor Chant with a smile, "there is a great chance of something else happening before we reach Vega. We may bump into something else on the way."

Many Analogies in Space

SO that of the four possible endings of the world, destruction of life by the failure of the sun's rays seems the only one that need be feared. And it is reassuring to know that this is the mildest winter we have had for years. Evidently the sun is not really waning yet.

The matter of the two suns revolving round one another, referred to above, has many analogies in space.

Many a star seen as a single glittering unit by the human eye, when viewed through the powerful telescope of the modern astronomer, resolves itself into two or more distinct suns in close proximity, associated in a common lot, and rotating round one another in a more or less rapid period, which varies with each system.

In a rhapsodic passage Flammarion draws such a picture of possible life in a world illuminated by two or more suns that life on this poor little planet with this poor white sun of ours seems colorless by comparison. He imagines that we are on a planet illuminated by two suns, one blue, the other red. He continues: "It is morning. The sapphire sun climbs slowly up to the heavens, coloring the atmosphere with a sombre and melancholy blue. The blue disk attains the zenith and is beginning its descent towards the west, when the east lights up with the flames of a scarlet sun, which in its turn ascends the heights of the firmament. The west is plunged in the twilight of the rays of the blue sun, while the east is illuminated with the purple and burning rays of the ruby light. . . .

"Scarlet, indigo, green and golden suns; pearly and multi-colored moons; are not these fairy visions dazzling to our sight, accustomed here below to see and know but one white sun?"

And now for the origin of the solar system. To quote Flammarion again: "There was an epoch when the earth did not exist. Our planet, the future world of our system, slept in the bosom of the solar nebula." How, then, did it begin? It is safe to say that nobody knows. The spectroscope has shown, Professor Chant declared, that the sun is made of the same materials as the earth. So that the natural suggestion is that the earth was once part of the sun. Similarly with the other planets.

"What hypothesis," went on Professor Chant, "can you make from which to deduce just how the planets could be separated from the sun and form the solar system as we know it? It is a big problem. There is no simple theory which has had universal acceptance.

"The old theory of Laplace has in some form or another been accepted now with modifications. We may well accept it until we learn the truth. It was, in brief, that at one time the solar system was a gaseous nebula (mist or cloud) rotating, which gradually contracted and speeded up so that pieces became detached and abandoned to form what ultimately became the planets when they contracted further and solidified.

"The geologists have attacked that theory. They say that their discoveries of the ice age and so on do not fit in with it, and so make it unsatisfactory.

Our System a Spiral Nebula

"THE other theory, the planetesimal theory, originated by two Chicago men, Chamberlin, a geologist, and Moulton, a mathematician. They put it forward in an attempt to account for the evolution of the earth. Chamberlin's idea was that the nebulous matter from which the solar system came was not spherical in shape but rather spiral, a sort of huge Catherine wheel, with a central nucleus which became the sun, the tails solidifying somewhat and flying off to form the planets.

"Both are hypotheses not capable of proof. There is no definite evidence to depose one or the other."

It may be pointed out that there are many instances of nebulae in distant parts of the universe.

"What was before the nebula?" one asked, for after all the nebula is a definite formation. "What started the nebula rotating?"

"We don't know," replied Professor Chant. "We have to make a beginning from which to reason from somewhere. We can't go beyond the nebula. So far as the rotation is concerned, motion is as natural as rest." More natural, Einstein would probably say, since nothing is at rest in the universe.

Before concluding the interview, Professor Chant pointed out the significance of the observations made possible by the spectroscope, which proved that not merely the sun, but the planets, were built of the same sort of materials. He had no doubt in his mind that Jupiter, while still younger, relatively, than the earth, owing to its greater bulk and slower life, was built of the same kind of stuff. Which went to prove the unity of the solar system in more ways than one.

Not merely that, but the distant stars, suns and worlds as they are were built of hydrogen, calcium and the other elements which entered into the construction of the earth and sun. "Which proves," continued Professor Chant, "a peculiar unity in the universe. All these things lead the mind back to the idea that it was all built on a plan—that there was some power behind it. You may interpret this as you please."

Finite as the universe may be in mathematical terms and figures that swamp the human mind, the astronomer who knows it most cannot view it without reacting to the infinite, which it is in effect. "As our planet," concludes Flammarion in one of his books, "is only a province of the infinite heavens, so our actual existence is only a stage of eternal life. Astronomy, by giving us wings, conducts us to the sanctuary of truth. The spectre of death has departed from our sky. The beams of every star shed a ray of hope into our hearts. Nature, in every star, sings the hymn of life eternal."

Postmen

By VIRNA SHEARL

I LIKE postmen.
They are the winged Mercurys of our streets,
Though they may not realize it.
They only realize they carry letters—
Of different kinds.
Just letters—Letters.
But they know the different kinds,
By intuition,
Or something.

I like postmen. You don't have to explain to them.
They understand.
They are gifted that way. Dowered mysteriously.
If you are looking madly for a letter,
They know. Without being told.
If they don't bring it, their eyes say, "Sorry";
And their husky voices (usually husky; it's the weather)
Say, "There's another mail from the east; or west"—as it may be, for they know—"To-day."
If they bring the letter—they smile in a priceless way.
It is as though one of the Fates smiled at you.

* * *

I like postmen, their unruffled spirit.
They make so few mistakes,
Even when the writing seems to have been done with a whisk.

Jim, as he was familiarly known, was stricken with dropsy late last fall and was attended by Dr. R. J. Wade, of Brighton, for several weeks, but gradually grew worse. When his sister came and had him removed to her home, where he remained until death removed him from his sufferings.

He was the third son of the late Edward Robinson, who resided on Lot 35, Con. 4, of the Township of Brighton, and owned several farms adjoining as well as 200 acres in the 9th Con., Murray.

The late Hugh Strong, who owned and operated the first cheese factory in this part of the Province, was an uncle.

His eldest brother John died over 50 years ago of consumption; Frank, another brother, lives at Merriton, and his youngest brother, Cornelius, went to British Columbia forty years ago, and is believed to be dead. He had four sisters: Maggie (Mrs. Jonas Lott), deceased,, Albina and Annie, both deceased, and Jennie, who lives to mourn his loss.

Mr. Robinson was unmarried, and being of a saving disposition, became possessed of some real estate and considerable cash, all of which he willed to his sister, Mrs. VanMeer.

PETERBORO REPRESENTED AT Y.W.C.A. CONVENTION

The Peterboro Young Women's Christian Association was represented at the Canadian Biennial Convention of the Y.W.C.A. held at Preston Spring this week by Miss Leta Brownscombe and Mrs. E. Morrison, of the local staff, and Miss M. Dickson, of the board of directors. The conference was a wonderful success. Of 39 Canadian associations, 31 were represented. Over 100 interested Y.W.C.A. workers spent the week together, and during meetings and recreation hours a closer union and understanding of what the Young Women's Christian Association is accomplishing and the ideal to which the association is aiming was emphasized. An outstanding feature of the conference was the presence of secretaries and board members from many foreign countries. China, India, Japan, Holland, Greenland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, France, Italy, the Balkan States, England and United States were represented and contributed much to the programme and discussions.

The Peterboro association, members and friends are being especially honored on Tuesday evening when Kato San, general secretary of the Tokio Association, and a delegate to the world's conference at Washington and to the Canadian conference, will come to Peterboro and speak at the annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Kato San is a most interesting speaker and her messages at the conference were always much enjoyed. Peterboro is indeed fortunate in being able to secure such a wonderful person, and one who will bring such an interesting message.

Twenty-four farmers patronize the factory, and Mr. Walter Ames acts as salesman and Mr. Robert Carr as secretary.

Severe Frosts.

Three very severe frosts have visited this locality, and it yet remains to be seen the extent of the damage done. Early sown barley and strawberries will in all probability be the greatest sufferers. BOND CASE WAS BEFORE COURTS

Sensational Charge Against Peter Smith Regarding Commissions.

TORONTO, May 23.—(Canadian Press.)—When Aemilus Jarvis, Sr., Aemilius Jarvis, Jr., and Harry Pepall appeared in police court here to-day to answer charges of conspiracy in connection with the sale of succession duty free bonds, R. H. Greer, K.C., acting for Aemilius Jarvis and his son, pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by the jury on the two counts. As to the third charge, that of conspiring unduly and improperly to influence sale and purchase of succession duty free bonds, Mr. Green took the position that the indictment as drawn, shows no criminal offence.

A. G. Slaght, for Pepall, took the same position.

That Peter Smith cashed coupons on bonds worth $149,342 which bonds had been sent by Brown Brothers, New York, to Andrew H. Pepall, was the sensational charge which Assistant Crown Attorney McRuer sprang when the investigation began. Sending of bonds from Brown Brothers to Pepall followed visit of Jarvis, Sr., to England, where he bought in succession duty free bonds for the province at prices much lower than those at which they were sold to the province, said McRuer.

The Crown will seek to show that the coupons cashed by the former Provincial Treasurer were on bonds which represented part of the profits of bond purchasing and selling deal. These profits Mr. McRuer estimated at $521,176.29 and he produced a letter written by the elder Jarvis to Lloyds Bank in England to show this.

Peter Smith sat in the front row of spectators seats while this statement was made by Crown counsel, but there was hardly a flicker of emotion on his face as the figures were quoted. Shortly afterwards he went into a whispered conference with his counsel, H. H. Dewart, K.C.

Mr. McRuer summarized evidence to be submitted. He related that on February 11, 1920, Mr. Jarvis, Sr., submitted to the Ontario Cabinet a proposition to buy sterling bonds out standing in England. On February 19 he wrote to Smith offering to go to England in connection with the scheme as outlined. On February 20 an order-in-council for the redemption in whole of these bonds was passed. Four days later it was rescinded and amended to make redemption in whole or in part.

Letters were given to Jarvis by the government to facilitate him in arranging temporary credits in England.

"Prices fixed by the government were 80 for 3½ per cent. bonds; 90 for 4 per cent. bonds, and 90 for 4½ per cent." he said. "Letter was given to Pepall to authorize him to represent the Minister in England."

"Letter from Jarvis, Sr., on April 19, 1920, reported that he had bought 640,00 pounds of 3½ per cent., 773,000 pounds of 4 per cent.; and 375,000 pounds of 4½ per cent.

"The profit in this transaction is set out in letter from Mr. Jarvis to Sir John Ferguson, of Lloyd's Bank, on June 3, 1920. The prices paid for these bonds were 75 for 3½ per cent., 82 for 4 per cent.; and 84 1-2 for 4½ per cent.

"Prices paid by the government were 80, 90 and 90 respectively, so that the profit would be 132,607 pounds, 19 shillings and 6 pence."

NO SUCH THING AS "THE STYLE"

Paul Poiret, Fashion Dictator, Declares Women Chose Clothes to Fit Personality — Reflect Individual Taste.

LONDON, May 23. — There is no longer any such thing as "the style" in women's clothes.

Instead, there are as many different modes of clothes as there are kinds of women. Any woman who is wearing clothes that are adapted to her own personality is in style.

These are the views of Paul Poiret, famous French creator of clothes and arbiter of feminine styles the world over. Poiret has recently been in London exhibiting his latest creations to the elite of fashionable English society.

"There is no excuse now for any woman who has good taste to be unbecomingly dresses,' Poiret said. "There was a time when every woman had to wear a certain kind of clothes regardless of whether she looked well in them, or she was regarded as hopelessly out of style. Thus women wore short skirts, even if they made them look ridiculous, or a sleeveless gown no matter how ugly their arms might be.

"All this is changed now, and the successful modiste designs clothes to fit the type and personality of his customer. The result is that women everywhere are more becomingly dressed than they ever have been, for they wear the clothes that suit them, and the modistes co-operate with them in producing dresses that are becoming."

"Would you say, in the light of the tendency of women to develop a style of their own, and there is a similar tendency as regards countries —that is, that England, France or America is developing a style of its own?" Poiret was asekd.

"No," he replied. "There is only one style, and that is Parisian. There is not even a French style. All styles that are worth talking about are Parisian. Englishmen and Americans have not the genius for creating modes that are found in Paris, and when they try it they fail. Designing and creating women's clothes is an art, just as much as painting or sculpture, and it is only in Paris that the art has been developed.

"A woman, as I said, can wear anp dress that suits her personality and be in style, but it is only in Paris, or in the clothes that follow the Parisian mode, that she can find the really artistic creations that set forth her personal charms."

RAILWAY TRESPASSERS ARE GIVEN A WARNING

Several children were rounded up this morning in the Canadian National yard, and some probably rescued from serious injury. Not only were the children trespassing, but some were risking their lives by crawling under the gates as train No. 100 was just pulling out. Special Officer W. H. Howard has issued his annual warning that all persons found trespassing on the railroad property will be prosecuted.

Riding of bicycles from Sherbrooke Street to Aylmer Street through the yard is especially dangerous, and must be discontinued immediately.

One northern hardwood tree of any variety, 21 inches in diameter five feet above the ground, will yield a cord of wood.

POSTPONE UNION UNTIL DECISION

Private Bills Committee Votes 27 to 23 to Await Litigation Outcome — Heated Words.

OTTAWA, May 23 (Canadian Press). — By a vote of 27 to 23, the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons to-day carried an amendment to postpone the operation of the Church Union Bill till after the present litigation before the Court is settled.

No Compromise.

The efforts of the sub-committee to find a compromise on the Church Union Bill were fruitless Chairman Boys of that sub-committee reported to the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons, when that body resumed its sittings this morning.

The sub-committee, Mr. Boys reported, had held two meetings with the representatives of both advocates and opponents of the Bill, "but have been unable to reach any compromise."

His report further stated that those opposing union admitted that the Duff amendment to the preamble, moved on Wednesday, which provided for suspending the Act till after a decision by the Courts, referred not only to the pending action in Ontario, but to any other action that might be taken in the Courts of any Province.

When this report had been read, William Duff, of Lunenburg, withdrew his earlier amendment and substituted another. The substitute amendment proposed to insert in the Bill a new section declaring that it should not come into force until 1st July, 1926, "and not then" unless the courts had finally decided in the action now pending in the Supreme Court of Ontario that the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada had power "under its constitution and rules" to agree to the union, and unless the Courts had also finally decided that Parliament can constitutionally pass the Bill. The new amendment further proposed to declare that if, during the session of Parliament first after 1st July, 1926, the Courts have not reached a decision, the operation of the Act may be further suspended.

Heated Words.

Mr. Boys then made a further statement of the proceedings in the sub-committee. Those opposed to the Bill had agreed, he said, to limit the Court proceedings to the action now entered in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The Unionists were opposed to any reference to the Courts, but, if there was to be a reference, he preferred the reading of a substitute amendment regarding the power of the Presbyterian General Assembly "under its constitution and rules."

"There have been amendments circulated by unionists," he was proceeding, when T. W. Bird, of Nelson, interrupted.

Mr. Bird agreed that there had been amendments circulated, but not that they had been circulated by unionists.

Mr. Boys stated that the amendments had been supported before the sub-committee by "Mr. Pidgeon."

"But that does not say that they were circulated by unionists," still objected Mr. Bird.

"I am not going to argue that with you," retorted Mr. Boys. "You know as well as I do that they were circulated by them."

WILLIAM CONNORS AND NOT WILLIAM CORNER.

In yesterday's paper it stated that William Corner pleaded guilty to stealing a ride on the Belleville passenged train on the Canadian National Railway. He boarded the train at the C. P. R. diamond, and was arrested by Special Officer William H. Howard of the C. N. R. He was fined $2 and costs, $4.50.

The name should have read Willian Connors and not Corner.

PETERBORO FANS ARE EAGER FOR THE OPENER

Local Interest In Central Ontario League Never Keener Than This Season — Holiday Game With Kingston Should Bring Out Record Crowd at Riverside.

Everything is set for the opening of the Central Ontario Baseball League tomorrow and if a suitable brand of weather is dished out the opening clash at Riverside Park between Kingston and Peterboro should be a brilliant success.

The Ponies, elated over their neat win over the Oshawa crew in the first fixture of the season are bringing their full strength here tomorrow and Peterboro people who saw Wednesday's game declare that the Kingston fans expect a comparatively easy victory over the Petes. Down Kingston way they regard Oshawa as the chief contenders for the Central pennant, giving Belleville an outside chance for the honors while the Petes are regarded as nowhere in the picture.

Knowing this the Solomon crew are full of fight and they will be out there tomorrow in a scrappy mood that augurs trouble for somebody. Every opportunity the weather has allowed for practice has been taken advantage of and the squad under the conditions are in good shape and "rarin' to go."

The Ponies' line-up will be as follows:

Teeple, rf.
Ryckman, c.
Batstone, 3b.
Cherry, m.
Daley, lf.
Compeau, ss.
Purvis, 1b.
W. Evans, 2b.
Kelly, p or
Gallagher, p

The majority of these players were with the Kingston crew last year and need no introduction. Batstone is of course the famous rugby star and ex-third baseman of the Toronto Hillcrests. Kelly is a southpaw pitcher new to the circuit and Ryckman the catcher is also a new comer to the Central loop.

Gallagher is a league veteran having been with Oshawa in 1922 and with Kingston last year. Purvis, the first sacker, is a youngster who played for the Kingston Circle Six against the Lakeviews last year. He is regarded as a comer. Bill Evans at second base played short for Kingston last season, while Compeau who broke in in sensational style on Wednesday night is a graduate from the City League ranks. The outfielders were all with the Ponies last year.

Manager Solomon's line up has not yet been given out. The following are expected to be on hand sharp at 2 o'clock tomorrow: Heckman, Serth, Swanston, Harrison, Holyman, Johnston, Batten, Shaughnessy, Helson, Hall, Wolfe, Legon, Cook, and Moore.

'Chuck' Allen, formerly of Lindsay will be one of the umpires and the other official will be a Toronto arbitrator.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp and there will be brief opening ceremonies in which local dignitaries will take part.

Out-of-town fans are coming in large numbers for the opening clash which is regarded as the big sporting event of the day in the district.

The river stand will be free to the fans, the only charge for grandstand accommodation being 15c for gentlemen in the main stand, to which ladies are admitted free.

NOTES OF THE OPENER

There is much speculation as to the pitchers who will battle in tomorrow's game at Riverside Park. Kingston have not yet decided whether to start Gallagher or Kelly while Manager Solomon refuses to say whether Heckman or Serth will be the Peterboro gunner.

Compeau, the youngster from the Kingston City League, had a sensational start in his first game in senior company against Oshawa Wednesday night. He accepted nine chances at shortstop and made two hits in three appearances at the plate. A nice night's work for a rookie.

Ward, formerly of the Lakeviews, played second base for Oshawa at Kingston and had one of his team's five hits. Mickey Murray went hitless in three times up.

Kingston failed to win a game at Riverside Park last year and the Petes are determined that the record will not be spoiled to-morrow.

Riverside Park is at its best for the battle tomorrow. The infield has never been in as good condition since Canadian League days.

Withstands punishment

RAILWAY crossings, stony roads, curb bumps, sudden braking and steep down-grade are typical of the numberless punishments that cause internal heat so destructive to both rubber and cords.

In Dominion Cord Tires you have always had the greatest dependability—but now, by our exclusive new Web Cord process, internal friction and heat caused by cross threads are eliminated.

Our new Sprayed Rubber process increases the elasticity and strength of the treads and side walls, because Sprayed Rubber is the purest rubber in the world. It is used exclusively in Dominion Royal Cord and U-cord Tires in Canada.

EXAMINER WON FROM QUAKERS

Two Runs In First Inning Only Counters In Mercantile Game — Scates Blanked the Cereal Crew In Pitching Duel With "Lefty" Turner.

The Examiner team declared themselves in the Mercantile League race at Riverside Park last evening when they administered a neat coating of whitewash to the Quaker Oats crew in a League fixture, the score, at the end of the sixth inning when the game was called on account of darkness being 2 to 0 for the newspaper outfit. It was a pitchers' battle between Freddy Scates, the Examiner's smoke ball artist, and Lefty Turner, the good southpaw of the Porridge manufacturers and the right-hander won the argument by blanking the opposition, allowing but two hits and striking out ten men in six frames.

Scates had a barrel of speed and mixed a curve with the fast stuff to good advantage.

Turner was invincible after the first inning when the Examiner jumped him for the only two coufflers of the game. It was a case of locking the stable after the horse was stolen, however, for the Quakers could not solve Scates' delivery and the runs in the first inning decided the issue.

It was a smart ball game all the way, featured by the good work of the pitchers and by several sparkling fielding plays. Collins, the Examiner shortstop contributed one of them in the second when he pulled down Ash's liner that looked a hit. Ash was also the victim of petty larceny in the sixth when he cut a vicious grounder toward right, only to have Franks come up with the ball and toss him out. Had the drive got away it might have put a different complexion on the ball game as the losers had a man on the runaways at the time.

Decided at Outset.

The game was won and lost in the first frame. Turner could not get the ball over for Baker and the Examine third baseman drew a walk. A moment later he scored all the way from first when Taylor drove a long double over Ralph's head. Dugan flied to centre but Taylor stole third and carried the second run of the inning over when Vincent booted Franks' fast skipper. Turner threw out Collins and fanned Long but the damage was done and the teams might as well have gone home then, so far as scoring was concerned.

The Quakers got a man on in the first on a pass and again in the third on Taylor's miss of Scates' throw. Butcher being the runner in each case but Scates had no trouble in retiring the side. The losers seriously threatened for the first time in the fourth when with one out Dugan missed the third strike on Turner and then threw over Taylor's head, the batter reaching second. Ash rolled to Collins who tried to pick Turner off second but the runner slid back safely and the Quakers had the tieing runs on the way. Ash upset the beans by trying to steal second with Turner holding that bag and in the run up that followed he was nipped trying to get back to first. Turner scampered to third but died there when Theobald watched a third strike steam over.

Joe Dineen in the role of a pinch hitter started a mean rally in the fifth. With Ralph out of the way the relief batter cracked the first ball pitched to him for a clean single to centre, the first hit off Scates. Clancy shot a single over Collins' head and the Quaker prospects brightened. Butcher fouled to Dugan but the base runners pulled off a double steal. Scates shot down the rally by whiffing Vincent and the big chance was gone.

Kirn opened the final frame by getting a life on Collins' fumble. Turner fanned, the last one being a wild pitch on which Kirn rumbled down to second. Franks' smart play on Ash's hard hit drive towards right retired the batter, Kirn reaching third. He perished at the plate a minute after, however, when he tried to steal home.

The Examiner failed to move a wheel after the first—but the jump had won for them.

RAYBESTOS AND C.G. AT COBOURG

Play Dye Works and Canadian Nationals on Holiday Opening Midland League.

FANS ARE INTERESTED

COBOURG, May 22.—(Special).—Cobourg ball fans are looking forward with much enthusiasm to Victoria Day. Not only will the Midland League be opened here with games between the Canadian General Electric team of Peterborough and the Canadian Nationals of Cobourg; and the Raybestos team and the Cobourg Dye Works, but the Soft Ball League will open their schedule also.

The Midland games are to be played at Horse Show Park, which has been fitted up for the event. The soft ball games will be staged at Victoria Park. With twelve teams entered, the latter is an enthusiastic organization. They have been practicing during the week, as many as seven teams getting a look in for practice work on one evening.

A schedule of sixty games has been drawn up opening on May 24 and continuing until August 29.

The official ball to be used is the 14-inch inter-seam play ground ball, and men who have been out of the game for years are among the most enthusiastic players.

QUAKERS WERE UNFORTUNATE

Defeated 1 to 0 In a Fast Soccer League Game Last Evening.

Last evening the Vets defeated the Quakers by one goal to nothing in a Soccer League game at Nicholls Oval. The Quakers played throughout the whole seventy minutes with only ten players—in fact, the elite of the team was working and substitutes made a good showing. The Vets' goal was well taken. If the Quakers had had their regular team there might have been a different result. Pellow in goal was the surprise of the evening—his diplay was par excellence.

Quakers—Pellow, goal; Willshaw and Young, backs; Honor, Pattison and Butler, half-backs; Mayette, Wilson, Craig and Walker, forwards.

G.W.V.A.—Frick, goal; Frost and Crowe, backs; Burrows, Mann and Bestard, half-backs; Clark, Underwood, Dyer, Blowers and Sharman, forwards.

Referee—J. C. Russell.

Craig set the ball in motion with only ten men in his team and were in evidence around the Vets' goal through Mayette and Craig. From the kick-off the Vets retaliated to give Pellow a fright when he fisted out in nick of time. The Quakers had the best of the exchanges on the raids upon goal where Craig was very prominent with low ground shots that Frick handled smartly. Craig broke through on his own, Wasson was tricked nicely, but the Quakers' parting shot missed the cross-bar, then Dyer tested Pellow at the other end without any issue. Two unsuccessful corners for the Vets demonstrated Pellow's ability between the sticks. Ultimately he had to admit defeat from a low fast ground shot from Burrows who accepted time pass from Blowers on the left. Just before half time Blowers sent one of his famous drives over the mar. Then Sharman tested Pellow as the whistle sounded. Half time—Vets 1, Quakers 0.

Half Time.

On resuming, the Vets went down into Quakers' territory to give Pellow a hot session in goal. Blowers tried to pick the corner of the goal. Dyer sent back at close range but the goalie was the master of the situation. Wall.r travelled down the wing, evaded Frost, shot across the goal where Mayette sent in a first-timer that Frick clinched. Each goal-keeper was visited in rotation, in fact, the Vets were more dangerous in front of the goal as no doubt, the Quakers' goalie had the most to do but he was brilliant on all occasions. Wilson and Mayette on the right wing was playing nice combination and Wasson and Frost frustrated many an attack. A foul against Vets looked dangerous when Willshaw landed the ball at Wilson's foot. Three Vet players blocked him at the critical moment. Then Quakers overshadowed the Vets in clever football in last twenty minutes. Frick was called upon to clear in rapid succession. With only ten players the Quakers gave an excellent account of themselves and were unfortunate to lose by the odd goal. Vets 1, Quakers 0.

Goal scorer—Barrows.

C.P.C. JUNIORS WIN FROM GREY BIRDS

Score Was 3-0 In King Edward Park Soccer Match Thursday Evening--James In Limelight

There was a nice crowd on hand at King Edward Park when Mr. John Seymour the genial superintendent of the plant kicked off for the Mayor Taylor's Cup holders and hay ing the advantage of a strong wind were soon in the vicinity of Jenkins. Mitchell gave the Greybirds custodian a beautiful cross shot which Jenkins saved at the expense of a corner. Billingsley took the kick and placed nicely. Lindsey b.. out and Killenbeck tried a solo run but was pulled up by Curtis. The juniors by some nice combination came within an ace of scoring, Jenkins who gave an excellent display of goalkeeping all through the game, brought of a grand save. He was beaten just before the interval by a splendid shot from the foot of James. Half time—C.P.C. 1, Greybids 0.

After the usual refresher the Greybirds with the wind in their favor played a forcing game and T. Montgomery was very lucky to save from Somers. The combination of the cup holders was a source of trouble to the Greybirds, defence of which Feeley and Lindsey was very prominent. James and Mitchell tested Jenkins time and again but he was very safe. He gave a corner by turning the ball over the bar from Studley's shot Mitchell took the kick and placed in front of goal, James heading out of the reach of Jenkins. The Greybirds from the centre kick made a great effort to score, Montgomery saving a beauty from Foster. The cup holders were staying better than their opponents. Carmichael gave James the ball and the inside right scored the third goal with a shot which gave Jenkins no chance. The play was now very even, the Greybirds tried their best to score but time was called leaving the junior cup holders winner by 3 to 0.

The teams lined up as follows:

C.P.C.—T. Montgomery, H. Curtis, S. Willis, I. Montgomery, Halliday, Soutar, Mitchell, James, Strudley, Carmichael, Billingsley.

Greybirds—Jenkins, Lindsey, Foster, Lynch, Feeley, Batley, Cross, Somers, Killenbeck, Anderson, Edwards.

SOCCER NOTES.

On Saturday afternoon (Victoria Day), the Canadian Woollens will play the Thistles in a League game. Kick-off at 3 o'clock. Referee, A. Mitchell.

The Thistle's team will be picked from the following—Curtiss, Bishop, Anderson, Jackson, Dawson, Ross, Hotston, Hutton, Richmond, A. Williams, Burgess, T. Williams, McPhail, Rae and Melville. Be at the Oval at 2.45 prompt.

All signed players for the Canadian Woollens are requested to appear at Nicholls Oval on Saturday at 2 o'clock.

One of the best captures this season has been the Quakers' new inside right, Wilson. He is a clever manipulator of the ball and always dangerous in front of goal. Joe Mayette and Wilson made an ideal right wing.

Frost, late Caley's, Woollens and now the Vets, played his first game of the season last evening at right back. Also, did Underwood, last year with C.P.C. seniors.

DO YOU KNOW SOCCER?

Offsides—A player following up another of his own side who has the ball CANNOT be offsides. A player who is in his own half of the field of play at the moment the ball is last played cannot be offside.

A player once offside CANNOT put himself onside. This can only be done for him in three ways: (i) If an opponent next plays the ball; (ii) If he is behind the ball when it is next played by one of his own side; (iii) If he has three opponents between him and their goal-line when the ball is played by one of his own side further from his opponent's goal than himself.

The ball hitting the goal-post or bar and rebounding does not put a player on-side who was offside when the ball was LAST PLAYED.

JANETVILLE HAD A BASEBALL GAME

Home Team Won by a Score of 14 to 7.

JANETVILLE, May 23.—Baseball Club played the first game of the season last on the old ball field east of the village. The opposing team was that of Yelverton Public School and the game was worthy of more mature athletes. The lads ranged from eleven to fourteen years of age. They battled like heroes for the game, and displayed a calm, patient determination and courtesy seldom manifest in boys so young.

The line-up was as follows: H. Magill, F. McNil, M. Magill, E. Porter, E. Grandy, S. Walker, A. Heaslip, N. Marshall and J. Magill for Janetville, and N. Wilson, O. Capstick, O. Stacey, R. Kerr, H. Wilson, C. Jordan, J. Jacket and K. Heaslip.

As far as the teams were concerned, no voice was heard by the spectators, but that of the umpire. At one time it seemed that Janetville was about to be swamped, but just at that moment there was a scurry of feet, a cringing of wire on the fence, a combination of thuds on the ground and the teachers of the boys and the mothers stood by and began to root, and they became rooters of the first magnitude. The tide turned, there was a general advance all along the line and Janetville wan by a score of fourteen to seven. It was certainly a great game. The pitchers for Janetville were S. Walker and H. Magill, while O. Capstick twirled for Yelverton. These boys were all lefties, and were really magnificent in the box. Frank Allison was the Umpire, while the Methodist preacher was among the rooters.

DEPUTY SPEAKER AS A PITCHER

Mr. Gordon to Pitch the First Ball at Tomorrow's Central Ontario League Game.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, is to pitch the first ball at the Kingston-Peterborough Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon, with His Worship Mayor Turner swinging a bat and, it is expected, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., performing as catcher.

Benson, of Toronto, a new arbitrator on this circuit, will be the umpire-in-chief, and "Chuck" Allen the former Lindsay pitcher, will officiate on the bases.

In the list of names of the Peterborough players wanted out tomorrow, published on the opposite page, the name of Frankie Collins was inadvertently omitted. He will of course, be with the squad as usual.

MAYBERRY FOUGHT GENARO TO DRAW

TORONTO, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Howard Mayberry, of Hamilton, gave further demonstration that he is a real contender for the Canadian bantam title, when he fought ten rounds to a draw with Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, here last night, and there are many who will contend that the New Yorker received the break in decision. Both judges called the affair a draw and while the result was very, very close, Mayberry seemed to have a slight edge, gained principally in the early rounds, but it was hardly enough to entitle him to a clear cut decision over the champion.

The Hamilton boy had both reach and height on the conqueror of villa and he had slightly over a pound advantage in weight, coming in at 115 3-4 pounds, when the articles called for 118. At that the reduced weight did not, appear to weaken Mayberry. Genaro who is a heavily built lad from the waist up relict mainly on speed, shiftiness and an almist perfect defence, wehn close in, and most of Mayberry's points were gained at long range.

JUNIOR LEAGUE TO GET STARTED SAT.

Lakeviews and Crescents Clash at Riverside Park Tomorrow Morning in Opening Game of Season.

The Junior League schedule opens to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, when the fast Lakeview aggregation, piloted by Lou LeBarr, clash with the Crescents, last year's Sacred Heart Juveniles, who are taking the jump to Junior ball this season. The game will be a good one, as both teams boast of star twirlers, and a southpaw battle will be seen by the many fans. Chuck Bradley, who hurled the Maple Leafs to the Midget championship of Ontario in 1922, and who took them to the finals in the Juvenile series last year, will do the mound work for the Crescents to-morrow morning, while Frank Whitehouse, another southpaw of note, will do the pitching for the Lakeviews. Both teams have been practising faithfully for the opening game and a good game is assured the fans. It is hoped that the fans will turn out strong and give the teams who put Peterboro on the map last season some support.

PETERBORO TEAM WON IN LINDSAY

Kiwanians Got Away With the Big End of a 20 to 8 Score.

LINDSAY, May 23. — Peterboro Kiwanis softball team came, and saw, and conquered. After partaking of the hospitality of the local Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Thursday night, they sallied forth with a jolly band of supporters to the armouries to meet the local ball swatters. After the smoke of battle cleared away they emerged from the struggle with the big end of a 20-8 score. The visitors deserved to win, too, for they had it over the Lindsay Kiwanians like a tent. There was a big gallery present to see the game, and the rivalry existing during the evening was of the true Kiwanian brand. In the matter of rooting the ladies were more demonstrative than weer the members of the sterner sex. Peterboro had a classy battery in McLean and Trown and they dished up a very fine brand of ball. The work of the visiting short stop, R. Mackie was all to the good, and while these three were the outstanding players on the Peterboro line-up, the other members of the team played their positions splendidly. Brown was a bear behind the home plate, catching foul tips, which following Peterboro rules, count out, whether first, second or third strikes. Richman, on the mound for the locals, was erratic at times, he had lots of speed, but was out of practice.

In the opening stanzas, the play was rather disjointed, but the teams gradually steadied down. Brown, the Electric City receiver, clouted out a home run in the first innings, with two men on bases, and the joy of the rooters knew no bounds. Richman, the local heaver worried the visitors a lot while on bases, on one occasion stealing second, third and home while the visiting catcher was out of his box. The locals had the faculty of leaving a number of their players stranded on bases. On four occasions bases were filled, and in the majority of cases they remained filled to the close of the innings, although Pete Spratt must be credited with a steal to home plate in the fifth innings.

The line-ups:

Peterboro—R. Mackie ss, R. Green 1b, C. McLean p, S. G. Gordon 2b, W. Craig rf, W. Byers 3b, A. Dick cf, Dr. Lacey lf.

Lindsay—D. Sinclair ss, W. Ferguson c, L. Richman p, H. Brown 1b, R. I. Moore 2b, Geo. Little 3b, L. Rogers rf, P. Spratt cf, E. Stewart lf. C. Frost relieved Stewart in the fifth.

Score by innings:

Peterboro .. .. 352021 7 0—20
Lindsay .. .. 111012 2 0— 8

Umpires—H. Woods on balls and strikes; E. Taylor on bases.

COLBORNE WON ORLAND OPENER

ORLAND, May 23.—The opening game held here to-day with Colborne was a great surprise to both teams as well as all the other teams in the county, as it seemed to be conceded that the Orland team was invincible, but if any conceit lurked in the breasts of the Orland boys it certainly received a rude jolt.

However, the boys say they are not discouraged and will turn over a new life.

The next team that visits our diamond will be Roseneath, who have requested that the game be postponed till Saturday, the 31st.

The line-up was as follows:

Orland—L. Way, pitcher; W. Downs, catcher; K. Zufelt, first base; E. Houlihan, second base; H. Mulhall, third base; H. Belford, short-stop; G. Beatty, right field; C. Dawson, left field; E. R. Zufelt, centre field.

Colborne — D. Ives, pitcher; D. Mayhew, catcher; G. Ross, first base; Bartlett, second base; McBride, third base; S. Wilson, short-stop; J. Delaney, right field; Ives, left field, F. Hawkins, centre field.

By inings:

Orland.. .. .. 000 002 121—6
Colborne .. .. ..101 022 023—11

Umpires—Cowie and Richardson.

LOCAL KIWANIANS VISITED LINDSAY

Interesting Address by Mr. Peter Grant of Toronto--Ladies Present.

LINDSAY, May 23. — It was "Citizenship Night" at the weekly luncheon of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club, Thursday evening, and the function was featured by the presence of a delegation of Kiwanis brothers from Peterboro and their wives who were given a true Kiwanis welcome and right royally entertained. Among those from the Lift Lock Lock city were noticed: J. Marshall, President, Dr. Craig, Pete Lang, W. F. Huycke, J. Doran, Dr. E. Wood, J. McKone, C. Brown, R. Mackay, G. Green, E. V. Taylor, J. John, W. Williams, W. Byers, A. Dick, W. E. Conway.

Edgar Lytle was chairman of the evening, and as an evidence of the happy relationship existing between the Kiwanis of Lindsay and Peterboro, appointed Alex. Dick, sergeant at-Arms. Art Alin had charge of the community singing, with Stan. Scott at the piano.

The chairman in his opening remarks made reference to the happy and cordial relationship which had been created by Kiwanis between Lindsay and Peteboro. He welcomed the visiting Kiwanis and their wives and trusted that the evening would be one of enjoyment and pleasure.

President Jack Marshall, in responding to the words of welcome from the chairman stated that Peterboro Kiwanis had always a warm place in their hearts for Lindsay Kiwanis. He had watched the development and growth of Kiwanis principles with pride, and the Lindsay Club was growing with such caps and bounds that its daddy (Peterboro Kiwanis) would have to look to its laurels. They had gathered around the festive board on different occasions, had fraternized and sang together, and he felt that in these pressing times we fail to realize what was in front of us or realize the glorious future in store for our country. We should carry the motto "We Build" 'into our business life. We should get away from the spirit of selfishness, and smile more in our daily task. Fundamentally Canada was better off than any country in the world and had a greater and brighter future. As Kiwanians they should carry their motto out into the world and also realize the fact that things are not as bad as they might be, and a great deal better than they are in other countries.

Mrs. (Dr.) E. Wood made a most happy response on behalf of the lady guests. She acknowledged the cordiality and warmth of the reception accorded them by the Lindsay Kiwanis. It was her first visit, she said to Lindsay and was glad she came. She expected to see the good looking Lindsay ladies along with the good looking Lindsay men, and would come back if she was invited.

The chairman then introduced the speaker of the evenig, Mr. Peter M. Grant, of Toronto, better known as the Laird of Runnymede.

Mr. Grant's address was one of a very high order, replete with chastediction and bristling with facts and figures relative to the resources and great possibilities of this Canada of ours. He prefaced his remarks by a reference to the heroism of brave little Belgium as well as the sacrifices which the nation made in its efforts to stem the tide of the advancing Huns during the Great War.

In dealing with Canada's resources Mr. Grant said that these in themselves did not make a nation. High-minded, clean-minded men constituted the state. When the Romans conquered the tribes of Europe and used them to build their cities, they afterwards gave them citizenship, and it was the fusion of the bloods of the different peoples which contributed to the power, glory, and influence of the mighty empire.

Englishmen were the products of the early Briton, Picts, and Scots, Roman, Dane, Saxon, and Norman. Canada from this fusion will have the finished product of the higher civilisation which is dawning in this Dominion.

Mr. Grant made eloquent reference to Britain's brilliant achievements in the Peninsular War and also in the last war. There was no estimation too high in which to hold the British people. The aftermath of the war is one of anarchy and social unrest, but in spite of this condition the Anglo-Saxon looks calmly on in supreme confidence in British integrity.

Mr. Grant here took occasion to pay a tribute to the Irish and Scots and the part they played in contributing to the greatness of the British Empire. Here in Canada, he said, two problems present themselves. Canadians understood their neighbours to the south better than the people in the Old Land, and it was their duty to stand between both as an interpreter and friend. There was no higher ideal for statesmen than the promotion of harmonious friendship between peoples in the interests of world peace.

Canada needs men and will get them. There will be great migration in the future from the war devastated countries of Europe, and the gateways of our country will not be wide enough for the newcomers. These people will bring added problems—problems which the next decade must settle—problems that have to do with the nationalisation and the assimilation of these people. The need of leaders is equally great. In this age of moral and social turpitude and political dishonour, the words of the American author ring true—"God give us men."

A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Dr. White.

Tenor Soloist of New York who will give a song recital in St. John's Parish Hall, on Monday evening.

DAWES REPORT WAS DECLINED

Negotiations Between the Party Leaders Will Continue Until Saturday.

BERLIN, May 23.—(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent).—Leaders of the National Party today declined temporarily to accept the Dawes plan into a basis for the parties participation in the new cabinet.

Negotiations between the party leaders will continue, however, until Saturday.

The middle parties had more unconditional acceptance of the Dawes plan. A condition for participation of the Nationalists in the new government.

Political observers believe the situation is such that the present cabinet, with perhaps some slight alterations, will continue in power and await its fate from the Reichstag itself.

They saw little chance of an agreement between the Nationalists and the Center parties even if negotiations are continued after to-morrow.

The Socialists may grant a friendly support to the Marx-Stressmann regime enabling it to continue in power.

BUYING BRISK ON THE LOCAL MARKET

Dairy Produce Plentiful With Prices Holding Firm.

There was a small farmers' market this morning, although buying in the basket section was quite brisk. Dairy produce was plentiful, much of it at lower prices being snapped up quickly, while those holding out for higher quotations held their goods until a late hour. Butter ranged in price from 30 to 35 cents a pound, eggs were 23 and 25 cents a dozen, and chickens from 25 to 28 cents a pound. Cream was 30 cents a pint.

Interested spectators surveyed the lively antics of a box of young ducks, yellow-backed and angular, with enquiring expressions, that might be had at 30 cents apiece, or four for a dollar. In the open section, there were Barred Rock chicks in two big bird cages, at 20 cents each.

Carts filled with green plants were sources of interest also. One had just received an entire new coat of bright red paint. Twenty and twenty-five cents buys a small box of sprouts, in tomato, cabbage, cauliflower, celery or onions. Flower plants also had a quick sale, the popular Canterbury Bells going for three for a quarter, and big, blossoming red geraniums in pots at 25 cents. Upstairs one vendor had feverfew at 10 cents a root.

Small bunches of cut pansies in brilliant yellows and rich purples were 10 and 15 cents a bunch. The artificial-flower lady had a table covered with pretty things, but the embroidery specialist with his novel needle did not have the usual crowd this morning.

Potatoes were scarce, small samples in bags selling for $1.75, the larger variety at $2. Little, pink piglets were $7 and $8 a pair.

THEATRES

WHAT BECOMES OF GLORIA'S GOWNS AFTER A PICTURE-

What become of the many gorgeous gowns Gloria Swanson wears in pictures?

These dresses often give delight to extra women, stenographers and laboratory girls, for it is a custom in some studios to sell many of the dresses after they have served their original purpose. A dress that Miss Swanson wears, for instance, in but one scene may find itself in the wardrobe of one of the studio stenographers.

Miss Swanson never wears a gown a second time—in pictures that is—no matter how costly the dress. It goes in stock as soon as she is through with it. The next time it appears on the screen it may be worn by some actress playing a bit, or by an extra woman who takes her place in the background with the "atmosphere."

Sometimes leading women who have gorgeous clothes furnished them for their parts in pictures, but the dresses for their personal wardrobe. If a star becomes attached to a particular gown she has the privilege of purchasing it, but this rarely happens.

Many times the foundation of bizarre costumes are used as the basis of new gowns of an entirely different style. Period costumes that are designed for stars always go into stock after they are used. At some future time, however, they may be altered to fit some earlier or later period.

When dresses are worn or soiled during the filming of a picture the good silk or satin remaining is usually used for fancy pillow covers, piano scarfs and the like. There is never any waste in spite of the apparent profligate use of fine clothes in present-day motion pictures.

Miss Swanson has probably sent more clothes to wardrobe closets than any other actress on the screen today. At the completion of her latest Paramount picture, "A Society Scandal," which comes to the Capitol Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next, she discarded fourteen gowns of the most advanced styles. They ranged all the way from evening frocks, riding habits and negligees to the smart thing to wear for the divorce court. These all went into the general wardrobe, and who knows but some some petite stenographer—she will have to be so if she is to wear Gloria's clothes—may be taking her weekly riding lesson in the park adorned in a habit of the latest cut, fresh from the Paramount Long Island studio.

This is what becomes of the smart gowns worn by Miss Swanson—or any star in fact—in motion pictures.

Few of us there are who fail to respond to a tale of the sea. There is a certain fascination about stories of men that go down to the sea in ships that is bound to get under the skin and hold the interest. This is especially true of motion pictures of this type and in the case of "Women Who Give," the new Metro picture shown at the Capitol Theatre last night, it is forcibly brought out. Here is a film play that is literally packed full of genuine drama, thrills and heart appeal, exceedingly well acted, capably produced, with the famous characters of a well-known novel brought to life on the silver sheet.

"Women Who Give" was directed by Reginald Barker from Sarah P. McLean Greene's classic of the New England coast, "Cape Cod Folks." It is a rousing tale and with the wide scope of the motion picture camera has been made into one of the most stisfactory pictures of the present season. Much of the action has been filmed in locations round about Cape Cod, providing genuine atmosphere with the balance of the settings in perfect kepeing with the nature of the story.

An exciting section is the swordfish fight and the shipwreck, filmed at night.

This interesting story and well-made production also has the distinct advantage of a cast worthy of being called all-star. Barbara Bedford and Renee Adoree share honors in the leading feminine roles. It may truthfully be said that they have never been seen to better advantage. Robert Frazer is admirably suited to the role of the young sea captain and Frank Keenan adds another to his long list of sterling characterizations. Joseph Dowling, Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing, Victor Potel, Eddie Phillips and William Eugene round out a particularly well chosen cast.

With the feature picture is an "Our Gang" comedy, "Giants vs. Yanks," the Pathe Review, and a snappy dance offering in the vaudeville section, with Lund and Jena, in a novel and entertaining programme of clever dance specialties.

AT THE REGENT

GILBERT LAUDED IN GREAT DAVIS DRAMA.

Another immortality has been achieved by the motion picture, in the presentation yesterday of William Fox's screen version of Richard Harding Davis' literary epic, "The Exiles," at the Regent Theatre. John Gilbert appeared at his best in the most prominent role.

From every point of view, "The Exiles" as a motion picture falls into the same class as it did in book form. It has been filmed with the same breadth of vision, the same dramatic genius that marked Richard Harding Davis' original. Covering the vast distance between New York City and Tangiers, Africa, the sweep of the production amazes with its facility and ease.

The drama of a puppet who becomes humanized through actual contact with life is thrown on the screen with a vividness that shocks the imagination. The audience which witnessed its first showing at the Regent Theatre was loud in its enthusiasm.

John Gilbert is charming in his portrayal of Harry Holcombe, the New York district attorney who finds real life and real love in the freedom of Tangiers. Betty Bouton, who plays the feminine lead, affords a sympathetic characterization of a fallen girl. She is warm and intensely alive, every fibre in her being seems to express an emotion.

The adventure and romance that abound in the gay seaport of Tangiers are fully seen on the screen. It is a place where public opinion doesn't exist and people who do just as they please, without referring to the current book of conventions.

Magic is exercised on the recuperating district attorney and he undergoes a marvellous transformation. Mr. Gilbert is well supported by John Webb Dillion, Margaret Fielding and Fred. Warren.

AT THE ROYAL

MOVIE FANS LIKE LLOYD HAMILTON

Lloyd Hamilton, the star of "His Darker Self," the new feature length black face comedy which comes to the Royal Theatre for a three-day run next Monday, is one of the most popular comedians on the screen. A questionnaire sent to several thousand exhibitors and motion picture editors of the country asking what screen comedian is apparently the most popular with patrons of the theatres proved that Charles Chaplin, Harold Lloyd and Lloyd Hamilton were the best liked. This is most significant in view of the fact that Hamilton has never made a feature length comedy before.

James W. Dean, well known motion picture critic, whose syndicated reviews appear in hundreds of newspapers, said of Lloyd Hamilton:

"I dare say Hamilton is inherently a funnier man than Chaplin or Lloyd or Keaton. He is the only one of the four who makes me laugh when I meet him. Chaplin's shuffle is no funnier than Hamilton's toe-heel-hip-shoulder gait. Keaton's frozen face is no more grotesque than the expansive map of Hamilton. Lloyd has the appearance of an unsophisticated youth, but Hamilton's countenance is often as innocent as a baby's."

In "His Darker Self" Hamilton has the part of Claude Sappington, an amateur sleuth, who in his effort to capture a murderer applies burnt cork, mixes with the "culud gen'lemen" and has many wild adventures as a result. The supporting cast in this screaming comedy of two colors includes Tom Wilson, Tom O'Malley, Lucille La Verne, Irma Harrison, Edna May Sperl, Sally Long, Kate Bruce an Warren Cook.

DOROTHY PHILLIPS SCORES IN HER LATEST PICTURE

"Slander the Woman" Ranks Among Best Films Seen Here In Many Weeks.

One of the most interesting pictures that has come to town in many weeks opened yesterday and is being shown at the Royal Theatre today and Saturday. It is a First National production, entitled "Slander the Woman," directed by Allen Holubar and starring Dorothy Phillips in a role that gives full scope to her exceptional dramatic ability. In every way "Slander the Woman" must be classed among really big motion pictures that serve their first purpose in supplying genuine entertainment of a kind that is beneficial in character.

Story, acting and settings, all call for more than passing notice in Director Holubar's latest production. As a basis for the continuously diverting action, most of which is laid in the northeastern section of Canada, the producer selected Jeffrey Deprend's gripping tale of a young woman whose good name was sacrificed by an ambitious judge.

The elemental human appeal of the character of the girl, suffering under the misjudgment of her friends, but determined to fight until the wrong is righted, is brought out to the full by Miss Phillips, who strengthens her place as one of the screen's foremost emotional actresses. Occasionally there are touches of natural humor to enliven the picture, but in the main it depends upon conflict of character and the strange pranks played by fate in the development of the lives of the principal figures in the action.

Although there is no obvious moral to burden the story, it does point an inspiring lesson in the pluck of the girl who refuses to be beaten even when everything appears to be against her. And up there in the wilds of Canada we see that justice finally operates in the most unexpected fashion. That is one of the strong points of the plot. The unexpected is always happening, and then it seems logical. "Slander the Woman" is a truly fine accomplishment, reflecting credit on the star, director and all the members of the cast.

WEDDING BELLS

FREEMAN—ANDRUS.

St. James' Methodist Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding at eleven o'clock on Thursday morning, when Winnifred Blanche, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hercules Andrus, of Colborne, became the bride of Harold G. Freeman, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. D. Richardson, in the presence of a large number of friends. The church was decorated with roses, ferns and palms.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of Menhelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mr. Neil Porter. She wore a beautiful gown of white charmeuse satin, with veil and orange blossom wreath. The bridesmaid, Miss W. Andrus, wore a pretty costume of pale green satin crepe and large picture hat to match. Mr. Gordon Cook acted as best man. During the signing of the register, Mrs. A. H. Andrus sang "Until."

After the ceremony, the bridal party and guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D'Arcy Foster, Patterson Street, where a wedding breakfast, in buffet style, was served. The rooms were prettily decorated with sweetheart roses and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman left on the afternoon C. P. R. train, the bride travelling in a dress of grey canton crepe, with hat and shoes to match, and blue wrap.

The young people were recipients of many useful and costly gifts from a large circle of friends.

KIWANIS HEARD STERLING TALK

Professor Wrong of Toronto University Told of Achievements and Example of Britain.

Professor G. M. Wrong, professor in history in Toronto University, addressed Kiwanis club to-day on the situation in Europe from the point of view of a student of history. He described the circumstances that led to the present situation and said that while the picture might be drawn luridly there are many features that are on the whole cheerful and hopeful. Pitt's declaration in his time is applicable now, that "England has saved herself by her efforts, and will, I hope, by her example, save Europe."

The greatest characteristic of the history of the world during the last hundred and fifty years has been the growing dominance of Europe in the world, the speaker said, remarking in this connection, "We are not Americans; we are Europeans. We are of European ancestry and our ancestors brought European culture and traditions, and America in its dominating forces is wholly European."

Following the war, with its overthrow of three dynasties that had played important parts in the development of Europe, the continent was faced with the terrible task of bringing out of the chaos of their fall some type of government and order. The indications of after the war feeling are that every continent will endeavour to govern itself in a larger measure.

Turning to the countries individually, Professor Wrong remarked that Britain has done things since the war that make people proud to be citizens of the British Empire. She has balanced her budget and has paid off debts aggregating $60,000,000. She has set this example to the world; no other nation has even thought of paying its debt to the United States as yet, but Britain is paying hers. A third thing that Britain has done, is probabiy more important than the other two. She has saved her sense of humour.

Great Britain is playing a great part in setitng an example for the world. The British try to forget the past and look to the future, hoping that out of the bitterneses of strife will come some relations that will be profitable to the whole world.

France Vindicated.

France vindicated her courage and tenacity and to-day is face to face with the consequences of the war. Her one great need is reparations. France wants security along the long vulnerable frontier. Poincare says his policy of coercion has been effective, but the French franc has not increased in value. The country is face to face with the need to balance her budget, and the only way to do it is to tax the peasants and land-owners. The French people resent direct taxation, but this is the only method by which any government can bring stability and peace to the country.

Germany, the professor said, can pay large sums in reparations since the national debt has been cancelled and the mark is lost. He saw hope for Europe in the removal of the oppressive dynasties; in the redistribution of land among smaller holders, and in the experience that has seared the nations of the Great War.

In appealing for support for the League of Nations, Professor Wrong appealed to put away maligmnacy that might have arisen during the war and look for a revival of a real brotherhood among the nations.

A vote of thanks was moved by Frank Dawson and Cecil Cragg.

The solist for the day was Miss Ernestine McManus, who rendered two sweet songs. James McIntosh, Hydro Engineer, explained why Kiwanians could not help to-morrow in the technical work of building a dam at Jackson park, but promised that about the end of the month the club will have an opportunity to do an afternoon's work and participate in the opening of a splendid bathing pool.

SALVATION ARMY HOLD FIELD DAY

Steamers Not Available This Year for Excursions, and Picnic in Jackson Park Will Substitute.

The Salvation Army will hold a big field day to-morrow in Jackson Park, to which visitors are invited. Refreshments will be served, and baseball games will be played.

This picnic is in lieu of the excursion down the river, which is impossible this year in the absence of steamers, which are not available. It is said the automobile has contributed to the withdrawal of the boats.

The Salvation Army field day starts at 10 o'clock in the morning, and everybody is welcome.

A DEGENERATE MAY HAVE KILLED BOY

CHICAGO, May 23.—(Canadian Press)—Coroner's Physician Springer declared definitely to-day that fourteen year old Robert Franks, murdered by persons unknown, who was kidnapped Wednesday afternoon, was the victim of degenracy. Physcian did not state, however, what he believed to have been the exact cause of death.

Doubt that young Franks, whose nude body was found yesterday five miles from his home, was slain by adults, was expressed last night by Chief of Detectives Mike Hughes. It looked more like the work of boys he said. Average criminal or kidnapper could not have written the letter which Mr. Franks received demanding ten thousand dollars ransom.

The boy's father has offered five thousand dollars for information leading to the arrest of his son's slayer and Chicago Herald and Examiner has also offered a similar amount.

CHURCH UNIONISTS MAY WITHDRAW MEASURE IF AMENDMENT IS ADOPTED

Committee Proposes Suspension of the Union Bill the Law Courts Have Decided Validity of the Presbyterian Church Courts' Decision to Join With Methodists and Congregationalists — E. Gus Porter's Charges Against Minister of Labor One of This Week's Expected Features.

PROSPECT OF PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, May 26 (Canadian Press). — The coming week is pregnant with many possibilities in Parliamentary circles. A crisis has been reached in the Church Union proceedings, large issues are expected to be raised in connection with the banking problem and the investigation of the charges against the Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labour, is scheduled to commence before the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

When the Private Bills Committee rose at the end of the week, an amendment had been inserted in the Church Union Bill which was strongly opposed by the friends of that measure on the committee. This amendment provided that the Bill should not come into operation until 1st July, 1926, "and not then unless" the Courts should in the meantime have finally decided that the Presbyterian Church courts had not exceeded their powers in agreeing to union with the Methodist and Congregational Churches, and that the Dominion Parliament had jurisdiction to pass the Bill.

Withdrawal Unlikely.

It is not known whether the adoption of this amendment will lead to the withdrawal of the Bill, as occurred when the Church Union Bill was amended in the Ontario Legislature.

It is hardly likely that an announcement on this point will be made before the committee meets on Tuesday in any event, and it has been suggested that the Unionists will allow the Bill to run the gauntlet of the committee in full before making up their opinion as to whether the amendments are to be accepted or not.

Banking Inquiry.

In the banking inquiry, there has been a general acceptance of the principle that a Government Board of Supervision be appointed to check the audit of banks by the shareholders' auditors. A proposition has also been put forward for the establishment of a central authority to take over the functions of the Minister of Finance in regard to re-discount, but this has met with opposition.

These questions are likely to be threshed out further during the coming week, and it is also possible that a beginning will be made upon the investigation into the failure of the Home Bank itself.

This is likely to turn especially upon protection of depositors, and a vital contribution to the settlement of this question may be made within a short time by the report of the McKeown Commission, which has completed this branch of its inquiry into the Home Bank disaster.

Mr. Porter's Charges.

Much interest centres around the hearings before the Privileges and Elections Committee in regard to the charges made by E. Guss Porter, Conservative, West Hastings, against Hon. James Murdock.

Mr. Porter charged that the Minister of Labour withdrew thousands of dollars from the Home Bank two days before the failure of that institution, "using certain information he had received as such Minister," and that such action was "contrary to his obligations as such Minister and in derogation of his office and the honours, dignity and traditions of Parliament."

Committee Summoned.

No call has been issued to the members of the committee, but it is expected that the investigation will begin on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Until the committee's report is given, the Minister, according to usage, probably will not occupy his seat in the House.

The committee is a standing committee of twenty-eight members, including Miss Agnes MacPhail, the only woman member of the House.

Joseph Archambault, Liberal member for Chambly-Vercheres, is its chairman.

It was appointed on 19th March last. It is empowered to call witnesses and demand the production of any documents it sees fit. The verdict of the committee is final in the House. If that verdict is adverse, Mr. Murdock probably will resign his seat and test the feeling of his constituents in a by-election.

If the committee absolves him of the charges, gossip in the Capital has it that Mr. Porter probably will resign and go back to his electors for their verdict on his action in bringing the charges.

Lauder Will Run For Parliament After Fall Tour

LONDON, May 26.— The latest ambition of Sir Harry Lauder, famous Scottish comedian, is to become a member of Parliament. Said Sir Harry:

"I have several times been asked to become a candidate, but while I have a strong desire to enter Parliament, I have not had the freedom necessary to devote to the duties.

"But when I have completed my farewell tour next Autumn I shall, in all probability, stand for election for the House of Commons if the opportunity presents itself."

EMPLOYMENT IS MUCH IMPROVED

First of May Showed Addition of 20,500 Workers to Staffs of Reporting Firms —Total Payroll 760,700.

OTTAWA, May 25. — Considerable improvement in employment as indicated in reports from employers of labor to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at the beginning of May when some 20,500 workers were added to the staffs of the reporting firms according to a report issued by the Bureau on Saturday.

An aggregate payroll of 780,700 persons was reported by the 6008 firms making returns, who had employed 740,162 workers on April 1st. While practically all industries shared in the upward movement, the gains in construction, manufacturing, mining and transportation were the most noteworthy. The only declines of any size occurred in textile, leather, iron, steel and logging.

All the provinces shared in the expansion showing percentage gains of between 2 and 4 per cent.

Newcomers Unemployed

Many Young Boys and Girls Reported in Sad Plight, Came to "Assured" Positions.

QUEBEC, May 25.— Rev. Abbe Casgrain, Roman Catholic chaplain at the Port of Quebec, stated here Saturday that many young boys and girls who have been brought to Canada to go to assured employment in Toronto and surrounding districts, are facing starvation, if not worse, owing to lack of employment.

Father Casgrain said he had received a letter from the Catholic Women's League, Toronto, to the effect that the girls, particularly, are in a sad plight and that they would return to their homes overseas immediately if they were given opportunity.

WAR DENOUNCED BY METHODISTS AND BAPTISTS

Modern Warfare Incapable of Achieving the Results Claimed For It and Should Be Outlawed By the Nations, Say the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec.

CONSCRIPT WEALTH.

OTTAWA, May 26.— Describing it as anti-christian and a suicidal policy resulting only in the colossal destruction of life, a resolution against the continuance of war, was adopted by the Young People of the Baptist Churches in Ontario and Quebec, in annual convention here Saturday. Modern warfare had clearly shown that it was incapable of achieving the results claimed for it, it was set forth, and the convention represented its conviction that war should be outlawed by the nations, and that conference and arbitration as the Christian method of settling differences should be established. The convention endorsed the League of Nations as a practical insitution for bringing this about.

Another resolution urging the Ontario Government to retain and enforce the Ontario Temperance Act, also passed. The gathering pledged itself to support prohibition on a Dominion-wide scale.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. Presidents, Dr. John MacNeill, Toronto, and Rev. John McLaurin, of India; President, O. L. Raymer, Toronto; Vice-Presidents, W. C. J. Helman, Ottawa; L. W. Shelley, Kitchener, W. A. Therrien, Montreal; Secretary Treasurer, W. Reynolds, Brockville; Bible Readers Superintendent, V. J. Towers, Toronto; Sacred Literature Superintendent, Rev. N. S. McKechnie, Belleville; Missionary Superintendent, Rev. H. Merriat, Preston.

METHODIST ATTITUDE.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 26.—Advocates of greater democracy in control of Methodist Church affairs who have been aiming at limited tenure of office for Bishops and election of District Superintendents, won an important battle in their campaign Saturday afternoon when the Methodist General Conference by a large vote instructed the Judiciary Committee to draw up and submit to the Conference an amendmena to the Church constitution which would permit of the election of District Superintendents.

The anti-war resolutions submitted by the special Committee of Thirteen headed by Dr. R. W. Sockman, of New York City, were adopted almost unanimously, only one important amendment being passed, putting the church squarely in favour of conscription of wealth and labour when human lives are conscripted for war service.

The passage of the peace resolution was greeted with cheers and for a few minutes the conference closely resembled an old-fashioned camp meeting, with "Amens" rising in the air and a group in one corner of the big hall breaking forth into an old-time Methodist song. Bishop Charles L. Mead had to pound the gavel vigorously to cut short the celebration.

U. S. NAVY NEAR AGREED RATIO

Will Shortly Equal British and Carry Heavier Guns and Armor, Senator Hall Asserts.

WASHINGTON, May 26. — The American navy, tough slightly under the 5-5-3 ratio, is in better condition to-day than at the time of the Washington conference in 1922, when the ratio was fixed, Senator Hale, Republican, of Maine, chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, declared in the Senate.

Hale took issue with Secretary Wilbur, who said the navy is a full point below the treaty ratio, in effect the "4" in a 5-5-3 ratio, declaring reports that the navy is weak are without foundation.

If present plans are carried out the navy will soon reach equality wiht Great Britain, he said.

Never was Equal to British.

"This country never had an equal ratio with Great Britain, even at the time of the disarmament conference," Hale said.

"Ship for ship, with the exception of our two oldest ships, our battleships are now, however, of greater tonnage, carry more or heavier guns and are more heavily armored than the present British ships," Hale said.

"Their speed, however, is somewhat less than that of the British ships, and the same is true in a lesser extent in comparison with battleships of Japan.

Superior in Navy Planes.

"The battle cruisers of both England and Japan carry heavy guns and are much faster than our battleships, but as they are not heavily armoured in actual battle with guns or an equal range they could not stand up against a battleship.

"In navy aviation in general, exclusive of the carriers, we are well above the ratio.

"In general with respect to the navy we are nearer the 5-5-3 ratio at the present time than we were at the time of the signing of the treaty."

SUSPECTED FOE OF KLANSMAN IS SHOT TO DEATH

"Bloody" Herrin, the Ill-Famed Town of Illinois, Was Scene of Gun Fight Between Klan Constabulary and Alleged Gangsters — Wounded Man a Prisoner.

KLAN LEADER HURT.

HERRIN, Ill., May 26. — Jack Skelcher, an alleged gangster, was killed and the other occupant of a heavily curtained touring car was wounded and captured in a revolver fight with the constabulary here on Saturday. The two men are suspected of having participated in the attemtped assassination by automobile gunmen last night of S. Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan liquor raider, in which both Young and his wife were wounded. About thirty shots were fired.

The wounded man gave his name as "Brown," but refused to make a statement. He was taken to a Herrin hospital.

Skelcher, who lived at Cambrai, in "Bloody" Williamson County, had a long police record and was captured in one of the Herrin liquor raids last winter directed by Young. He diad in the hospital an hour after he was shot without making a statement.

Two automatic revolvers, two sawed-off shotguns and a riot gun were found in Skelcher's car, which was wrecked when it crashed headon with another machine. Two suits of clothes and a quantity of lipsticks, cosmetics and other facial make-up were also found in the wrecked machine, which was of the same make as the one occupied by Young's assailants.

The constabulary, which is a State organization fostered by the Klan, had posted men at the edge of town on information that Young's assailants were headed that way.

Receiving a report that a heavily curtained car had speeded through Carterville, six miles southwest of here, the officers barricaded the highway at the city limits.

The men in the car, according to reports, began firing when the officers tried to stop the machine. The man who was shot in the leg crawled out of the wreck and ran fifty or sixty yards before a bullet felled him. Skelcher was about 30 years old and married. He lived at Cambria, near here.

ATTACK ON YOUNG.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., May 26. — Mrs. S. Glenn Young, who was wounded last night in the attempted assassination of her husband, the Ku Klux Klan liquor raider, is in a "critical condition" at St. Elizabeth's Hospital here, Dr. C. H. Starkel said late to-day. Dr. Starkel declined to discuss reports that Mrs. Young might lose the sight of one or both eyes, explaining that twenty-four hours would be necessary to ascertain that.

Dr. Starkel said Mrs. Young probably would recover unless infection sets in. She was struck in the head and face by from eighteen to twenty-five buckshot.

Young, who was wounded in the right leg, will suffer no permanent ill effects, barring the possibility of infection, Dr. Starkel explained. The bone was splintered by a .45 calibre copper-jacketed bullet, which was removed to-day.

Earl Gibson, a Klan representative, stood guard at the door of the hospital, which is a Catholic institution, and barred all newspaper reporters. Only close friends of Young were admitted to see him.

The Klan leader told officers last night that he believed he could identify his assailants, who fired upon him and Mrs. Young from an automobile. Young said they were from Williamson County, where he made many enemies as the result of liquor raids last winter.

Stock Swindlers Got One Billion In U. S. Last Year

ATLANTIC CITY, May 26.— The annual loss to Americans through purchase of fraudulent stocks increased from $250,000 in 1924 to one billion dollars in 1923, Henry L. Doherty of New York told delegates at the annual convention of the National Electric Light Association. He said Americans are the most gullible people in the world.

The work of the vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, in co-operation with government agencies, to protect investors against themselves, was described by Doherty.

He commended Postmaster-General New for his efforts to close the mails to worthless stock merchants.

"HURONIC" HIT BY FREIGHTER

Damage Estimated at $30,000 Caused to the Northern Navigation Company's Steamer and Wharf By Fractious Freighter.

SARNIA, Ont., May 26.— Damage estimated at $30,000 was done to the Huronic, Northern Navigation Company steamship and to the Company's wharf and freight sheds at Point Edward when the freighter Frank C. Ball, of the Tomlinson Line Cleveland rammed it Saturday afternoon.

The freighter up-bound, light, became unmanageable and when its steering gear fouled just abreast of the waterworks and swung over toward the Huronic, which was lying at Point Edward dock while loading. But by good management of the Ball by the Captain, observers of the incident say the freighter would have struck the Huronic amidships and cut her in two. As it was the Ball collided with the Huronic farther aft.

Comparatively little damage was done to the freighter which struck bow on. No one was reported injured in the accident, the Ball is a 530 foot freighter and was built in 1908. The Ball moored at a dock at Point Edward.

STUDENT'S BODY RECOVERED.

MONTREAL, May 26 (Canadian Press). — The body of Ernest Percy Ridgewell, aged 21, McGill second year applied science student, who was drowned in the Ste. Anne de Bellevue Rapids near here on 28th April, was recovered from Lake St. Louis on Saturday.

The fatality occurred when the canoe in which he and a companion from the university were, capsized.

The companion was rescued.

BRITISH THRONG PAYS THANKS IN GREAT SERVICE

Empire Day Demonstration of Thanksgiving Attended By 125,000 — King and Queen Participated at Probably the Largest Service World Has Ever Seen.

A SUNDAY HOST.

LONDON, May 26. — (Canadian Press Cable)—There must have been nearly 125,000 persons in Wembley stadium Sunday afternoon to join the King and Queen in an Empire Day Thanksgiving Service.

Amid solid banks of humanity from suburban London and towns nearby there were little patches of natives of all parts of the British Empire A huge splash of white betokened thousands of surpliced choristers and a thin line of men in ill-fitting blue clothes, many of them in invalid chairs was a grave reminder that the war hospitals are not yet empty.

Reception to Crown.

Needless to say their Majesties had an almost overpowering reception on their arrival. The proceedings which immediately followed were unmistakably demonstrative of the breadth of the Empire but were so admirably balanced as to exclude any suggestion of flamboyancy. Trumpeters of the Houshold cavalry heralded the procession. Royal Canadian Police who followed their more soberly uniformed brethern of the Metropolitan police were loudly cheered. The same rousing reception was indeed given to every section of the procession. The soldiers of a generation when battles were less bloody were represented by Yeoman of the Guard and Chelsea pensioners. One phase of war's bitterness was deeply impressed upon the assembly when a line of sightless men from St. Dunstan's marched steadily across the arena. Nurses, red cross workers, boys from the naval schools, girl guides and boy scouts also contributed their quota. The cheering ceased when the ecclesiastical procession came into view. The Archbishop of Canterbury with two pages bearing his train was an impressive figure. Immediately before him was a line of leaders of free churches and the Salvation Army.

The Largest Service.

The service which, as his Grace justly remarked in his address was probably "the largest service that, as a deliberate act, the world has ever seen" was remarkable in its simplicity and attitude of real reverence as manifested by all who took part. The most arresting moment came when there was silence for a space "for thanksgiving for the Empire builders of the past and for prayer that the Empire builders of the present and the future may work together to further God's peace on Earth."

Children Celebrate.

School children celebrated Empire day Saturday by assembling more than ten thousand strong to take part in a pagent at Wembley where the British Empire Exhibition is located. The ensigns of all the Dominions appeared in the procession. A choir of a thousand boy scouts was another feature while the Duke of Connaught took the salute. Thousands of musicians from all branches of the army assembled in the stadium as a final feature of the proceedings making the biggest band the world has ever seen.

$13,000 SHORTAGE IN HIS ACCOUNTS

Alleged Scandal In the Newfoundland Telegraph Bureau — Former Accountant Surrenders.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 26.—An alleged shortage of $13,000 in the accounts of the telegraph bureau of the General Postoffice was brought to the attention of the Department of Justice in a report filed yesterday by the Auditor-Geieral. The report covers the period from January 1, 1923.

A warrant for the arrest of Alexander Rooney, former accountant of the telegraph bureau, charging larceny of $3,000, was issued April 22, when Sir Richard Squires, former premier, and other former government officials, were arrested on larceny carges. Rooney was in Boston at the time, but he returned on Friday and surrendered to the police.

The accountant was arraigned before a magistrate to-day on the charge of larceny of $3,000, "moneys of His Majesty the King." He was admitted to bail in $5,000 cash furnished by himself and two sureties of $2,500 each. Later in the day the Auditor General's report placing the alleged shortage at $13,000 was made public.

The mercury set a nem low record for this time of year, according to available records.

Where Cancer Cure Was Effected

"One of the rarest cases in medical history" is what noted scientists are terming the complete cure of Miss Celia Trubiscz, who was considered an incurable cancer case two years ago. The cure was effected through the combined use of radium and X-rays developed from a new machine capable of 200,000 volts. Dr. William H. Livingston, assistant medical director of Montefiore Hospital, New York City, who announced the discovery, is shown here preparing for treatment of another patient. The instrument shown is that used in the treatment of Miss Trubiscz, whose cure is considered particularly exceptional because she was in an advanced condition.

NO INDUCEMENTS MADE

Canada Not Promising Work To Prospective British Emigrants.

OTTAWA, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Referring to the statement made recently in London, England, by Tom Richardson, former M.P. for Whitehaven, that it was criminal and cruel to send British people to Canada at the present time, it was stated here in official circles that Canada was not holding out any inducements in the matter of work in the trades to patrons from Great Britain who proposed to migrate but every man brought to this country was assured of farm labor.

THE WEATHER.

Cool weather, little sunshine, and rain almost daily has made this spring a backward one. On Saturday there was rain to .39 of an inch. On Sunday morning the temperature was down to the borderland of frost, and during the day considerable hail and some snow fell. This Monday morning the thermometer was down to 38. As memory is proverbially fickle, I have looked up the record for last year, and find that from May 8 to 21 we had much rain; from May 22 to June 2 it was fine and dry. Then from June 3 to 9 we had almost continuous rain, the amount totalling over 4 inches for that period alone. From June 10 onward the weather was clear and fine, and followed its usual routine the remainder of the summer.—W. P.

Soviet Condemns Seventeen to Die; Make Revolution Secure With Axe

LENINGRAD, May 26. — The Supreme Court after twenty-seven hours of deliberation condemned to death seventeen former judges, court officials, lawyers and persons connected with the operation of the New Economic Policy who had been tried on charges of corruption and bribery.

Forty-eight persons had been on trial for twelve days. Of the remaining thirty-one, seven were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, two to five years' imprisonment and eight to three years' imprisonment, while a number of the others were ordered deported to Siberia. Three were acquitted.

Sessions of the court were held in the sumptuous hall of one of the imperial palaces in the presence of a great crowd of onlookers.

The public prosecutor excoriated the accused officials for betraying the State and urged the Court to pronounce death sentences on twenty-seven of them.

"We must uphold the rights of the people and the revolution," he said. "I am prosecutor, and as such I am called upon to help the court to find the truth, and I am expected, therefore, to be impartial, but I canot be impartial and I do not want to be impartial.

"The security of the revolution demands that we shall pave our way to truth with an axe, but in this case we have to pave our way not forests but upon live heads. We must do it mercilessly."

The prosecutor said that all the prisoners were so corrupt it was a pity to waste a single Red Army bullet upon them.

The same court next week will be called upon to try 107 persons, including a number of former Czarist officers for espionage and counter-revolution. A majority of these persons are charged with direct participtaion in one of the organizations founded by General Boris Savinoff, former War Minister, for the overthrow of the Soviet regime, while others are accused of aiding in plots against the Soviet State htached in Poland.

GLOBE CIRCLERS SEE BIG SIGHTS

On Board the Luxurious Liner, Empress of Canada, They Visited Sixteen Different Climates

VICTORIA, B. C., May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Five months of globe trotting, of colorful close-ups in sixteen different climates and of carefree holiday existence on board a luxurious liner, neared a happy close Friday for the 350 around the world cruise passengers on the Canadian Pacific S.S. Empress of Canada, when the big ship, in command of Captain Samuel Robinson, C.B.K., R.N.R., came to anchor in the Victoria Harbor.

Brilliant sunshine, which has followed the Empress of Canada almost unceasingly since she left New York on January 30, smiled upon her again Friday, as she steamed into home waters after her 30,000-mile cruise. On Saturday morning she proceeded to Vancouver, her home port, where what has been termed the most successful world cruise ever undertaken, officially terminated. Friday evening her entire complement of globe trotters were the guests of the Canadian Pacific Railway at a brilliant dinner and dance at the Empress Hotel. The twelve-piece Filipino band which has supplied music daily throughout the long cruise, was in attendance.

E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railways, who is on the coast in the course of a periodical inspection trip, extended a personal welcome to Captain Robinson and his passengers on their arrival, and with his party, including Sir Augustus Nanton, Lady Nanton and their two daughters of Winnipeg, were present at Friday night's function.

Thousands lined the wharf on the arrival of the cruise ship. Union Jacks, mingled with Old Glory, in the enthusiastic waving of flags which Victoria extended to the returning travellers. National airs and stirring marches were played by the Naval Brigade Band were echoed on shipboard in the strains of the Filipino orchestra.

Many were the high lights experienced by the world-wide travellers. At Dargeeling the Across India party was addressed by General C. O. Bruce, prior to his departure in March on his present Mount Everett expedition.

In Manila, Governor - General Leonard Wood held a reception in honor of the ship's passengers in Mulacanunan Palace. Viewing the great wall of China and the ming tombs from the cockpit of a giant flying machine was a thrilling experience enjoyed by the members of the party at Peking.

Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, United States Minister to China, entertained the China overland group at Peking when his guests included Mr. and Mrs. Horace A. Carter and Mrs. Mercy E. Carter, of Boston, Miss Mabel Bookstaver and Miss Mabel W. Williams, of Dunkirk, N.Y.

The eighty-one passengers who took the China-Japan overland trip travelled 1,094 miles in sixteen days. During the course of the cruise further honors were bestowed on Captain Robinson, in recognition of his services on the Empress of Australia during the Japanese earthquake last September. At Singapore the Order of St. John of Jerusalem reached him; at Kobe the Lloyd's silver cross as well as a handsome honorarium and a sum of money for the Australia's crew was handed over to Captain Robinson by the British Consul-General, and while the cruise ship lay in Japanese waters word was received that the silver cross for naval merit was on its way to the Canadian commander from the King of Spain.

Forty-two new passengers joined the ship at Honolulu, the original list which left New York in January having been augmented at almost every port along the way. Romance and adventure met the world trippers at every port. At Madeira linens and laces were purchased in abundance. The sunny Mediterranean cast its spell from the pillars of Hercules to Cairo, India brought the Taj Mahal, Rango on the golden Shwe lagoon pagoda. Through Singapore, the key to the East, the cruise ship passed across the equator to Java, and in the Philippines the United States passengers took an especial pride in playing hosts to the globe trotters of other nations represented in the list.

Brilliant Chinese shawls and mandarin coats came as fresh raiment at Hong-Kong. Japan was discovered in a bower of cherry blossoms, and the pleasure-seekers have now returned to find the Pacific Coast extending a welcome in the fresh verdure of springtime.

There was plenty of recreation on board during the cruise months. The swimming tank and gymnasium were in constant service. Two actresses among the passengers, Lillian Dumerais, of Hollywood, and Miss Mabel Bunyea, of Chicago, gave their talents towards organizing several theatrical evenings. Masquerade balls and birthday parties, celebrations of national holidays, athletic contests, the organization of a Rotary Club, a Canadian Club, a New England Club and Masonic Lodge supplied the element of service and co-operation which has become an integral part of the average business man's life whether he is at home or abroad.

At a nautical achievement, the Empress of Canada's cruise, which is the first to be undertaken by the Canadian Pacific Railway, was an achievement. Captain Robinson enjoys the proud record of having brought her into every one of the twenty-three ports on the 23,585-mile run from New York to Vancouver promptly on schedule time. The great oil-burning engines in charge of Chief Engineer James Lamb ran like clockwork through the entire voyage, and in the course of the 30,000-mile jaunt around the globe, 783,909 barrels of fuel oil were used.

BURNBRAE TEAM STILL RETAIN CHAMPIONSHIP FOR CENTRAL ONTARIO

At the Celebration Held In Campbellford Friday the Tug-of-War Team Made Good Showing — Baseball Tourists.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26.—Burnbrae's tug-of-war team still remain the unconquered champions of Central Ontario, defeating a team from Percy Township, at the celebration here here Friday, under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society, in a contest that proved the star attraction of a fine programme of sports.

A brand new rope, warranted to stand any strain in reason was provided by the directors as more than once such contest in which the Burnbrae men figured had been undecided by the breakinf of the rope. The gigantic William Little, solid as the rock of Gibraltar, was in his old place as anchor man for the champions and two of his stalwart sons were members of the victorious team. As soon as the contest was announced the crowd forsook every other attraction and flocked to the race track in front of the judges' stand where the opposing teams were drawn up. It took the united efforts of Chief Duncalfe and Assistant Chief Seaborn, and by a staff of special constables to hold the crowd in check.

Henry Waters was captain of the Percy team. It is only fair to say that some of the men whom he had selected for the contest failed him at the last, being at home catching up with their seeding operations, and he was obliged to fill the places of these with volunteers. One of those impressed into the service was Peter Farman, Percy Township.

James A. Stewart, the captain who has piloted the champions through many a strenuous contest, was with them Friday. His team showed careful training, and the result was never in doubt. When Capt. Stewart passed down the line and urged his men to "heave" the response was unanimous. Twice the men from Percy, digging their heels into the ground at every shift, were dragged over the line. The ten men on the winning team were: William Little, Frank and Harold, his sons, William Hume, Bert Third, Bert Hay, Lindsay Watson, William Bennett, Roy Walker and Victor Taylor.

The Man From Peterborough.

At the close of this event, Mr. Murphy, who announced his residence as Peterborough, offered to pull any three men on the winning team and the challenge was taken up by Frank Little, Bert Third and William Bennett. Murphy laid down his own conditions. He drove two stakes into the ground a short distance apart, and placing a board against these stood behind it with the rope around his waist.

On the first trial the Burnbrae men pulled both stakes out of the ground. Murphy for the next frame used an electric light pole for one of his stakes. For once the Burnbrae men faced a proposition that they could not solve. Murphy sat serenely on the ground and bade them do their worst. At the end of the allotted time the champions were forced to admit that Murphy had won.

The Horse Races

In the 2.15 trot or pace there were three entries, Polly Stout, owned by R. Elmhurst of Keene, Bessie Brookes, owned by Frank Montgomery, of Peterborough, and South Dakotah Maid, belonging to C. R. Turley, of Frankford. Polly Stout and Bessie Brookes have had many a hard race together, and yesterday both horses were driven to win in every heat from the word "go" to the finish. Mr. Montgomery not only keeps good horses but always has an expert to handle them, his driver this season being John Finnerty, of Toronto Mr. Elmhurst held the reins over his own mare, and if superb horsemanship could have won he would have taken first money. It took five heats to decide the race, Bessie Brookes winning the first two and the fifth, Polly Stout leading under the wire by a nose in the third and fourth. South Dakotah Maid was out of condition, and after finishing third in four heats, was drawn. The best time was 2.19¼.

The 2.20 Race

There were three entries for this race—Lady of the Manor, R. Elmhurst of Keene; Jennie Bison, Fred Bennett, Campbellford, and by Winger, owned by W. Elmhurst, of Indian River. The mare from Indian River took the first heat, and finished second in the next three, C. Winger capturing first money after trailing the others in the first heat. Best time, 2.29¾.

Mr. Bennett made his initial appearance as the owner of the stock and the general opinion is that he has a mare that will be heard of later in the season. The backward spring has prevented the proper fitting of horses the the first holiday races.

A Veteran In The Stand.

The judges of the races were: G. O. Tice, Belleville, starter, C. S. Gillespie, town; Russell Peake of East Seymour and Dr. H. S. Allan of Warkworth, judges; J. S. Battisby, town, and Archie Dunlop, of Frankford, timers.

Mr. Gillespie is a veteran turfman, having been for years owner and driver of fast horses that he raced all over Ontario. He laid out the Campbellford track 35 years ago, the plan being furnished by the late E. King Dodds, the famous sporting editor of Toronto. Fifteen years ago Mr. Gillespie drove his mare, Tody Alexander, over the track in 2.22 flat, a good mark in those days.

Campbellford Juniors Win.

In the lacross game Campbellford Juniors defeated Trenton Juveniles 18 to 3. The local kids were better stick-handlers and more accurate in their passing; some of the combination they displayed would do credit to a good intermediate team. Nearly all their goals were scored on nice combination plays in which three and four players handled the ball fast and clean.

The first period was the best lacrosse of the game and ended 5 to 1 for Campbellford. They added 6 more in the second while Trenton failed to count. With a safe lead some of the more experienced players were taken off to give the younger boys a chance and neither team scored. Trenton took on a new lease of life at the start of the fourth period and scored two goals, but the local youngsters settled down and talled 7 in a row.

The Campbellfords appear pretty well balanced, and with strict attention to practice, should be near the top of the group at the end of the season.

Campbellford 16, Lakefield 4

The game of baseball between the Campbellford League team and Lakefield went six innings and resulted in a score of 16-4 in favor of the home boys. Three new players, men who were not with Campbellford last year, were in the line-up. Scott, pitcher, Hyland behind the bat, and Richardson at third. It was an excellent workout for the Campbellfords as they have had very little practice this season on account of the weather, and will help to get them into shape for their first league games this week. Weston has evidently not lost his batting eye as he made a home run and a three-base hit which might safely been stretched into another homer, but the coacher held him at third. The following was the line-up:

Campbellford.—Scott, p.; Hyland, c.; Weston, 1b.; Holmes, 2b.; Richardson, 3b.; Eagleson, s.s.; Hume, r.; Blakely, l.f.; Nesbitt, c.f.; Hutton, sub.

Lakefield.—Capes, p.; Dynan, c.; Simpson, 1b.; Greer, 2b.; J. Ridpath, s.s.; Manning, r.f.; McIllmoyl, l.f.; Webster, c.f.; C. Ridpath, sub.

Archie Wood umpired behind the bat and Dr. Bussey on the bases.

Football Game, 270.

The game of football between the teams of Christ Church and St. Mary's was won by the former, 2 goals to 0.

Two Holiday Visitors

Among the visitors from Peterborough were 'Teddy' Scates and Harry Dugan. Furnish some men with aliases and baseball uniforms as disguises and even then most intimate acquaintances may fail to recognize them.

A Financial Success

The crowd was larger than managers had hoped for, as a large number of farmers are now taking advantage of the dry weather to finish their seeding. The celebration will prove a success financially as it was in every other respect, the programme throughout being in accord with the announcements.

The Northumberland Regiment Band furnished the music.

Saved from an Operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sidell, Ill.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side, which was almost unbearable, and I could not even let the bed clothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years, but not so bad until the last eighteen months, and had become so rundown that I cared for nobody, and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help, and the doctors told me that an operation was all there was left. I would not consent to that, so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house, and when my two little girls reach womanhood I intend to teach them to take it. I am never too busy to tell some suffering sister of my help, and you can use my name and letter to spread the good news of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines."—Mrs. IDA M. COFFMAN, R. R. 2, Sidell, Ill.

BAR ASSOCIATION CALLS FOR AN INCREASE IN FEES.

TORONTO, May 26.—Seeking an increase in fees, a deputation representing the Bar of Ontario, has waited upon the judges of the Supreme Court, and submitted a draft tariff. During the war, it was pointed out, an increase of twenty per cent. was adopted in England as a war measure, and that lead was followed in Ontario. Now the Bar asks that the twenty per cent. should be absorbed to allow of some additional increases. Mr. H. S. White, K.C., acted as spokesman.

Service at Carmel.

Rev. Joseph Wilks conducted the "Go-to -Sunday-School" services in Carmel church on Sunday. Of late years service is only held at this appointment two or three times during the twelve months, and a congregation numbering about seventy-five which gathered to hear Mr. Wilks was most encouraging.

"The Whole Family of God," was the minister's subject, the text being found in Ephesians 3:15, "Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named," the fact that no ornament sits so gracefuly upon youth as filial affection and piety, and that the fear of God, like Aaron's serpent, swallows up all other fears and is the principle of true courage, while disinterested love is the connecting ligament which makes a unit of a family, a brotherhood of a race, and secrifce for others possible, indeed at times an imperative duty, being pointed out as worthy of emphasis.

The choir rendered special music suitable for the occasion.

"Work, Love, and Worship" was the topic taken up in the Young Peoples' League this week, the study proving both inspiring and helpful. As the three-fold theme is well exemplified in Millais' picture, "The Angelus,' this made the basis of the consideration of the subject, George Elson giving a sketch of the artist's life and work.

Miss S. Hetherington read Robert Burns, 'The Cotter's Saturday Night' and F. N. Alcorn briefly outlined the life of the author of "Home, Sweet Home," which hymn was sung as the concluding number on the program.

The league intends holding its closing meeting until after holiday season about the middle of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunter, of Huntsville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. Stinson over the week-end.

Cavanville Methodist Sunday school is observing its annual anniversary services on Sunday, June 15th, when Rev. Edward W. Rowland, of Omemee, will preach morning and evening. The annual garden party will be held on Monday, June 16th, the programme, which will be in the Community Hall, not having been definitely decided upon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, Mrs. Ross Edmunds and two children, Bryer and Reg, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, Mrs. G.E. Burnham, Misses Ella and Minnie Grandy, Miss May Duncan, Miss May Needham, Mrs. N. Janes, Mr. Clarence Duncan were Millbrook people who motored to Peterboro on Tuesday, some of them going to attend the production, "After Six Days' at the Grand.

Mrs. Edgar Burnham, of Peterborough, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Margaret Staples, Cavanville.

Messers Alvin C. Richards, T. Alvin Gray, and Graham Russel, medical students at Toronto University are home for the holidays, the first named having completed his final year's studies.

Mrs. W. Hilton who has been a patient in Dr. H. A. Turners's private hospital requiring treatment for nervous trouble, has so far recovered that she was able to return home on Wednesday.

Rev. S. T. Tucker and P. Stinson attended the district meeting of the Methodist church in Peterboro on Thursday.

MADAME MILLERAND OUT FLAT HUNTING

PARIS, May 26 (United Press).—Madame Millerand, wife of the French President, is flat-hunting, the Quotidien declared to-day.

The newspaper states that the President's wife inspected an apartment occupied by M. Guisthau, ex-Minister of Marine, but found the flat too small and the price too high.

The inference Quotidien intends to convey is that President Millerand will shortly resign and consequently give up residence at the Elysee, the permanent home of chief executives of the Republic.

BETHANY HELD A SPORTS DAY

Two Good Baseball Games —Weather Responsible for Small Crowd.

BETHANY, May 26.—The usual field day was held on the Athletic Grounds on the holiday, but unlike others years, when summer dresses and straw hats were in prominence, everyone was muffled up in overcoats and furs. The committee in charge were undecided to go on with the card on account of the unfavorable weather, but as the rain ceased about noon they communicated with the outside teams and advised them to come. The crowd was considerably smaller than in former years, but considering the cold weather, a very fair crowd was present. The field, which was ploughed and levelled last fall, reserbled a clipped sheep, grass being conspicuous by its absence. The grounds were rolled the night previous and provided a good playing diamond, and with a few weeks of warm weather the grass will be up and a field equal to the best will be available.

The first game, an exhibition between Millbrook and Pontypool, was an evenly matched game, the score being 6 to 5 in favor of Millbrook, and considering the little practice the boys have had, they did exceedingly well. With more practice and warm weather these teams will be heard from later in the season.

The main game, between Bethany and Janetville old rivals, in baseball honors, was won by the former by a one-run margin. This was the first game of the season in the East Durham League, many of the players on both teams not having a glove on previous to the game this spring, and despite the cold day, a good brand of baseball was served. While errors were made, the same plays later on will be easy picking. C. Staples, the Bethany southpaw ace, weakened in the sixth frame, after Janetville scored 4 runs, and was replaced by Ryley, who held them scoreless for the balance of the game. P. Walker, the twirler for the visiting team, had a couple of bad innings in the start, but the Janetville team are never beaten until the last man is out. In spite of having 5 runs scored against them in the first two innings, Walker pitched a masterly game, allowing Bethany one run in the last five frames. It was anybody's game up to the last inning, and with more practice these two teams will be a good drawing card at their next meeting.

The teams lined up as follows:

Exhibition Game.

Bethany—F. Russel p, Gilmour c, R. Shaw 1b, E. Burnham 2b, K. Larmer 3b, L. Ingram ss, L. Russel rf, E. Carson lf, A. Armstrong cf.

DEATH RAY TESTED IN GREAT SECRECY

Foreign Spies Feared--French Seek the Secret

LONDON, My 26 (United Press).—"Somewhere in England" there was demonstrated to-day to the Air Service and Government officials the mysterious "death ray," the invention of Grindell Matthews, which may prove the most terrible force of destruction in case of another war.

The time and place of the demonstration were kept a jealously guarded secret, lest foreign spies observe the test.

France wants the invention, and a Frenchman who has offered Grindell Matthews funds for a partnership to perfect the ray, insists that he has binding contracts.

The British Government decided to hold the tests to determine whether the ray, claimed capable of killing men and destroying machinery at great distances, is in reality the most horrible weapon of war yet invented, or a "false alarm."

Girl Made Pancakes For the First Time Funeral Is Today

WAUKEEGAN, Ill., May 26.—Jannie Heironomous, the 15-year old daughter of a prosperous farmer, near Volno, made some pancakes for the family on Saturday.

It was her first attempt to make flap-jacks. To-day she will be buried, having taken her own life.

The pancakes were not a glittering success, and her father admits that he made some joking remarks about them. Jannie was broken-hearted over her failure, and the good-natured criticism, and fled to her room in tears. The members of the family did not attach much importance to the event, believing that after she had cried for a while she would forget the incident. Instead she swallowed poison, and was dead when, worried by her long absence, some one went to call her.

UNITED STATES GRAFT KLAN IS NOW UNCOVERED

Public Printer Declares Officials Were Bootlegging for Members of Parliament -- A Liquor Still Found in a Government Office--Secret Oath - Bound Invisible Klan.

ASTOUNDING STORY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., May 26.—(Canadian Press.)—In a carefully prepared address of 26 typewritten pages, George P. Carter, public printer of the United States, told an astounding story of his three years' service in a government printing office, at the convention of the Third District Typothetae Federation on Saturday night.

Corruption, graft, whoiesale race track gambling and bootlegging flourished unrestrained, he charged, and to "clean up" the establishment he found it necessary to dismiss 268 employees, including a deputy public printer and chief clerk of the printing office, as well as the foreman and minor executives.

Mr. Carter uncovered a still in the office of one foreman, he said. A trusted messenger between the government printing office and the capitol was discovered to be bootlegging for members of Congress. Executives and foremen were found to be filling requisitions for excessive quantities of grain alcohol for alleged mechanical uses in the establishment.

Bootlegging generally was an intensively cultivated industry throughout the place. Even boy apprentices were found to be buyers and consumers of illicit liquor.

The public printer reserved for the final chapter of his revelation what to many of his hearers was the most amazing phase of it. He said that for years the government printing office had been dominated by a "secret, oath-bound, invisible Klan." A clique existed, known in the place as "Wasnetas," whose opposition to any rule, order or innovation meant its death before he (Carter) set his face against the invisible government and defied or dismissed its leaders. He alleged that certain officers of the Typographical Union were in league with this secret group.

EMILY TOWNSHIP MAN MIXED UP IN SHOOTING AFFRAY

Victim May Die as Result of Four Bullet Wounds Received Under Strange Conditions.

OMEMEE, May 26.—A shooting affray occurred last night, near McArthur's school house, three miles south-east of Lindsay, on the Lindsay-Peterboro Highway, when Frederick McGaughey, of Emily township, shot and wounded Miss Beatrice Fee, aged 18 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fee, of Omemee.

Miss Fee is now in the Ross Memorial Hospital at Lindsay with four bullets in her body. Her condition is reported as serious.

It appears that McGaughey and Miss Fee, the latter who is employed in Toronto, were out in an automobile, when the shooting took place. McGaughey carried the girl into his home nearby, the rest of the family being absent at the time. On their return, Dr. Rich, of Lindsay, was summoned and Provincial Officer Storey. According to the information given by the police, McGaughey is alleged to have been drinking and told two different stories to the police.

His first story was that a holdup had taken place, but finally he admitted the shooting, and the authorities believe that jealousy was the motive for the shooting.

McGaughey was placed under arrest and will come up to-day on a charge of attempted murder.

FAREWELL PARTY TO MRS. M'LEOD

Guest of Honor is Returning to Her Old Home in Scotland.

About forty guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alick McLeod, McDonnel Street, on Friday evening, the occasion being a farewell party to Mrs. McLeod, Sr., who is leaving this city soon to go back to her old home in Scotland. She was made the recipient of many nice gifts, among these being a gold coin and brooch, presented by Miss Mary Kingsbury, accompanied by the following address, read by Mrs. Wyllie:

K. OF C. INITIATION.

Three Degrees Exemplified To Class of Sixty Candidates On Holiday.

A class of sixty candidates was received into the Knights of Columbus at an assembly of Peterboro Council on Saturday. The initiates were mostly from Peterboro, with others from Lindsay, Cobourg and other parts of the district. The first and second degrees were exemplified by members of Peterboro Council, and the third by District Deputy Phillip Phelan of Ottawa and his staff. The initiation was largely attended by members of the order from Peterboro, Lindsay, Havelock, Cobourg, Hastings and from other Councils between Toronto and Ottawa and was reported thoroughly successful.

Following the degrees work in the Holy Name Society's club rooms, a banquet was held in the Market Hall at which Mr. J. J. Duffus was toastmaster, and His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, the guest of honor. Community singing set a keynote for the post-prandial proceedings. Miss Mary MacPherson played the accompaniments.

Bishop O'Brien, in a brief speech expressed his pleasure at being present with such a numerous company of Catholic laymen, and affirmed that the principles of the Knights of Columbus conduced to elevate men's lives, making them better Catholics and better citizens.

District Deputy Phelan congratulated the Peterboro Knights upon the success of their initiation and urged the new members to take an active interest in the efforts and affairs of their councils. Other speakers were J. J. Duffus, T. J. Begley, of Lindsay, J. J. Dorris, James O'Brien, Grand Knight, and District Deputy McGrath of Toronto.

SIXTH of the series dealing with the establishment of the BANK OF MONTREAL at representative points in CANADA and elsewhere

WEST OF THE GREAT LAKES

THE growth of the Bank of Montreal has closely coincided with the gradual development of Canada from a small colony to a great Dominion.

In the Bank's westward advance to the Pacific Coast, one of the important links in its transcontinental chain of Branches was formed in 1878 at Winnipeg, when the Bank opened its first Branch west of the Great Lakes.

This forward step, taken seven years before railway communication was opened up between Montreal and Winnipeg, made available to the incoming population on the prairies the stabilizing co-operation of a strong, conservative and at the same time energetic financial institution.

Of the Bank's 567 Branches, 12 are situated in Winnipeg and 180 in the Prairie Provinces, including Winnipeg.

STREET CAR HIT HURRYING MOTOR

TORONTO, May 26.— (Canadian Press)—Rounding the corner of Balsam avenue and Queen street at what the police say was a rapid rate of speed early on Sunday morning, an automobile containing five persons was struck by a west bound Beach car and hurled 76 feet, two of the occupants of the automobile are in St. Michael's Hospital with injuries that may prove fatal, and others sustained lesser injuries.

The seriously injured are Miss Doreen Taman, aged 23, Toronto, who sustained a fractured skull and terrible head injuries, and George Rappe, aged 21, Hanover, Ontario, who also sustained a fractured skull. Small hope is held out for their recovery.

Duncan Engel, aged 23, Hanover, Ontario, driver of the motor car, is also in St. Michael's Hospital with internal injuries and three fractured ribs but it is believed he will recover.

The other two occupants of the motor car were Miss Fremona Taman and Thomas Donohue, both sustained cuts and bruises and were able to be taken home after receiving medical attention.

When the west bound street car caught the rear of the motor car with terrific impact it lifted the automobile right off the ground and threw it 25 yards forward and against the kerb where it was only prevented from hurling through a store front by telegraph pole.

Two occupants Miss Doreen Taman and George Rappe were thrown out of the car and Miss Taman alighted on her head on the sidewalk, receiving frightful injuries.

WILL CLEAR THE AIR.

An investigation by the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the charge against Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labour, that, as a result of information gained through his position as a member of the Cabinet, he withdrew a deposit of $4,050 from the Home Bank two days before that bank failed has been agreed to by the House of Commons, and regardless of their political beliefs the majority of Canadians will approve of the inquiry.

The honour of a Minister of the Crown has been impugned, and in view of the fact that newspaper allegations of grave misconduct have been followed by a direct charge on the floor of the House, nothing less than a proper investigation will satisfy the public.

If the charges are foundationless, Mr. Murdock should welcome the opportunity to have his name cleared as quickly as possible.

On the other hand, if the Minister was guilty of the misconduct charged against him, the public whose representative he is is entitled to know the facts.

Parliament very wisely agreed to the case being inquired into by the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

That action will clear the air.

INSPECTING BANKS.

The conversion of Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance, to a belief in the efficacy of Government inspection of banks is significant.

Sir Thomas at one time did not believe in Government inspection, but his experience in connection with the Home Bank has completely changed his opinion.

Thus we find him testifying before the McKeown Commission that "regular inspection by the officials of a specially-established bureau of the Finance Department would prevent the perpetration of such gross frauds as in the case of the Home Bank."

The demand for Government inspection is daily growing stronger.

Public opinion favours a change in the Bank Act in that directors and even the management of the banks are beginning to realize that in their own interest a new system is required.

Government inspection, of course, would not make banks absolutely safe, but it would be much better than the present method.

It would be a greater protection for depositors, and what is just as important, it would restore public confidence in the banking system of Canada—a thing decidedly essential just now when the faith of the public has been sorely tried by the developments in connection with the Home Bank.

Sir Thomas White's testimony is of great value in proving the need for a change in the Bank Act.

EMPIRE DAY.

May 23rd is celebrated through Canada as Empire Day, the observance of the occasion being left to the pupils of the schools, who are gathered together to sing patriotic songs and to be told something of the great Empire of which they are citizens.

The day was loyally commemorated in Peterborough on Friday with appropriate exercises at the various schools.

It is well that there should be such a day in connection with Canadian schools, impressing upon the children as it does the fact that they are living in a land of liberty and opportunity, a land that forms part of a wide-flung commonwealth of free nations under one flag.

There are in our schools a percentage of children of former alien parentage—in the West the percentage, of course, is much larger—and in their case particularly it is necessary that something of the history and prestige and traditions of the Empire should be inculcated.

We are more lax in this respect than our cousins of the United States.

Their schools drive home at every opportunity the immensity of the Republic and glorify the Stars and Stripes. Flag drills and patriotic exercises teach the newcomer to American schools the lesson of patriotism, and while sometimes we are inclined to think that the thing is overdone, there seems no question about the results obtained from the system.

The Empire Day celebration should be permanently retained as a feature of Canadian school life.

CUPID'S SENSE OF HUMOUR.

Wedding invitations are being sent out by this year's crop of June brides. People soon will be saying, "I wonder what she sees in him?" or "What do you suppose made him fall for her?"

Queer teams often stand up before the clergyman, to live happily (or unhappily) forever after.

Well-mated couples there are, plenty of them. But now and then cupid seems to have a sense of humour.

Nature is a specialist of standardization. Blades of grass are much alike when matured. So are lions, camels, elephants, violets, trees.

People seem to vary more than any other form of life. Out of millions upon millions, duplicates are rare. It is almost phenomenal when a person doesn't have some distinctive marking or eccentricity or manner distinguishing him from all others.

Nature isn't very keen on this tendency to vary from type. She is constantly striving to restore the balance—to keep the individuals of the race as much alike as possible.

That's why Beauty marries the Beast. It also explains marriages of big men and little women, fat women and slender men, intellectuals mating with average intelligence.

There's a wise old saying about people having most chances of being happy if they marry opposites. The popular interpretation of this is that blonds should marry brunets.

But it applies equally to other personal differences.

Take a husband brainier than his wife. He enjoys helping her improve her mind. She "looks up to" him with respect. Other way around, too—an inferior husband respects the good judgment of his brainier wife.

Or one party to the nuptial state may excel in one trait and the mate in another. Each admires what he or she lacks and the other has in character, brains and disposition.

Never laugh at a "queer match." There's a reason.

THE DEADLY REVOLVER.

The United States has legislated against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, realizing the evil of intemperance. It has so restricted the sale of poisons that comparatively few murders of this type are included in the gruesome annual police list. It is now bending its energies toward eradication of the drug evil, which has made such alarming headway during recent years. But the sale of firearms is practically unrestricted—and here, unquestionably, one has the answer to the riddle of 28 murders a day, says the Hamilton Spectator. The revolver is the great killer. Police records show that it is the method of destruction in eight of every ten murders reported. The States which have enacted restrictive legislation have found it impotent because of the ease with which firearms can be secured from mail-order houses, by any person who has the purchase price—man, woman, child, the criminal and the insane. Mail-order distribution of deadly weapons has been legislated out of Canada and the capital crimes record of the Dominion, appalling as it undoubtedly is, does not begin to compare with that of the United States, but Canadians should not blind their eyes to the fact that there is much room for legislatory improvement on this side of the border. The foreign population seems to find it an easy matter to secure firearms. Only by making it impossible to purchase lethal weapons without a police permit and by inflicting drastic prison terms upon dealers and buyers who break the law can the wave of violence be dammed.

There were 200 murders in England and Wales last year. The record for Canada is not now available, but, considering the difference in population, it must suffer in comparison. There were twenty-five times as many murders in the United States. England and Wales have legislation which makes it extremely difficult for evil-doers to secure murderous equipment. The argument, if there ever was any, would seem to be closed.

Nobody was ever shot by anybody who didn't have a gun.

COSTLY GOVERNMENT.

The charge is frequently heard that Canada is a country which is very much over-governed. Compared to the relatively small proportions of our population, there is an unconscionably large number of legislators, all of whom are drawing down comfortable indemnities, with high salaries for ministerial appointments. There is the heavy expense of the central Government and the burden of the Provincial Legislatures to be borne. Just what these items amount to in actual cash has been computed by the Winnipeg Tribune, which comes to the conclusion that "Canada has too many legislators in proportion to population, and far too much governmental machinery." It is estimated that there are 905 persons drawing salaries for legislating for a population of less than 9,000,000 people. Considerably over $2,700,000 is paid out annually of these lawmakers, exclusive of mileage and other allowances. Salaries and indemnities in the Federal Parliament, including the Senate, are given as $1,463,000.

Ontario, with a population of less than three million, has 111 members in the Legislative Assembly, total salaries amounting to about $228,000. Quebec spends even more, with its two Chambers and its higher indemnities. Nova Scotia is another Province which has two Chambers, spending about $63,400, exclusive of the Ministers' salaries. New Brunswick spends a total of $73,300 in salaries. Alberta is the most lavish of the Western Provinces in the matter of expenditure on its Government. The sixty members of the Alberta Legislature draw $175,000 in salaries. British Columbia, with 47 members, spends $148,500, Saskatchewan and Manitoba spend $131,200 and $118,500, respectively. Besides these, there are the establishments of the Lieutenant-Governors, with their aides and staff and office force.

Altogether it is a formidable bill of costs which faces the Canadian taxpayer; but what is to be done about it? The Federal Parliament cannot be abolished, though some would like to dispense with the Senate. The Provincial Legislatures are equally indispensable, and the salaries of Ministers are not incommensurate with their services. Electors would hardly consent to a reduction in the present representation. Short of heroic measures, which would completely revolutionize the form of government in this country, it is hard to see where any material saving can be made. Onerous as the burden is, we shall have to grin and bear it in the hope that some day Canada will have that population which will furnish the solution of all problems of this nature.—Hamilton Spectator.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

While charity begins at home it shouldn't be afraid to go out and see a little of the world.

Life, according to a last June's bridegroom, finally settles down to what your wife makes it.

Village pride is what makes the citizens of a small town brag about what long freight trains pass their depot.

A girl doesn't deserve much credit for catching herself a husband during the beautiful months of May and June.

Only a few old-fashioned men and women are still standing around arguing about womens' rights.

No matter how old you feel now you never are as old as you are going to be.

Some college boys will hunt vacation positions all summer while others will get jobs.

If there isn't any hell, and a Philadelphia minister says there isn't, a lot of people are being told to go to a place that isn't.

HEALTH HINTS.

Walking about in a dark room without your shoes will make large lumps on your feet.

AUTO HELPS.

When pushing an auto up a hill if you get behind the auto the others will not know you are not pushing.

HOW TO MARRY.

When hugging a prospective June husband do not show too much experience.

MUSIC NOTES.

Baseball develops the arm for playing the trombone.

DICTIONARY.

Hen: A hen is a fowl which lays eggs when they are cheap and does not lay eggs when eggs are high.

TO STAY SINGLE.

Perhaps the quickest way to stay safely single through June is by raising pigs and never changing your clothes.

GARDEN HINTS.

Asparagus to be tender and fresh should be got out of a can.

BEAUTY SECRETS.

Wash your ears if you have your hair shingled.

A Thought

Grant us the will to fashion as we feel,
Grant us the strength to labour as we know,
Grant us the purpose, ribbed and edged with steel,
To strike the blow.

Knowledge we ask not—knowledge Thou hast lent.
But, Lord, the will—there lies our bitter need,
Give us to build above the deep intent
The deed, the deed.

—John Drinkwater.

PASTOR WILL FLY OVER HIS PARISH

LONDON, May 26.—Rev. L. Daniels pastor of an Australian parish of over 40,000 square miles, is here to buy an airplane to help him in his work.

"I tried to do it with a car," explained the pastor, "but after heroic work the car failed me.

"I am a hundred miles from a railway station" Daniels continued. "Besides having to attend to the spiritual needs of seven villages, anywhere from 90 to 210 miles apart, I have to visit outlying sheep farms.

"By using a car and sleeping out on the ground at night, I was able to get around. But not even a 'flivver' will stand everything. On the last journey I had several punctures, a broken spring, and other mishaps before the gasoline tank came off. With the help of my boy chauffeur, I caught as much of the gasoline as possible in spare cans. No one was likely to pass that way for a week, so I drove while the boy poured can after can of gasoline into the feed pipe."

Daniels was a pilot in the British Air Force during the war. He is selecting a small single-seater airplane and says that if he can find one suited to his needs his transportation trouble will be over. There are plenty of landing fields, as the country is flat.

CAN CALL MAN A "SCAB."

Rail Labour Board Rules Epithet Does Not Justify Discharge.

CHICAGO, May 26. — Calling a fellow employee a "scab" is not in every case sufficient justification for a man's discharge, the Railroad Labour Board held on Saturday when the Board ordered the Great Northern Railway Company to reinstate and compensate Charles F. Cook, machinist at Seattle, Wash., who was alleged to have said in reporting to his superior a defective piece of work that was done by some of his "scabs."

Cook told the master mechanic that in using this word he meant some one who did not know how to do his work, or who neglected it.
